Bishop murder retrial delayed

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG – The new trial for Dwayne Earl Bishop that had been set to begin this past Monday with jury selection already underway will now be continued.

According to court records, Bishop filed a motion for a continuance in the case just as the trial date approached, claiming that the state investigator gathering information for the 49-year-old was not performing his duties satisfactorily.

A status hearing has now been set for April 16, at which time another date will be set for the new trial.

Bishop won on appeal a new trial last year, claiming he was denied his right to act as co-counsel in his case, this following a complaint that his then public defender work with him because she might have been called as a witness in the case.

Court officials say Bishop is still pushing to act as co-counsel, in addition to his complaints against the Attorney General's investigator, the office now handling the newly opened case.

Murder charges were filed against Bishop in September 2000 after police discovered the body of his estranged wife, 32-year-old Carolyn Bishop, stabbed to death along a strip mine in Ligon. Officials said Carolyn Bishop had been severely beaten and suffered

Senate OKs independent voters in primaries

FRANKFORT – Independent voters could take part in partisan primary elections under legislation passed Tuesday by the Senate.

Senate Bill 53, sponsored by Sen. Jimmy Higdon, R-Lebanon, would allow independent voters to choose a party primary to vote in. They would be limited, however, to a single party's candidates for the entire ballot - no switching between parties for different offices.

"No one wants to be shut out of the political process," Higdon said. He noted that in many counties, a single party dominates, effectively turning the primary election into the only real choice for local offices. In many of those counties, otherwise independent voters join the majority party for practical reasons. "There's no reason a person should be forced to choose to join a political party whose views they do not concur with."

Census still trying to fill jobs

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

Despite multiple attempts to recruit workers, the Census Bureau is still having difficulty locating applicants in Floyd County.

"We're still looking for people to take the test," said Gary Wollenhaupt, with the Census Bureau. "We are behind schedule. We are looking for enough people that are eligible to work for the census in Floyd County. The jobs are temporary and pay $10.75 an hour and 50 cents a mile."

According to Wollenhaupt, there will be up to 200 jobs available, including some supervisory positions.

The census workers travel throughout their communities and locate households, explain the purpose of the census, conduct personal interviews with respondents who failed to return their 2010 census questionnaire and record their responses on paper forms.

Each applicant for the job must take a 30-minute basic skills test consisting of 28 multiple-choice questions measuring knowledge, skills and abilities required to perform a variety of census jobs. The test includes clerical skills, reading skills, number skills, interpreting information and evaluating alternatives and organizational skills.

Workers will receive paid training, work flexible hours, get paid weekly and receive reimburse-

Two charged with stealing cable from telephone poles

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — Two men are behind bars and charged with stealing telephone cable after an anonymous tip to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department led to an arrest this past weekend.

According to Sheriff John K Blackburn, a call came into his department this past Sunday saying two men were cutting phone cable along Old Abbott Road, just behind Drains Unlimited.

"They said one of the guys was standing on top of a van and cutting the cable," Blackburn said. "So we went to check it out because we've had a couple other complaints like this recently."

Those two areas, according to Blackburn, were in the David and Middle Creek sections of the county.

Deputy Steve Montgomery arrived on scene and found two individuals at the place where the

City gets PRIDE grant for beautification

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

PRESTONSBURG – A $2,101 PRIDE Beautification Grant is being put to work in Prestonsburg to improve the entrance sign for the city just a couple of weeks after officials received the check.

"This grant will help us to attract more visitors to our city," said Brent Graden, director of economic development for Prestonsburg. "It will also help us to spread the message about littering in our community. We will work to improve our entryway sign by the Wal-Mart area. It is definitely a need that was met in our area."

The landscaping crew is currently working on installing a miniature version of the Big Sandy River under the replica of the West Prestonsburg Bridge on the sign. According to Graden, a new sign will be installed in the next couple of weeks along with a message about PRIDE.

"We are caretakers of our environment," Graden said. "By showing an example of a clean neighborhood, a clean stream or a clean roadside, we encourage others to do the same. So please look for some changes to that end of town and listen to the message that it will tell."

In the five years since the inception of Prestonsburg PRIDE, over 447 tons of trash have been removed from the city limits, including over 18 tons from the Big Sandy River.

The next trash pickups are scheduled for April.

Workers with the landscaping department install a miniature version of the Big Sandy River under the replica of the West Prestonsburg Bridge as part of a PRIDE Beautification Grant.

It's time for military to open its closet

President Barack Obama's State of the Union address had a retro feel to it when he broached a controversial subject that has been on the back burner for the last 16 years: gays and lesbians in the military. Obama wants to repeal the existing policy, known as "Don't ask, don't tell." He calls making the change "the right thing to do."

It is. And it's about time the country did right by gay and lesbian service members. The current policy ignores a basic inequity that is not cured by politically convenient half-measures that don't solve anything.

Speaking of politically convenient half-measures, it was in December 1993 that President Bill Clinton issued an executive order that established the current policy. The idea began as a compromise proposed by Clinton's defense secretary, Les Aspin, who opposed Clinton's campaign promise to drop the ban on gays and lesbians in the military. Aspin suggested prohibiting the military from asking recruits about their orientation and allowing gays and lesbians to serve in uniform, as long as they didn't declare their orientation or engage in homosexual behavior.

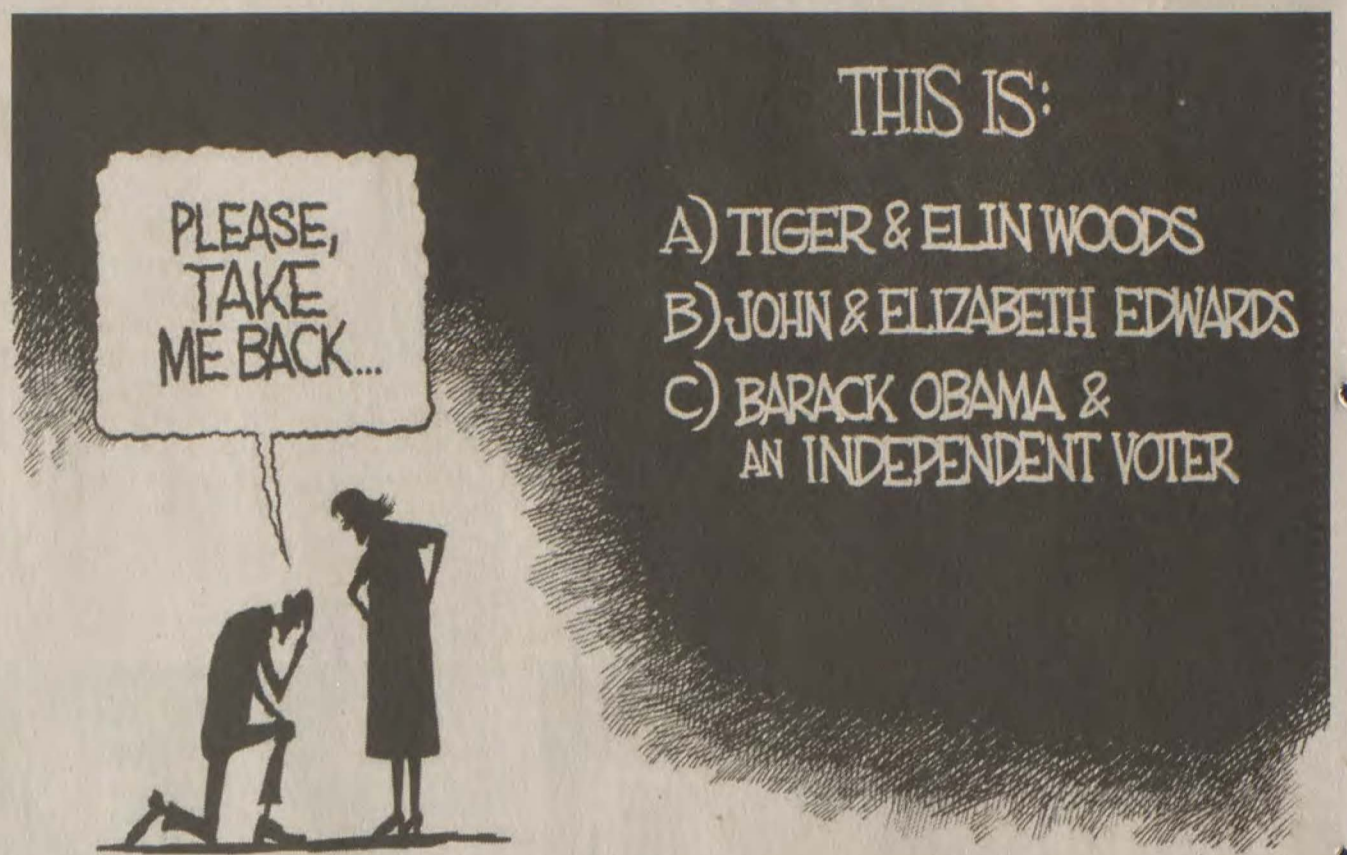

Problem solved? Well, not exactly. The compromise was heavy on pragmatism and light on principle. Clinton had gotten himself into a tight spot by making a promise that he had trouble keeping. This policy was intended to help him wiggle out. But, ultimately, the gay and lesbian communities weren't happy. Some of its members said at the time that "don't ask, don't tell" was political lingo for "let's pretend."

