Honor choir reunion Friday

by JARRID DEATON FEATURES WRITER

PRESTONSBURG -For the first time since coming together to honor the memory of former choir director Elizabeth Frazier in 2000, alumni of the Prestonsburg High School Honor Choir will gather at the Mountain Arts Center for a reunion and concert on Friday.

Greta Gilbert, current choir director, was one of Frazier's final students in 2000, and hopes that a large number of former choir members come to share the memories and participate in the concert.

"This will be the first reunion in nine years," Gilbert said. "Several hundred students have been members of the honor choir, and I really want to get the word out to all of them so they can attend."

The honor choir at Prestonsburg High School, founded in, 1979 by Elizabeth Frazier, currently has 40 members.

Frazier served as the choir director until her death at the age of 52 in 2000. She also served as director of music for the First United Methodist Church, along with organizing the Mountain Harmony Handbell Choir and the Select Girls

The Prestonsburg High School Honor Choir Spring Concert is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. at the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg. Tickets for the event are $5.

For more information, contact Greta Gilbert at gdhgilbert@gmail.com, or call Prestonsburg High School at 886-2252.

Webb sees continued improvement

by SHELDON COMPTON STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG

Floyd County Schools Supt. Henry Webb introduced a familiar refrain Tuesday in his update to the community on the school district, saying the main goal driving every effort of the system he heads was to prepare students for life after the classroom.

Webb spoke of the district's continuing improvements and also of the tasks that lie ahead for a school system with some 6,000 students and the state's 19th largest staff.

To begin with, the county's top school officials stated plainly that any cuts that might come in the future would not be related to the current economic climate but would, as is custom, be related to the number of students in the class-

And that, he said, would most likely be minimal and generally standard for any school year.

We will not be making any cuts," Webb said. "Any losses we have will be due to a drop in enrollment, and that I expect will be minimal.' Numbers, Webb said, usually "don't lie," and the numbers are showing a gradual and steady climb from what was in

Golf, bio-fuel on horizon for city

by SHELDON COMPTON STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG - Two lease agreements were approved by Prestonsburg city officials Monday, relating to plans to bring golfing back to Jenny Wiley State Resort Park and a move to construct a bio-diesel plant in the city.

Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin

spoke briefly of both efforts at the Mountain Arts Center Tuesday morning during the State of the County address. City officials agreed to lease agreements during Monday's regular city council meeting.

The idea of bringing back golf to Jenny Wiley State Resort Park was mentioned late last month when Paul Hughes pitched the idea to city lead-disc golf venue to what Hughes has referred to as an executive golf course. It will be made up of par three holes and at least one par four to allow those just starting to explore the game of golf a chance to take on a course that might be less "intimidating," as Fannin said Tuesday.

The course will be reverted from a IVEL - The 2009 Great Easter Egg Hunt is over, and this year's result has a familiar ring to it.

A group composed of the families of Ronnie and Renea Samons, Kris and Drema May and Cora Tussey found the $500 prize egg around 6 p.m. Saturday. It was hidden behind a rock and beneath a layer of leaves along Ivy Creek Road.

Ronnie Samons said that the group spent quite a bit of time searching several areas, before the 11th clue led the group to Ivel. They searched the area Friday with no luck, then went out to eat and discuss the clues. On Saturday, Samons said he was near a mining company gate when he looked to the left and saw an area that looked like it hadn't been searched.

The group should be familiar to those who regularly follow the Great Easter Egg Hunt. During the 2008 contest, the group found the $200 "Little Junior" egg. In that contest, clues to the egg's location were found exclusively

Kentucky chosen as site for proposed domestic battery manufacturing and headquarters facility scoring, his commitment to positioning the Commonwealth as the center of the nation's automotive industry of the future, Gov. Steve Beshear announced last week that Kentucky has been selected as the site for a proposed domestic battery manufacturing and headquarters facility.

The National Alliance for Transportation Advanced Batteries (NAATBatt) has chosen Hardin County's Glendale as the home for a potential investment in excess of $600 million to develop the first-ofits-kind manufacturing facility for lithium-ion battery cells. Kentucky was selected over Illinois, Kansas, Texas. Missouri, New York, Pennsylvania South and Carolina.

NAATBatt is a not-forprofit industry consortium of more than 50 corporations, associations and research institutions dedicated to making the United States a world leader in the manufacture of advanced lithium-ion or Li-Ion battery cells for transportation applications.

"This proposal will put Kentucky in a prime position to be the country's leading manufacturer of the cleanenergy cars of the future," Gov. Beshear said Monday in announcing the proposal. "Kentucky's strong roots in the automotive industry, as well as its close proximity to suppliers, manufacturers and researchers, make it a natural fit for production of the next generation of hybrid technology batteries.

The 1,551-acre Glendale site, which sits adjacent to Interstate 65 and the CSX rail line, runs along what is commonly called "Auto Alley" and will be submitted as part of NAATBatt's application to the U.S. Department of Energy.

Under the federal stimulus plan, the Obama administration has set aside $2 billion for electric drive vehicle battery and component manufacturing projects. President Obama has specifically noted the importance of developing lithiumion batteries to ensure that the United States plays a central role in producing the next generation of clean technology automobiles.

If successful in securing federal funding, NAATBatt would establish a manufacturing campus in Glendale, which would consist of a headquarters facility, a manufacturing facility used to refine products and production processes, and a larger operation designed for mass battery manufacturing. Total square footage of the campus is expected to reach 1 million square feet. This one-of-a-kind manufacturing operation could create as many as 2,000 new fulltime jobs with an average annual wage exceeding $40,000, and represent a capital investment in excess of $600 million in Kentucky. An estimated additional 1,500 construction-related would also be created for a period of 12 to 18 months.

"Hardin County'is extremely excited to have NAATBatt choose to locate their facility in our community," said Greg Jenkins, chairman of the Elizabethtown/Hardin County Industrial Foundation. "To be NAATBatt plans to develop a large scale "flexible manufacturing" facility that will contract to manufacture Li-Ion battery cells of various chemistries, formats and designs for multiple battery companies.

NAATBatt will provide U.S. cell manufacturers of all sizes and stages of development with access to a national resource, which they may use to enter the Li-Ion market.

Production lines in both manufacturing facilities would house state-of-the-art equipment with flexibility to pursue multiple production ideas and products at one time. Alliance members would have the ability to run trials to demonstrate and validate their own technology on a cost-share basis with the rest of the alliance.

