PIKEVILLE — A Toler Creek inmate at the U.S. Sandy Detention in Martin County was indicted on charges of assault on a special agent in charge of last year.

Marshall DeWayne Williams was indicted this past week and later enter a plea of not guilty to two count federal indictment that states he "forcibly assault, resist, oppose, impede, intimidate and interfere with a U.S. Secret Service Special Agent while the agent was engaged in unspecified official duties at prison."

It is alleged that Williams had in his possession a shank, a object often created from items such as toothbrushes that are fashioned into makeshift knives within the prison system on Aug. 20, 2009.

The two counts that constitute Williams's indictment are that of assault and possessing the shank, considered as contraband within the prison system.

In total, Williams could see six years added to his existing prison term and face up to $350,000 in fines, along with four years of supervised release.

Irick indicted on drug charges

PIKEVILLE — A Toler Creek inmate was arrested in 2007 in one of the largest drug busts in Floyd County history at that time has now been indicted in federal court in Pikeville on drug related charges. Julian Irick Jr., 49, formerly of Toler Creek, was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of distributing a variety of prescription drugs and also of money laundering in connection to the alleged drug operation.

Irick was indicted, according to documents filed last week in U.S. District Court in Pikeville, for selling hydrocodone between June 13, 2009, and Feb. 26, 2010, in Pike County.

A second count alleges that Irick sold Xanax between the same dates.

In the third and final count of the indictment, Irick will face a count of money laundering that federal prosecutors say was directly related to his alleged drug operation.

The indictment claims that Irick used a safe deposit box at the Community Trust Bank in Pikeville to make cash deposits from drug sales.

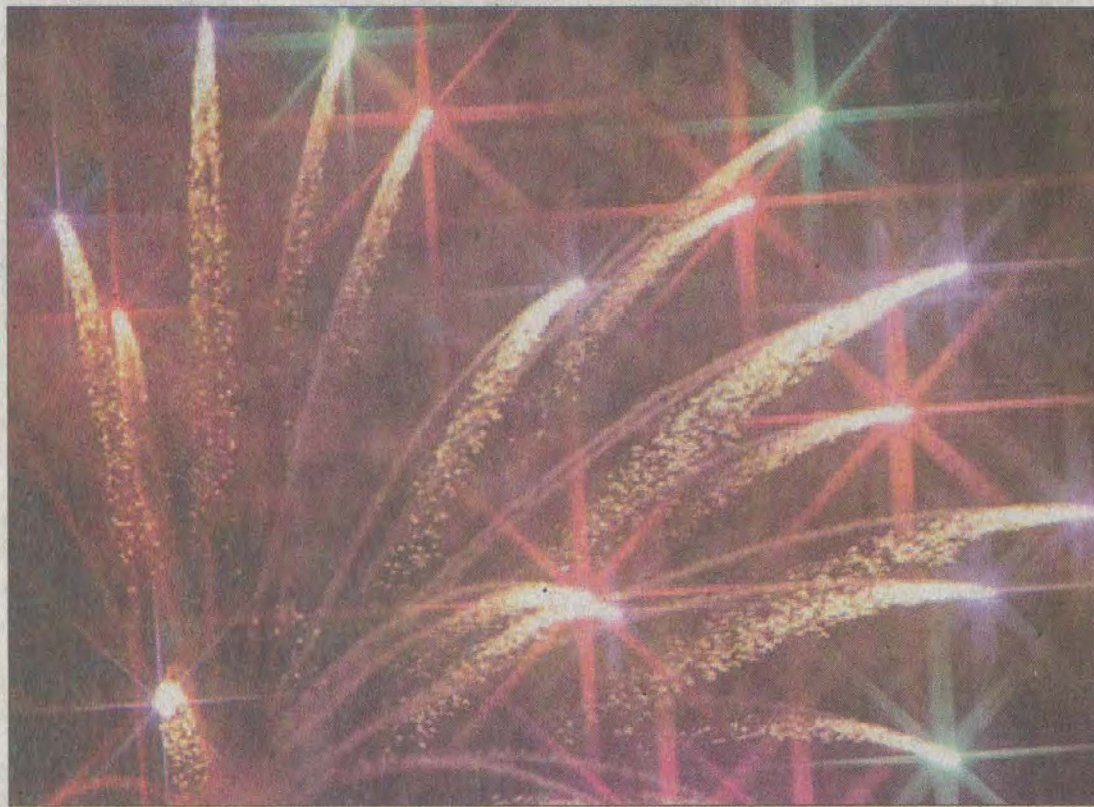

In the forfeiture sections of the indictment, federal officials are asking that Irick hand over the contents of those safety deposit boxes, in an amount of $127,500, and an additional $1,672 found at his home during a search of the residence.

Floyd County Sheriff's deputies descended on Irick's Toler Creek home in December 2007, confiscating nearly 300 Oxycontin pills, 50 hydrocodone pills and several thousands dollars in cash. The pills

Patton retires from LINKS; Davis new head

by SHELDON COMPTON

MARTIN — Eddie Patton, the long-time director of Low Income Housing Coalition of East Kentucky (LINKS) has retired, making way for a Floyd County resident who is no stranger to the administrative world.

The corporation's board of directors hired Brett Davis to fill Patton's spot as executive director, with board chair John Rosenberg making the official announcement on July 1.

"We are excited to have Brett as our new director," Rosenberg said, also saying he wished the best to Patton in the future. Rosenberg said Patton's commitment to LINKS in the past has been unwavering. "We know that under his leadership, LINKS will continue to grow and make home ownership possible in the years to come for even more of our low income citizens in the Big Sandy region."