Now all these years later, it may be that many Americans are tired of pretending. This time around, Obama is not likely to meet the degree of resistance that Clinton encountered — especially from senior military leaders. Defense Secretary Robert Gates is onboard and is scheduled to unveil the Pentagon's plan to prepare for repealing the policy at a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing tomorrow. The House will also weigh in. Rep. Susan Davis, D-San Diego, announced that the subcommittee she chairs of the House Armed Services Committee will also hold a hearing on the issue in March.

Those who oppose any change in the current law are some of the same people who once supported the old policy of an outright ban. They talk about how it could hurt morale and disrupt military cohesion at a time when the United States is fighting two wars.

They should listen to Bill Mynatt of Knoxville, Tenn., who discussed the idea of repealing "don't ask, don't tell" last year while a senior at West Point. "I really don't think it's going to be that big of a deal," Mynatt told The New York Times. "There are gay soldiers serving and doing their jobs well, and it's not going to change."

Beyond the Beltway

Next, we'll sell Senate seats to Exxon Mobil and AT&T

by DONALD KAUL
MINUTEMAN MEDIA

In days of yore they called them the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse: War, Famine, Pestilence, and Death — the scourges of humankind.

They're still around, but now they carry new names: Roberts, Scalia, Thomas, Alito, and Kennedy — the conservative majority of the U.S. (ha ha) Supreme Court. (I know, that makes five. There's inflation everywhere.)

These gentlemen, all of whom solemnly swore that they would honor precedent in their judgments, kicked precedent into the ditch last month when they opened the floodgates for corporations seeking to bribe politicians.

The decision, Citizens United vs. Federal Election Commission, ended limits on the money corporations and unions can spend on influencing elections, thus writing a finish to the experiment in democracy we've been conducting for 220 years.

That the majority used the sword of the First Amendment — the constitutional amendment most cherished by liberals — to accomplish this maneuver merely adds a touch of dark humor to an era already replete with irony. (It was the horsemen's opinion that the amendment afforded corporations the same right of free speech as it did individuals, and that money is the same as speech.)

The Founding Fathers believed that virtually unlimited freedom of speech was a bulwark against the triumph of erroneous thinking. Let all voices compete in the marketplace of ideas and the good will drive out the bad. Thus the First Amendment.

That was perhaps workable, if a trifle counterintuitive, so long as the voices were using comparable megaphones to make their views known. The technology of radio, television, and the Internet makes that assumption absurd. If your voice is loud enough — existing everywhere at every moment — you can sell a majority on virtually anything, even reality television.

Democracy has been in decline here for some time — just look at our pathetic voter turnouts — but this decision closes the books on it. We have traded our democratic republic for a corporate oligarchy on the model of a banana republic.

Americans are fond of saying that we're the greatest country in the world. Would the greatest country in the world make a trade like that? I don't think so.

And the corporations to whom we've given the keys to the store aren't even American companies. They're multi-nationals operating in their own self-interest without regard for the national good.

We'll still have elections and rallies and arguments and tea parties. So what? It's all a show, the political equivalent of professional wrestling.

The tea-baggers are congratulating themselves on Scott Brown winning a Senate seat by riding around Massachusetts in a pickup truck. He's "a man of the people" who will hear their voices, they say.

Sure he will, but their voices won't ring as loudly in his ears as those of the insurance and oil companies, not to mention defense contractors. Not nearly as loudly.

I'm going to revive a proposal I made a while ago that didn't, in my opinion, get the attention it deserved.

I think we should do away with the charade of elections, at least for the Senate. Let's replace them with an auction. I mean a real auction, with an auctioneer and gavel.

Let corporations bid on each Senate seat, with the money going to the treasury of the state involved. Having bought a seat, the winning corporation could then fill it with any stooge it chose — more or less as they do now, but without the hypocrisy.

I would also mandate a Senate uniform — based on what NASCAR drivers wear — that carries the corporate logos of the Senator's owner.

House elections should be maintained to give people the illusion that they matter, even though they don't. Remember when you were a little kid and your father let you wash the wheels of the car to make you feel grownup? Like that.

Goodbye, democracy. You had your flaws but you were a good old system — the best. We shall miss you.

A legislative perspective

by REP. GREG STUMBO
SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE

When the General Assembly began the 2010 legislative session a little more than a month ago, there was no doubt what the biggest challenge would be: putting together a two-year budget in the toughest economic climate since the Great Depression.

Under our constitution, the process begins when the governor presents a proposal to legislators. The House of Representatives then decides what changes it might like, followed by the Senate. If all works well, a compromise is voted on by both chambers in late March.

The House Appropriations and Revenue Committee is currently weighing the best options to move forward. The main area where we disagree with the governor is the use of expanded gaming at our horse racing facilities to cover ongoing state government expenses.

Because the legislature has not authorized expanded gaming, it is wrong to rely on the hundreds of millions of dollars it would provide to the state. If it ever does come to pass, I believe the money should be used to create much-needed jobs by replacing not just some of our outdated school buildings, but all of them. It would be Kentucky's own billion-dollar jobs package.

As we wait for the budget process to unfold, the House has already wrapped up its work on two bills important to education.

The first of those, which was quickly adopted by the Senate and signed into law to help low-performing schools, should make Kentucky more competitive in the federal "Race to the Top" grants being awarded this spring and summer to the states. We could receive up to $200 million if our application is successful, money that could not come at a better time.

The other education bill to make it through the House would make it easier for college students to transfer course credits from one institution in the state to another while capping the hours needed to complete most majors. This would keep community and technical college students from needlessly having to re-take courses simply because the course hours would not transfer.

On a personal level, my priority this legislative session is to see "Amanda's Bill" become law. I filed the legislation in honor of Amanda Ross, a family friend who was killed in September in what is being investigated as a domestic violence case.

The House has already unanimously approved the bill, which would use electronic monitoring to ensure that domestic violence orders are not violated. I believe this approach of tracking potentially violent offenders will give victims a fighting chance.

Should this become law, judges would have the authority to require the monitoring devices. More than a dozen other states already allow this, and based on their experiences, it is expected to be needed in less than 20 percent of cases.

On Feb. 12, my wife Mary Karen and I are joining with several other prominent Kentuckians, including former Governor Paul Patton and First Lady Judi Patton, to host an event with the University of Kentucky Center for Research on Violence Against Women. We want to raise money and awareness in Kentucky's ongoing effort to reduce and hopefully end a problem that ultimately affects us all. Ideally, "Amanda's Bill" will officially become "Amanda's Law" that evening.

With helping others in mind, I want to note that the House has raised more than $12,000 for the "Hoops for Haiti" program that was led by the University of Kentucky's men's basketball team. I am proud that my colleagues and I could take part in a charity drive that has contributed well

Appalachian Education Initiative names project director

FRANKFORT — Kathi Shrider has been named project director for the Appalachian Education Initiative, a collaborative effort to bring together postsecondary and K-12 educators to implement Kentucky's 2009 Senate Bill 1 education reforms in Appalachian Kentucky counties. The program is funded by a grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Kathi Shrider

The Appalachian Education Initiative is the first project to grow out of a unique collaboration between Eastern Kentucky University, Morehead State University, AICCU, and a number of eastern Kentucky nonprofits and service agencies. The collaborative was formed in 2009 under the leadership of ECU President Doug Whitlock, Morehead State University President Wayne Andrews, and Gary S. Cox, president of the Association of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universities (AICCU), which is serving as grant manager for the collaborative project.