"Over the last few months, the leadership in the state under Gov. Beshear, Sec. Hayes and Sec. Peters has articulated a clear vision to establish Kentucky as the center for advanced battery technology for enabling electrification of the nation's transportation," said Sanford Kane, NAATBatt treasurer. "The announcement last week of the partnership between Kentucky and Argonne National Lab that will initially focus on lithiumion battery manufacturing research and development is proof that the vision is starting to be realized. NAATBatt will continue the realization of this vision with the funding it will seek from DOE under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009."

Many experts believe that lithium-ion batteries will replace gasoline as a major source of energy in future cars and military vehicles. Today, United States automobile manufacturers and defense contractors depend upon foreign suppliers-increasingly concentrated in Asia-for lithium-

Last week, Gov. Beshear announced the formation of a Battery national Manufacturing Research and Development Center in central Kentucky to help develop and deploy a domestic supply of advanced battery technologies for vehicle applications.

The national center is a partnership with Commonwealth. Argonne National Laboratory, the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville.

Chicago-based Argonne was instrumental in the formation of the alliance, which began with 14 founding members and has grown to more than 50 members today.

The alliance is modeled after Sematech, which was formed by U.S. computer-chip companies in 1987 to compete with the Japanese. Sematech, now based in Austin, Texas, is credited with helping U.S. companies regain their footing by focusing on manufacturing and design advancements with funding from the federal government.

"We think Sematech was one of the best examples of collaborative intervention in an industry," Greenberger, one of the founding members of the alliance.

'Today's development is further evidence of the strong momentum we're building here in Kentucky as we position ourselves to be a leader in this national initiative," Gov. Beshear said. "There is a tremendous opportunity to make Kentucky the battery technology capital of the U.S., bringing an infusion of 'green' technology jobs to the state. I plan to pursue every avenue to seize this opportunity."

In a statement, Sen. Mitch McConnell said of the announcement, 'Today's announcement is a major victory for the Commonwealth of Kentucky. I am excited that the people of Hardin County will be taking the lead in developing and promoting new energy technologies which will allow the citizens of Kentucky to play a key role in accelerating America's independence on foreign sources of oil.'

NAATBatt must submit its application to the DOE by May 19, 2009, and anticipates a decision on awards to be made this summer. If successful in securing the required funding, the Kentucky facility could begin 'construction immediately.

In Memory of Elmer Greer

Today we would have been together a blissful 54 years, But today I thought of you, as my eyes filled with tears.

My tears are not of sorrow, as they gently roll down my face, Just tears of missing you here with me, yet I know you're in a better place. He sent the angels for you, when He saw you were in

And my heart is sad and heavy, but my loss is Heaven's gain. I know you're up there smiling, just sitting and waiting for me, And that's what keeps me going, when I join you throughout eternity.

Most precious, dear loving, Mother, we'll be together again,

I told her I will 'always' remember, the many times she pulled me through,

That I couldn't have made it without her, I prayed she would know I was speaking the truth.

I didn't want to give her up, I needed her here, with me still, But I wouldn't try to hold her back, for the Father, had spoken His Will.

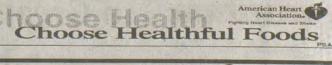

Her eyes were closed for sometime now, her breathing so shallow, I could feel the weight in my chest,

As I spoke the last words to her, I could only watch as she took My tears are still flowing, the heartache refuses to go away,

Thank you for another good time

The Great Easter Egg Hunt has come to a close for another year, and as usual, this year all of the fun and excitement seemingly ratcheted up a notch.

This marked the sixth time we have run the contest, and we are happy to report that it appears to have become not only a fun promotion for our paper, but also an event that Floyd Countians anticipate with glee and in which they participate with zest.

This year also marked another first in the contest, when we saw our first repeat winners. Ronnie Samons, Kris May and Cora Tussey found the winning egg the night before the final clue hit the streets. The trio and their families have made the hunt a family tradition and have done so with success. Not only did they find the $500 grand prize egg this year, but last year they were able to grab the $200 internet egg, dubbed "Little Thankfully, we did not see a repeat of last year's hijinks, when some prankster planted more than a dozen fake eggs out in the community. But as always, there are still people looking to get a leg up on the competition. This year, one lady called to tell us that she knew exactly where the egg was, but she didn't quite know how to get there, so she wondered if we would be kind enough to give her directions. Needless to say, we didn't take the bait.

Once again, while we have as much fun putting this game together as you seem to have playing it, there is one group of people out there that deserves our thanks for making it all possible — our sponsors. We encourage you to let them know how much you appreciate their support for this contest, perhaps with continued business throughout the year, or maybe with a simple "thank you."

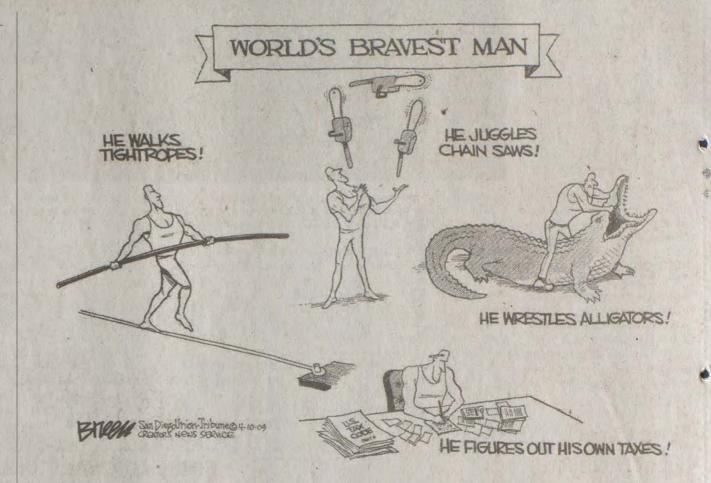

The sponsors include:

- McDowell Professional Pharmacy
- Med-Zone
- Clayton Homes
- Aaron's
- Riverview Health Care
- Wal-Mart of Pikeville
- Reno's Roadhouse ■ Subway of Prestonsburg
- Wal-Mart of Prestonsburg

Thank you to everyone involved. We'll see you back on the hunt next year.

And remember, when you're looking for our prize egg next year, you might want to keep an eye on this year's winners. Considering how good they've become at playing this game, they just might lead you in the right direction.

Guest Column

Two steps forward, one step back

by DAVE ADKISSON PRESIDENT AND CEO KENTUCKY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Two steps forward. One step back. Perhaps that's the best way to characterize the impact of the recently concluded legislative session on Kentucky's prospects for progress.

Clearly there was substantial progress made in key areas, but we fell short on some important matters.