LINKS staff and volunteers have built more than 60 homes for very low-income residents across the Big Sandy region as well as making home repairs and building ramps for more than 500 residents.

Davis, a former employee of the senior management staff at Christian Appalachian Project (CAP) prior to taking on the role left following Patton's retirement, also served two terms as Floyd County Deputy Judge-Executive under former Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson.

Before taking on these two roles, Davis, a resident of Prestonsburg, ran a private law office from 1986 to 1996 before serving, beginning in 1997, as assistant commonwealth's attorney for Floyd County.

"I'm looking forward to getting started with this," Davis said shortly after the Coal to remain state's top fuel, lawmakers told

FRANKFORT — With fossil fuel expected to continue meeting most of Kentucky's energy needs in the future, state researchers haven't stopped finding the best way to use coal.

And one of the best ways, as testimony from University of Kentucky Center for Applied Energy Research Director Dr. Rodney Andrews indicates, is to make coal more efficient.

Some new coal technologies like chemical looping combustion engines "could be one of the future ... technologies that potentially has overall plant efficiency with carbon dioxide capture," Andrews told a meeting of the Kentucky General Assembly's Interim Joint Committee on Natural Resources and Environment Friday. The chemical looping gas turbines under certain conditions are nearly 50 percent efficient, said Andrews.

CAER is also working on carbon management strategies for existing electric power plants in the state, Andrews said, with a focus on "carbon capture" — cap-

Rash of crashes in work zones shows need for caution

FRANKFORT — Recent crashes that injured or endangered Kentucky Transportation Cabinet (KYTC) workers and contractors - and killed one motorist - point to the need for extreme caution when approaching highway work zones.

Most of the crashes occurred in the western Kentucky counties that constitute Department of Highways District 2, headquartered in Madisonville. Two work zone crashes occurred in District 2 in the past week, including one Tuesday that left a contractor employee in critical condition.

"In the months of April, May and June of this year, District 2 employees and our contractors have had numerous life threatening situations with traffic while they were doing their jobs repairing and expanding our roadway system," said Kevin McCleam, District 2 chief engineer. "Our highway workers are faced with a job environment every day that depends on motorists reading signs and following directions. Lives can be endangered by careless and distracted driving."

Acting Transportation Secretary Mike Hancock said drivers should always be focused on the road, but work zones especially require their undivided attention. "The key is to avoid distractions generally," Hancock said. "That's why we are convinced that Kentucky's new law prohibiting texting while driving will save lives."

Last year in Kentucky, nine people died and nearly 140 were injured in highway construction and maintenance work zones. The most recent figures available from the Federal Highway Administration show there were 720 work zone fatalities in 2008. Nationally, four of every five victims of a work zone crash is a motorist, not a highway worker.

Recent work zone crashes in Kentucky:

■ April 6 - Two KYTC employees were injured when their vehicle was struck from behind by a van near the Slaughters exit of the Breathitt-Pennyrile Parkway.

■ April 7 - A KYTC employee flagging traffic in a work zone on US 41 in Muhlenberg County was struck when one vehicle failed to slow for the work zone and crashed into another. The employee has not yet returned to work.

■ April 16 - A commercial vehicle struck a construction barricade on the US 60 Green River Bridge at Spottsville, in Henderson County. No workers on the bridge were injured, but the truck driver was charged with wanton endangerment, careless driving, disregarding a traffic control device and operating an over-sized vehicle in the work zone.

■ June 10 - A tractor-trailer blocked the US 60 Green River Bridge at Spottsville for more than two hours after attempting to pass through work zone restrictions and hitting a barrier wall. No injuries, but the driver was cited for failing to obey a traffic control device.

■ June 15 - Two construction workers replacing guardrail on the Audubon Parkway were injured when the driver of a box truck lost control and struck the contractors' vehicle.

■ June 18 - A motorist was killed in a two-vehicle crash within the work zone for the US 60 Bypass Extension project in Daviess County.

■ June 19 - A KYTC truck was struck by another vehicle on the Western Kentucky Parkway in Muhlenberg County while employees were assisting police with traffic control for an earlier crash.

■ June 22 - A KYTC employee checking on a

Safe driving a priority in work zones

Innovations over the years have filled cars and trucks with new features designed for safety. Seat belts and airbags are but a few items now in vehicles that drivers and passengers have come to expect and rely on.

But technology has also filled vehicles with the distractions that are now the cause of too many accidents around town and on the highway. Cell phones and radios compete for attention that should be focused on the road ahead and other vehicles around.

On a daily basis, wrecks around town on or the highway are attributed to driver distraction because of a phone call that supposedly couldn't wait or the search for a better song on the radio or a text message.

But there's no excuse for drivers to not commit their full attention when they are traveling at high speeds through a highway construction work zone. The workers that are building, repairing and expanding our highways are particularly vulnerable, as a string of recent incidents in western Kentucky has shown.

During a typical year, the 11-county area that makes up the local district of the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet sees one or two injuries to highway workers in the typically well-marked but potentially dangerous work zones. Within the last two months, eight separate accidents in work zones in District 2 have sent seven workers to the hospital.

Just Wednesday, a worker flagging traffic in a work zone on Kentucky 91 in Caldwell County was struck and seriously injured. Last year in Kentucky, nine people died and nearly 140 were injured in highway construction and maintenance work zones, according to the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

Among the reasons for these recent accidents in District 2 include drivers falling asleep and talking on the telephone, as well as some who said they didn't see the work zone signage or workers. Chances are these injuries could have been avoided if the drivers were more attentive and respectful of how vulnerable workers are in work zones.

