Judge delays trial in bid rigging hearing

The Associated Press

LEXINGTON — A judge says he will delay the trial for three men charged in a federal bid rigging investigation.

U.S. Magistrate Judge James Todd said Tuesday the trial will be scheduled for late April. He did not have a specific date.

The case involves construction contractor Leonard Lawson, former Transportation Secretary Bill Nighbert and Lawson aide Brian Russell Billings.

The three were indicted Sept. 3 on charges of conspiracy, misapplication of property and obstruction of justice after a yearlong FBI probe into the awarding of state highway construction contracts. They entered not guilty pleas.

Todd also prohibited the public release of a tape recording that prosecutors unintentionally gave the defense and asked to have returned. Todd warned that violations would be dealt with severely.

HAROLD — A Pikeville woman is dead and one man has been charged with murder following a two-car collision along U.S. 23 late Friday night.

At just after 11 p.m. Friday night, Jonathan Pente, 37, of Harold, pulled onto Route 979 from U.S. 23 when his 2000 Chevrolet pickup truck ran head-on into a southbound 2003 Dodge van driven by Christopher Boley, 21, of North Mayo Trail in Pikeville.

According to reports from Kentucky State Police officers investigating the accident, a passenger in Boley's vehicle, Loretta G. Elswick, 63, Boley's grandmother, was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson.

According to media reports shortly following the accident, Elswick's death was the result of broken vertebrae and massive internal injuries.

Also passengers in Boley's vehicle were Pikeville residents Todd Elswick, 36, and Brent Elswick, whose age was not listed on police reports.

Boley and all three of his passengers were all listed as having the same address in Pikeville.

TUMBLING DOWN

A rock fall along Route 321 in Johnson County, near Porter Elementary, disrupted morning commutes for some motorists, but was otherwise harmless. The fall occurred around 8:30 a.m., a time when the highway has a considerable amount of traffic. One motorist said he was returning home after taking his grandson to the Mayo campus of Big Sandy Community and Technical College when the mountain came tumbling down in front of him. "You couldn't see anything for all the dust," the man said.

PRESTONSBURG — For the second time in just over a month, the Exxon Tiger Mart gas station along U.S. 23 in Prestonsburg was the target of a robbery Tuesday.

At approximately 3 a.m. Tuesday morning, station manager Kyle Smith was notified by two employees working third shift at the location that an armed gunman entered and demanded money. The man then fled

A short time after the robbery, Prestonsburg Police Department notified surrounding agencies following the initial call from clerks at Tiger Mart. Sewer plant opens Monday at Eastern

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

EASTERN — The residents of Eastern now have a new sewer plant to alleviate the long-standing sewage issues in the area.

The plant officially opened on Monday, and county officials are happy to see it up and running.

"This is something that has certainly been long overdue," said Judge-Executive R.D. "Doc" Marshall. "I saw a great need for it not only as the judge, but as the chairman of the health department. Due to a lot of the septic systems in the area failing, something had to be done, and it had to be done quickly. In approximately 10 months we have completed this project, and I'm thankful that the fiscal court was able to help the citizens of Eastern. In reality, we shouldn't even be discussing this. This is the 21st century, and we should have water and sewage for everybody in Floyd County."

Gary Blankenship, operations manager with Southern Water and Sewer, believes that the new plant will greatly improve the sewage situation in the community.

"We've actually hooked up 39 new customers," said have one of the best lineups that we've ever had. Our main acts are just outstanding," said Dave Kretzer, entertainment coordinator. "You would pay big money to see these acts anywhere else. We're going to have a really good round of entertainment and a really good festival this year."

Worth Repeating ...

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body.

— Sir Richard Steele

Amendment 1

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Guest View Shock and awe

Seldom, if ever, has the American economy gone through a week like the one just passed.

It began with a $1.2 trillion loss on Wall Street as stocks dropped 8 percent in a single day. It ended with Congress passing and President George W. Bush signing a $700 billion financial market rescue bill that hardly anyone understands.

In between, the stock market recovered most of its Monday loss, but the American economy slid further into recession. Two major U.S. banks fought over the remains of a third, the government reported that 159,000 Americans lost their jobs last month and the governor of California — which, if it were a country, would have the seventh-largest economy in the world — is shopping for a $7 billion loan. And all of this took place against the backdrop of a presidential election that is just a month away.

In a normal week, any one of these stories would have dominated the news. In the week just passed, they fell one after another, like cluster bombs in a shock-and-awe campaign. And there was no place to hide.

That didn't stop 228 members of the House of Representatives from trying to find one. They voted "no" on the first iteration of the financial rescue plan negotiated by the Bush administration and congressional leaders. That sent the plan down to defeat on Monday, leading to a 778-point drop in the Dow Jones industrial average and a further choking of the credit markets.

Cooler heads prevailed in the Senate. The upper chamber reconfigured the package to include a 10-year, $150 billion package of tax cuts and a temporary increase in federal bank deposit insurance limits. The good news: Middle-class taxpayers who could get clobbered by the alternative minimum tax got a renewed waiver. The bad news: Special interests (among them owners of auto race tracks, the rum industry, the woolen industry and — incredibly — the wooden-arrows-for-children industry) got tax breaks.

In the meantime, House members who voted "no" were hearing from businesses back home that they couldn't get credit. They were learning that the $700 billion is largely an accounting figure, not an actual immediate cash payout. And they were realizing that the psychological effects of not passing the bill would create dire cash-flow problems for all businesses and individuals, whether on Wall Street, Main Street or Chouteau Avenue.

Three dozen House members changed their minds, and early Friday afternoon, by a 263-171 vote, the House concurred with the Senate bill — just in time for them to catch planes home to campaign.

And not a moment too soon. Fundamentally, the economy runs on credit, and credit runs on confidence. The credit crisis that started with subprime mortgage loans, and escalated with the Ponzi-like stacking of opaque financial derivatives atop those loans, had undermined that confidence.

Only Washington could restore it, and by playing politics with the rescue plan, Congress failed in its responsibilities. Americans deserved straight answers on complicated questions, not pandering.

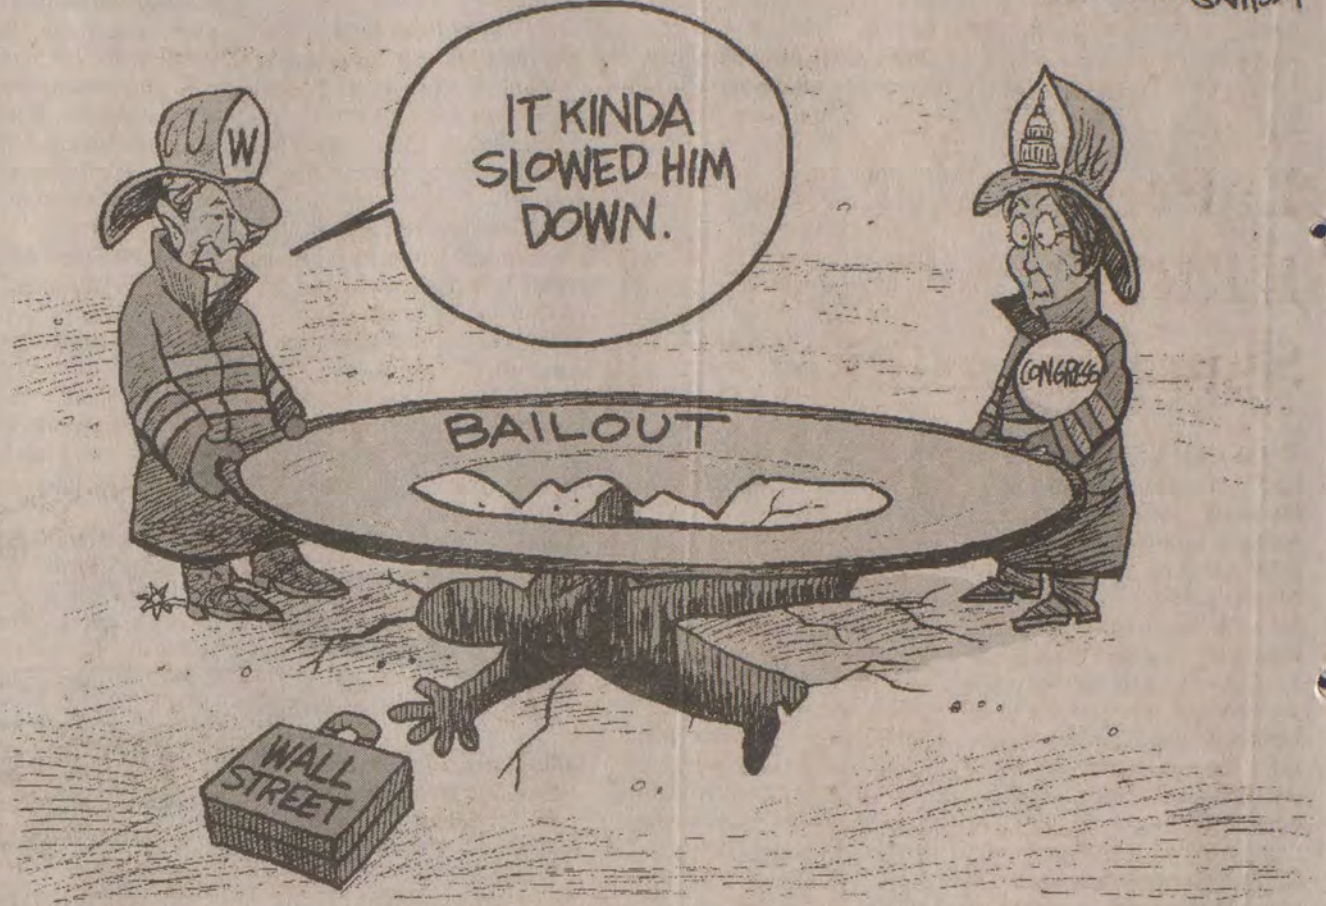

Fortunately, grown-ups, including Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Barack Obama of Illinois, stepped in. So did Republican candidate Sen. John McCain of Arizona, although McCain's bona fides as a born-again regulator remain highly suspect.