First step forward

A particularly noteworthy step forward was the cooperation, in both words and actions, which marked the majority of the General Assembly's work. The open communication among the Senate, the House of Representatives and the Governor's Office resulted in a respectable list of accomplishments, not the least of which was plugging a sizeable hôle in the state budget.

It also provided a stark - and welcome - contrast to the contentious and sometimes minimally productive nature of recent sessions. Just a year ago, in fact, our post-session review expressed the frustration of many Kentuckians about the often chaotic 2008 regular session.

Second step forward

The respectable list of accomplishments represents the other step forward as lawmakers enacted measures that will lead to progress in education, health and corrections. And, as is often the case, the defeat of bills considered harmful was actually a positive result for the state's efforts to attract and grow jobs.

The one step back? Some important issues that were left on the table as time ran out. Among them:

an overdue overhaul of the state's economic incentive programs to put a greater focus on small businesses, Kentucky's existing companies, retooling manufacturing facilities and technology companies - all making Kentucky a better place to do the Kentucky Transportation Infrastructure Authority, necessary to move ahead with several large-scale transportation projects around the state, including the Ohio River bridges in Louisville legislation Kentucky's discrimination laws to allow companies to provide incentives to encourage employees to stop smoking

Here is a closer look at the Kentucky Chamber's bottom-line assessment of the 2009 General Assembly.

Pro Biz

Positives for the state's employers legislation to encourage better health and discourage smoking by increasing taxes on cigarettes and other tobacco products changes to the state's education testing system to create new tests based on international standards and to ensure that students are ready for college and modern jobs; one area of concern is the interruption of school reporting requirements during the three-year period in which the new testing system will be developed the defeat of an effort to significantly reduce the threshold for filing lawsuits against employers over work-related injuries preservation of funds for road construction and maintenance

the defeat of a number of costly mandates that would serve to increase health insurance costs for employers and citizens

a brownfield redevelopment fund

No Biz

On the negative side of the ledger, in addition to the items noted earlier:

a sales tax on beer, wine and spirits, an unfortunate development for one of our signature industries no tax credits for employers who implement employée wellness pro-failure of a measure to encourage early high school graduation for qualified students no changes to the state's prevailing wage laws that increase the cost of public construction projects

a failure to consider commonliability protections for employers

no action on measures to increase students' physical activity

no action on reasonable statutes of limitations for bringing lawsuits on wrongful discharge or other employment matters

The anticipation of another budget crisis is already spurring talk of a special legislative session. We have seen proof in recent weeks that bipartisan cooperation produces positive results for both citizens and their elected leaders. Here's hoping that this fresh, new, cooperative approach to addressing Kentucky's continuing challenges will become business as usual in Frankfort.

Nominees sought for 'Excellence in Entrepreneurship' awards

SOMERSET — In today's Highlands trying financial times, analysts predict that small businesses and entrepreneurs can play a more important role than ever before in growing the economy of Southern and Eastern Kentucky.

This in mind, nominations are being sought for the 2009 Excellence in Entrepreneurship Awards (EIEA). These awards seek to celebrate success in entrepreneurship by recognizing businesspeople and entrepreneurs in 55 Kentucky counties-including Floyd Countywho have created and are managing a successful enterprise.

The Excellence Entrepreneurship Awards program is sponsored by Eastern Kentucky University's (EKU) College of Business and Technology, Kentucky

Investment Corporation, and The Center for Rural Development. It honors Southern and Eastern Kentucky entrepreneurs for their economic success, community contributions, and operational achievements in a business or non-profit organization.

Nominations will be received in four categories:

Business (in existence five or more years with greater than 25 employees)

■ Small Business (in existence five or more years with 25 or less employees)

■ Start-Up (in existence less than five years)

■ Not-for-Profit Entity (in existence at least six months)

Nominees are judged on the economic success of the enterprise, contributions to the community, job creation, and operational achievement as measured by innovative business practices, superior safety achievement, and superior technology.

To download a copy of the 2009 EIEA nomination form, please visit www.eiea.eku.edu. A nomination form may also be downloaded from The Center for Rural Development's website, www.centertech.com, by clicking on the Excellence in Entrepreneurship link.

Nominations may be submitted by any individual or business and must be received by the EIEA nomination committee on or before the June 1 deadline. Interested parties can also e-mail the committee at cbt.eiea@eku.edu, or call the EKU College of Business and Technology at (859) 622-1409.

This year's finalists and award recipients will be recognized at a luncheon on Monday, Sept. 14, at The Center for Development Rural Somerset.

"We've seen that small companies comprise the engine that drives most of our economy," Dr. Robert Rogow, dean of EKU's College of Business and Technology, said. "We want to do whatever we can through our partnership to foster smallbusiness development and recognize those who've been successful in developing companies in Eastern and Southern Kentucky."

"The world economy is in a state of flux and will be for the foreseeable future," added Jerry Rickett, president of Kentucky Highlands Investment Corporation. "Entrepreneurial businessesboth nimble and innovative-are best able to adapt to the rapid market changes and be success-"The EIEA program celebrates the region's best hope for long-term economic viability, a strong entrepreneurial spirit, and the people who embrace that spirit," Rickett said.

Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of The Center for Rural Development, said supporting business and entrepreneurship is at the heart of The Center's mission to provide leadership that stimulates innovative and sustainable economic development solutions throughout the region.

"If The Center is to accomplish its mission, it's critical that we support our business leaders," Lawson said. "We must do everything we can to assist, encourage, and recognize these people for their successes, because this success will help stimulate and build our region's economy for years to come.'

The EIEA program was established in 2001 to celebrate success and honor excellence in entrepreneurship throughout and Eastern Southern Kentucky.

Last year's EIEA winners

12 killed on Kentucky roads last week

FRANKFORT Preliminary statistics indicate that 12 people died in 11 separate crashes on Kentucky roadways from Monday, April 6, through Sunday, April 12.

Ten of the crashes involved motor vehicles and six of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Single-fatality crashes occurred in Bell, Fayette, Laurel, Lawrence, Madison, Montgomery, Pike and Pulaski (2) counties. The suspected use of alcohol was a factor in three of the crashes.

One double fatality crash occurred in Casey County. Francisco Javier Marcial, 21, of Dunnville, was traveling southbound on U.S. 127 about 12:30 p.m. when he struck Jeffrey Stafford, 34, of Russell Springs, who was stopped in After striking traffic. Banks

State of the County address to represent local bankers, produced numbers to back up his claims. These statistics run contrary in comparison to the national forecast for financial institutions splashed across headlines in trade journals and publications such as the Wall Street Journal in the last several months.