Given the amount of road construction under way around Kentucky, it can be easy for the orange cones and signs of a highway construction zone to begin to blend into the background. It's tempting to put a push for making good time on the road ahead of the safety of those who are working to make that same road safer, smoother and more accessible.

But every driver should understand the responsibility that goes with getting behind the wheel and stepping on the gas, and the potentially catastrophic results that can come with shirking that responsibility. Most realize the increased fines and penalties that come with speeding or driving recklessly in a work zone, but their driving doesn't often reflect how important safe driving is to these workers.

It's easy to become distracted when behind the wheel given how much is competing for a driver's attention these days. That's why it's even more important for drivers to slow down, remain alert and drive responsibly, especially when driving in a work zone.

House week in review

by REP. HUBERT COLLINS

In less than 100 days, the Kentucky Horse Park will become the first non-European location to host the major international equine championships known as the FEI World Equestrian Games.

And in mid-June, state lawmakers on the Kentucky General Assembly's Interim Joint Committee on Economic Development and Tourism learned from event organizers how over 2,000 volunteers, over 300 temporary and permanent facilities, affordable $25 per person general admission tickets and competitors from as many 62 countries can make this Kentucky-based 2010 Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games (WEG) a worldwide success.

Only 59 countries submitted competition entries for the 2006 WEG held in Aachen, Germany, said WEG 2010 Foundation CEO Jamie Link.

"I think that says a lot about what we are attempting to do here," said Link, adding that nearly 1,000 athletes currently intend to participate in the 16-day event to be held Sept. 25-Oct. 10 at the Kentucky Horse Park.

Eight different equine sporting disciplines will compete at the Games, including seven Olympic equine events and the first-ever paralympic WEG event. Sen. Damon Thayer, R-Georgetown, who is the General Assembly's representative on the Governor's Advisory Commission for the World Equestrian Games, said the disciplines include the gymnastic competition known as Vaulting, a western-style competition called Reining, Para Dressage, Dressage, Driving, Jumping, a Three-Day Event competition and a 100-mile Endurance race.

Other attractions at WEG will include a trade show, a Kentucky produce showcase called "Kentucky Experience" and the popular "Equine Village" which will showcase a variety of horse breeds and sport.

But while interest in competing in the Games is strong, Link said ticket sales are not as strong as organizers would prefer. People are waiting longer than expected to buy tickets, including Europeans who are expected to have the strongest interest in the Games. Link said once the soccer World Cup is over, he and other event organizers are told the Europeans will turn their attention to their "second favorite sport"—horsemanship.

Link said the 2010 WEG is expected to have an estimated $167 million financial impact, although the expansion of the Horse Park for the Games could have a more lasting one. According to Thayer, improvements made to the Horse Park for WEG will allow the state to attract other large competitions that have traditionally been better accommodated at large venues in places like Tulsa and Indianapolis.

Another part of the 2010 WEG legacy, said Link, could be the working relationships Kentucky has built with nations in Europe. Link said organizers of the 2010 event have worked with representatives of the 2014 WEG to be held in Normandy, France and have agreed to help them in any way necessary with their event.

Link told lawmakers that WEG Kentucky has pledged to the French that folks here will share every bit of information they can about how the Kentucky Games were organized, leaving what Link hopes will be good, lasting impression around the globe.

"So if that can be part of our legacy to the world, so be it," he said.

July 7 session to address ARC mini-grants

Local officials interested in learning more about funding support for community strategic planning available from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) are invited to attend an informational session on Wednesday, July 7, at Kentucky River Area Development District in Hazard.

The meeting, set for 3 p.m., will provide information about ARC mini-grant opportunities currently available through The Center's Developing and Implementing Community Strategies Program for eligible cities and counties across Southern and Eastern Kentucky.

Six communities and organizations were awarded $54,800 in ARC mini-grants to advance strategic planning efforts in the region during the first cycle of federal grant funding announced earlier this year by U.S. Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers and Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of The Center.

The application period for the second cycle of funding will be open through July 19, and grants are expected to be awarded in September.

In 2010, The Center will award $145,000 in ARC mini-grant funding to communities to encourage and support improved community strategic planning throughout the region.

Recipients of the latest round of ARC grant funding included Tri-Cities Heritage Development in Harlan County; Letcher County Convention and Tourism Commission; City of Prestonsburg; Wayne County Fiscal Court; City of Stanford; and Harlan County Fiscal Court.

Funds can be used for either the successful creation of a strategic plan or the implementation of priority community development projects identified in existing strategic plans.

Individual project awards will range from $5,000 up to a maximum of $10,000. All projects must be completed within a six-month period.

The Center is encouraging the use of technology solutions in the implementation and execution of these plans and projects.

Kentucky River Area Development District is located at 917 Perry Park Road in Hazard.

For more information about the informational session, contact Patti Simpson at The Center for Rural Development, 606-677-6000, or Amy Stroud, community liaison and sales associate for The Center, at 606-875-4565.

Mr. and Mrs. James Meade have the honor of announcing the marriage of their daughter, Brita Sha Meade to Timothy Michael Brigmon. The couple was joined in marriage in a private ceremony in June in Key West, Florida.

Save the date and please join them for a reception celebrating their union on July 10th at 7:00 p.m. at The Hazard Hotel/Reno's in Hazard, KY.