"Kathi is uniquely suited to lead this effort to partner with Appalachian school districts implement Senate Bill 1," said Cox. "As the daughter of an Appalachian coal miner, a nonprofit administrator and an educator at both public and private colleges and universities in the region, Kathi has proven her dedication to living, working, volunteering, and serving in Appalachia. Kathi's background is emblematic of the public-private collaboration we hope to achieve in this grant."

Shrider is a CPA, holds an MBA, and has an extensive background in nonprofit management, accounting, corporate training, and teaching at the college level. She is currently an adjunct professor at Berea College, where she has taught courses in accounting, mathematics, business computer applications, and nonprofit leadership and management.

"This region has more issues that need to be addressed than any one of us can solve, given our limited resources," said Whitlock. "But working together, we have the ability to make a big difference for the people of Appalachia."

The group held a series of meetings that included major stakeholders from across Morehead and Eastern's combined 44 county service area — including area community and technical college presidents, independent college presidents, and nonprofits like the Center for Rural Development — to identify how their combined efforts could most benefit the people and communities of Eastern Kentucky. The collaborative unites 15 postsecondary institutions: two regional public universities, eight independent colleges and universities, and five community and technical colleges.

The unique public-private collaborative ultimately decided to focus on three broad areas: education, economic development, and health care.

"The Appalachian Education Initiative is the first step in our effort to work together to impact the broader region," said Morehead State President Wayne Andrews. "Developing strong partnerships between public and private postsecondary institutions and local school districts to improve school curricula and meet the goals of Senate Bill 1 will have long term benefits for the students and communities of eastern Kentucky."

Shrider will maintain an office on the campus of Berea College. She may be reached at 859-985-5276.

Johnson, said the initial thing that led to the arrest was noticing Irvine's vehicle had out-of-date registration plates.

The two approached Irvine after pulling him over at the gas station and later reported that he was also without a driver's license, in addition to appearing as if he was under the influence.

Tackett said during questioning, Irvine admitted to having smoked marijuana earlier in the evening and also taking a pill.

The warrants were confirmed at the scene, Tackett said. Irvine was wanted on two counts of illegally processing drug documents, two counts of deception to obtain a dangerous drug and one count of possession of drugs.

Tackett said although Blackburn often asks his department's officers and deputies to be observant of any individuals in the areas they patrol who are strangers and not familiar to them, Irvine was, in fact, already on their radar.

"We had suspected him (Irvine) for awhile, and people who have warrants from out of state do have a tendency to come here and hide from time to time," Tackett said. "But most of the time they eventually end up doing something like this and this is the result."

According to police, Irvine had been in Floyd County for approximately a year before his arrest this week.

Child psychiatric care bill passes House

FRANKFORT — Children with severe psychiatric disorders who must now be treated out of state because of a lack of options in Kentucky could return home under a bill that cleared the House Wednesday.

House Bill 231, sponsored by Rep. Jimmie Lee, D-Elizabethtown, would create a new level of licensed psychiatric residential treatment facilities for special-needs Kentucky children now being cared for in states as far away as Utah and Texas. Lee said the bill would set requirements for operation of the facilities, which could be located across the Commonwealth by qualifying applicants.

"The problem we've had for at least 10 years...is we've not had any facilities to work with these special needs kids, and these are very, very difficult kids to work with—that's why they're out of state," said Lee, adding some of the children are sexually aggressive, while others have a low IQ or engage in self mutilation.

Between 50 to 90 children would be served by HB 231, he added.

The bill "would deal with a very, very select group," Lee said.

HB 231 passed 94-0 and now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Bishop was picked up on a DUI charge by police in the Harold area soon after the discovery of his wife's body.

According to police at that time, Carolyn Bishop had last been seen about 9:30 p.m. that same evening riding with Bishop on his motorcycle, the vehicle he was driving when arrested, and which later became a focus of Bishop's first murder case.

Bishop, who was placed in jail under a $1 million cash bond, was convicted of murder in that first case in 2005 and sentenced to life in prison.

Jeremy Paul Kilburn, 28, and Ernest Little, 44, both of Dwale, were taken into custody at the scene.

Kilburn was charged with first-degree criminal mischief, while Little was also charged with first-degree criminal mischief, possession of burglary tools due to a large set of cable cutters Blackburn said was discovered at the scene and an additional charge of public intoxication.

According to reports, Little had three different medications — Xanax, Percocet and Lorcet — in his right front pants pocket.

"His eyes were glazed over and he had unsteady balance and also blue residue in his nose," added Blackburn.

Blackburn believes that both men had been cutting the cable then burning it to retrieve the copper to sell later.

Both men are currently being held in the Floyd County Detention Center on cash bonds.

Your Heart is Talking Are you Listening?

We all know heart attack is the No. 1 killer of men in the United States yet every man experiences heart attack in a different way. You don't have to have all of the symptoms—or even the most common ones—to be having a heart attack.

When it comes to your heart, you can be your own best friend ... but you have to listen.

• Chest Pain

This is the major sign of a heart attack for men. The pain is often described as crushing, burning, tightness or pressure. It often starts in the center of the chest and radiates outward. Seek care immediately.

• Shortness of Breath

An inability to breathe, or the feeling that you're just not getting enough air, is another important sign. Seek immediate medical attention.

• Upper Body Discomfort

Men who've had heart attacks also report feeling pain or discomfort in the arms, back, neck, jaw or stomach. You may have one or more of these symptoms. Or none.

• Other signs

A feeling of anxiousness, unexplained dizziness, persistent nausea and cold sweats are all signs that can occur before or during a heart attack.

Whether you're a man or a woman, if you have one or more symptoms of a heart attack, call 9-1-1 right away. When it comes to your heart, time is muscle. The quicker you act, the better your chances of a complete recovery.

The heart experts at King's Daughters stand ready 24/7. Our accredited Chest Pain Center averages a door-to-balloon time of just 52 minutes. That's significantly better than the national standard of 90 minutes. And we do every major heart procedure – and more of them than anyone in the region.

Your heart deserves expert care.

'Beast Within'

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

You know that the zombie film has run its course when you realize that the latest undead opus (which looks like all of the others) actually came to you from another country. In this case that country is Germany.

If you are a zombie completist, then you might enjoy yourself here. But if you've had it up to here (my hand is under my chin) with the living dead, then you won't see anything new here.

Tom Doty
Times Columnist

This film actually sports a budget and begins on a high note. It starts with a fiery car wreck, but just before you start to question whether you popped in a Burt Reynolds flick, the film is already off to the next bit of mayhem.

That next bit showcases Dr. Bergen. He chucks a test tube and boldly declares that his work has been a failure before a murder of crows descends on him and rips him apart like so much schnitzel.

While you are still digesting all of this, the movie finally settles on some characters. Unfortunately, they turn out to be the same gang of post-adolescent nitwits that populate most low-budget zombie efforts.

In this case they are Robert, Eugene and Patrick. The Robster turns out to be the grandson of Dr. Bergen. He drives out to Bergen's

This Town, That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request.

Things to remember about this dynamiting of a Prestonsburg business firm this week:

This wasn't a bomb hidden on a crowded airliner, and the bomber wasn't an Arab terrorist. It was here, and the hand that exploded it was one of our own.

There was no sheeted figure with KKK emblazoned on it. This one worked under the shroud of darkness.

It is a shame we all share.

HELP VIA MRS. MURRAY

Some years back when Madalene Murray protested to the Supreme Court against prayer and Bible reading in the public schools and got action, there were many solid citizens across the land who would have gladly accommodated both Mrs. Murray and members of the court to alternate rides on a sharp rail. But thought of such "hospitality" was rash.

Now it develops that the court ruling has actually encouraged the study of religion and the Bible in public high schools. Some colleges are training teachers for such elective courses. Writes Dr. John Piet, professor of English Bible and missions at Western Theological Seminary, Holland,

'Worst Thing' director ready to present film to world

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

A little over a year ago, Michael Crisp decided that he wanted to tell the story of the 1958 school bus tragedy that claimed the lives of 26 children and the driver of the bus in Floyd County. With his new documentary "The Very Worst Thing," Crisp has accomplished his goal.