Both men now have an obligation to soothe the nation's jangled nerves. Wall Street and Washington may be able to settle the fight between Wells Fargo Bank and Citigroup for control of Wachovia. And the federal government will have to rescue — of all people — the one-time action hero Arnold Schwarzenegger, the governor of cash-strapped California.

But the nation as a whole is looking to Obama and McCain for reassurance, not platitudes, sound bites or empty theatrical gestures. Back on that overworked synecdoche called Main Street, Americans want to know things are going to calm down, that the country will play fair with them, that their jobs and families will be safe, that the bailout won't leave them holding the bag for fat cats.

The candidate who can assure them of that will win. And should.

Securing a greener future for Kentucky

by DOUG DOERRFELD

Sweden recently set on a path to become the world's first "oil-free economy" within 15 years by replacing all fossil fuels with renewables.

As a result, entrepreneurs rushed to develop new ways of generating energy from the wind, sun and tides, from wood chips, agricultural waste, and garbage. Economic growth rates climbed. We learned that when nations "decarbonize," their economies reap immediate rewards.

In recent weeks we've heard significant announcements in solar breakthroughs, from gigantic generating plants to new ways to store solar energy. We are on the threshold of the day when nearly every Kentucky home and business could be generating electricity and hot water.

With technology changing so fast, with renewable energy poised to deliver significant levels of power on a cost-competitive basis, Gov. Steve Beshear was asked to ask the Energy Cabinet to develop a new comprehensive energy plan. Though Kentucky's current plan is just a few years old, it relies heavily on coal (it does more to reinforce old power with energy production and the politically entrenched) than to transform our economy.

A good plan will not only cleanly generate the energy needed to meet the needs of Kentuckians, it will also improve our quality of life. "With good policies and strong investments that prepare people who most need work for the work that most needs to be done, green jobs can fight poverty and global warming pollution at the same time," a University of Massachusetts report pointed out.

Kentuckians For The Commonwealth offers three standards by which we will judge a new energy plan.

First, it must do no more harm and work to stop the harm now being done. The same week Gov. Beshear asked for a new energy plan the city of Louisville issued several air quality alerts. These air-borne toxins hurt people and put some in the hospital. Rural areas are also hardly immune to these dangers. Mammoth Cave is the fifth most polluted national park, largely because of coal power plants in western Kentucky.

On the other end of the coal cycle, more mining with the continued lack of effective enforcement of mining laws means unabated destruction of mountains, forests and streams. More coal might feed the frenzy for short-term energy, but do so at the cost of our ecological health and economic well-being. The state ignores its own Division of Water reports about the degradation of water quality resulting from radical strip mining and continues allowing the intentional destruction of streams — another example that the "energy at any cost" mentality still rules in the state capitol.

Second, any plan must make sure affordable energy remains accessible to all Kentuckians. Kentucky's past and present dependence on coal for electricity in a carbon constrained future looms as a menacing financial and environmental liability. New coal plants are expensive and will continue the upward spiral of electricity rates.

Experimental coal sequestration technology, decades away, could increase the cost of electricity another 50 to 80 percent. Clearly, this path is making electricity less accessible to lower income families and creating a burden for small businesses.

Energy accessibility and security demand that we look toward sources that provide the greatest price and supply stability.

Third, we must take advantage of the growing green economy or we face being left behind. A recent Apollo Alliance report showed that investment in a clean and efficient economy would "lead to over 3 million new green-collar jobs, stimulate $1.4 trillion in new GDP, add billions in personal income and retail sales, produce $284 billion in net energy savings, all while generating sufficient returns to the U.S. treasury to pay for itself over 10 years." How much of this will Kentucky capture, or will it go to other states while we're still mired in old dirty power?

The state currently offers only $76 million in incentives to Integrity Manufacturing for 1,000 new jobs building electric cars compared to $250 million to Peabody Energy to create 500 coal gasification jobs. This may be circumstantial, but it is a clear indication of how our priorities must change.

Visionary leadership will see this moment as an opportunity to move Kentucky into the future that we have the power to create. But it will require breaking away from the old mindsets, the old political alliances and fossil-fuel submission. We have no time to waste.

Doerrfeld is the chairperson of Kentuckians For The Commonwealth.

Focus on the Family, Operation UNITE to launch 'Declare Hope' initiative at regional summits

Believing that strong families are key to healthy, safe and thriving communities, the Focus on the Family organization has partnered with Operation UNITE to launch a new initiative in southern and eastern Kentucky.

To kick-off this partnership, two regional "Declare Hope" family strengthening summits are planned — Friday, October 17, at Allen Baptist Church in Prestonsburg and Saturday, October 18, at Pulaski County High School in Somerset.

There is no charge to attend the summits, which begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. Lunch will be provided.

Psychologist Dr. Bill Maier, a national radio and TV host affiliated with Focus on the Family, will be the keynote speaker. He will discuss what we can do to make our families stronger and in turn reach out to a struggling family in need.

Also participating in the program is Fifth District Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers, who created Operation UNITE in 2003 to combat prescription drug abuse through a unique three-pronged approach that has been hailed as a national model by President George W. Bush.

During these free events, community and business leaders, faith-based organizations and concerned individuals will learn how to effectively make their own families stronger and in turn reach out to a struggling family in need. As part of this call to action, participants will leave the summit with a special family challenge kit, a 75-day plan to strengthen their own families, and a second kit to share with another family.

"Because we face many challenges in our families today, including the risk of drug and alcohol use, we are gathering together as a community to learn how we can practically and effectively strengthen our families, as well as reach out to others who need our support," said Karen Engle, UNITE president/CEO.

"Dr. Maier will discuss the state of today's families and offer suggestions on how to raise healthy kids in today's culture," Engle continued. "Our children are exposed to many risk factors on a daily basis. By strengthening our family we, as a society, will be better prepared to address issues such as juvenile crime, teen pregnancy and the easy access to destructive material on the Internet."

"It is our belief that these one-day summits will provide an opportunity for participants to see hope planted anew in our families, churches and communities," Engle concluded. "Join us, learn how to Declare Hope in your home and neighborhood, then reach out and bless others with that vision of hope."

The Weber Art Gallery at Pikeville College will present art work by Travis Townsend and Brandon Smith throughout the month of October. The exhibit will include contemporary installation, sculpture and drawings. Both artists teach at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond and will collaborate to create art for this exciting show. Townsend embraces the unplanned and creates objects that comment on our increasingly fast, commercialized and militarized world. His wood and mixed media sculptures resemble animated functional equipment with handles, doors, and mysterious openings. Smith is interested in capturing a mix of emotional, intellectual and psychological aspects within his work. Working from his memory of the landscape, his subjects often become metaphors for other things - cows for people, trailers for cows and landscape for livelihood. The campus and community are cordially invited. For more information, contact Professor Rae Goodwin at Ext. 5759 or Professor Pat Kowalok at Ext. 5758. The gallery is located in Record Memorial Building, second floor. Hours are Mondays, 9-11:30 a.m. and 2-6 p.m.; Tuesdays, 10:30 a.m.-noon and 12:30-6 p.m.; Wednesdays, 8-11 a.m. and 2-6 p.m.; and Thursdays, 8-9 a.m., 10 a.m.-noon and 1-5 p.m.

DEAR FELLOW CITIZENS OF DISTRICT 3, OF FLOYD COUNTY:

My name is Wes Gilliam and I'm running for School Board Member here in Floyd County.

I'm 38 years old, a devoted husband for 16 years, and a father of two. I have a son who is 15 years old, and a daughter who is 11 years old. Both children attend school at Betsy Layne. My family and I have lived in the Betsy Layne area our whole lives, and my wife and I have chosen to raise our children here as well. I have worked with children my whole adult life in sports (refereeing and coaching). I've served 18 years in the army reserves. After a lot of consideration, my wife, Susan, and I decided that I should run for the office of School Board member, District 3, here in Floyd County.

I have seen things from the school system that should not be, and I'm sure many of you have. I know there is room for improvement, and together I believe we can make a difference, and with your vote and help, I will work hard to make improvements needed in our area.

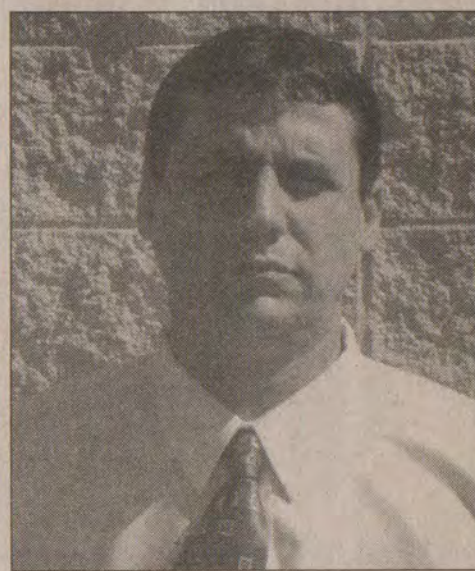

I will promise you, the voter: (The moms, dads, aunts, uncles, grandparents, and all caring family members) that I, as a board member, will do all that I can for the kids in our district.

You know better than anyone, as the parents, what is best or is needed in our schools. There is no limit to how successful our school and our children can become, with the right access and encouragement, we will have endless possibilities.

Politics should have no place in the school systems and I want to make a difference and leave it out of our classrooms, so all of our children will have the same advantage, and we will work together to make sure no children are left behind. I promise, with your vote, that I will work hard and be there for you when needed—by you or your children.

State representative dies in interstate crash

by BETH CAMPBELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Kentucky state Rep. Larry Belcher died Monday night in a crash with a tractor-trailer on Interstate 65 in south-central Kentucky.

Belcher was killed shortly after 6 p.m. CDT in Edmonson County when his pickup truck ran into the back of the semi and went up under the truck, Kentucky State Police said. No other injuries were reported.

Trooper Todd Holder said there was no sign of braking at the scene and that police requested an autopsy to try to determine whether a health condition could have contributed to the wreck.