1-in-5 Ky. children are food insecure

LEXINGTON — More than 20 percent of children in Kentucky are experiencing food insecurity, according to new research released today by Feeding America and funded by the ConAgra Foods Foundation, Feeding America's Leadership Partner in the Fight to End Child Hunger.

Child Food Insecurity in the United States: 2006-2008 reveals more than 201,000 Kentucky children are food insecure, a number which ranks 16th nationally.

"The numbers from this report are startling to many," said Marian Guinn, the food bank's chief executive officer. "Sadly, though, this news comes as no surprise to the countless people working in our industry, including thousands of volunteers in our service area working with our nonprofit partner agencies. We know that more than 41% of client households served by our food bank include a child. In a country as rich as America, it is astounding that a child could go to bed at night hungry."

The study also reveals regional data on food insecurity for children under the age of 5. In the South, more than one in five children or nearly 22 percent of young children are food insecure - the highest rate in the nation. The Western region of the country has the second highest rate of young child food insecurity at nearly one in five, or 19.6 percent. The Midwest has a rate of more than one in six, or 18.6 percent; and the Northeast has a rate of nearly one in seven, or 13.7 percent.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) releases an annual report on the state of food insecurity in the United States, which focuses on the general population in each state. This new report delves deeper into the data in order to bring the child hunger statistics to the forefront.

While the recent 2009 USDA food insecurity report revealed that nationally, nearly one in four children is food insecure, determining detailed, state-level estimates on child food

Each day I transport children to and from their home to school. I have a chance to get to know them as we travel to and from their homes each day. Food at a three-year average to increase accuracy and reliability. Though high, these estimates are expected to rise over the coming years as the full impact of the economic downturn is taken into account.

Through the support of the ConAgra Foods Foundation, Feeding America contracted nationally-recognized researcher John Cook, Ph.D. to analyze the USDA's food insecurity raw data in order to provide state-level child food insecurity estimates.

"Research over the past 12 years shows conclusively that food insecurity and hunger are serious threats to children's health, growth and development, and may even harm young children's brain architecture," Cook said.

"This report demonstrates the crisis that our country continues to face at the local level," said Vicki Escarra, President and CEO of Feeding America. "The fight against hunger is more important than ever. We thank our longtime partners at the ConAgra Foods Foundation for their ongoing support in the fight against child hunger and their commitment to funding critical research, such as this study by Dr. Cook. The data underscores the critical importance of passing the new Child Nutrition Reauthorization Act. We are committed to putting an end to child hunger."

The ConAgra Foods Foundation has been a dedicated partner of Feeding America for more than 15 years, providing both food and funds in the fight against hunger. ConAgra Foods recently committed $10 million over five years to fight child hunger with Feeding America. This is the largest donation in Feeding America's history specifically designated to support the fight against child hunger.

"We're dedicated to helping solve childhood hunger, but to do so we must first understand the need. That's why the ConAgra Foods Foundation funded this study with Feeding America and Dr. Cook," said Kori Reed, Executive Director, ConAgra Foods Foundation. "Knowing where children are most in need of our support will allow us to better direct our funding and resources to provide the most relief. It will also bring all of us one step closer to ending child hunger in America."

The full report, including a complete list of all 50 states, is available at <http://feedingamerica.org/our-network/the-studies/child-food-insecurity.aspx>.

Receive Social Security or SSI? Sign up for direct deposit

by JENNIFER HOPKINS SERVICE REPRESENTATIVE
SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Did you know that the "All-Electronic Treasury Initiative" has been launched by the U.S. Treasury Department? This program encourages everyone receiving a government check to use some form of electronic payment. This includes Social Security and SSI checks. Beginning March 2011, all new beneficiaries may be required to be paid by some form of direct deposit. Paper checks may soon be eliminated. Sign up today!

To some people, direct deposit seems like a new way of doing things. But did you know direct deposit has been in use for more than 25 years, and it has a proven track record of success? That's because it is so fast and convenient. Direct deposit gets your benefits to you faster and eliminates the need to take a paper check to the bank and stand in line to get your check cashed.

Millions of taxpayers use direct deposit for a variety of reason. Some use it to get their income tax returns faster. Even more get their paychecks and/or benefit checks by direct deposit.

Are you on the fence about direct deposit? Consider this.

Direct Deposit gives you peace of mind. According to the National Automated Clearing House Association, once a direct deposit account is established, a payment can never be lost. The funds are transferred electronically and can always be traced. There's no worry about stolen, lost or misdirected payments. No matter where you are, your payment is in the bank.

Direct deposit is, hands down, the safest, quickest and most convenient way for people to receive their payments and we encourage that everyone receiving Social Security or SSI benefits enroll today. It is expected that by the year 2013, paper checks will be eliminated and all Social Security and SSI recipients will receive their payments by direct deposit.

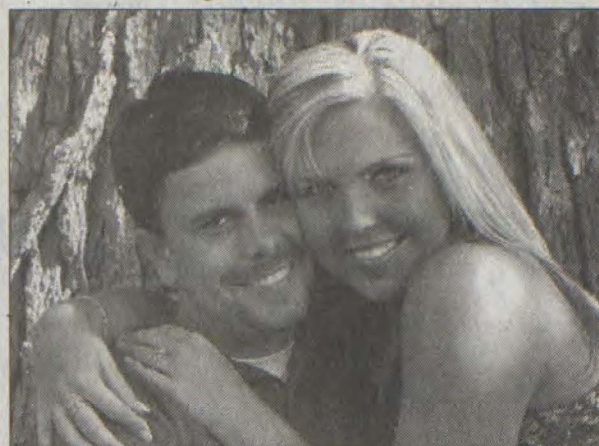

If you don't already have direct deposit for your Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits, it's easy to sign up. For more information about direct deposit of your Social Security or SSI benefits, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/deposit or call your local Social Security Office.