The six banks in Floyd County have totaled $471 million in total deposits, according to Wilson, with the growth rate for deposits climbing 11 percent in the last four years. Also, Wilson said he fully expects that percentage to continue improving over the next year.

And this steadfast effectiveness of Floyd County's banks in a fledgling economic environment is being acknowledged by the banking industry in general.

According to Bankrate.com's "Safe and Sound" service, a system to provide ratings on the financial strength and stability of U.S. commercial banks, two of the county's banks have five-star superior ratings, the highest awarded, while two others have four-star sound ratings and the remaining two are in three-star performing status.

Also, the Financial Management Consulting Group has ranked two Floyd County banks in the top 30 of the state's 179 banks, with three others ranked in the top 40

Wilson says what were once seen as the challenges facing the small-town, community banking industry are now the foothold that has kept them stable in a volatile economy. He compared small, local banks to vanilla ice cream, while the other larger national chains as institutions offering 31 flavors, or conservative versus multi-layered.

"Suddenly vanilla tastes pretty good," Wilson said, adding that Floyd County banks keeping afloat if not sailing steadily along without incident, is a business-as-usual aspect for the local industry for the past two decades.

"There's not been a bank that's failed in Floyd County in 20 years," he said.

ment and progress.

Among those Marshall pointed to Tuesday were the sale of East Kentucky Utilities to "get the county out of the gas business," the final closure of the county's landfill, a task some 20 years and $20 million in the making, and completion of the first phase of the City of Martin Relocation Project.

Also, Marshall, who gave credit to past administrations for working on many aspects of several of the projects, said a bright spot that has appeared at the end of the tunnel since his taking office in 2004 has been bringing a wastewater plant to Eastern.

This plant, situated near Allen Central High School and serving the homes near there, provides septic services to 44 households.

"Those people now have a wastewater plant and septic service," Marshall said. "Of course they're happy and so we're happy to say the least."

But what Marshall considers the biggest undertaking for county officials is the current Pride on the River project, another focus on septic service.

This project consists of extending a truck line for septic service along U.S. 23 to the Harold area and then branching off additional lines through areas such as Mud Creek and many of the outlying residential hollows and creeks.

But Marshall said he is aware of the hurdles presented in such an undertaking.

"It's going to be expen-

Those funds will be in the form of coal severance tax money, said Marshall, and are certainly needed. In order to run one foot of sewer line, the cost for that section is approximately $6 as opposed to $1 per foot of water line.

sive," he told the group, "but

Marshall also reported that 98 percent of households in Floyd County now have good drinking water, a primary focus of former Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson, and said he wants the percentages for septic service to match in the years to come

"Now that we have this, it's time to go with the sewer," said Marshall. "We're going quickly on that."

"I don't think disc golf took off like we thought it would, and Stonecrest can be intimidating when you first start," Fannin said. "We felt we could open that up and get youth involved and produce some future golfers."

The city has now voted to move ahead on the project and also to implement a program called First Tee, an initiative aimed at offering young people instruction on golfing techniques

Also given a green light and discussed 'during Tuesday's gathering at the MAC was a plan to construct a bio-diesel plant on the city's industrial site.

The city council signed a lease a day earlier for leasing property for the plant and to begin further steps in seeing it become a reality.

"They're going to bring more people in and try to open up a market for it," said Fannin of bio-diesel conversion. "We'll go to restaurants, for instance, and take vegetable oil and convert that into bio-

The project is being spearheaded by Nathan Hall and could encompass some 700 acres of land if all goes as planned.

Fannin did not mention dates on when future moves would be made on the project, only saying that it would bring jobs and be one of the first plants of its kind for the

Infrastructure in all forms is something Fannin says is a must for a growing communi-

"Infrastructure is one of the biggest things," he said Tuesday. "You reach a point that if you continue growing, you have to develop property. We need private people to open businesses, too. Citiescan only do so much."

Schools

the past several struggles Floyd County schools faced.

In 2005, Floyd County's school district ranked 145 among the state's 175 schools. That number is now vastly different. As of today, Webb said the county's system ranks 64. In 2000, the district was ranked 167.

The jump is most readily attributed to the idea of partnership, according to Webb, who took time Tuesday to thank other administrations such as city and county governments in combining efforts on several fronts important to all citizens.

"Partnerships are essential," he said. "We're to reach out. We're going to come to the table and ask others to come to the table."

Technology is a cornerstone of growth and advancement for today's students, Webb said.

"Every school in this county is currently considered 'smart classrooms,' and that's something that not many school districts in Kentucky can say," Webb said. "We want to prepare kids to work with technology by giving them the chance."

This effort involves, among other aspects, an improved student to computer ratio and hitech equipment made available to instructors, Webb said.

As for getting kids in the classroom, Webb said those numbers are improving as well. In the past few years, Floyd County schools have jumped 16 spots in state ranking for attendance, a trend Webb said can only translate into children receiving the full benefit of what the county's educational system has to

Webb believes a close-knit school environment where a student's absence is noted can foster a desire for kids to make showing up a regular habit.

"Kids will come to school if they have a good culture," he

What did those clues mean

by RALPH B. DAVIS MANAGING EDITOR

It's that time once again, when we finally reveal the answers to all of the riddles in the Great Easter Egg Hunt:

Not where he was born or where he died, but where John was honored is where I hide.

The "John" in this clue refers to Col. John Floyd, who was born in Amherst County, Va., in 1750, and who died in Bulltt County in 1783. Most significantly for this contest, however, he is the person for whom Floyd County was named. Therefore, the egg was in Floyd County.

If you're stumped, go get some fresh air. While you're walking, you'll be in my lair. The egg's "lair" was the outdoors, where you would go to walk if you were going to get some fresh air. The egg was outside.

If it's cold or rainy, I won't come to harm, because I have a thick blanket to keep me warm. The thick blanket in this clue referred to the several inches of leaves in which the egg was buried.

The furniture maker pulled off quite a feat, when he gave me a bed without a seat.

The bed of leaves in which the egg was hidden was not in the county seat, meaning that the egg was not in Prestonsburg.

"Director, director, give me a clue." "I'm sorry, son, there are no lines to cue."

There were no lines because the egg was not located near any city or county

Fans of math might be sad, because this year there are no numbers to add.

In previous years, the egg was always hidden alongside a state highway, and a clue in each of those years would give the sum of the digits in the highway's route number. This year, however, there were no numbers to add because the egg was not hidden along a road with a route number.

Okay, here's a little math, just to be fair: Double the first, then look in the square.

This one confused quite a few people, but it was strictly a math question referring to the county's magisterial districts. To arrive at the answer, you would double the number one, giving two. Then you would square that answer to arrive at the number four. The egg was hidden in District 4.