The documentary is set to debut at the Mountain Arts Center on Feb. 19, and Crisp was in Prestonsburg on Tuesday to get the final piece of his cinematic puzzle before the curtain officially lifts on his film.

Crisp stopped by the office of the Floyd County Times to locate a picture of Donald "Dootney" Horn, the man who was driving the tow-truck that is believed to have been the reason the school bus driver swerved off the road and into the river. The documentary will show the picture of Horn and describe the lives that he saved by running down to the banks of the river and pulling children from the rushing water, along with the circumstances leading up to the accident.

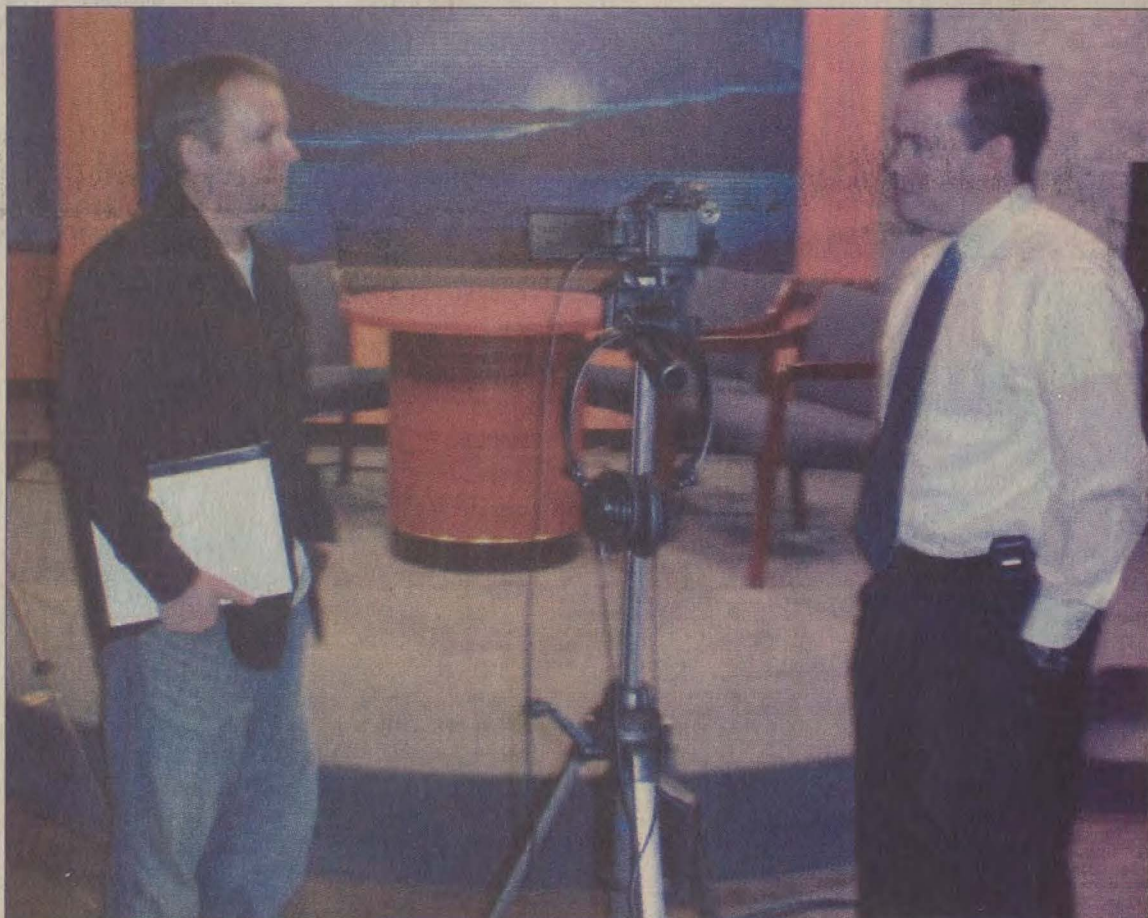

"My mother was from Prestonsburg, so we always heard the stories about the wreck," Crisp said. "She told me that she could have been on that bus, and I became fascinated by the accident. It's really heartbreaking and fascinating at the same time."

After reading a newspaper article on the fiftieth anniversary of the tragedy, Crisp decided to do the film.

"I had been sort of debating getting into the film industry, and here was this story that was so close to home and personal," Crisp said. "I wanted to really delve deep and revisit everything."

The first person that Crisp contacted was Jackie Branham Hall, the author of a book about the accident titled "Portrait of a Disaster." Hall donated over 150 pictures to the film.

With Hall's help, Crisp was able to contact and interview 28 people for the documentary, including survivors of the wreck.

After the debut at the Mountain Arts Center, Crisp plans to submit the film to numerous festivals in the hopes of having it picked up by a distributor.

"We've had a lot of interest," Crisp said. "KET contacted me about showing the film, but I told them I was trying to get distribution for it right now. We are also going to have a showing at the Kentucky Theater in Lexington on Feb. 24."

The showing of the film at the Mountain Arts Center is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m.

Going organic

I get asked all the time about using organic food to healthfully feed your family. My answer invariably is yes, go as organic and as natural as you can afford to. If going "all the way" isn't possible, at least go with some organic produce. Don't worry, I've got a resource that will help you choose your priorities.

The Environmental Working Group (EWG) publishes a Shopper's Guide to Pesticides in Produce and came up with this list called The Dirty Dozen; the 12 fruits and vegetables they have found to be the most contaminated. The list goes from number 1 (strawberries) being the worst, to cucumbers, being the least of the 12.

You can get a full copy of this report by sending $18 (by check) to Environmental Working Group, 1718 Connecticut Avenue NW, Suite 600, Washington, DC 20009.

The Dirty Dozen

- strawberries
- bell peppers (tied with number 3)
- spinach
- cherries (grown in the U.S.)
- peaches
- cantaloupe (grown in Mexico)

- celery
- apples
- apricots
- green beans
- grapes (grown in Chile)
- cucumbers

Nutrient-rich food is always a top consideration when feeding your family whether organic or not. It is important to make each meal count. Some food is simply better than other food. You will get significantly more nutrition with a meal of salmon than say filet of sole. Same

Q I went to the emergency department recently with back pain, and they said I had a kidney infection. I really didn't have many other symptoms except generally feeling run-down. They gave me some antibiotics, and my pain got better, so they must have been right. How did I get this? Why didn't I have any other noticeable symptoms?

A Pylonephritis is the medical term for an infection in the kidneys or the ureters, which are the tubes that lead from the kidneys to the bladder. Pylonephritis is usually caused when bacteria moves up the ureters from the bladder, in what we call an "ascending infection."

Pylonephritis can be caused by a number of things, including bladder infections, bladder catheterization, urinary tract surgeries, kidney stones, prostate enlargement or structural problems in the urinary system that block urine flow from the kidneys to the bladder.

The most common symptom of pyelonephritis is back pain. Pain caused by kidney infection is usually felt just below the rib cage and close to the spine. Typically the pain is described as a dull ache, much less intense than the acute pain associated with kidney stones. Kidney infection pain also tends to come and go, and it may extend to the side of the body or down into the pelvic area.

Kidney infections may seem mild, but can be serious

As you noted, sometimes the symptoms are limited to back pain alone. If you experience new and sudden back pain, it is a good idea to see a doctor about it. Many people also have associated symptoms of painful urination, frequent urination, blood in the urine, fever and nausea or vomiting. If you notice these symptoms, see your doctor immediately.

In some cases, people become extremely ill with pyelonephritis and have to be hospitalized. This can occur when the kidney infection spreads to the blood stream. This is called septicemia, and it often begins with rapid breathing, increased heart rate, chills and a sharp spike in fever. Severe pyelonephritis can also cause the kidneys to stop functioning, which is a potentially fatal situation with a number of symptoms, from bloody stools and breath odor to tremors and swelling of the lower body.

When you went to the emergency department, the doctor probably began by tapping on the kidney area to see if it caused you pain. Then, most likely, your blood was drawn to be checked for a high white blood cell count, which would indicate infection. They probably also obtained a urine specimen to examine for bacteria. Once bacteria are cultured and identified, the doctor can prescribe the most effective antibiotic.