For more information about online services just call your local Social Security Office in Prestonsburg at (606) 886-8525. The office is located at 1897 Kentucky Route 321 in Prestonsburg KY. Representatives are available to answer questions.

And remember, we have representatives available to give presentations and speeches about Social Security Programs. Contact the office for more information.

The groom-elect is a 2003 graduate of the University of Kentucky, where he received a Bachelors of Science in Civil Engineering and is currently employed as a Transportation Engineer Supervisor with the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

The wedding will take place at 5:30 p.m., Saturday, July 10th, at Seco Freewill Baptist Church. A reception will immediately follow at the Raven Rock Golf Course at Jenkins, Kentucky.

turing carbon dioxide produced by the burning of coal. Other technologies being researched by CAER are the conversion of coal, natural gas or biomass to liquid fuel, and the reuse of ash left over when coal is burned. Also called fly ash, the residue is often used by the construction industry to make cement.

Committee co-chair Rep. Jim Gooch, D-Providence, commented on the state's number of aging power plants and how many older plants in other nations are being replaced with newer, cleaner-emitting plants.

"I don't know why we aren't wanting to go there," said Gooch.

Concerns with regulation of "new source" emissions, since the plant would be new, and expense are a couple reasons, said Andrews.

Realistically, Andrews said the state's energy policy should be a "mix" since many types of technology will be needed in the future, including renewable fuel like biomass. But he also said that coal — albeit cleaner coal — "has to remain our primary fuel."

The committee also received a research update from the Institute for Combustion Science and Environmental Technology (ICSET) located at Western Kentucky University before adjourning.

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

Summertime ... the grass is green, the birds are singing, the crickets are chirping and (so the rumor goes) the catfish are jumping. So is your favorite youngster out enjoying all the delights of Nature, or is he/she so tightly glued to some flickering screen that it would probably take some heavy-duty crowbars and a 50-gallon drum of solvent to pry them loose?

If the latter is true, I have some semi-good news for you.

I say "semi-good" because they'll still be glued to a screen, but at least they'll be looking at something that's educational as well as fun. It's called Sci4Kids (that's shorthand for "Science 4 Kids"), and it's the newly redesigned website of the Agricultural Research Service (ARS). It's online at <http://www.ars.usda.gov/is/kids>.

Aimed at youngsters in the 8- to 13-year-old range, Sci4Kids has been around since September 1998, and it's garnered lots of attention and praise over the years from educators who are looking for Internet content more worthwhile than just slaying another dragon or navigating another dungeon. It's all about educating kids about the importance of agriculture and science in their daily lives—not a bad thing if your youngster thinks milk, fruit and veggies "come from the grocery store."

The new Sci4Kids has been livened up with easier site navigation, vibrant graphics, interactive content, videos and animation. It also offers a "Teacher's Desk" loaded with classroom resources and activities designed to stimulate kids' learning about agricultural research, and even includes science fair projects (because it'll be "back to school" time before we know it).

Is your youngster into the engagingly gruesome? If so, check out "Images of Ag Research," which shows fire ants fleeing for their lives from dive-bombing phorid flies, or jars full of things so slimy and disgusting that I don't even want to look very closely (in other words, this should be right up any kid's alley!).

And if you're an adult homeowner, you probably will enjoy seeing termites scramble to get out of the way of insecticidal foam in the featured video on Sci4Kids' front page (the lead-in line is "A fungus-filled foam could help flush hungry termites out of hiding").

Among "Today's Specials" is a story called "Healthy Eats" that can help you and your youngsters navigate the fast-food world without too much bodily damage. And "Science Spotlight" offers an intriguing story about how ARS scientists are finding ways to produce high-priced ocean fish such as pompano in big tanks on land, which could be good news for ocean health (by avoiding overfishing of certain fish populations) and also could be very good news for the wallets of those of us who love seafood!

Is there an ulterior motive to all of this? Of course! We need to start thinking now about where we're going to get the scientists and engineers that this country will need in the coming years—and if we can implant an interest in science in today's youngsters, that boosts the chances they'll consider a science career as they get older.

That's what the "Cool Careers" button is all about. Your youngster can click on any picture that interests her or him—a dairy cow, strawberries that look as though they're growing down from the ceiling, icky green worms—and learn more about the kind of scientist who works with that object. Also, clicking on any picture on the "Cool Careers" page will take your youngster to another page that

Nine tips on the 10 percent tax on tanning services

Starting July 1, 2010, many businesses offering tanning services must collect a 10 percent excise tax on the tanning services they provide. This excise tax requirement is part of the Affordable Care Act that was enacted in March 2010.

Here are nine tips on the tanning excise tax that providers must collect.

■ Businesses providing ultraviolet tanning services must collect the 10 percent excise tax at the time the customer pays for the tanning services.

■ If the customer fails to pay the excise tax, the tanning service provider is liable for the tax.

■ The tax does not apply to phototherapy services performed by a licensed medical professional on his or her premises.

■ The tax does not apply to spray-on tanning services.

■ If a payment covers charges for tanning services along with other goods and services, the other goods and services may be excluded from the tax if they are separately stated and the charges do not exceed the fair market value for those other goods and services.

■ If the customer purchases bundled services and the charges are not separately stated, the tax applies to the portion of the payment that can be reasonably attributed to the indoor tanning services.