These directions can be a beast: You must drive south to end up east.

This clue just lets you know that the egg was in the eastern end of Floyd County and refers to the fact that you must drive south on U.S. 23 to get Start as if you're going to see a cop, but make a turn before you hit the drop.

Begin driving as if you're going to the Kentucky State Police Post in Pikeville, meaning head south on U.S. 23. However, to get to the egg, you would have to turn before reaching Dropping Lick Creek. The road right before Dropping Lick Creek is Ivy Creek Road.

Words are best considered before they're spoken, for at the mouth a promise was broken.

To successfully decipher this clue, you would need to know a little local history. When the state of Kentucky was preparing to build the Mayo Trail, Col. James Hatcher donated the right-ofway at the mouth of Ivy Creek. where he owned a large chicken farm. In return, Hatcher asked that the state build a memorial to the Battle of Ivy Mountain, and the state Transportation Cabinet agreed. However, the memorial was delayed when the country entered the Great Depression the following year, and again when Hatcher died in 1939, thus breaking the promise. However, the promise was finally fulfilled in 2001, with the construction of the Battle of Ivy Mountain Memorial along U.S. 23. However, note that the clue only says the promise was broken at the mouth, not that the egg was located at the mouth. Therefore, the egg was hidden along Ivy Creek.

I think these glasses must be cursed, for I thought I saw Levi, but I was reversed.

"Levi" reversed is Ivel.

Move away from the mouth, or else you'll groan. In the dale left of the gate, I'm behind a stone.

The final clue zeros in on the egg's exact location. Referring to Ivy Creek again, it tells you to move away from the mouth, meaning to head up the creek. Along the way, there is a gate to a mining company, and to the left of that gate is a small valley with several large rocks. The egg was hidden behind one of the stones, covered in leaves.

Charities challenged to recruit blood donors

LEXINGTON - The deadline for charities to register for the S&S Tire Blood Donor Charity Challenge is Friday, April 17.

Kentucky charities can win eash by recruiting blood donors during the second annual S&S Tire Blood Donor Charity Challenge May 1-31.

S&S Tire, the title sponsor again this year, will award a total of $15,000 in cash to the top six charities that recruit the most blood donors. This is a $5,000 increase over the amount they committed in the first year.

Also, this year the competition will be regionalized. There will be a winner and runner-up from three regions: the Lexington, Pikeville and Somerset regions. Winners will receive $3,500 while the three runners-up each will be awarded $1,500.

Registration information, competition rules and the list of counties in each region can be found at www.kybloodcenter.org. Charities must register online for the competition by April 17.

Wayne Palmer of S&S Tire supports Charity Challenge for personal reasons. Seven years ago, his daughter was diagnosed with leukemia. She received blood and blood products several times during her 26 months of treatment. "My daughter is healthy and in complete remission now, partly in thanks to blood donors. That's why I would like to challenge others to become part of the S&S Tire Blood Donor Charity Challenge."

Blood donors must be 17years-old (16 with parental consent), weigh at least 110 pounds, be in general good health and meet additional requirements. Sixteen-year-old donors must have a signed parental permission slip, which can be found on the Kentucky Blood Center's web site, kybloodcenter.org.

Those wanting to donate blood or to schedule an appointment to donate can call 1-800-775-2522 or visit kybloodcenter.org for blood drive and donor center details.

The Kentucky Blood Center is a non-profit organization dedicated to ensuring a safe, adequate blood supply for patients at nearly 70 Kentucky hospitals and clinics in more than 60 counties. In the past year, KBC processed and distributed 82,000 red blood cell units and 127,000 blood components in total.

ACMS wins Volleyfest Rebels upend P'burg in district road game

by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS EDITOR

"EASTERN - Allen Central won its annual Volleyfest over the weekend, defeating Martin County, Elkhorn, Letcher and Belfry.

Allen Central faced a tough challenge against Letcher. In the first game, Letcher prevailed convincingly. Allen Central battled back to beat Letcher in each of the next two games. The Lady Rebels won the third and decisive game 21-19.

Belfry finished the tournament second. Letcher placed third and Paintsville finished fourth, claiming the top spot in the lower brack-

"It was a great day of volleyball for the girls and those who attended," said Allen Central Coach Larry Maynard. "According to the new stat program I have, if we were giving a MVP, it would have been Courtney Hodge.'

The program Maynard referenced gave Hodge a 183 performance rating and Katie Dingus a 138 rating. Hodge pounded in 12 kills on 86-percent hitting. Dingus had 18 kills on 87-percent hitting with four blocks.

Ciara Jones landed nine kills, Laken Tackett slapped in eight and DeShea Elliott added six.

Hodge served at a blistering 93-percent, recording 17 aces.

Dingus landed 16 aces at a 90-percent rate

Jones had eight aces, Molly Thornsberry recorded six, Elliott scored five and Tackett skidded in Thornsberry paced the Rebels with 16 assists. Jeni Dingus recorded seven assists in the championship effort. Elliott assisted in six kills and Rachel Moore set up Defensively, Hodge returned 90-percent of her passes and recorded five digs while Jones recorded eight digs and returned 86-percent. Thornsberry earned four stops.

PRESTONSBURG - Allen Central continued to play better Monday evening, posting a 14-3 win over host Prestonsburg in a pivotal Floyd County Conference/58th District baseball game. The Rebels have now won two straight and three of their last five. Allen Central opened the season 0-5.

AC junior pitcher Chad Jackson picked up the win on the mound. The Allen Central starter only allowed two earned runs

On the offensive side, Allen Central continuously connected against Prestonsburg pitching. Allen Central batters stayed ahead in the count during many plate appearances.

'Our offense showed up and carried us through the game," said first-year Allen Central Coach Josh Todd. "Chad pitched a great game, giving up two earned runs." Logan Crowder connected on a triple and drove in three runs for the Rebels. Josh Stone also drove in a trio of runs for Allen Central. Stone had a double as the Rebels pulled off the upset win. Chris Stumbo went 1-for-3 with an RBI in the Allen Central victory. In another Floyd County Conference/58th District game Monday evening, Betsy Layne

Blackcats get past Phelps, fall to Tigers

Schoolcraft records second win of season

by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS EDITOR

PIKEVILLE - Prestonsburg opened the 15th Region All "A" Classic on a successful note Pursday, doubling up Phelps 6-The Blackcats, however, bowed out of the regional tournament two days later. Paintsville ousted Prestonsburg 71 in five innings Saturday. Defending champion Paintsville will face Pikeville in the 15th Region All "A" Classic championship game this evening

Senior pitcher Schoolcraft picked up his second victory of the season as the Blackcats defeated Phelps. Schoolcraft went the distance, throwing seven strong innings. He gave up seven hits (all singles), walked one and struck out eight. Schoolcraft gave up three unearned runs.