Belcher, 61, a retired educator, was a Democrat from Shepherdsville who was seeking re-election in a race against Republican Trina Summers. He served in the state House from 1999 to 2002 when he ran for a Senate seat but lost that race. He was re-elected to the House two years ago and had served since then.

Gov. Steve Beshear said Belcher would be "deeply missed."

"Our thoughts and prayers are with the family of my friend Larry Belcher," Beshear said in a release Monday night. "He loved his home and his state and he represented them both with great pride and commitment."

Belcher was vice chairman of the House Education Committee and Seniors, Military Affairs and Public Safety Committee and also was a member of the Transportation Committee.

"He was a person who, when he spoke, you listened, because he didn't talk unnecessarily," said Rep. Tonya Pullin, D-South Shore and chairwoman of the seniors committee. "He had a good heart and was in public service for the right reason — to serve people."

House Speaker Jody Richards said Belcher "was one of the finest men I have ever known.

"His motives were pure," said Richards, D-Bowling Green. "He was in the General Assembly to help people."

Rep. Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, also praised Belcher.

"If there was ever a person in politics for the right reasons, it was Larry Belcher," Stumbo said.

Belcher's survivors include his wife, Linda.

Financial rescue plan looms over Senate race

by BRUCE SCHREINER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — If he had a vote, cattle farmer Robert Hail might have stamped a thumbs-down brand on the $700 billion financial industry bailout that Republican Mitch McConnell helped steer through the Senate.

"I'm not sure if that's just throwing good money after bad," Hail said at a recent gathering of Laurel County cattlemen and their families in the heart of Republican territory in southeastern Kentucky.

Hail said McConnell's support for the rescue plan hadn't shaken his faith in the senator.

Several others said they also plan to vote for McConnell, but one supporter said he detected growing unrest as the country contends with a daunting financial crisis.

"A lot of people I talk to want to clean house," said John Childers, a retired railroad electrician.

McConnell's vote on the bailout plan could loom as an issue in the final weeks of his re-election campaign. McConnell, the Senate's top Republican leader, is trying to fend off Democrat Bruce Lunsford amid the nation's gloom over plunging stock markets, tightening credit and job worries.

Lunsford distanced himself from the bailout Friday after the package cleared Congress and was signed by President Bush. Lunsford, a wealthy Louisville businessman, said he would have had a "hard time" voting for the bill, saying Wall Street will benefit the most while average taxpayers are "left holding the bag, again."

ever, showed a tie with Lunsford among likely voters, with each getting 41 percent.

Larry Sabato, director of the Center for Politics at the University of Virginia, wrote on his Web site that an upset is "within the realm of possibility" following the results of The Courier-Journal's Bluegrass Poll.

"The rotten national environment for Republicans and the financial meltdown on Wall Street have boomeranged especially hard on a legislative leader like McConnell," Sabato said. "Kentucky is a conservative state, but it has a populist streak in times like this."

Democratic strategist Danny Briscoe said McConnell took a "principled stand" in supporting the bailout plan that will allow the government to spend billions of dollars to buy bad assets from banks and other institutions to shore up the financial industry. But McConnell's vote carries political peril, since it was cast "in the face of a lot of people that are against the bill," he said.

Public response to the bailout could be a key in deciding the race, he said. McConnell's challenge is to "convince the people who don't like it why he did it and why it was in their best interests," he said.

In defending the rescue plan, McConnell said in a Senate speech that the aftershocks from the tremors shaking the financial system were already being felt by ordinary Kentuckians.

Small business owners wrote his Senate office reporting that rising interest rates are putting their operations at risk, he said. Others worry that their retirement savings will vanish.

"The current crisis may have its roots in the actions of a few," McConnell said. "But its effects could potentially reach into every single home in Kentucky, and every other home in America."

In Louisville, business owner Rollo Fox said the financial crisis on Wall Street hit home when his interest rate skyrocketed on an industrial revenue bond that helped finance construction of a new facility. The rate, reset weekly, jumped from about 2.5 percent or 2.7 percent to 10 percent.

"That has a huge financial impact," said Fox, who employees about 100 at his business, Parts Unlimited Inc., which makes interiors for classic cars.

Fox said he hopes the rescue plan loosens credit markets, and in turn lowers interest rates. He said if borrowing costs remain so inflated, the added costs will "wipe out profits for a lot of companies."

McConnell promised strict oversight in carrying out the rescue plan, and said failed financial executives would be held accountable and taxpayers could expect to recoup most, if not all, the money spent.

Vance Carpenter, a retired federal worker who attended a recent rally for Lunsford in Berea, said he doubts taxpayers will get the money back. He said retirees get only slight increases in Social Security benefits, while the government backs pumping billions into bailing out big financial institutions.

"We don't get any raises that amount to anything, and then you see $700 billion going to bail these clowns out — it's just not right," Carpenter said.

David Coffey, who attended the cattlemen's event in Laurel County, opposed the bailout but said McConnell's support for it hadn't changed his favorable opinion of McConnell, but then added "not to this point."

Coffey said the beneficiaries will be financial companies that made money off high-interest, risky loans.

"Now they want the taxpayers to bail them out," he said.

Lunsford, who formerly ran a nursing home and hospital company, blames the financial meltdown on a lack of financial industry regulation — a policy he said was embraced by McConnell and Bush.

Lunsford declined to take a stand on the bailout as it wound through Congress, saying he didn't create the problem and wasn't in a position to shape the legislation. His response drew scorn from McConnell's campaign. At one point, McConnell campaign manager Justin Brasell said Lunsford was "either too frightened or too uninformed to tell Kentuckians where he stands on the most important issue facing America."

After the bailout won final passage, Lunsford weighed in. He said it was a short-term fix at best and said he would have "fought for a better deal for taxpayers."

"It doesn't include strong enough provisions to make sure this kind of meltdown never happens again, and it does little to help the people who are really hurting," Lunsford said.

PUBLIC NOTICE: GOOD GOVERNMENT ON DISPLAY

Don't take anything off that table

BY BOB BUCKEL
THE AZLE (TX) NEWS

What it really comes down to is osmosis.

You remember osmosis, don't you? In high school science, you learned that's the process that lets stuff pass through the membrane that surrounds your cells. Osmosis lets the good stuff in and the bad stuff out, trading spent fuel for new fuel. It keeps you alive.

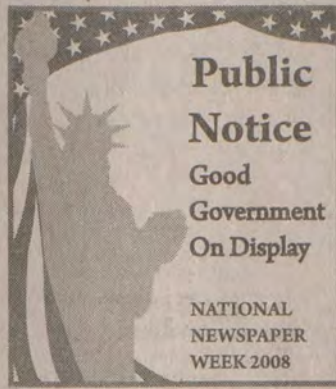

The funny thing about osmosis (other than the name) is that it's automatic. There's no conscious thought involved. That's why if you get stranded at sea, like Tom Hanks in Castaway, you mustn't drink seawater, even if you're dying of thirst.

In fact, if you drink seawater, osmosis is what will kill you. It will move the fresh water out of your cells and take salt water in until you're basically a pickle. You can't stop it, anymore than you can consciously make your nose stop running.

You don't have a choice. Switch gears from water to information, from your cells to your mind.

There is an enormous amount of information out there, every day, trying hard to get into your head. Advertising. Celebrity fluff. Sports statistics. Dates. Disclaimers. Passwords. Information you will never need competes with information you vitally need — all jockeying for space with that long poem you had to learn in junior high.

But unlike osmosis, when it comes to information, you have a choice. You control what goes into your head. That's what makes newspapers so irreplaceable, and public notice such a vital part of this free society.

In America, we take the free flow of information for granted. We count on being able to pick up the newspaper, turn on the radio, browse the Internet, flip on the TV and check out the smorgasbord of data to see what we need and what we don't. We are our own filter. The fact that all this information is out there is the foundation of this country and absolutely essential to the freedoms we enjoy.

The newspaper is the ultimate buffet table of information.

It's not that way everywhere. In many countries, dictators take over the media and strive mightily to control the flow of information to the people they wish to keep in subjection. And as we've seen throughout history, once information begins to flow freely in a culture, it's difficult to keep people under the thumb of repression.

We see that repressive spirit here, too, in the school superintendent who doesn't want board members to talk to teachers, the city council that wants to stifle comments at meetings, judges who issue unneeded gag orders, commissioners who want to work it all out behind the scenes and have every vote unanimous. There are officials at every level of government who resist the free flow of information. They think they know better.

They don't get it. Newspapers fight this battle every day, at every level, because the free flow of information is ultimately what guarantees our freedom.

Much is said about posting public notices on the Internet.

They should. In fact, most newspapers already put them there. But the idea of removing them from newspapers ought to send chills down the spine of every freedom-loving American. That's like taking a main course off the buffet table and serving it only in the back room, for the privileged few who know the password.

Public notice should be out there for everyone to browse, notice and read. It should be available to all. Anything that takes away control from the people — anything that pulls an item off the smorgasbord of information — is something we should resist.

It's a step toward osmosis, toward not having control.

And as we learned in science class, that will kill you.

Public Notice: Taxpayers have a right to know

BY DONNIS BAGGETT
THE BRYAN-COLLEGE STATION (TX) EAGLE

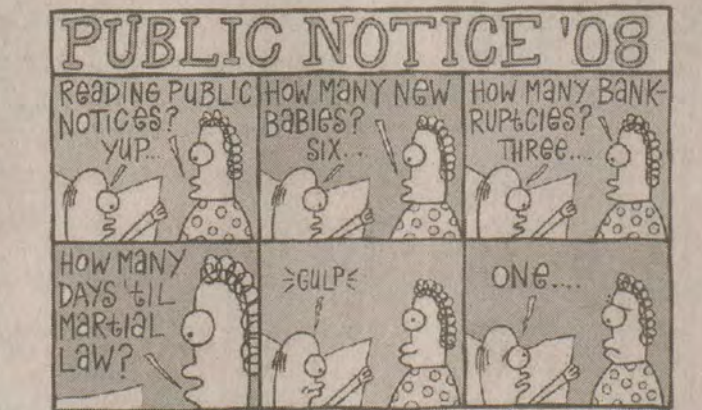

"Public notice." Sounds great, but it costs money ... at least in the print media. So why in the world should governmental entities spend taxpayers' money on public notices when they can post them on the Internet for next to nothing?