Most people respond quickly to antibiotic treatment, and their symptoms resolve without further complication. A thorough follow-up usually calls for x-rays of the entire urinary tract to look for structural problems in the system that may have caused the problem.

New ways to treat varicose veins

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have varicose veins on both of my legs. I wear only long dresses and slacks to hide them. My legs don't hurt, but I would like to be rid of these veins. What can I do for them? At this point, I am not interested in surgery. -- L.H.

ANSWER: Leg veins face a Herculean task. They have to return blood to the heart in the face of gravity, which works to keep blood from moving upward. They couldn't accomplish their task if they didn't have valves. As blood moves upward in the vein, its valves close so that it can't fall back down. The problem with varicose veins is a valve problem. Their valves no longer work. Blood stays in the leg veins, distends them and stretches them out of shape -- varicose veins.

Varicose veins can make the legs ache or cause them to tire quickly. Sometimes, the pooled blood leaks fluid out of the veins, so the ankles and feet swell, and open ulcers -- most often around the ankle -- might form. And then there is the cosmetic aspect, about which I'm not qualified to comment.

Things you can do for varicose veins are limited but worth trying. One is compression stockings. The very best stockings are the ones with graduated compression, with the compressive force greatest in the lowermost part of the leg and with lesser force in the upper parts of the leg. Compression moves blood upward. Another way to keep blood from pooling is lying down with your legs higher than your heart. That position empties blood out of leg veins. Admittedly, you can't spend the entire day with your legs elevated, but elevate them as often as you can. Never stand for long in one place. If you have to stay still, contract your calf and leg muscles to push blood out of the legs.

Should you change your mind about surgical vein removal, you should know that today there are many methods of getting rid of these veins. Endovascular lasers, radiofrequency catheters and sclerotherapy are recent-vintage techniques. Surgical removal has been refined to the point that most patients return home on the day of operation.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have mucus that drains down into my mouth and throat constantly. I hope you can offer some help for me. -- H.E.

ANSWER: You're describing postnasal drip, the irksome trickling of mucus into the back of the mouth and throat. It is thick, gluey and tastes awful. The mucus often comes from chronically infected sinuses.

Try saltwater irrigation of the nose to clear up some of this mucus. Boil some water, and into a cup of boiling water add a quarter-teaspoon of salt. Let the water cool. With a bulb syringe, available in drug-stores, gently flush both nostrils.

Before going to bed, take a drug that contains both an antihistamine and a decongestant. Drixoral Cold and Allergy Tablets is one such drug. It can slow the trickle at night, when it's usually at its worst.

You might have to enlist the help of an ear, nose and throat doctor, who can inspect your sinuses and tell you if you need more intensive treatment.

THE EXERCISES

Me, I'm keeping in fair condition: (for the shape, I'm in), these days. I get in a bit of walking during the day, and then, last thing at night, I get a good workout trying to put out the cat.

This malkin, which is of no other use whatsoever, is a good exerciser. She's deaf as the proverbial adder, but will sleep as only a cat can sleep till around 10:30 p.m. Then, nine times out of ten, the so-called mouser will ease from her perch and slink out of the room. And that's when the chase begins. You can't coax the animal, she's deaf. It's hunt, find, then, if possible, latch onto her tail and pull her from beneath whatever she has taken cover.

I didn't want this cat around, in the first place. But maybe the critter serves a purpose.

Salome's Stars Weekly Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) All that flattery and fawning shouldn't affect any decision you have to make. Keep your focus on the facts and ignore all the hyperbole, especially if it gets uncomfortably personal.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine instincts are on the mark about that "favor" you're being asked to do. Agree to nothing unless you get a full explanation -- which you would check out first, of course.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A somewhat unsettled recent period should give way to a smoother time going through the week. Use this quieter time to catch up on matters you might have had to let slide.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Feeling a little confused is understandable with all those mixed messages. Take time to list the questions you have. Then present them and insist on answers that make sense.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Cupid can be very helpful for Lions seeking a love connection. The chubby cherub also brings warm and fuzzy feelings to paired Leos and Leonas who already share a special love line.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Travel is favored this week, whether you'll be globe-trotting or taking a trip to a nearby getaway. You might be surprised (or maybe not) by who wants to be your traveling companion.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Getting advice on your next business-related move is a good idea, but only if your advisers are trustworthy. Get references that you can check out before you make any decisions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Getting a boost in your self-esteem is one benefit that comes with a job well done. There are other pluses as well, including being noticed by all the right people. Good luck.

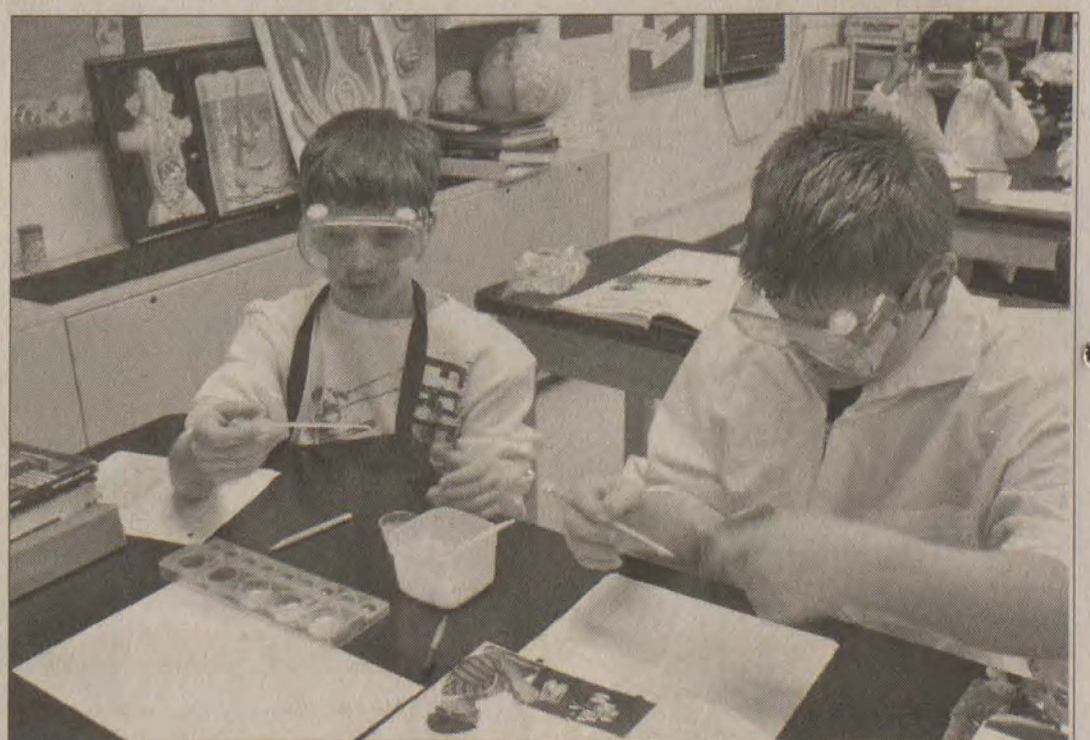

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Make time to deal with family matters, especially where they concern your elderly kinfolk. Being there for them from the start can help resolve problems sooner rather than later.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Getting a project started can often be difficult. But the good news is that you won't want for lack of assistance from colleagues who would like to work with you. So, let them!

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A lot of work-related issues might be raised this week, and you need to be prepared for whatever comes along. Things should be easier when it comes to matters in your private life.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) What might appear to be a very much unwanted change in your life right now could turn out to be a very welcome event after all. Give yourself a chance to see where it might take you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You exercise your strong leadership qualities well, which is why people believe in you and feel reassured by you.

Olive oil good for many things, but not repelling snow

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray:
We had a big snowstorm this week. Not wanting to scrape the ice off my windshield, the night before the storm I looked around for something to put under my wipers to keep the ice off. Unable to come up with anything, I contemplated alternatives. Then it came to me: Filippo Berio Extra Virgin Olive Oil! I smeared some Filippo Berio on the windshield and waited for the snow. The next morning, the snow slid off the windshield like a greasy zeppole. Great, I thought. When the snow stopped, I noticed a haze on the windshield. I figured it would wash off. Well, I was wrong — the stuff has adhered to the glass as if it were baked on. I'm still scraping off the hardened oil. Help! — Tom

RAY: Tom, it's people like you who make great discoveries. You're the kind of person who is unafraid to experiment. And once in a while, you'll hit upon something that will benefit all mankind. This was not one of those times.