"Chris had great control and was really hitting his spots," Prestonsburg Coach Randy Tincher said following the win over Phelps. "It was his best performance of the year so far."

The Blackcats were able to overcome some errors.

"We really hurt ourselves again with errors," said Prestonsburg Coach Randy Tincher. "We had five in the game but somehow managed to always make the big play when we had to. We turned a great double play in top half of the fifth inning.

Prestonsburg junior Cameron Tincher walked in the bottom half of the first inning, stole second and then scored on a twoout single from Seth Setser. The game was tied at 1-1 after the first inning. The Blackcats scored again in the bottom half of the second inning when Schoolcraft delivered a two out single and Chris Bostic singled to left field. The score was knotted 2-2 at the conclusion of the third irming.

Allen Craynon and Josh Blackburn opened the bottom half of the fourth inning with back-to-back singles for Prestonsburg. Schoolcraft then singled again, picking up an RBI. Bostic grounded out to third base but picked up an RBI when Blackburn scored.

Prestonsburg picked up two insurance runs in the bottom half of the sixth inning when Alex Griffith and Schoolcraft both walked. Kyle Gearheart was put in as a pinch runner and scored on a passed ball. Schoolcraft then scored when Chris Bostic singled up the middle for his third RBI of the game.

Paintsville claimed an early lead and never blinked en route to the convincing win over the Blackcats.

Bobcats edge South Floyd 3-2 in pitcher's duel

by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS EDITOR

ALLEN - Betsy Layne edged South Floyd 3-2 Monday evening in a Floyd County Conference/58th District baseball affair. Pitcher Brandon Mulkey picked up his first win for Betsy Layne. Mulkey went seven innings and recorded seven strikeouts. The Betsy Layne pitcher didn't allow a walk and both of South Floyd's runs were unearned. Betsy Layne notched the win despite committing three errors. "It has been a long time coming," said Betsy Layne RBI for Betsy Layne. Tackett Coach Ricky Thacker. "I have a young core of boys who are hungry. We played a muchimproved South Floyd team from last year.'

South Floyd starter Tyler Mitchell tossed all seven innings and absorbed the loss. Mitchell pitched well despite being stuck with the setback.

"Our bats were a little cold but we had solid defense which I have stressed all year," Thacker confided.

Junior Shane Case and senior Adam Slone provided clutch hits for the Bobcats. Slone went 2-for-3 with an and Andrew Roberts also had an RBI for the Bobcats.

Defensively, Betsy Layne also produced highlights Freshman shortstop Kory Jarrell and Roberts, a freshman second baseman, turned a crucial 6-4-3 double play to end the top half of the sixth inning.

"We are finally becoming a complete team," Thacker said. "With game time experience for my younger guys and tougher practices we will earn respect and Betsy Layne will April 23 at South Floyd, 6 p.m. shine. We have to continue to improve on fundamentals.

"Also, we have been hit with injuries and that has cut our pitching down. But we are making improvements and getting better.'

Johnson men among six arrested for coyote, fox trafficking

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT - Kentucky and West Virginia conservation officers arrested six persons, served summonses on two others and seized eight illegally possessed coyotes today, charging them with at least 831 counts of illegally buying, selling or possessing wild-caught foxes and coyotes, and in one case, cruelty to animals.

The 20-month undercover investigation, code named 'Gyp-Sum', looking into the illegal practice of buying, selling and holding wild-caught foxes and coyotes for the purpose of sale, came to a head as officers served warrants or summonses in five Kentucky counties and one out of state. Officers in Alabama, Virginia, Indiana, South Carolina and Florida contributed to the inves-

Grant County, James Auxier, 41, tine stops at certain locations in of East Point in Johnson County, and Charles Creech, 73, of Beattyville in Lee County were arrested in Kentucky.

Officers serving a summons to George Hill, 57, of Waco in Madison County, arrested him instead when they found him to be illegally in possession of eight coyotes.

Thomas Hymer, 78, of Irvine in Estill County, and Clustena Hall, 70, of Sitka, were served summonses to appear in Madison District Court and Johnson District Court, respec-

The out of state arrest warrant remained unserved and officers expect to complete that arrest this weekend.

Operation Gyp-Sum was triggered in July 2007 when Virginia officers notified Kentucky officers that Howard Blevins of Asheville, NC, a principal subject in a multi-state investigation of persons trafficking in wild foxes and coyotes was making frequent and rouKentucky. Officers involved in that multi-state investigation provided Kentucky officers with GPS map coordinates of Blevins' visits and phone numbers of persons he was contact-

Kentucky officers were assisting in several other states' investigations at that time, and in November 2007, Alabama Wildlife and Fisheries officers closed their own fox and coyote trafficking investigation with 18 arrests in three states, including Blevins for his involvement.

For the past 20 months, Kentucky undercover officers witnessed the illegal buying, selling and possession of live foxes and coyotes. They also witnessed Creech cutting the tails off live coyotes destined for use in chase pens.

"Officers in other states have heard of that practice, but this is the first time someone has actually demonstrated it to an officer," said a Kentucky undercover officer who witnessed the thing the hounds grab, so cutting it off makes it harder for the dogs to catch the coyote and extends the chase."

Creech is charged with seven counts of cruelty to animals, nine counts of illegally possessing wildlife without a permit, and seven counts of illegally buying wildlife. He was arrested and faces fines up to $15,000 and up to seven years in jail.

The trade in foxes and coyotes stems from the practice of turning packs of fox hounds loose inside fenced enclosures ranging in size up to several hundred acres to chase foxes or coyotes. The chases may begin about sundown and may continue through noon or so the next Officers say some chase pen operators need a continuous supply of foxes and coyotes and will pay as much as $100 or more for each animal.

That sets off alarms for wildlife biologists concerned about creating a commercial mutilation. "The tail is the first black market in Kentucky for the sale of coyotes and foxes to running pens.

The commercial trafficking of live-trapped coyotes inside Kentucky also runs the risk of spreading canine distemper, parvovirus, rabies, brucellosis, tapeworm, canine heartworm, canine hepatitis or mange by taking it from one area and spreading it to other wildlife, domestic pets and livestock.

Tony Hall faces up to $135,000 in fines. He was arrested and charged with 67 counts of illegally buying wildlife, 20 of illegally selling wildlife, and 96 of possessing wildlife without a permit.