■ The tax does not have to be paid on membership fees for certain qualified physical fitness facilities that offer indoor tanning services as an incidental service to members without a separately identifiable fee.

■ Tanning service providers must report and pay the excise tax on a quarterly basis.

■ To pay the tax, businesses must file IRS Form 720, Quarterly Federal Excise Tax Return using an Employer Identification Number assigned by the IRS. Businesses that don't already have one can apply for an EIN online at IRS.gov.

Find more information about the excise tax on tanning services, IRS Form 720 and other tax provisions of the Affordable Care Act at IRS.gov.

RAISING AWARENESS

Hall spreads message about celiac disease

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

Big Sandy Singers Director Laura Ford Hall is on a mission, and this time it has nothing to do with the music department.

Hall was recently diagnosed with celiac disease, an auto-immune disease triggered by eating food containing gluten.

"In 2007, my mother lost a battle to a rare form a cancer called multiple myeloma. Her name was Janice Ford and she taught art at Pikeville College for 38 years. Shortly after, my husband, Brad Hall was diagnosed with follicular thyroid cancer," Hall said. "However, in all this turmoil, I felt myself getting sick. Thinking I was only depressed and anxious because of what I had been through, I did not pay much attention to my chronic fatigue or constant diarrhea I was developing, only believing I needed to get a hold on myself and push through it. However, my symptoms began to worsen."

In 2010, Hall went to the emergency room at Pikeville Medical Center due to the constant pain she was having. After a battery of tests and the assistance of her family doctor, she learned that she had celiac disease.

"I am a newly diagnosed patient," Hall said. "Having been diagnosed in early April, I have found that it is almost impossible for a celiac disease patient to eat out in a restaurant in eastern Kentucky, and I had been driving to Lexington every other week to grocery shop at health food stores."

While visiting Lexington and other large cities in Kentucky, Hall noticed that most restaurants had gluten-free menu options and the restaurant waiters, chefs, and managers were educated on how to prepare gluten-free meals.

"I want to make a difference in the community that I love so much," Hall said. "If all celiac disease patients come together, we can bring awareness to grocers and restaura-teurs of the sheer number of patients who would eat in their restaurant or purchase items from their grocery stores, if the safe, gluten-free items were available."

In her quest to raise awareness, Hall spoke with Tim Collins, manager at the Pikeville Food City.

"We want to do whatever we can to help those patients who are gluten intolerant," Collins told Hall.

Along with working with local grocery stores and restaurants, Hall has also started a support group for patients with celiac disease or wheat allergies.

"When I have moments that I feel down about my condition, I remember that it is the only known disease completely manageable by diet," Hall said.

For more information on the Eastern Kentucky Celiac and Gluten Free Support Group, contact Laura Ford Hall by sending an email to eastkyceliacs@gmail.com or by calling (606) 424-2498.

Beaver Creek 15-16s claim district title

8-4 win over Knott County sends BC to State Tournament

by JAMIE HOWELL
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

PRESTONSBURG – The third time proved to be the charm for Beaver Creek Friday evening. After splitting two games in a pair of prior meetings in the 15-16-Year-Olds District Seven Tournament, Beaver Creek was looking to earn a deciding game three win and a trip to the State Tournament. Beaver Creek did just that, defeating Knott County 8-4. Outstanding pitching from hurler Austin Cook held Knott County scoreless through six innings of play before the team from Hindman came through with four runs in the top half of the seventh.

Beaver Creek got on the board in the bottom half of the second inning. Tyler Cole and Junior Handshoe came through with an RBI each to put Beaver Creek in front 2-0 heading into the third inning. Neither team could produce much offense in the third inning as the score remained 2-0.

Beaver Creek went on to blow the game open in the fourth inning. Dakota Wilson reached on an error, followed by a sharp single from Austin Barnett. A base hit from Tyler Cole allowed Wilson to score and pushed Beaver Creek ahead 3-0. Austin Prater delivered a triple to plate Barnett and Cole, lifting Beaver Creek to a 5-0 lead at the end of the fourth inning.

Josh Handshoe and Cameron Hamilton both collected hits in a three-run fifth inning for the Beaver Creek team. Knott County pitching walked in two Beaver Creek runs in the fifth inning. Beaver Creek led 8-0 after five innings and would never look back. Knott County came up with four runs in the seventh inning, but it was too late as Beaver Creek came away with an 8-4 win and the 2010 District Seven title.

The Beaver Creek 15-16-Year-Olds All-Star team is made up of the following players: Tyler Cole, Junior Handshoe, Austin Prater, Gage Parsons, Josh Handshoe, Austin Cook, Cameron Hamilton, Dakota Wilson, Austin Barnett and Daniel Belcher. Coaches are Neil Allen and Brian Handshoe.

Kinzer posts two third-place finishes

Floyd driver races at Wythe, 201

TIMES STAFF REPORT

ALLEN – Brandon Kinzer and his No. 18 Dirt Late Model team trekked to the Wythe Raceway in Rural Retreat, Virginia and the 201 Speedway in Sitka over the Fourth of July holiday weekend. On Friday night, the Southern All Stars Dirt Racing Series (SAS) rolled into Wythe for the first time for $5,000-to-win feature race. Kinzer qualified fifth-quickest in SAS time trials, which allowed him to start from the inside of the third row in the 50-lap main event. The Allen-based driver had a fast racecar from the outset and moved up two positions en route to a solid third-place effort behind race winner Chris Madden and runner-up Chris Wall.