TOM: No. Filippo Berio Extra Virgin Olive Oil has many excellent uses — my brother uses it as a hair tonic — but windshield cleaner is not one of them.

RAY: You've probably cooked with olive oil. When you're done, you put the frying pan in the sink. And if you then let it sit and cool off for a while, you'll find a hardened, whitish layer of congealed grease stuck to it. That's what's on your windshield.

TOM: If you had done this during one of those midsummer snowstorms, Tom, it might have worked. But the cold temperature is what congealed the oil and did you in.

RAY: So, how do you get it off? Well, with a frying pan, you can use steel wool — not a good option for your windshield. You also can use hot water and soap, and try to "un-congeal" it. This would be best done in a heated garage.

TOM: If he had a heated garage, he wouldn't be in this mess in the first place!

RAY: Good point. How 'bout we suggest he just drive in reverse until late June?

TOM: Here's what I'd do, Tom: Run the defroster with the heat on high for a good 20 minutes before attempting to remove the grease. The warmer you can get the congealed oil, the easier it will be to remove.

RAY: If soap and water are not up to the task, try a 50-50 mixture of water and methanol. It's a mild solvent that's safe for glass, and it's pretty good at cutting grease.

TOM: And if all else fails, there's always the glass-cleaning tool of last resort: the hammer. Good luck, Tom.

Tom and Ray can't get onboard with this dangerous idea

Dear Tom and Ray:
My problem is my 1995 Chevy High-Top Conversion Van model G20. I am a fanatical sports fan. I never miss a football or baseball game. I also do a lot of RV-ing, so I spend a lot of time on the road. My RV van has a TV screen for the second and third row of passengers. In order to indulge both my sports and RV hobbies at the same time, I have set up a large mirror on the seat back of the second row so that it reflects the image on the TV. Then I adjust my rearview mirror so that I can see the TV image reflected on the large mirror behind me. This way, I never miss a touchdown play or game-winning home run while I am driving. My problem is that since the conversion from analog to digital TV, I can no longer enjoy the games. I have been unable to find a 12-volt digital converter for the TV. Can you help me? — Art

RAY: I have a better idea, Art. Why don't you mount a TV right where the hood ornament belongs? Then you can watch the game and the road at the same time.

TOM: I wouldn't go any wider than 60 inches, though. Any bigger, and you'll really eat into your gas mileage.

RAY: We can't help you with this, Art. I mean, we can, but we won't.

TOM: The reason we won't is to keep you from killing yourself or some other innocent people on the road.

RAY: Unless that's part of the plan, Art. In which case, while you're doing time for vehicular homicide, you can watch all the games you want in the prison common room.

TOM: Of course, you'll have to fight off all those sex offenders who want to control the remote.

RAY: This is a bad idea, Art. When you're watching TV, you're not watching the road. And at 70 mph, you're traveling 100 feet per second!

CLICK & CLACK
Talk Cars

What happens when there's a 95-yard touchdown interception? You could run over six or eight Smart Cars.

TOM: Get yourself a Sirius XM satellite radio receiver for the van instead. They've got packages that provide live radio feeds for every baseball and football game. Listening while you drive is a lot safer than watching — as long as you don't spike your Mountain Dew Surpree into the windshield when your team scores.

TIMES COLUMNIST

Horror and sci-fi flicks were the ones to beat this week, but only one low key drama even came close.

■ "Universal Soldier: Resurrection" — Jean Claude Van-Damme and Dolph Lundgren are reunited in this action/sci-fi sequel that, once again, finds their zombie/soldier characters on opposite sides of a conflict. This time Damme must face off against Lundgren and a new breed of universal soldier (played by former UFC champion Andrei Arlovski). This time it feels like they cribbed from a Bond flick (or is that "Austin Powers"), as the film's villains hijack a nuclear facility to control the missiles. There's nothing here to redefine the action genre, but it's all well played and beautifully shot. It never hurts when your director of photography is Peter Hyams ("Time Cop" and "Outland"). Hyams probably took the gig to get his son, John, the directors chair. The good news is that John handles the action well and shows he's one to watch.

■ "Love Happens" — And it often leads to sappy flicks. This one veers away from sappy for the most part. Aaron Eckhart plays a self-help guru who must tear a page out of his own book when he falls for Jennifer Aniston. Not sappy, but unforgivably boring.

■ "Amelia" — Hilary Swank stars as America's favorite flying femme in this historical drama about the flying ace who disappeared over the Pacific Ocean in 1937. She's good, as usual, but the narrative only engages you on occasion, despite supporting nods from Richard Gere, Christopher Eccleston and Ewan Macgregor.

■ "Zombieland" — The best zombie film since George Romero cranked out "Dawn of the dead" in 1978. Here you get a combo platter of splatter-comedy, action flick and effective drama, as two men bond while travelling across an American landscape transformed by a zombie plague. A smart script gets the ball rolling, but it is the leading man performance from Woody Harrelson that puts this one over the net. There's also a great cameo from one of the original "Ghostbusters."

Next week look for "The Time Travelers Wife" and make room for daddy with a remake of "The Stepfather."

Thought for the Day

"I look to the future because that's where I'm going to spend the rest of my life." -- George Burns remote country mansion to sign some papers after his unfortunate demise. He brings along his favorite vegetarian/wimp (Eugene) and the standard best friend who is obsessed with sex and partying (Patrick).

Nothing much happens for the next 40 minutes, and that's too bad as it would have been ample time for character development. That said we do get to meet the town constable. He is portrayed as a very American-like stereotype of a small town lawman (his favorite activities are chomping on doughnuts and giving attitude to anyone who was talented to leave town).

A stop at a convenience store leads to Robert hooking up with his old girlfriend (Marlene) and allows Patrick a chance to show his moves as he comes on to the other teller, Vanessa. Despite evidencing zero charm, they manage to convince the women to meet them later at Dr. Bergen's creepy estate.

Bergen's house is huge but rather decrepit. The boys do manage to find the wine cellar but they are low on munchies and must call for takeout. This leads to an amusing bit where we meet Bowman. He's the town bully who is still mad at Robert for stealing Marlene away from him. Apparently he's so macho that the town shipped him off to the USA during his wild years, but now he's back and ready to do some mischief. He owns the take-out place and slips a dead rat into our bunch's lunch for a mild gross-out scene.

When night falls, all heck breaks loose. We find out that the town is gripped by a rage virus. Pretty soon a bunch of slobbering maniacs attack the Bergen place and a siege ensues. Here the movie picks up its pace and the gore factor comes into play. You get some pretty intense scenes of carnage that involve killing the infected in all kinds of ways, which include shooting, sledge hammering and even some flame throwing.

By the end, most of the characters are dead and the military shows up to lead people to a quarantine area, but keep watching the skies, folks, because that looks like a huge flock of crows following the wagon train.

Technically, this movie has a lot going on. It's well shot and the special effects are top notch. If you just want to get your zombie on, then there are certainly worse ways to spend an evening.

Best line: "What I can say, however, is that I have nothing else to say."

South Floyd falls short at Paintsville

Turner leads Raiders in scoring, rebounding

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

PAINTSVILLE – South Floyd hooked back up with longtime rival Paintsville on the road Tuesday night. In a rematch of a 15th Region All "A" Classic opening round matchup, Paintsville edged the Raiders again. The Tigers, winners over South Floyd in the small school regional tournament last month, overcame a slow start en route to their latest win. Paintsville used multiple scoring runs in each of the last two quarters to defeat visiting South Floyd 68-65.

South Floyd suffered a setback after defeating 58th District/Floyd County Conference rival Prestonsburg on Wednesday, Jan. 27.

Josh Green led Paintsville, scoring a team-high 17 points for the Tigers. Green had two teammates join him in double figures. David Slone scored 16 points and Trevor Tiller tossed in 12 for host Paintsville.

South Floyd was the dominant team in the first half, outscoring Paintsville 17-9 in the opening quarter and carrying a 30-23 lead into halftime.

Claiming momentum in the second half, Paintsville outscored South Floyd 21-16 in the third quarter. The Tigers scored 24 points in the final eight minutes.