Because the taxpayers have a right to know, have a need to know and want to know, that's why. The argument is as simple as that.

Sure, a school district, a city, a county, a utility district or a state government can post legal notices online at little or no cost. But so what? If a tree falls in the forest and no one is around to hear, does it make a sound? If a notice gets posted on an obscure Web site and taxpayers don't think to look at the site, does the notice really matter?

Nope. That's why newspaper notice is important.

The difference between governmental or third-party online-only postings and newspaper postings is very simple. It comes down to whether a reader — i.e., a taxpayer — has a reasonable opportunity to see the notice or not. If the notice is one that the reader must search for online, chances are it won't be seen by very many of us who eventually pay the lowest rate available for these notices, and we're happy to do so — not only because we make a little bit of money off the notices, but because they're an important part of the public record.

And the public record is what newspapers protect and preserve every day, every week, every month and every year.

To relegate public notice to online services only would be a severe detriment to the people's right — indeed, the people's demand — to know what our government is up to. That is why we must continue to fight to maintain printed public notices. After all, information is power, and power determines the direction of our republic. To weaken that is to weaken our control over the government that we empower.

have a vested interest and are searching for notices of that sort. A published newspaper notice, on the other hand, is right there in black and white for anyone who reads the classified ads...and, in most cases, online as well.

Obviously, legal notices are a source of revenue for newspapers. But generally, they're not our bread and butter. Most newspapers give

National economic woes show little effect on local employment rates

SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

Though the nation has shown an increase in the number of unemployment claims filed in the past few months, Floyd County is not reflecting that trend, officials say.

Billy Breeding, manager for Prestonsburg's Office of Employment and Training, said Monday there has been a slight change in the number of individuals who have come into his office to file new claims. Immediate statistics for this were not available, Breeding said. But this also cannot account for claims filed online or by phone, either.

"I've seen a little change," said Breeding, "but we're not going to know overall because of online and phone claims. The local office may not know the exact traffic that comes in because of this aspect to the claims process."

Breeding said he does expect an upswing in what he referred to as initial claims, which is to say individuals who are filing for first time benefits as opposed to continued benefits.

"Due to seasonal work, we're going to see an increase in claims as the winter months approach," Breeding said. "Also, with American Standard closing in Johnson County, we are probably going to see some claims there, as well."

Breeding says the state of the nation's current economic woes have also yet to cause ripples in his office.

"I just don't think it's had time to filter down," Breeding said of the national economic climate.

Dr. Justine Detzel, chief labor analyst with the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet, said figures for initial claims in Floyd County show 135 residents sought claims during the month of July, the most recent data for these numbers. Statewide during July, 41,183 new claims were filed.

As for claims for continued benefits, statistics from Frankfort show that these claims were down from August of last to August of this year. In August of 2007, 213 Floyd Countians filed for continued benefits. That number was down to 142 for August of this year.

Festival

On the nonmusical side of entertainment, demonstrations from Dance, Etc. Studio of Dance and the Family Academy of Martial Arts are scheduled for Wednesday, with the dance demonstration beginning at 6 p.m., followed by the martial arts at 7 p.m.

The festival officially began with the Jenny Wiley Beauty Pageant on Sunday at the Mountain Arts Center. The event brought in hundreds of spectators, and the winners of the pageant are expected to ride in the parade on Saturday at 3 p.m.

For more information of all of the events and vendors at the Jenny Wiley Festival, visit www.jennywileyfestival.org, or call Prestonsburg City Hall at (606) 886-2335.

Sewer

Blankenship said. "It is a 25,000 gallon-a-day plant, and we will probably hook up the other eight customers in the area in the near future. We will also be able to hook up Allen Central High School in the future if they choose to do so."

According to Blankenship, the old sewer systems in the area were basic septic tanks, and almost all of them were failing.

"There were over 39 or 40 violations from the Kentucky Division of Water and the Floyd County Health Department," Blankenship said. "It was a really bad situation. Down at Allen Central, the kids could hardly play football because of the smell. The new plant will take care of all that."

The plant was funded in part by coal severance money, with a total cost around $600,000.

Murder

Det. Eddie Crum, with the Kentucky State Police, who is one of the investigating officers, said Pente was on his way home when the crash occurred.

Pente suffered no injuries in the crash, police said.

Pente fled the scene on foot following the crash, according to police, but was later apprehended and lodged at the Floyd County Detention Center.

The Harold resident has been charged with murder and leaving the scene of an accident and is currently being held on a $500,000 cash bond.

Police say three additional assault charges are pending in the case, adding that Boley was also in critical condition as of Friday.

Considering Boley's current condition, police say there could be upgraded charges later in the investigation. He was airlifted, along with his grandmother, to Cabell-Huntington. Another passenger was transported by ambulance to Pikeville Medical Center, reports said.

Pente and Boley were not wearing seat belts at the time of the accident while Todd and Brent Elswick were wearing seat belts. It was not mentioned in any official reports as to whether Loretta Elswick was wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident.

Pente pleaded not guilty during his arraignment in Floyd District Court Monday. His case will now be set for a preliminary hearing later in the month.

Arrest

Gregory Hill, 43, of Rockhouse, was taken into custody and charged with first-degree robbery. He is, according to Prestonsburg police, also suspected of being involved in the station's Aug. 31 armed robbery.

This is second time in just over a month the Tiger Mart has been the target of an armed robbery. Prestonsburg Police Det. Steve Little investigated the last robbery, which was another early morning hit.

On Aug. 31, two white males with bandanas covering their faces entered the station and threatened clerks at gunpoint, demanding money and later speeding away. Surveillance footage from that first incident revealed the robbery spanned only about 45 seconds.

The second suspect from the first robbery is still being sought, Little said.

Though the amount taken during Tuesday's robbery was undisclosed, Smith did comment indirectly on how much money the suspect left with Tuesday morning.

"The amount of money that was stolen is not worth spending time in jail over," Smith said.

The stolen money has since been recovered, according to a statement from the Prestonsburg Police Department.

Hill is currently being held at the Floyd County Detention Center.

Anyone with information relating to the robbery is encouraged to contact the Prestonsburg Police Department at (606) 886-1010.

Calls

contact your bank. Always remember to keep identifying information in strict confidence, and never give it out over the phone or through the Internet."

Kentucky Attorney General Jack Conway knows first-hand about identity theft, as his credit card was stolen earlier this year. Conway received notification that his address had been changed, which then made the theft a federal crime.

"You're not going to get a call from your bank asking you for banking information," Conway said. "They're already going to have it."

Conway, who initiated a cybercrime division to help improve the use of technology in law enforcement, has seen many cases where credit card information was stolen because the card holder wasn't aware of the scam.

"We handle these kind of reports all the time," Conway said. "If people are concerned, they can call their bank and ask questions."

If you suspect that you have been contacted by someone trying to obtain your credit card information, you can contact the attorney general's consumer hotline number at (888) 432-9257.

Drug companies: No cold medicines for kids under 4

by RICARDO ALONSO-ZALDIVAR
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Children under 4 should not be given over-the-counter cough and cold remedies, drug companies said Tuesday in a concession to pediatricians who doubt the drugs work in kids and worry about their safety.

The voluntary changes came less than a week after federal health officials said they also saw little evidence that the drugs work, but feared that parents would give kids adult medicines if the products were taken off store shelves.

In addition, the drug makers said they will add a warning to their products that parents should not give children antihistamines to make them sleepy. These are allergy-relief medications often found in medicines that combine several ingredients to treat a variety of symptoms.

The new measures "reflect industry's overall commitment to the continued safe and appropriate use of children's oral OTC cough and cold medicines," Linda Suydam, president of the Consumer Healthcare Products Association, said in announcing the changes on behalf of the companies.

"We are doing this voluntarily out of an abundance of caution," she added. The new instructions will appear on products distributed for the coming cold season.

Pediatricians, who have been calling for a ban on marketing cough and cold remedies for children under 6, welcomed the shift by the industry.

"It's a huge step forward," said Dr. Joshua Sharfstein, Baltimore's health commissioner. "There is no evidence that these products work in kids, and there is definitely evidence of serious side effects."

Problems with OTC cough and cold medicines send some 7,000 children to hospital emergency rooms each year, with symptoms ranging from hives, to drowsiness, to unsteady walking. Many kids overdose by taking medicines when their parents aren't looking.

Since a majority of the problems involve 2- to 3-year-olds, the industry's new instructions, if followed by parents, should help.

"The 2- and 3-year-olds are definitely the highest risk," said Sharfstein. "More than 50 percent of the problem is with these kids. 'If they don't have this stuff around the home, they're less likely to grab it and ingest it.'"

Pediatricians still support recalling the medicines for children under 6, and the Food and Drug Administration is studying their effectiveness for children under 12. But it could take a year or more for federal health officials to reach a final decision.

The industry is also expanding an educational campaign aimed getting parents to be more careful in giving their kids cough and cold medicines.

Parents are should never:

- Give adult medicines to a child.
- Give two or more medicines with the same ingredients at the same time.
- Give antihistamines to make a child sleepy.
- Parents should:
 - Give the exact recommended dose, using the measuring device that comes with the medicine.
 - Keep OTC medicines out of sight and out of reach.
 - Consult their doctor if they have any questions.

Opponents to online gambling case gathering

by JOE BIESK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT — Online gambling advocates say Kentucky's governor is entering potentially dangerous territory with his administration's attempt to enforce a state law against Web sites based across the globe.

Groups opposed to Gov. Steve Beshear's ongoing civil lawsuit that seeks control of selected Internet domain names say Kentucky doesn't have jurisdiction and is violating constitutional due process rights. They say the state is seeking to stifle competition and question whether the gambling activity that occurs is even illegal.