The action quickly turned to 201 Speedway on Saturday evening for a $3,000-to-win unsanctioned race. Kinzer laid down the quickest lap during qualifying and later won his heat race. After leading the first nine circuits of the A-Main, Kinzer crossed underneath the checkered flag in the third spot behind only winner Jackie Boggs and runner-up Chris Combs.

NASCAR Sprint Cup Series:

Harvick wins wild Daytona race

by TONY FABRIZIO TAMPA TRIBUNE (MCT)

DAYTONA BEACH - Kevin Harvick won the Coke Zero 400 early Sunday morning, and it was beginning to look like the Zero stood for how many cars would be left at the finish.

The 2007 Daytona 500 champion avoided a massive fiery pileup with 12 laps to go and another crash that necessitated a green-white-checked overtime to beat Kasey Kahne in a race that ended at almost 1 a.m. because of a rain-delayed start and red flag.

Jeff Gordon finished third and Dale Earnhardt Jr. fourth one night after driving a No. 3 Chevy carrying one of his late father's famous paint schemes to victory in Daytona's Nationwide Series race. Jeff Burton, Harvick's other teammate, was fifth.

"This has been a great place for us," said Harvick, who also won at Talladega in April and stretched his points lead to 212 points over Gordon. "Daytona has been one of those magical places for us ever since we started coming here."

The extra laps became necessary because Sam Hornish Jr., who ran in the top five much of the night, collected Kurt Busch and Elliott Sadler as the leaders were coming to the white flag. Busch still managed to finish seventh.

"I just ran out of room," Hornish said. "Everybody is shuffling around at the end of the race, trying to get the best run they can. Kurt got a little loose in front of me, and I tried to fill in on the bottom, and there was just wasn't enough room at the exit of the turn."

Said Kahne of the finish: "Every time I looked up it seemed like there was a crash going on the last 30 laps."

Nineteen cars, or nearly half of the original field, were involved in a chain-reaction crash on Lap 148 of the scheduled 160. It was difficult to say how it started.

Among those caught up in the melee: defending champion Tony Stewart, Jimmie Johnson and Mark Martin, whose No. 5 Chevy stayed on fire until tended to by safety workers.

NASCAR stopped the race for 20 minutes to clean up the debris.

"It was just plate racing," said Brad Keselowski, another of the drivers involved. "Everybody is racing hard. Somebody gets loose in front of the pack and all heck breaks loose."

Kyle Busch had one of the strongest cars but wound up 39th after a Lap 103 crash with Juan Pablo Montoya on the backstretch.

Busch won the 400 two years ago and led at the white flag last year before crashing across the windshield of Kahne. That occurred after Busch tried to block Stewart, got clipped and shot into the wall.

Saturday, Busch's left rear quarter-panel made contact with Montoya's right front, causing Busch's Toyota to veer sharply into the wall. He had led three times for a race-high 23 laps and overcome an unscheduled pit stop for a loose wheel.

"The replay shows I turned right across the nose of the 42 (Montoya), so apparently I wanted to wreck myself," Busch said.

"Some people don't understand what happens with these cars. With old tires like that... I'm barely hanging on as it is. When his air was on my quarter-panel, it just started turning my car down the straightaway, and I was going across the front of his nose."

Said Montoya, who wound up 22nd, "All year has been like that, so I'm not surprised."

AJ Allmendinger crashed earlier after swerving to avoid Busch and had a heated exchange with car owner Richard Petty in the garage area.

Daytona 500 winner Jamie McMurray quietly worked his way from the 17th starting spot into the top 10 around halfway through the race, only to get caught up in a four-car wreck triggered by David Ragan on lap 117.

"I don't know, I saw the No. 6 car (Ragan) get into the wall," McMurray said. "I honestly thought there might have been oil or something right there."

"It is unfortunate; it was a pretty big hit. I had a really good car there. It wasn't as good as I thought it was in practice, but on the longer runs, it seemed like our car was good."

Zephyrhills' David Reutimann wound up 11th after running as high as second and in the top five on the final restart.

"I'm more than disappointed; I'm heartbroken," Reutimann said. "I had a pretty good car, and everything was going pretty well. We just kind of gambled at the end and decided to take tires, and nobody else came and we lost a lot of track position."

"Then the green-white-checked ended up biting us as usual."

Rain washed out Friday's qualifying, causing the lineup to be set by points, and returned Saturday long enough to drench the track. The race was supposed to start at 7:52 p.m., and Harvick led the field to the green flag at 9:24 p.m.

NASCAR threw a competition yellow flag at Lap 15 to allow teams to inspect their tires and make adjustments. There were only two other caution flags in first 100 laps — one for debris and the other for Allmendinger's incident.

Harvick, both Busch brothers, Elliott Sadler, Greg Biffle, Gordon, Johnson and Hornish all took turns up front in the early laps.

Hornish, the 2006 Indy 500 winner and a three-time Indy Racing League champion who has mostly been a bust in NASCAR, led his first laps at Daytona and ran in the top five through much of the race.

There were no problems with Daytona's 32-year-old pavement after a pothole caused nearly 2 1/2 hours in delays during the Daytona 500 in February. The speedway will embark on an estimated $20 million repaving project starting this week.

Passafiume named KHSAA Assistant Commissioner

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON — Angela Passafiume, a native of Louisville, has been named to fill the vacant Assistant Commissioner position on the KHSAA staff and will begin in mid-July.