Shannon Turner paced South Floyd, scoring a game-high 25 points and claiming seven rebounds. Dakota Newsome followed

Notes for Super Bowl weekend

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Is there a better way to kick off Super Bowl weekend better than some good solid notes?

– Since our last column one of the true good guys in the NFL has retired.

I'm sure you've all grown tired of all the talk about Kurt Warner you've seen, heard and read this week, but give me just a paragraph or two if you don't mind. I'm sure this is nothing new to you, but it's a story worth retelling.

Kurt is well known as a Christian and does some unbelievable work, but in my estimation one of the finest things he does happens quietly in nearly every restaurant in which he and his family dines. Warner will choose one table, often picked by one of his children, and when it comes time to pay the bill, will pay not only his but also that of the family they chose.

They will then leave, not making a scene or a spectacle, without going over and saying a word or ever meeting the people in question. When the table they choose PRESTONSBURG – Exactly one week after dropping a road game to 58th District/Floyd County Conference foe South Floyd, Prestonsburg returned to the win column Wednesday night. The Lady Blackcats landed in the win column for the fourth time in five attempts, defeating visiting Jenkins 64-51.

All four scorers reached double figures as the Lady Blackcats prevailed in the non-district game.

Host Prestonsburg owned a single-digit lead over Jenkins in each of the first three quarters before pulling away in the final period.

Prestonsburg led 14-11 when the first quarter ended. The game was even closer at halftime as Prestonsburg carried a 34-29 lead into the intermission.

The Lady Blackcats managed to add to their lead in the second half. Prestonsburg used a 15-8 run in the fourth quarter to pull away for the win.

Kristian Waugh led Prestonsburg with 21 points. Tiffany Wertz and Cassie Burchett followed Waugh in the Prestonsburg scoring column, chipping in 15 points apiece. Alexis DeRossett added 13 points for the Lady Blackcats (6-14).

Kayla Stambaugh claimed the team-high scoring nod for Jenkins, pushing in 16 points. Mercedes Boggs, an eighth-grade guard, added 11 points for the Lady Cavaliers (3-14).

Prestonsburg is set to host South Floyd tonight in a 58th District/Floyd County Conference matchup as part of boys-girls basketball double-header. Tip-off for the girls' basketball game is slated for 6 p.m.

Allen Central senior Chris Stumbo managed to get a shot off in heavy traffic against South Floyd.

Raiders turn down AC

HI HAT – South Floyd claimed its fourth win of the season Wednesday night, fending off visiting Allen Central 59-54 in a 58th District/Floyd County Conference boys' basketball game at Raider Arena. The host Raiders carried a 10-point lead into halftime and overcome a third quarter shooting slump to get past Allen Central.

Dakota Hall led South Floyd with 20 points, seven rebounds, three assists and three steals. Hall was one of three South Floyd players to reach double figures in the scoring column. Shannon Turner (12 points, seven rebounds) and Brandon Marson (12 points, three rebounds) were other leaders for the Raiders.

South Floyd owned a lead over Allen Central at the end of each quarter. The Raiders edged Allen Central 15-13 in the opening period. Enjoying its best offensive spurt of the game and capitalizing on a cold-shooting opposing team, South Floyd outscored the Rebels 21-11 in the second quarter to lead 36-24 at halftime.

Allen Central, which slipped back into the loss column following a win over June Buchanan last week, crept back into the game in the second half. The Rebels outscored South Floyd 16-6 in the third quarter to keep the game within reach. Allen Central, however, couldn't outlast South Floyd in the end. The Rebels dropped their first of back-to-back-to-back district/conference games. Allen Central is scheduled to host Betsy Layne tonight and visit Prestonsburg on Tuesday.

Seven different players provided scoring for the host team. Dakota Newsome and Tommy Joe Hall chipped in six points apiece for the Raiders. Corey Paige pushed in two points and Luke Rhea connected on a free throw attempt for the South Floyd boys.

South Floyd (4-15), which won for the second time in three games over the course of one week, returned to the court on Thursday night. The Raiders were entertaining Prestonsburg in another key district/conference contest that ended too late to make this edition.

Justin Jackson led Allen Central (5-12) with 20 points. Chris Stumbo followed Jackson closely in the Allen Central scoring column, contributing 19 points.

Other scorers for Allen Central were Seth Jarrell (five points), Austin Woods (four points), Micah Harlow (three points) and Braxton Tackett (three points).

Senior guard Justin Jackson (12) led Allen Central with 20 points in Wednesday's district game versus South Floyd.

Late free throws lift Betsy Layne over Sheldon Clark

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

INEZ – Casey Adkins connected on a pair of free throws with 4.8 seconds remaining in overtime to lift Betsy Layne over host Sheldon Clark 74-73 Tuesday night.

Bryce Adkins paced Betsy Layne offensively, scoring a game-high 20 points. Jordan Newman and junior Nathan Martin netted 18 points apiece for the Bobcats, which claimed their third straight win.

Casey Adkins, a junior forward/center, finished with 11 points in the emotional win.

The Bobcats were able to survive in a non-district game that resembled a tournament contest as both teams played hard and pursued the win. Multiple lead changes and runs kept the game interesting.

Betsy Layne built an early lead, outscoring Sheldon Clark 17-10 in the opening quarter. The Bobcats toted a slim 31-29 lead into halftime before Sheldon Clark moved out in front in the second half.

Sheldon Clark led 54-53 when the third quarter concluded. Betsy Layne, however, persevered and pushed the game into an extra period after trailing in the fourth quarter.

The Bobcats shot 43.5 percent (27-of-62) from the field. Betsy Layne was 15-for-21 from the free throw line in the road game.

Stephen Johnson scored three points while Colt Stumbo and Derek Tackett contributed two apiece for the Bobcats.

Martin led Betsy Layne on the glass, securing eight rebounds. Bryce Adkins was another leader on the boards, hauling in seven rebounds for the Bobcats. Casey Adkins and Newman collected six rebounds apiece for Betsy Layne (11-6) in the victory.

Tyler Lafferty led the way for Sheldon Clark (7-10), scoring a game-high 24 points. Sophomore guard BJ Moore, one of the state's leading scorers, added 22 points for the Cardinals.

Curtis Whitt chipped in with 15 points for Sheldon Clark in the setback.

Betsy Layne is slated to visit Allen Central tonight.

MSU enters agreement with Wazoo Sports Television

Intermountain Cable carries regional sports network

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — Morehead State University athletics has entered into an agreement with Wazoo Sports Television to broadcast 13 Eagle home athletic events during the 2009-10 season MSU Athletic Director Brian Hutchinson announced Tuesday.

"This agreement allows us to showcase our programs and our student-athletes across the Commonwealth of Kentucky," Hutchinson said. "Our alumni, fans and family of our student-athletes will have opportunities to watch Eagle athletics on television. This is a major part of our efforts to increase our visibility, both statewide and regionally."

The schedule includes 10 basketball games, one football game, and baseball and softball games. The basketball lineup has several marquee matchups, from Kentucky and OVC rival Eastern Kentucky for the women's basketball team, to ECU and OVC co-preseason favorite Murray State for the men's basketball teams. The November portion of the agreement was completed as a successful test of the partnership and included the first television football game from Jayne Stadium in recent years.

"We are thrilled about our relationship with Morehead State University and even more excited about the unprecedented exposure we can help bring to the athletics department as a whole and to the student athletes specifically," said Doc Carpenter, President of Wazoo Sports, Inc. "It is an exciting relationship and we are looking forward to seeing how it develops and matures. We are very pleased to be working with Morehead State."

Wazoo Sports, Inc. is a Regional Sports Network that delivers original Kentucky sports programming twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, including LIVE broadcasts of high school, NCAA, NAIA and youth sports on television and over the Internet. Wazoo Sports has aired over 325 live games online since December 2007 and has broadcast 37 games on television including NBC, ABC and FOX affiliates during the 2008-2009 basketball season.