"We're going to fight this one strongly," said Rich Muny, president of the Kentucky chapter of the Poker Players Alliance.

The Kentucky Justice and Public Safety Cabinet is attempting to block Kentuckians' access to online casinos, including some of the most popular in the world. State officials claim state law gives them authority to take "illegal gambling devices," in this case domain names.

Kentucky officials have asked Franklin County Circuit Judge Thomas Wingate to forfeit control of 141 gambling Web sites to the state. A hearing in the case is scheduled for Tuesday.

During his campaign for governor last year, Beshear campaigned on a central theme supporting legalized casino gambling as a way to raise state revenue. Beshear tried and failed to get the General Assembly to put a proposed constitutional amendment before voters that would legalize casino gambling.

Beshear, in announcing the lawsuit last month, said that blocking Internet gambling sites in Kentucky would protect the state's "signature industry" and called such sites "leeches on our communities."

"Unlike casinos that operate on land or on riverboats in the United States, these operations pay no tax revenues, provide no jobs and yield no tourism benefits," Beshear said at the time.

Some groups opposed to the state's actions met Monday before the hearing.

Derek Hunter, a spokesman for the Media Freedom Project, which is related to Americans for Tax Reform, called the state's move a "dangerous step" that raises constitutional issues about due process. Hunter said the government should not regulate Internet commerce.

Joe Brennan Jr., chairman of the Internet Media Entertainment & Gaming Association, claimed Kentucky's move was intended to thwart competition from other gambling interests currently in the state.

Kentucky already allows gambling on horse racing and bingo and has a state lottery.

"These are things that should trouble all Americans because this was all done in an effort to take out the competition," Brennan said.

Jeremiah Johnston, a spokesman for the Washington D.C.-based Internet Commerce Association, says Kentucky is overstepping into what should be a federal interstate commerce issue. Johnston said the precedent set by the case could have a "chilling effect" on Internet businesses.

"If all of a sudden your company pops up on the radar in some state and they can just take your address, it's like someone swooping down onto main street and taking your building," Johnston said. "You're out of business."

No. 17 Patriots run past Bears

TIMES STAFF REPORT

WILLIAMSBURG — No. 17 Cumberlandss rolled up 470 yards of rushing and cruised to a 42-7 win over Pikeville College Saturday afternoon at Taylor Stadium.

The Patriots also improved to 1-0 in the rugged East Division of the Mid-South Conference, where they are one of three teams ranked in the national Top 25.

Cumberlandss (4-1) finished with 559 yards of total offense on 74 plays; by comparison, Pikeville managed 305 yards on 56 offensive plays.

Cumberlandss made it look easy early, running at will against the Bear defense. Their first score was set up by an illegal kick on a punt, giving them the ball at the Bear 15. It ended on a reverse when freshman Maurice Berryhill scored on a three-yard run with 11:17 left.

Starting tailback Ricky Walker scored on a one-yard run later in the opening period, and quarterback Kyle King kept for a four-yard score with 12:16 left in the half. Kicker Hunter Meade was good on all three PATs to put the Pats on top 21-0.

The Bears finally put together a sustained drive, going 81 on what would prove to be their only scoring drive of the game. It ended when sophomore quarterback Dan Wideman hit freshman receiver Montrel Jones for an eight-yard touchdown. Junior kicker Kyle Chilton booted the PAT to make it 21-7.

In the third period, the Pats scored on an eight-yard run by Justin Pritchett and a 65-yard carry by King; the final score came on a 10-yard scamper by Desrick Jones.

The Bears finished with 71 yards on 21 carries, with De'Rail Sims leading the way with 30 yards on seven carries. In the air, they were 22-of-35 for 234 yards, all but one incomplection by Wideman.

Receiver Justin Lamb had 99 yards on seven catches to lead the way; Nick Jamerson hauled in seven catches for 57 yards and Jones finished with 64 yards on seven catches.

Cumberlandss had two players with 100 yards on the ground. King, the starting quarterback, finished with 123 yards on 10 carries; while Walker had 100 yards on 17 carries.

Following an open date, Prestonsburg will travel to Beechwood Saturday (Oct. 11) for a game against the host Tigers. Beechwood is the top-ranked team in Class 1A.

Allgaier makes last lap pass, wins ARCA race

TIMES STAFF REPORT

TALLADEGA Alabama — Justin Allgaier, in the family-owned Hoosier Tire Midwest-AG Tech Dodge, surfaced just in time to wrestle the lead away from Joey Logano Friday afternoon at Talladega Superspeedway to win the thrilling, action-packed ARCA RE/MAX 250.

Allgaier led just one lap on his way to the win.

Prestonsburg driver Steve Blackburn started 11th and finished 22nd in the No. 69 Dodge. A veteran driver, Blackburn is looking to run more races during the 2009 season.

Allgaier battled from the tail-end all day after making several stops on pit road to repair front-end damage caused from a multi-car wreck in turns one and two, one of several pile-ups that left several machines badly damaged or destroyed. There were no injuries.

With darkness falling down on the 2.66-mile superspeedway, Allgaier maneuvered his way from 10th to first inside of 10 laps from the finish to earn his seventh career series victory. Allgaier, who started 25th, also earned the Casite Hard Charger award.

Logano, who led 15 laps in the Interstate Batteries-Venturini Motorsports Chevrolet, had to settle for second one length away.

Bobby Gerhart, in his own Lucas Oil Chevrolet, battled back from several unscheduled pit stops to cure his ill-handling car to finish third. In doing so, Gerhart's brother and crew chief Billy Gerhart was the Cosetic Crew Chief of the Race.

Jeremy Clements finished fourth in the Boudreaux's Butt Paste Chevrolet with Patrick Sheltra trailing in fifth in the Quality Turf-Casite Chevrolet.

Sheltra, looking for his career-first victory, lost a heartbreaker when the Indiantown, Florida driver gave up the lead to Logano just two laps shy of the finish.

In addition to the typical Talladega multi-car wrecks, the race also had major championship implications for point leader Scott Speed and runner-up driver Ricky Stenhouse, Jr., both of whom were involved in separate wrecks. Both, after spending several laps behind the wall in repair, returned to competition several laps down. Speed was ultimately credited with the 23rd finishing position while Stenhouse was 28th.

Kimmel finished sixth in front of John Wes Townley, who finished seventh in the Zaxby's Ford. Townley also earned the SunTrust Highest Finishing Rookie of the Race honors.

Mark Thompson finished eighth in the Phoenix Air-BeavEx-Byus Ford. Chrissy Wallace, finished ninth in the Germain Racing Toyota. Carter finished 10th in the Stine Seed-Piggly Wiggly-NuSouth Lemonade Ford.

Piariest finished runner-up in the 2008 Three Rivers Conference Volleyball Tournament. The Lady Knights have enjoyed a stellar season under the guidance of head coach Darlene Moore.

Blackburn runs third in ARCA practice

TIMES STAFF REPORT

TALLADEGA Ala. — John Jackson, in the No. 72 FixATire-James Carter Attorney Chevrolet, was quickest during an ARCA RE/MAX Series practice session at Talladega Superspeedway on Friday afternoon, posting a 50.829 second lap around the 2.66-mile superspeedway.

The 50 minute practice session was designed to give ARCA RE/MAX Series teams a final opportunity to draft before the ARCA RE/MAX 250, race 20 of the 21-race ARCA RE/MAX Series. Up to 19 drivers chose to participate in the session, including Ricky Carmichael, who was second in the session in a No. 33 KHI Chevrolet. Carmichael, a retired AMA Motocross racer and a full time driver in the NASCAR Camping World East Series, is preparing to make his career first ARCA RE/MAX Series start this afternoon. Prestonsburg drive Steve Blackburn Logano was third, followed by Venturini Motorsports teammates Joey and Brian Scott.

Several teams opted not to participate in the limited impound practice session, including James Buescher, who started on the pole for Friday's ARCA RE/MAX 250 in a No. 32 Mercedes Homes-Red Line Oil Toyota. Tom Hessert, III, who started second in a No. 1 Boudreaux's Butt Paste-Maaco Auto Painting Ford, was seventh during the practice session.

The Piariest School Volley Knights wore pink and proceeds over $500 were donated to the breast cancer foundation during a recent match in observance of breast cancer awareness. Coffee runs No. 2 Alabama past Kentucky, 17-14

by JOHN ZENOR
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Alabama discovered how precarious life at the top can be, sidestepping what could have been another top-five upset with a bruising drive and a late field goal.

Glen Coffee rushed for 218 yards, Leigh Tiffin kicked a 24-yard field goal with 2:12 left to put the Crimson Tide up 10, and No. 2 Alabama survived and advanced in the national title chase with a 17-14 win over Kentucky on Saturday.

Playing with its best national ranking in 15 years, the Tide survived three turnovers, a season-high 10 penalties, and a sputtering passing game a week after racing to a 31-0 halftime lead at Georgia.

The outcome, at least, was something coach Nick Saban could be happy with after top-five teams Georgia, Florida and Southern California were toppled last weekend.

"We're certainly happy to win but we also put on a clinic today for how to keep the other team in the game," Saban said.

Coffee and the Tide (6-0, 3-0 Southeastern Conference) pounded out a 15-play drive from their own 17-yard line to set up the clinching field goal. Coffee gained 57 yards on nine carries on the drive, which consumed 8:10.

Tiffin, who had missed two earlier kicks, drilled this one for a 17-7 lead, and the points proved necessary. John Parker Wilson had converted a fourth-and-1 with a quarterback sneak from the Kentucky 46 to keep the drive alive.

The Wildcats (4-1, 0-1) weren't done yet. Mike Hartline hit DeMoreo Ford streaking down the right sideline for a 48-yard touchdown pass with 40 seconds left. The blown pass coverage had Saban fuming on the sideline over another mistake in a day full of them for the Tide.

"They never gave up and we never put them away, and we had some chances," he said.

Kentucky's onside kick attempt went out of bounds to give Alabama the ball and the game.