Commissioner Julian Tackett announced on Wednesday. Passafiume brings a wealth of athletic administration, event management and officiating experience to the position. A 1994 graduate of the University of Louisville with a Bachelor of Science in Sport Administration, Passafiume began her career with the Jefferson County Metro Parks and Recreation Department where she performed a variety of roles from Aquatics and Track Club assistant to Recreation Assistant. From 1997-2001 she served as Supervisor of Recreation Programs for the JCMP, where she supervised 50 employees and built programs from the ground up, including athletic programs and leagues and was responsible for a $116,000 annual budget and a $1.6 million community center.

Passafiume also worked as a basketball official and was a member of the Kentuckiana Basketball Officials Association from 1993-2002.

"It is an honor to join the outstanding group of professionals at the KHSAA. I am very excited about my new role in high school athletics," said Passafiume. "My passion for children and sports has led me on a very exciting and rewarding career path thus far, and I feel that in becoming Assistant Commissioner I can only further my dedication to the young people in the Commonwealth. I want to assist in carrying out the mission of the Association by educating young people through sport."

Passafiume joins the Association after most recently serving as athletic director of Assumption High School since 2003. During that time she oversaw 15 varsity sports, more than 50 coaches and all athletic facilities. She managed numerous district tournaments in a variety of sports for the KHSAA and for the past five years also served as director of the state field hockey tournament, a non-KHSAA sanctioned championship event, as well as its assistant commissioner and rules interpreter for the sport.

Prior to her duties at Assumption, Passafiume served as athletic director, head girls basketball and head volleyball coach at Walden from 2001-03.

Play Golf America, Kentucky State Parks offering free round

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT — Ever wondered if you and your offspring, parent, sibling or best buddy could find some quality time on the golf course? Pair up in July when Kentucky State Parks make it well worth the experiment by participating in the Professional Golf Association's Play Golf America promotion.

From July 6-31, at any of the 18 park courses, players 18-years of age or younger may play a free round and smack a free bucket of balls on the driving range when accompanied by a paying adult (carts not included).

"Golf is absolutely family friendly," said Commissioner Gerry van der Meer, of the Kentucky Department of Parks. "Novice or experienced duffer, this special is a nice deal and a neat way to introduce kids to golf, build the players of tomorrow and create memories of a lifetime," he said. "Kentucky State Parks have a time-honored relationship with golf and top-notch courses. The entire family can plan a weekend getaway, combination golf/camping trip and loads of other outdoor adventures."

Six of the park system's golf courses have been recognized over the past several years as "bests" by Golf Digest and Golfweek Magazine. Honors include most affordable, best place to play and best course distinction. Mineral Mound State Park near Eddyville; Hidden Cove at Grayson Lake State Park in Olive Hill; Yatesville Lake in Louisa; Dale Hollow Lake near Burkesville; Wasioto Winds at Pine Mountain State Resort Park near Pineville; and My Old Kentucky Home State Park in Bardstown all got a thumbs up from the publications.

"The recognition shows what quality play is available anywhere in the state," van der Meer added. "Teeing off at any of them is a great golf value, convenient and in July, an even better deal."

Additional park golf packages make play a sweet proposition other times of the year. The "Chip Shot" includes lodge accommodations and 18 holes of golf with cart for only $79. The all-inclusive Tee's and Zzz's package includes overnight lodging, breakfast and dinner at the lodge restaurant, 18 holes of golf with a cart, preferred tee times and a complimentary gift card redeemable at any park, pro shop or gift shop. The price starts at $109 per person, per night, based on double occupancy and are available from April 1 to Oct. 31. Reservations are subject to availability and prices do not include appropriate taxes.

For more information about any of the 51 Kentucky State Parks and historic sites, golf options including the State Parks Golf Trail, and other activities and events, go to the website at www.parks.ky.gov or call toll free 1-800-255-PARK.

Kentucky Athlete of the Year Watts set to join MSU baseball team

Three-sport athlete also starred in basketball, football

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — A three-sport star and the Kentucky Male Athlete of the Year, Aaron Watts, has signed a National Letter of Intent to continue his baseball career at Morehead State. Watts, from McCreary County Central High School, is slated to primarily play outfield and also pitch for coach Jay Sorg's Eagles, and Sorg is elated that Watts selected Morehead State over many other collegiate opportunities.

"Aaron is a great fit for our program. He is strong, loose and athletic, all the physical qualities you look for in a baseball player. He has an intense makeup which will be a nice addition to our club," said Sorg. "Aaron had Division I scholarship offers in baseball, football and basketball. He understands that baseball gives him the best chance to play at the next level. We are excited to be a part of his future development."

Watts, who was named All-State in baseball, football and basketball, was tabbed as the Kentucky Farm Bureau High School Male Athlete of the Year.

On the diamond, he was named 12th Region Player of the Year as he led the Raiders in batting average (.513), on-base percentage (.644), slugging percentage (.842), runs (37), hits (39), RBI (26), stolen bases (30), and fielding percentage (.947). He also topped the team's pitching staff in strikeouts with 102. Watts pitched in the Kentucky East/West All-Star game this year.

On the gridiron, the dual-position standout was named First-Team All-State and Class 4A Player of the Year while rushing for 1,101 yards and throwing for 505 yards. He scored 20 touchdowns.

On the basketball court, Watts was named to the Louisville Courier-Journal All-State team as led the 12th region in scoring for the second consecutive season, averaging 23 points per outing. He also tallied eight rebounds and four assists per game. He scored more than 3,000 career points and played in the 2010 Kentucky/Indiana and Kentucky East/West All-Star games.

Sorg is expected to announce several more additions to the 2011 roster soon.
