Theater movie the hearing impaired

by SHELDON STAFF WRITER

PIKEVILLE → The Riverfill 10 in Pikeville now offers closed-captioned movies for the hearing impaired.

As of this week, the 10-screen theater only has one screen that is set up for the system, which is currently showing Karate Kid.

Pike resident Eddie Runyon, who has been pushing to see the development at his local theater, said he hopes other theaters in the region will follow Riverfill's lead.

"Going to the movies is one of the most social things in America that you can do, and I've always had to watch them at home and missed that experience with my family," said Runyon, who has spent the last two years approaching Riverfill owners and administrators to see the idea become a reality. He said he hadn't been to a movie theater in over 20 years.

Prior to installing the system at Riverfill, there was a test phase, but the system is now in full operation and stands apart from others in the area.

Officials have said they hope to expand the number of films they have on hand that will afford the closed-captioned option in the future.

This sign showing a 2006 semi-nude photo of Ashley Judd and reading: "Ashley Judd makes a living removing her top, why can't coal miners?" was still up at Stonecrest Golf Course as of Thursday afternoon. The sign was anonymously donated in response to Judd's criticism on the national stage of mountaintop removal coal mining practices last month.

Golf course making statement against Judd

by SHELDON COMPTON STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — Few golfers have passed the Stonecrest clubhouse in the past couple days without making some kind of comment.

"I've seen more skin than that at a Little League game," said one golfer as he and a friend carted past the entrance Thursday afternoon.

A 3 foot-by-5 foot sign that has garnered much attention was placed outside the entrance to the clubhouse at Stonecrest Golf Course Wednesday while coal miners and coal supporters played in a tournament at the reclaimed mountaintop course.

The sign depicts a photograph of actress Ashley Judd topless and covering her chest with her hands, a photograph from a 2006 issue of Marie Claire magazine.

"It's a pretty nice sign and I don't want to destroy it, but I'll take it down for tomorrow," said Stonecrest Board of Directors President Paul Hughes. The golf course has an event planned for today, but Hughes did not say if the sign would go back up after that event was finished.

Along with the photograph of Judd, who has in the past month been more outspoken than usual about the process of mountaintop coal mining, there is the statement: "Ashley Judd makes a living removing her top, why can't coal miners?"

An anonymous donor paid to have the sign made in response to Judd's high-profile opinions on the coal industry practice. The sign was later approved for placement by Stonecrest officials and was still up Thursday afternoon.

New laws go into effect next week

Special to The Times

FRANKFORT — New laws approved during the Kentucky General Assembly's 2010 regular session go into effect on Thursday, July 15.

GPS tracking devices for some accused domestic abusers, a ban on texting while driving and expanded sunshine laws for statewide groups that represent local governments are among topics covered by laws set to take effect next week.

The state constitution specifies that new laws take effect 90 days following the adjournment of the legislature, unless a bill contains another effective date or is declared an emergency. New drug laws and revised options for low-performing schools, for example, have been in force since being signed into law by the governor.

The General Assembly adjourned sine die on April 15, making the new laws effective "the first moment of July 15, 2010."

Of the 163 bills and eight joint resolutions set to become law, all or part of 23 had special effective dates, including emergency legislation. Among the new laws that will take effect on July 15 are the following:

■ Accountability. Senate Bill 88 allows greater public scrutiny of the Kentucky League of Cities and the Kentucky Association of Counties by making both groups adhere to the state's open records and open meetings laws. The bill also requires the groups to place spending reports online and develop policies on ethics, procurement, hiring and compensation.

■ Agriculture. House Bill 398 prohibits local governments, with some exceptions, from having on-farm animal care standards that exceed state standards. In addition to requiring the creation of a livestock care standards commission, the legislation calls for the creation of an equine council to advise the state on equine health matters and strive to establish regional care centers for unwanted, neglected and abused horses.