The Tide's final scoring chance came after Coffee nearly lost his second fumble inside the Kentucky 10, but the ball dribbled out of bounds after the Wildcats had a clear shot to recover and Alabama kept possession.

"We had it and then we didn't," Kentucky coach Rich Brooks said. "That's kind of the way the game went for us."

Cornerback David Jones had the ball squirt from underneath him. "I tried to just fall on it and secure it, but it just slipped out," he said.

Bama continued to dominate the series, moving to 34-2-1 overall and 20-0-1 in the state of Alabama. Kentucky was looking for its second huge upset in two seasons after beating No. 1 LSU in triple overtime last season.

Coffee had 25 carries, including a 78-yard touchdown, for the best rushing output for a 'Bama back since Shaun Alexander gained a school-record 291 yards against LSU in 1996. Kentucky came in allowing just 73 rushing yards a game and hadn't given up a TD on the ground.

The Tide ran for 282 yards. "When I think about what I've done today, all I think about is the fumbles," Coffee said. "The fumbles come to mind first. The fumbles affect the whole team."

Hartline was 20-of-42 for 241 yards and two touchdowns with an interception. Alabama's Wilson was just 7-of-17 for 106 yards and was intercepted once and sacked three times.

Outgained 253-60 in the first half, the Wildcats forced two turnovers in the third quarter and made it look easy on their first scoring drive.

Hartline dumped a pass over the middle to Derrick Locke, who scampered for a 36-yard gain. Dicky Lyons Jr. took a short slant pattern 26 yards for a touchdown on the next play to make it 14-7 with 5:49 left in the third quarter.

Hartline had just 66 yards passing before that drive, and Kentucky had gone three-and-out on five consecutive possessions.

Kareem Jackson then picked off Hartline's underthrown pass after the Wildcats pushed across midfield.

The Tide had continued its string of fast starts, pushing its season first quarter advantage to 88-0 with a pair of touchdowns for the team's only points until the final minutes.

Coffee raced 78 yards up the middle, going virtually untouched and managing to just outdistance Kentucky's pursuing defenders. Then Hartline lost control of ball as he was cocking his arm for a throw and Rolando McClain scooped it up at Kentucky's 4 for a touchdown, the third scored by Alabama's defense this season.

"I think we had a legitimate shot at them, but they made those plays and we didn't," Brooks said.

It could have been worse but Tiffin missed a field goal. Coffee lost a fumble at Kentucky's 6 and the Tide failed to score on two other trips across midfield in the first half.

Louisville QB Cantwell will play against Memphis

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Louisville Coach Steve Kragthorpe says quarterback Hunter Cantwell's injured left ankle won't stop him from starting on Friday at Memphis.

Cantwell injured the ankle while scrambling late in the third quarter of a 26-21 loss to Connecticut on Sept. 26. Kragthorpe said Monday that Cantwell's recovery has gone smoothly and that Cantwell could have played last weekend if the Cardinals (2-2) had a game.

Kragthorpe said the bye week means the Cardinals should be over the loss to the Huskies and ready for the Tigers (3-3). Memphis has won three straight games, including a 33-30 win over UAB last weekend.

Cincinnati upends host Marshall, 33-10

by JOHN RABY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. — Redshirt freshman Chazz Anderson threw two touchdown passes and ran for another score in his college debut to lead Cincinnati to a 33-10 victory over Marshall on Friday night.

Anderson is Cincinnati's third starting quarterback this season after injuries sidelined Dustin Grutza and backup Tony Pike. Coach Brian Kelly made a game-time decision to start Anderson over redshirt freshman Zach Collaros, who led the go-ahead drive in the fourth quarter in a 17-15 win over Akron last week.

Anderson looked like a calm veteran at times, leading the Bearcats (4-1) on two long scoring drives in the second half to break open a close game. He finished 16-of-26 for 158 yards and was intercepted once against one of the nation's worst pass defenses.

Marshall (3-3), looking to reverse three straight losing seasons under coach Mark Snyder, has scored just one touchdown in its past two games. The Thundering Herd fell to 0-3 against BCS teams this season and were outscored 111-27 by Cincinnati, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Marshall redshirt freshman Mark Cann had his second straight poor outing. He went 17-of-36 for 178 yards, was intercepted three times and sacked three times.

Midway through the third quarter, Anderson drove Cincinnati 89 yards and found Dominick Goodman in the end zone for the second time, this one from 7 yards out for a 23-10 lead.

After Aaron Webster's interception on Marshall's next series led to Jake Rogers' 40-yard field goal, Anderson capped an 86-yard drive with a 1-yard run with 10:12 left in the game for the final margin.

Cincinnati outgained Marshall 122-119 in the first half but jumped ahead 16-3 with the help of Thundering Herd mistakes.

Cincinnati's Connor Barwin blocked a Kase Whitehead punt out of the end zone for a first-quarter safety. The Bearcats took over at the Marshall 48 after the ensuing free kick and needed just four plays to reach the end zone, with John Goebel scoring on a 21-yard run for a 9-0 lead.

It seemed every time Marshall started to move the ball, mistakes and penalties ended drives.

Marshall advanced to the Cincinnati 37 in the second quarter, but Darius Marshall ran in circles and lost 14 yards. Cann was sacked and Whitehead shanked a 17-yard punt.

A penalty wiped out a 25-yard reception by Darius Passmore on Marshall's next possession. Two plays later, Cann's pass bounced off Cody Slate's shoulder and Cedric Tolbert returned the interception 35 yards to the Marshall 14. Anderson then found Goodman in the end zone for a 16-0 lead.

The lone bright spot for Cann was a 57-yard scoring pass to Slate on Marshall's first series of the second half to cut it to 16-10.

With new QB, Vols still need better offense

by BETH RUCKER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Nick Stephens did enough in Tennessee's win over Northern Illinois to keep his job as the Vols' starting quarterback for another week.

There's still plenty of work to be done.

"Nick didn't disappoint me," coach Phil Fulmer said. "I was really proud of the way he managed the game and threw the ball, for the most part. There's certainly room to grow, and he'll do that."

Tennessee must do a lot of growing in a hurry. In the next four weeks, the Vols (2-3) travel to No. 10 Georgia and South Carolina before hosting Mississippi State and No. 2 Alabama at Neyland Stadium, where attendance is averaging 101,294 this season, about 1,000 below capacity.

Stephens' numbers

Saturday night — 10-of-17 for 156 yards — weren't much better than those of Jonathan Crompton, who lost the job after a poor showing against Auburn. But the redshirt sophomore from Flower Mound, Texas, looked poised in the pocket and threw more accurately.

He connected with Denarius Moore on a crisp 52-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter that helped Tennessee to a lackluster 13-9 win.

Stephens, who had only eight snaps in his college career before facing the Huskies, is now responsible for three of the Vols' four longest plays of the season, including a 43-yard strike to Gerald Jones earlier in the game.

That doesn't mean Tennessee's problems have passed.

"Hopefully we can build on it, but we've got a lot more football to play and the great thing is we won," offensive coordinator Dave Clawson said. "We have a lot more things to work on and get better on for Georgia, because obviously we're going to have to play better to beat them."

The woes for the Vols' offense are many:

—A veteran offensive line that allowed only four sacks last season allowed three against the Huskies, including a 10-yard loss that cost the Vols their best shot at the end zone in the fourth quarter. Daniel Lincoln then missed a 32-yard field goal.

—The running game, which had been consistent through the first four games, found no rhythm and finished with only 69 yards and an average 2.2 per play.

—The unit committed three penalties in the first half alone.

—It managed only nine first downs, converted three of 13 third down attempts and failed on its only fourth down conversion.

—Josh Briscoe and Stephens each fumbled the ball away, resulting in field goals.

The defense, ranked fifth in the nation, helped bail the Vols out.

Tennessee came up with a big stop after the Stephens fumble by limiting the Huskies to only 1 yard and forcing the field goal. The defense hasn't allowed a touchdown in seven quarters.

Eric Berry also picked off Huskies quarterback Dan Nicholson and returned it 48 yards to the Northern Illinois 16, setting up Lincoln's 36-yard field goal.

"I'm really excited we didn't give up any touchdowns. We gave up a big play that led to points and that's what we've got to eliminate," defensive coordinator John Ghasis said. "I think Eric had a chance. We need to make a block down there so we can get him in the end zone."

Bears

In the air, the two quarter combined to go 4-of-8 for 89 yards. Four different Pats caught passes, with Berryhill's going for 37 yards to lead the way.

Defensively, freshman

Antwan Briffird and sophomore Jamar Porter were in on 11 tackles; Briffird had eight solos while Porter had three.

For the Pats, P.J. Hughes had seven tackles to lead the charge.

Romo, Cowboys fend off Bengals

by STEPHEN HAWKINS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

IRVING, Texas — The turnovers, almost blowing all of a 17-point lead and Terrell Owens' obvious disappointment.

Of course, Tony Romo would have preferred the Dallas Cowboys having an easier time Sunday in their 31-22 victory over winless Cincinnati. Yet he's certain that ultimately only one thing will be remembered.

"It's going to be a 'W'. It's going to be that," Romo said. "You'll forget about this game."

While Romo may be right, especially if the Cowboys (4-1) keep winning, the struggles against the NFL's only 0-5 team certainly stand out now.

A week after losing a division game at home, then jumping out to a 17-0 lead with scores on its first three drives, Dallas let that margin shrink to one, then had to break up a 2-point conversion that could've tied the game midway through the fourth quarter.

"What you're frustrated about and disappointed in ... you've got a chance to put them away and we didn't do that," tight end Jason Witten said. "At the end of it, you've got to be happy that you've got the win."

Romo was 14-of-23 for a season-low 176 yards. He had a fumble and an interception, making it eight straight games that he's been picked off. Both turnovers led to field goals by Cincinnati, but Romo salvaged his day by throwing two of his three TDs in the fourth quarter.

Owens had a 57-yarder with 12 minutes left that proved to be the winning touchdown, leading T.O. to ecstatically raise his arms over his head and clap while still grasping the football in one of his hands. Then he went to the sideline, sat on the bench, bowed and put a towel over his head to cover his tears.