The schedule includes: Nov. 14 — Football vs. San Diego 1 p.m.; Nov. 17 — Women's Basketball vs. Kentucky, 7 p.m.; Nov. 29 — Men's Basketball vs. Kent State, 7 p.m.; Dec. 13 — Women's Basketball vs. Detroit, 2 p.m.; Jan. 4 — Women's Basketball vs. Tennessee State, 5 p.m.; Jan. 16 — Women's Basketball vs. Eastern Illinois, 2 p.m.; Jan. 19 — Men's Basketball vs. SIU-Edwardsville, 7 p.m.; Feb. 6 Men's Basketball vs. Tennessee Tech, 8 p.m.; Feb. 17 — Men's Basketball vs. Eastern Kentucky, 7 p.m.; Feb. 20 — Women's Basketball vs. Eastern Kentucky, TBD; Feb. 25 — Men's Basketball vs. Murray State, 8 p.m.; April 3 — Softball vs. Jacksonville State, TBD; April 18 — Baseball vs. Eastern Kentucky, 1 p.m.

EKU football program adds 21 signees

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RICHMOND — Eastern Kentucky University head football coach Dean Hood announced Wednesday that 21 student-athletes will join the Colonel program beginning this spring and next fall. Eight of those student-athletes come from the Commonwealth of Kentucky while six other student-athletes joined the ECU program this past January. The class includes six offensive linemen, three running backs, three defensive backs, two quarterbacks, two linebackers, two defensive linemen, one kicker, one tight end and one long snapper.

"Every one of these players can be productive for us and help us in our goal to win a championship," Hood said. "We recruited this year just like we have in the past — we started close to campus and worked our way out. This was a really good year for football in Kentucky and we're thrilled to get eight players from the Commonwealth."

The eight incoming players from Kentucky are kicker Austin Delpont (Hazard High), defensive lineman Allan Fugate (Hazard High), linebacker Tyrelle Johnson (Henry Clay High), offensive lineman Dylan Kupper (Trinity High), quarterback Jacob Russell (Anderson County High), running back Eric Shaw (Lafayette High), running back Caleb Watkins (Corbin High), and offensive lineman Andrew Wolter (Henry Clay High).

Delpont was a first team all-state kicker who was rated the ninth best kicker in the nation by www.prokicker.com. Fugate, a high school teammate of Delpont, was the district player of the year and named first team all-state by the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Four of the six mid-year additions to the Colonel roster are offensive linemen.

"We felt our biggest area of immediate concern was at the offensive line position," Hood said. "We wanted to get some experience at that position and we felt we were able to accomplish that goal with our mid-year additions. We also thought we needed to get stronger at the running back position. Two of our three running back signees could play at other positions as well. As for quarterback, we brought in two players with different styles, but they were the top-two rated quarterbacks on our board."

The ECU football team concluded the 2009 season 5-6 overall and 5-3 in the OVC, finishing second in the league.

Lady Raiders rout Allen Central

by STEVE LEMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

HI HAT — The South Floyd Lady Raiders claimed their third straight win and completed a regular-season sweep of Allen Central Wednesday evening. High-scoring South Floyd defeated visiting Allen Central 82-57 at Raider Arena.

Gabby Bailey led South Floyd to the win, registering a double-double of 24 points and 10 rebounds. Bailey was one of four South Floyd scorers to reach double figures. Kayla Hall hit four three-pointers and added 17 points for the Lady Raiders.

Ashley Castle was another double-double performer for South Floyd, scoring 11 points and dishing out 10 assists.

Chelsie Tuttle chipped in 10 points for South Floyd in the victory.

South Floyd (9-7) was hard to stop on the offensive end, shooting 58.2 percent (32-of-55) from the field. The Lady Raiders turned in a similar performance percentage-wise from three-point range, draining seven-of-12 attempts (58.3 percent).

South Floyd took an early lead and never faltered. The Lady Raiders knocked down a pair of three-pointers in each of the first three quarters.

South Floyd more than doubled up Allen Central in the opening quarter, outscoring the Lady Rebels 21-10. The Lady Raiders carried a commanding 48-23 lead into halftime and led 67-43 through three quarters.

Eight different South Floyd players dented the scoring column. Andrea Conn contributed eight points and Kiana Hall added six for the Lady Raiders. Joslyn Isaac and Janel Brown rounded out the South Floyd scoring, netting four and two points, respectively.

Sarah Rife led Allen Central (3-15) with 23 points. Logan Cline followed with 11 points for the Lady Rebels. Ericka Moore netted nine points, Sarah Kinney tossed in seven, Hannah MacElhose scored three, Jaimie Mullins added two and Bridget Slone connected on a free throw for the Lady Rebels.

Falls

Turner in the South Floyd scoring order. Newsome added 17 points and five rebounds for the Raiders. He shot over 40 percent from three-point range, knocking down three-of-seven three-pointers.

Brandon Marson scored nine points and dished out a team-high seven assists for the Raiders in the setback.

South Floyd shot 50 percent (24-of-48) from the field in the loss. The Raiders were six-of-19 from beyond the arc. South Floyd converted on 11-of-13 free throw attempts.

is ready to leave, then and only then are they told by the restaurant staff that their bill has been paid in full.

There's been a lot of debate this week about whether Warner should be in the hall of fame someday. I hope he makes it. And if his numbers land him on the bubble, I'll say the same of him as I do for baseball's Dale Murphy. If we're going to hold it against all the jerks and cheaters out there, why not give a truly decent man the nudge he needs to get him over the top?

That said, it's looking more and more as if Murphy, baseball's best player in the 1980s, will never make it to Cooperstown.

— Congratulations are in order for the Shelby Valley Wildcats, who repeated their All "A" Classic state championship on Sunday.

While all the praise gets heaped on Elisha Justice and his talented teammates, says here it's time for some of the credit to go to their amazing coaches. Jason Booher clearly knows how to stir a ship, and I don't know anyone who knows the sport like Greg Newsome. And those guys clearly have some more-than-capable assistance there.

So while I'm completely positive Booher and Company are thrilled with where the praise lands, let's not forget their role in this endeavor. After all, Pike County now owns two state basketball titles, and those guys have led teams to both of them.

— Remember earlier in basketball season when I criticized ESPN's Jimmy Dykes for his obvious man-crush on John Wall? Well, during Tuesday's broadcast of the Ole Miss game, it reared its ugly head again, but with a different object for his affection.

Dykes could not shut up about talented freshman Demarcus Cousins. I remember the night Kentucky opened with Morehead State I told my family that Wall was special but I thought Cousins was the real talent of the vaunted freshman class. He's a beast on the inside when he wants to be.

The final clause of the last sentence — when he wants to be — is all we need to know about Cousins and how ready he is for the NBA. He needs to stay put and continue to grow, ala Patrick Patterson, and he'll be a rich young man before he knows it.

But Dykes needs to back off. Every time I watch an SEC game on the Worldwide Leader I cannot believe a network that does so much right could choose Dykes over Ashland native Larry Conley for the coveted lead analyst position.

— Tuesday's game was odd to watch. It never felt close, and I never thought Kentucky was in any danger of losing. But how it didn't wind up a 30-point game is beyond me. The Cats just couldn't hold onto the ball and did more to keep the Rebels in the game than either they or their coaching staff could muster.

These Cats are obviously something special and I'm glad they're winning and not on the NCAA bubble again this year, but if they're going to live up to their ranking and be a Final Four threat, they have to make better decisions.

— That said, forget Wall and Cousins and all the rest. Eric Bledsoe made the greatest single play of the season on Tuesday when he converted the tipped lob by adjusting, mid-flight, getting his hands on the ball and flipping it off the glass on the reverse side.

Simply unbelievable. — Speaking of bubble teams, I'd really hate it if North Carolina, Louisville and UConn all missed the NCAA tournament this year.

Just don't think I could bear to watch, to be honest with you.

— OK, we're two days away from the Super Bowl. Time for my prediction sure to go wrong.

The talk all week has been about how much trouble the Colts could be in if defensive stud Dwight Freeney can't play. And while it will surely hurt their cause, somehow the fact that the Colts are 9-3 in games he misses has been swept under the rug.

I love the Saints, love their story, love their cause. It's a great storyline, no doubt about it. And this is an exciting, fun team to watch. It's hard not to root for them and their talented quarterback.

But the Colts are the best team in football, and as the story goes, in the big game, go with the team that has the best player. I grew up watching — and mostly rooting against — Joe Montana, but I've always believed the four-time Super Bowl champ to be the best quarterback I've ever seen.

Not anymore. That title now belongs to Peyton Manning. He's the best player on the field, and if he wasn't going to retire a billionaire, he would someday be the greatest offensive coordinator the game has ever known.

Peyton's the best. Colts 37, Saints 23.