■ Bee habitats. Senate Joint Resolution 177 requires the state apiarist to work with the Transportation Cabinet and local beekeeping clubs to identify state-owned rights-of-way that could be made into pollinator habitat sites for bees. Another piece of legislation, HB 175, encourages the development of bee habitats on mine reclamation sites to speed up plant growth and improve soil stability.

■ Child abuse. HB 285 boosts training for health care officials, day care workers and others who work with children improve their abilities to spot signs of child abuse.

■ Cancer. SB 18 prohibits health insurers from excluding coverage for routine care while a person takes part in a clinical cancer trial.

■ Concealed carry. HB 19 allows military personnel to renew their concealed deadly weapon early and by mail, and allowing a grace period after they return from deployment to renew their license.

■ Corrections. SB 17 makes it a felony for workers at prisons, jails or detention centers to have sex with inmates.

■ Discharge papers. HB 106 forbids the now-legal practice of allowing people to inspect their military discharge papers on file with the county clerk, and instead allows them to receive a copy of the papers to prevent viewing of others' papers.

■ Domestic violence. HB 1 allows judges to order those who violate a domestic violence order (DVO) to wear a global positioning system tracking device to help ensure that abusers remain the required distance from victims. The bill allows felony charges to be pressed against DVO violators who attempt to remove a court-ordered tracking device. The legislation is known as Amanda's Bill in honor of state worker Amanda Ross, who was shot to death outside her Lexington home last fall.

■ Education. HB 160 makes it easier for community and technical college students to transfer credits to four-year universities.

■ Historic site. HB 420 designates the Hurricane Creek mine site in Leslie County, at which 38 miners lost their lives in 1970, as a state historic site.

■ Inmates. SB 32 requires all

Pikeville Medical Center's Wound Care and Hyperbaric Center receives award

PIKEVILLE — Pikeville Medical Center physicians, leaders, and clinicians gathered Wednesday to celebrate the "Center of Distinction" award, which was given to the hospital's Wound Care and Hyperbaric Center in recognition of its high patient satisfaction rates, exceptional healing results, and outstanding clinical outcomes over the past twelve months. The honor was awarded by Diversified Clinical Services (DSC), the nation's leading wound care management company.

In addition to receiving the Center of Distinction award, Pikeville Medical Center has also earned the Diversified Clinical Services Robert A. Warriner, M.D., Center of Excellence award in recognition of receiving the Center of Distinction for two consecutive years. Both awards highlight the Center's delivery of outstanding results in healing outcomes, patient satisfaction, outlier management, and days to heal. DCS Area Vice President, Austin Day, presented the awards to Pikeville Medical Center and staff.

The Pikeville Medical Center Wound Care and Hyperbaric Center has achieved success in treating and curing chronic or non-healing wounds and in providing excellent care to nearly 15,000 patients since the Center's opening in July 2005.

Walter E. May, president and chief executive officer, commented on the award, "We are thrilled to accept this award, and proud to offer this quality Wound Care Center to our community."

The Center generally admits wound patients immediately, working with referring physicians to determine the most effective course of treatment. This outpatient comprehensive service offers advanced healing therapies often unavailable in primary care offices. These services use an interdisciplinary approach to treatment involving a variety of therapies and techniques, including debridement, hyperbaric oxygen therapy, dressing selection, special shoes, and patient education. When wounds persist and resist conventional treatment, a specialized approach is required for healing. "We're honored," said

Juanita Deskins, interim COO. "It's a privilege to be able to advance the healing of patients in our community, returning them to happy, healthy lives."

With rate hike, power needs to remain on

Now that Kentucky Power Company has been granted a rate increase, we hope that extra revenue can be put to good use.