"What I saw was him wanting more," said owner Jerry Jones, who was on the sideline and had earlier visited with Owens. "He didn't have the attitude I've made a big play, I've done my part today. It was just a very competitive attitude and look in his face."

But Owens had only two catches for 67 yards, a week after having 20 balls thrown his way in the loss against Washington.

After the game, T.O. went to the podium and made a statement while referring to notes on a sheet of paper. He left without answering any questions.

"This was a great team win," he said. "It was frustrating out there, but I kept with it. My teammates stuck with it. ... God used me today for his glory. Reality is where glory resides. That's all I've got to say."

Cincinnati is 0-5 for the first time since 2002, a 2-14 season after losing its first seven games.

SOUTH FLOYD fell to Phelps last week in a key district game. Host Phelps defeated the Raiders Thursday night. Johnson Central High School graduate Jesse Peck is in his first season at the helm of the Phelps football program.

Smoke clears field: Stewart claims win at Talladega

by JENNA FRYER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Tony Stewart lost races this year with last-lap passes, late blown tires and mechanical failures.

Stuck in a 43-race winless streak, he was not going to be denied by a rookie driver unaccustomed to the necessary blocking it takes to win at Talladega Superspeedway.

Stewart blocked Regan Smith for the final three laps Sunday, forcing Smith to dip below an out-of-bounds line at the bottom of the track to make a last-ditch pass that NASCAR later ruled illegal. It gave Stewart his first win of the year and his first Sprint Cup Series victory at Talladega.

"I've lost Daytona 500s, I've lost races here at Talladega because somebody blocked," Stewart said. "That's the name of the game. There's always been people blocking. The nice thing is I was actually on the right end of it this time."

"Trust me, I've got no regrets about what I did. I did exactly what I needed to do to win the race, and it worked out."

Stewart is no stranger to the "yellow line rule." He was the first driver convicted of breaking it when he dipped below the stripe at a 2001 race at Daytona.

But the rule has grown murky over the years, and Smith believed the pass was legal because Stewart's blocking gave him no option but to drive below the racing surface. Other drivers thought Smith was correct because of a belief that the rule is not in effect on the final lap of a race.

"We've seen in the past that they've allowed that to happen coming to the checkered (flag)," said second-place finisher Paul Menard. "For some reason, they chose not to this time."

Smith was in second and trailed Stewart for the final three laps, and the rookie made one attempt to grab his first career victory by ducking inside of Stewart to attempt a pass. Stewart wouldn't relent, moving with Smith down the track until Smith dove below the yellow line to make the pass. He moved back onto the racing surface in front of Stewart and cruised to the finish line.

NASCAR reviewed the move and declared it illegal. Smith went with Dale Earnhardt Inc. president Max Siegel to argue the decision, but was rebuffed and dropped to 18th in the final finishing order.

"We just watched the tape. They can argue about it for five years, they're not going to change the decision. That's not how NASCAR works," Smith said. "I totally disagree with them 110 percent. I clearly moved to the outside, moved back to the inside. Tony made a move to the high side and made a move to the bottom side."

"My nose was in there. The only other option I had was to wreck him."

The ruling gave Stewart his first win since Watkins Glen last year and allowed him to cross Talladega off his list of tracks where he'd failed to earn a victory. Talladega has taunted him for 10 years, as Stewart finished second a maddening six times.

It looked as if he'd again come up short in his final race here with Joe Gibbs Racing, especially after he was caught in a Friday accident when Dale Earnhardt Jr. blew a tire. Crew chief Greg Zipadelli decided to fix the damaged car instead of moving to the backup, and the No. 20 crew worked late Friday night making the repairs.

The car proved to be good on Sunday when Stewart used flawless strategy that helped him avoid a late 12-car accident and execute a perfect restart when Smith and two of his DEI teammates were lurking behind him on the final sprint to the finish.

"I knew with three DEI cars behind me, it was going to be tough to hold on," Stewart said.

Stewart got the jump, but smartly made sure he didn't pull too far out and give the DEI contingent the opportunity to gang up and blow past him. Then he blocked Smith the rest of the way, only letting up when Smith went below the yellow line.

"Man, it's one thing to get back to Victory Lane — but to do it at Talladega — this is one of four places I haven't won a Cup race, and talk about one to win," Stewart said. "I wanted to win here for so long."

Menard, who said earlier this week he'll leave DEI at the end of the season, was a career-high second and was followed by rookie David Ragan and Chase drivers Jeff Burton and Clint Bowyer.

Bobby Labonte was sixth, followed by Scott Riggs, Robby Gordon, points leader Jimmie Johnson and Elliott Sadler.

A NASCAR-record 28 drivers led and there were 31 lead changes. The race also featured several tire failures and lived up to its reputation as the "wild card" of the 10 Chase events. Because of its white-knuckle racing conditions, Talladega is the one Chase race every driver fears will ruin his title hopes.

It most certainly did for Denny Hamlin, who was held overnight at a Birmingham hospital with a possible concussion suffered in an accident after his tire exploded while leading. He finished 39th and dropped to last in the Chase field.

And it may very well have sunk the Roush Fenway Racing trio of Carl Edwards, Greg Biffle and Matt Kenseth, who were at the front of a 12-car accident with 16 laps to go. It started when Edwards tried to give Biffle a shove to the front, but the bump caused Biffle to spin into Kenseth as all three Roush Fenway Racing cars crashed.

The carnage spread to Chase drivers Earnhardt, Kevin Harvick, and Kyle Busch, but Johnson deftly maneuvered through the wreckage and pushed his lead in the standings to 72 points over Edwards.

Edwards immediately accepted responsibility for the accident that sunk several Chase drivers.

"I was just pushing Greg as hard as I could. This is my fault, I apologize to everyone caught up in the wreck," Edwards said. "It's my fault. I feel bad I took my teammates out. I know Matt's mad, and I'm sure Greg is mad. I always worry about the idiots when I come here and today it was me."

Smith makes costly wrong move

by DAN GELSTON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TALLADEGA, Alabama — Regan Smith had no choice but to duck below the yellow line for any shot at winning at Talladega.

At least, that's what the rookie Dale Earnhardt Inc. driver thought.

NASCAR had different ideas.

Smith went from momentary jubilation thinking he had raced to his first career Cup victory to the sobering reality that a win was wiped out, and instead went to Tony Stewart because of a controversial last-lap pass.

"I think it's a bad call," Smith said outside NASCAR's track office. "I think as the week goes on, everybody that's asked will say it's a bad call."

Smith had managed to avoid the wrecks and tire woes that knocked out a slew of drivers in the Chase field. He was in second place and doggedly pursued the two-time Cup champion Stewart for the final three laps on NASCAR's largest track.

Desperate for a win and feeling trapped, Smith slid below Stewart and descended below the yellow out-of-bounds line to make the pass. That risky move was enough to make him believe he had won once he returned to the track and crossed the finish line first.

Only problem was, NASCAR's rule says a driver can only make a pass below the line if officials believe the driver was forced there. The sanctioning body ruled the move illegal and whacked Smith with a pass-through penalty, dropping him to 18th.

Smith pumped his fists in the No. 01 Toyota and later complained he should have been doing burnouts. Instead, Smith was steamed and looking for answers.

"Anything below the yellow line is out of bounds," NASCAR spokesman Jim Hunter said. "You can't advance your position below the yellow line. In our judgment, he improved his position."

Smith said there was confusion on the rule. He said the understanding was that "anything goes" on the last lap. However, at the morning driver's meeting, the entire field was told they couldn't drive below the yellow line unless they were forced out.

"We do not feel he was forced below the yellow line," Hunter said.

NASCAR says drivers can go below the yellow line on the last lap, if a driver can see the flagstand. But Smith could not see the checkered flag when he made the pass because of the position of the finish line — farther down the track than most others on the circuit.

SCRAP HEAP: Kevin Harvick pulled into the garage minus a hood. The back end of Greg Biffle's car was completely demolished and dragged behind, loosely held together by a couple of hoses.

Pieces of Carl Edwards' car were piled on a wagon and wheeled out back. Then there was what would have been a collector's dream. A mound of scrap metal and debris from some of the wreckage out on the track. Some fans picked through the pile, taking a close look at the part that still had the sticker "NASCAR Inspected Component."

Chase drivers Denny

Hamlin, Dale Earnhardt Jr., Harvick, Biffle, Edwards and Kyle Busch were involved in accidents that helped shuffle the Chase standings: Kenseth dropped from fifth to ninth; Earnhardt from sixth to 10th. Even worse, Hamlin was taken to a Birmingham hospital after his tire exploded and smashed into the wall. He finished 39th and fell to 12th (last) in the standings.

Edwards took the blame for starting one wreck. He tried to nudge Biffle, his Roush Fenway Racing teammate, toward the front of the field. Instead, his bump in the corner turned Biffle's No. 16 Ford and was almost totaled. That triggered a chain reaction that also sent Earnhardt and Harvick to the garage, among others.

"It's definitely my fault," a contrite Edwards said. "I feel bad for taking all these guys out. I was doing the best I thought I could do at the time."

Hamlin released from hospital day after hard wreck

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TALLADEGA, Alabama — Denny Hamlin was released from a hospital Monday, a day after a tire failure led to a hard crash at Talladega Superspeedway.

Hamlin was kept overnight for observation at a Birmingham hospital after his car slammed into a wall. He was alert and awake when he was transported to the UAB Medical Center on Sunday, but was complaining of a headache and possibly had a concussion. He was also favoring his right foot after a slow exit from his crumpled car.

Hamlin, one of 12 drivers racing for the Sprint Cup title, was leading midway through the race when his right front tire failed and his Toyota shot into the outside wall. He said nothing over his in-car radio after the hit and took several moments to get out of the car.

Hamlin was 39th in the race and fell to 12th in the Chase standings.