Cook, charged with 14 counts of illegally assisting in the sale of wildlife, 111 counts of illegally selling wildlife and 164 counts of illegally possessing wildlife for the purpose of sale, was arrested and faces a maximum of $282,000 in fines.

Ellis is charged with 73 counts of illegally assisting in the sale of wildlife, 18 counts of illegally selling wildlife and 39 counts of illegally possessing wildlife for the purpose of sale. He was arrested and faces potential fines totaling $93,500. Auxier was arrested and charged with 36 counts of illegally assisting in the buying and selling of wildlife. He faces up to $18,000 in fines. Hill is charged with four counts of illegally buying wildlife and 11 counts of illegal possession. He was arrested and issued a summons and faces up to $7,500 in fines.

Hymer is charged with four counts of illegally assisting inbuying wildlife. He was issued a summons and faces up to $2,000 in fines.

Clustena Hall is charged with five counts of illegally possessing wildlife and faces up to $2,500 in fines.

Huffman is charged with 15 counts of illegally possessing wildlife and 15 counts of illegally buying wildlife. He wasarrested and faces up to $22,500

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON - The University of Kentucky football team hit the midpoint of the 2009 springpractice season on Monday with the eighth of 15 allotted practices. The team practiced for two hours Monday morning on the Tim Couch Practice Fields. Much of the practice involved working on corrections following the major scrimmage held on Saturday.

"There were some really good things and there were some that weren't so good," Coach Rich Brooks said when asked to review what he saw on the scrimmage film. "The receivers need to get back to what they'd been doing in earlier practices, and that's catching the ball and making plays. We didn't see enough of that, we had too many dropped passes.

"Today was a good practice," Brooks continued. "We got the wheels turning a little bit after looking at the film, trying to correct mistakes. The learning process needs to continue. We can't keep repeating the same mistakes, so that's what's important about getting progress. We'll tell a lot more next Saturday when we have another big scrimmage."

The Wildcats will return to practice Wednesday and Friday before the team's second major scrimmage on Saturday.

EKU football program holds first scrimmage; shoe drive set to start

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RICHMOND - The Eastern Kentucky University football team held its first scrimmage of the spring season on a crisp Saturday morning. The Colonels are scheduled for three more practices this week Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. All practices are open to the public.

The remaining practice schedule is as follows: Practice No. 10 - Thursday, April 16, 3 p.m.; Practice No. 11 -Saturday, April 18. 1:30 p.m.; Practice No. 12 - Tuesday, April 21 at 3 p.m.; Practice No. 13 - Thursday, April 23, 3 p.m.; Practice No. 14 -Saturday, April 25, 1:30 p.m.; Practice No. 15 - Sunday, April 26, TBA.

All practices are open to the public and will be held at the practice turf facility located next to the Presnell Building.

EKU student-athletes hosting shoe drive: Eastern Kentucky University studentathletes have partnered with the shoe charity Soles4Souls to collect gently worn footwear and/or donations to ship the shoes to a person in need. The shoe drive will kick-off at the Student-Athlete Celebration and Charity Kick-off Thursday, April 16.

Donations will be accepted for two weeks from April 16 through Thursday, April 30. Shoes can be dropped off in the Bratzke Center, which is located in Room 103 of Alumni Coliseum, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Any shoe or monetary donation will gladly be accepted.

Soles4Souls coordinated relief efforts for the Asian Tsunami and Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, netting more than one million pairs donated for these disasters.

For more information on the shoe drive, contact Jenna Sample 859-622-8931 or jenna.sample@eku.edu.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCE

A desert star: Guayule

by SANDY MILLER HAYS AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

It's odd how the mind works, isn't it? A particular scent will take us back in time to something that happened decades ago, and a simple turn of phrase can instantly bring back the lyrics of a song from high school.

That's probably why, every time I hear the word "guayule" (pronounced "why-YOU-lee"), I automatically think, "Why not?" Because if there's any plant that seems less promising on the surface, but actually has amazing potential, I'd be hard-pressed to name

If you stumbled across guayule in the desert and confused it with sagebrush, that would be totally understandable, because the two plants look a little alike. Guayule has silvery, grayish-green leaves and yellow flowers, and blends right into its native territory of the Chichuahuan Desert of the southwestern United States and northern Mexico.

The scientists of the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) have been giving guayule a close look for more than a decade now. In fact, in 1997 they licensed a patented process to make hypoallergenic latex from guayule.

Yes, you read that right; this desert plant is a source of high-quality natural rubber. Why is that important? It's because some 20 million Americans suffer from latex allergies that can be triggered by using latex gloves, condoms or other natural rubber products. The symptoms can range from a rash to life-threatening anaphylactic shock.

POISON OAK Cartwright's game

by CLYDE PACK

I sometimes wonder how we'd have spent those long hot eastern Kentucky summer days, back in the mid-1940s, if it hadn't been for Alexander Cartwright.

Of course, while we enjoyed the fruits of his creative thinking, since he didn't live in Muddy Branch, none of us had ever heard of him. Yet, without knowing it, we spent hours on end playing the game he invented back in 1846, in a far-off place called New York City.

Clyde Pack

Cartwright's game comes to mind every year, around his time, as children, some very young, and some very old, again become involved with baseball. And just as sure as this spring will turn into summer, just as it was with us coal-camp kids, back in the days before Little League and T-ball, the game will once again be played. Except now days, it'll be played on manicured diamonds, under lights, and surrounded by bleachers and concession stands. The participants will now be decked in fancy uniforms and equipped with paraphernelia purchased with plastic, by parents, who feel they're merely investing in their children's future, as their skills will no doubt propel them to college scholarships and professional careers. Hopefully, somewhere along the way, the kids will have half as much fun as we had some 60 years ago.

When we'd skin the grass off the infield and really take the time to pick

LORETTA KESTNER

Climbing Mountains, Chasing Stars

by SANDRA SAAD BSCTC FACULTY

Success is a journey, not a destination. It's a quote we often see on motivational posters or desktop doodads. But for Loretta Kestner (or Retty Lynn, to those who know her best), it's a quote that summarizes her ten-year professional progress from graduating cosmetology student to small-business owner. In 1994, as the single mother of two pre-school daughters, Loretta decided to enroll in the cosmetology program on the Mayo Campus of Big Sandy Community and Technical College. Before that decision, Loretta had just been bouncing from one job to another or juggling multiple part-time jobs in an effort to put together a fulltime wage. She had worked in a factory, as a waitress, in fast-food, and photography but she was interested in something a little more stable. Since she enjoyed working with people and enjoyed styling hair, she thought she might just combine the two by pursuing her cosmetology license. That decision, however, did not make the path any easier.