Frank Kimmel wins 2008 Bill France Triple Crown

TIMES STAFF REPORT

TALLADEGA, Alabama — Frank Kimmel clinched the 2008 Bill France Triple Crown in the ARCA RE/MAX Series this weekend with his sixth place finish in Friday's ARCA RE/MAX 250 at Talladega Superspeedway. Kimmel has earned the prestigious award, designed to highlight the diverse nature of the ARCA RE/MAX Series national stock car tour, a total of six times, including the last two consecutive years.

Friday's ARCA RE/MAX 250 marked the third and final leg of the 2008 Bill France Triple Crown and Kimmel posted a sixth place finish in the 94 lap/250-mile race despite starting on a provisional. He won both the first and second legs of the 2008 Bill France Triple Crown at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds mile-dirt in Southern Illinois on September 1st and at Salem Speedway, a .555-mile paved oval in Southern Indiana on September 13th.

"It's good to be able to put something like the Bill France Triple Crown on our trophy shelf this year because I don't think we're going to be able to clinch the [ARCA RE/MAX Series] Championship," said Kimmel, who is fourth in the ARCA RE/MAX Series point standings with just one race remaining this season. "We won the two mile-dirts and Salem this year. The Kimmel Racing Ford Drive One Fusion was horrible all weekend at Talladega. We couldn't do anything with it out on our own and it ran decently in the draft but certainly not where it should have been so a sixth place finish at Talladega is more like a win to us. It's special to us to be able to win this award as a first year team."

Kimmel, a 19-year veteran of the ARCA RE/MAX Series and the only driver in the 56 year history of the national stock car tour to hold nine driving championships, departed long-time car owner Larry Clement to start his own team with his crew chief/brother Bill Kimmel in 2008. The 2008 Bill France Triple Crown marks the first year that Kimmel, a six-time recipient of the award, has been able to earn it in his own equipment.

Heading into Friday's ARCA RE/MAX 250 at Talladega Superspeedway, 15 drivers were mathematically eligible to clinch the 2008 Triple Crown, including Kimmel, Dexter Bean, Matt Carter, Patrick Sheltra, Scott Speed, John Wes Townley, Justin Allgaier, Bryan Silas, Ricky Stenhouse, Jr., Justin Lofton, Tayler Malsam, Darrell Basham, Gabi DiCarlo, Tom Hessert, III and Ken Butler, III. Kimmel is the defending winner of the Bill France Triple Crown and the only driver who has won the award a total of six times. Other Bill France Triple Crown award winners include Blake Bjorklund, Brent Sherman, Jason Jarrett, Tim Steele, Bill Baird, Harris DeVane, Bob Hill, Bob Keselowski, Bobby Bowsher, Bill Venturini, Tracy Leslie, Grant Adcox, Lee Raymond and Davey Allison.

The Bill France Triple Crown award winner has been honored at the ARCA RE/MAX Series National Championship Awards Banquet each consecutive year since 1984.

POISON OAK

A penny is a penny

The afternoon sun, just a few days after achieving autumn equinox, was at a perfect angle and as I stepped from the car the new penny attracted my attention like a flash-bulb. (Hopefully, someone will read this who remembers what a flash-bulb is ... or was.) Anyway, it was obviously a brand-new coin for it to be so shiny, and I immediately recognized it for what it was. But since my mission was to get inside the store and back again as quickly as possible, I merely stepped over it.

Had it been a dime or a quarter, I'd no doubt have picked it up, thinking myself lucky. But realizing the tiny copper-plated zinc disc was practically worthless, I suppose somewhere deep in my being, I felt a bit too important to stoop to that level.

After paying the grumpy young lady operating the cash register, returning to my car and driving off the hill, I thought of that penny again.

There was a time in my life when I'd have plucked it up faster than a chicken would grab a june bug. When I was 10 years old, with eight brothers I could have paid my way into a double-feature at the Sipp Theater in downtown Paintsville, helped my favorite cowboy round up all the bad guys, and seen a Woody Woodpecker color cartoon. Four more of his close relatives could have bought me an Oh Henry candy bar or a big bottle of RC Cola or a raisin-filled cake at the company store.

And if I was feeling religious, there was a little machine on the street in front Murphy's Five and Ten where, for a dime, I could get the Lord's prayer stamped on one. Of course, I'd have had to have a magnifying glass before I could read it. And, I can remember when it was rather fashionable to display pennies in your shoes. Guess that's why they called them penny loafers. Of course, that was mostly for girls.

But all that was then and this is now. In the year 2008, an honest-to-goodness U.S. coin is left sparkling in the sun because it's considered worthless.

Then again, maybe a penny is still worth something. Had Mr. Lincoln been facing me, I could have picked him up and had good luck. Or maybe I could have bought a thought with it — provided, of course, someone had one for sale. And who knows? If you believe the words of the old Bing Crosby song, this particular little feller just might have been among those who had fallen from Heaven during the last rain. And if nothing else, I guess I could have added it to the other pieces of lost change accumulating beneath the cushion of the recliner.

You know what? I should have taken the time and picked up that penny.

CINCINNATI — A group of students, faculty and staff from Big Sandy Community and Technical College recently participated in a tour of the National Underground Railroad and Freedom Center in Cincinnati, Ohio.

According to Linda Lyon, public relations director, the tour consisted of a history lesson on slavery in the United States and the struggle for freedom that is still remembered today. Daniel Bell, economics professor, was impressed with the tour and found his interest in history piqued by the experience.

"I really enjoyed it," Bell said. "I wanted to learn more about the history of that subject, and I was real impressed with the tour. The tour guide did a really good job. He made it all come to life by pointing out things on a mural and telling stories."

Following the tour guide, the group viewed exhibits, photos, videos, and memorabilia from the Pre-Civil War era that depicted things like the use of slave pens for holding slaves until auction, the Underground Railroad that many slaves used to escape, heroes and heroines who conducted the Underground Railroad and helped many of the slaves to reach freedom, and representations from the struggle for human dignity and freedom. "The displays gave a lot of opportunities for us to read about the historical aspects of slavery," Bell said. "Slavery wasn't just something that the United States was engaged in. It took place all over the world. The whole museum is just a great place to learn about things. It has my interest, that's for sure."

The tour was sponsored by Dr. Tom Matijasic, professor of history at BSCTC, and Vera Joiner, BSCTC director of student activities. The visit was made possible in part by a grant from the Kentucky Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission and the Kentucky Humanities Council.

Halloween candy causes fright for chubby Americans

by LISA A. FLAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — It wasn't the gruesome costumes or gory masks turning up at Lisa Bruno's front door that spooked her on Halloween. It was the pudgy lurking beneath the costumes.

"The kids were just so huge," Bruno says.

So five years ago, she was scared into changing her holiday handouts, giving out toys instead of candy. Other households do the same, offering stickers, pencils, Play-Doh or glow sticks, to mixed reviews from candy-loving children.

"I thought, here I am trying to take care of my health," says Bruno, of Des Plaines, Ill. "I felt a responsibility to my community to take care of the kids around me."

Still, there's no doubt that come Halloween, millions of princesses, sports stars and other costumed kids will scamper from house to house, dropping fistfuls of candy into their plastic pumpkins and pillowcases and trying to shed those wrappers faster than they can yell "Boo!"

Despite the heightened awareness of health and nutrition, the fact remains that kids (and adults) are tempted with sweets at almost every corner even without a holiday devoted to sugar. About 30 percent of children ages 2 to 19 are overweight or obese.

As the average amount expected to be spent on Halloween candy is rising, $1 to $20.39 per person, according to the National Retail Federation, some parents are finding creative ways to keep their children from gobbling it all in one stomachache of a night.

Halloween is the one night when Jennifer Taggart's 5-year-old son and 3-year-old daughter get to eat whatever treats they want. Then they decide what's going to be left for the "switch witch," who comes at night like the tooth fairy and takes the kids' candy, leaving toys in her wake.

"The more candy they put out, the bigger the toy," says Taggart, of Los Angeles. "So far, my son has put out all of his candy every Halloween to get the biggest toy."

The candy goes to Taggart's office, so there's no risk of her or her husband eating it, or the kids finding it. "It's just way too much sugar," Taggart says.

Another tactic has parents buying back the candy for money or books.

After her kids enjoy some candy while trick or treating, Julie Schoerke, of Nashville, Tenn., buys back as much of it as she can, offering a nickel for each piece of candy they like but don't love, and a dime for each piece of something they love.

"They could decide how much to keep," says Schoerke, whose kids are 12 and 15. "Both would rather have the money, so they kept very little candy."

"I didn't want them to have as much candy as they would get," she said. "They got huge amounts, and I knew they'd consume it until it was gone."

Rationing is also an effective method.

"If I'd let them, they'd have a free-for-all," says Shannon Nelson, of Lake Ariel, Pa., who gives a piece a day to each of her four boys. "They've understood the boundaries and limits, so when I place them, they don't argue with it."

A one-night candy splurge won't make a child fat, and doctors and nutritionists say that everybody can enjoy a little Halloween candy in moderation, regardless of their weight.

But experts do suggest turning the night into a teaching moment about portion size and limits, lessons can that can be reinforced all year.

"It's important that we as parents help them find the balance between that very traditional fun activity and a healthy lifestyle," says Connie Diekman, past president of the American Dietetic Association.

The government's food pyramid allows about 10 percent of the day's calories for most kids to come from extras, which includes candy, Diekman says. "That's going to allow every child to have some candy on a daily basis, and it really is OK," she said.

To make that work, it might mean that dessert gets taken out of the lunchbox on Halloween to make room for a nighttime candy splurge.

Telling kids they can't have any candy will probably backfire.

"Some families say no, they don't allow it, and some families have no restrictions and it's a free-for-all," says Dr. Sarah Armstrong, a childhood obesity expert at Duke Children's Hospital. "Both are equally poor approaches."

She suggests families offer candy and nonedible treats, to allow children who come to their own doors to make the choice.

Some kids like the alternatives because they have something to play with that lasts beyond Halloween night. But for others, candy is still king.

"They're after candy," said April Callis, of East Lansing, Mich., of her girls, ages 7, 12 and 14. "They're not really interested in sunflower seed coupons."