During her two years of training, Loretta became pregnant with her third child and her boyfriend's sister was tragically killed in a car wreck. Exhausted from her studies, part-time employment, and laden with morning sickness, Loretta admits that at one point during her education she "got to feeling sorry" for herself and missed four days of school, electing to just stay home. She didn't actually plan to quit her studies, she just didn't have the energy to get up and go . . . until her professor, Vanessa McKenzie, paid her a surprise visit.

Loretta laughs when she remembers the visit. "She (McKenzie) got one of the students who knew where I lived to drive her to my house," she recalls. "She asked me what I thought I was doing and told me to get my butt back in school."

"I could have killed that student," Loretta notes with a laugh, but then adds: "If Vanessa hadn't encouraged and pushed me, I would not have finished school." And when Loretta and her boyfriend, Wilbur Kestner, got married prior to Loretta's graduation from the cosmetology program, Vanessa McKenzie and her students pooled their money together to purchase a two-night stay for a honeymoon in Tennessee. "Now, not many instructors would do that," Loretta asserts.

While graduation was a milestone for Loretta, it was not an instant ticket to success. Getting your license is a two-step process, she explained. You have to get the education and pass a state board exam and then you have to serve as an apprentice for six months before taking a second exam to get your license. And that's just the beginning, because becoming a successful stylist requires building a clientele, and that takes time.

There were times I was just taking home $50 a week," Loretta admits. After her husband was seriously injured on the job (eventually requiring seven surgeries and extensive physical therapy before he could return to work), Loretta found herself once again being forced to piece together some part-time jobs in order to support the fami-

Once Loretta's husband was able to return to work, she was able to devote more time to building her client base, while juggling a fourth pregnancy and helping out during her parents' illnesses. When the owner of New Millennium decided to put her shop up for sale, she gave Loretta the option to buy and Loretta's sister and dad pitched in financially to make the purchase possible. In June 2006, Loretta became the owner of Retty Lynn's (New Millennium) on Broadway in Paintsville, nearly 10 years after graduating from Mayo's cosmetology program.

Loretta understands that she's still on her journey. Since purchasing the business she gave birth to a fifth child, continues to work 40 to 60 hours a week, and provides a location from which other hair stylists can work while building their own clientele. Despite the professional demands on her time, she keeps her focus on family and keeps up with her busy schedule with the help of her two teenage daughters, assistance from her stepmother and dad, and comfort from her faith. "I do get overwhelmed sometimes," she admits, "but I'm a Christian and the Lord helps me."

'I love working with people," she adds, "and I like doing hair. One nice client can make your

It has been a long journey from cosmetology student to small business owner, but Loretta Kestner would not claim to have reached her destination. As a business owner, hair stylist, wife, daughter and mother to five children, ranging in age from 17 years to 21 months, Loretta is still traveling her journey, struggling to juggle the many demands of her varied roles . . . but success is like that.

This allergic reaction is triggered by proteins in rubber from the Brazilian rubber tree Hevea brasiliensis. Tens of thousands of products are made from Hevea rubber, including a whole range of medical products including catheters and surgical gloves. Products made from guayule rubber could offer a safe alternative for Hevea allergy sufferers.

More recently, the ARS scientists took a look at guayule as a source of plywood-like boards that could resist attack by voracious termites and microbes. The idea is to form up the rocks, and when we could find enough discarded lumber and chicken wire to build a backstop, we really had a dandy ball diamond in the school house bottom. To be sure, it was no ¥ankee Stadium, but it was more than sufficient, for the rag-tag bunch we were.

We'd gather after supper on those long summer evenings, without uniforms, without coaches, without umpires, and most importantly, without some adult calling us names and threatening to take us home because we let a grounder skip between our

We'd choose up sides, flip wet and dry for bats, and sometimes, we'd even have seven or eight, or even 10 or 12 on a side. Occasionally, we'd have four or five real baseball gloves, too, that we'd take turns using. Of course, we always made sure the first baseman and catcher had one.

If the ball got wet in the creek, that in some places ran swift and deep, no more than 15 feet behind home plate, one of us would take it home at the end of the day, and bake it in the oven. If the cover came off (which most of the time it did) we'd take a roll of that black tape that miners always had in vest quantities around the house, and we'd tape it really good. It wasn't by any means as good as new, but a black baseball was better than no baseball.

And, according to historians, had not Alexander Cartwright come along, no baseball is exactly what we'd have had 60 years ago, and probably even now.

By 6th grade, an alarming number of girls lose interest in math, science & technology. Which means they won't qualify for most future jobs. That's why parents have to keep their interest alive, in every way we can.

It's her future. Do the math." www.girlsgotechiorg the guayule leftovers into something similar to plywood or particle board.

In tests, the ARS scientists combined components of guayule plants with recycled plastic containers used originally for milk or water. The result was a composite material that resists insects and microbial damage. This guayulecomposite board might replace a variety of woods now used in floor, wall and roof construction in homes and offices.

The scientists say the guayule leftovers also can be processed into resin for protecting wooden buildings, boats, decks and outdoor furniture. They found that pine blocks impregnated with the guayule resin resisted termite and wood-rot damage. Earlier U.S. Navy tests had shown that guayule resin applied to wooden piers thwarted several types of termites and marine borers.

This wouldn't be an "eitheror" situation, because the guayule composite board and resin are made from the brownish-white slurry that's left over after the guayule stems and leaves have been ground up to extract the latex.

Now, pardon me if I've saved the best for last, but the latest word from the ARS scientists is that guayule could also be an economical, environmentally friendly source of energy! They say the bioenergy can be made from the groundup stems and branches after the guayule's latex has been removed. These leftovers--a soft, light brown sawdust-like material called bagasse--can provide about 8,000 to 9,000 Btu per pound, which is about the same as charcoal.

ARS scientists in California have already made small amounts of ethanol from guayule, and an ARS scientist in Pennsylvania is looking into turning guayule bagasse into bio-oil or synthetic gas.

This could be a real win-win setup, because guayule isn't a food or feed crop, so using it ■ Continued from p1 for energy doesn't mean that anyone or anything will go hungry. And its bagasse and latex are available year-round; the only other biofuel feedstock for which that's true is municipal solid wastes

Also, guayule grows in hot, dry spots where many other biofuel crops won't grow well. It requires less fertilizer than other crops produced in the desert Southwest, and the only herbicides needed are when the plants are first getting established. The shrubs can be harvested for the first time as soon as two years after planting, and every 18 months or so after

So now you can probably understand why I automatically think, "Guayule? Why not?"