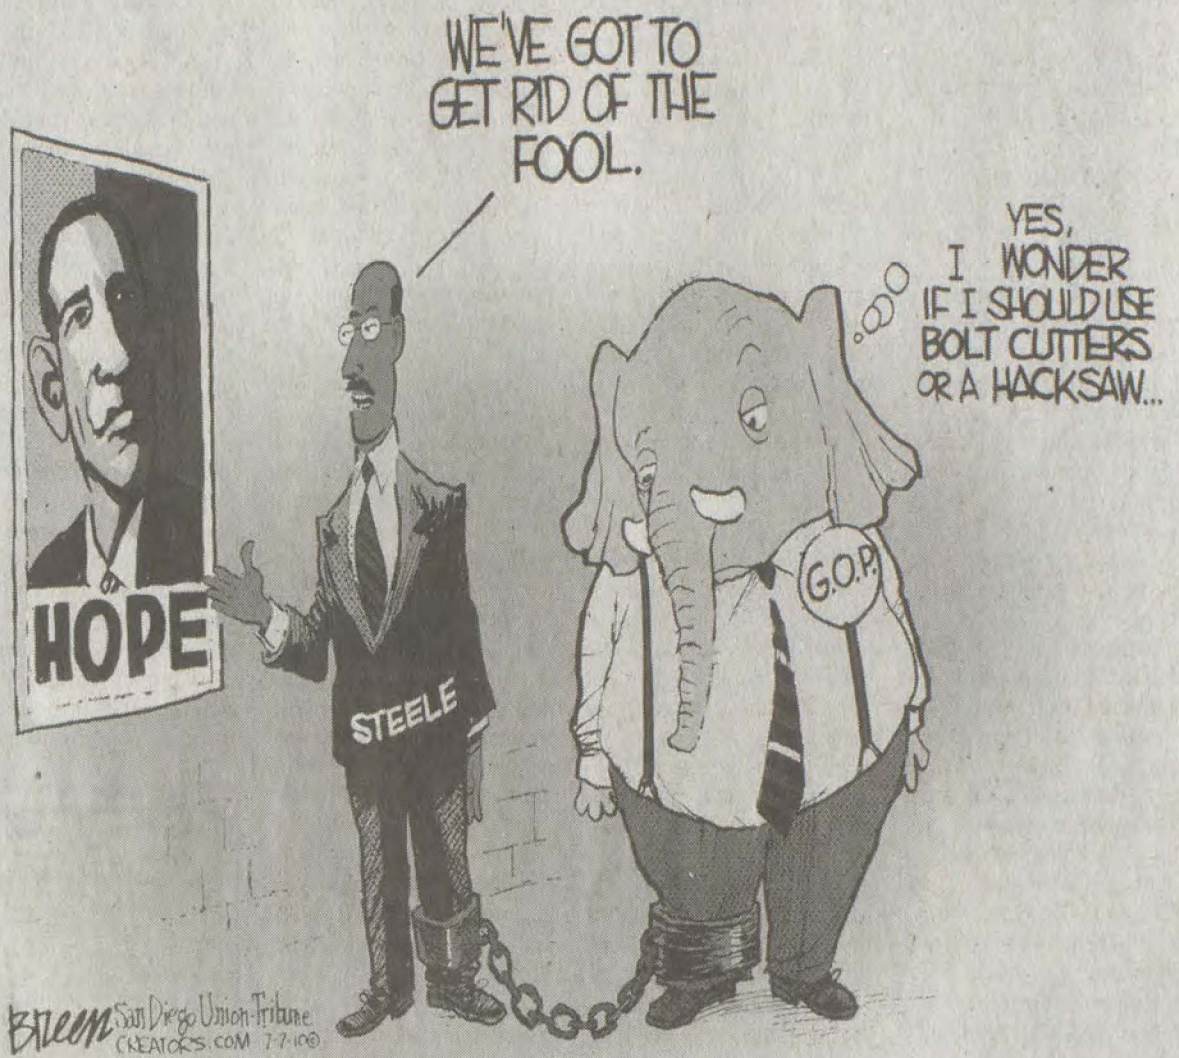

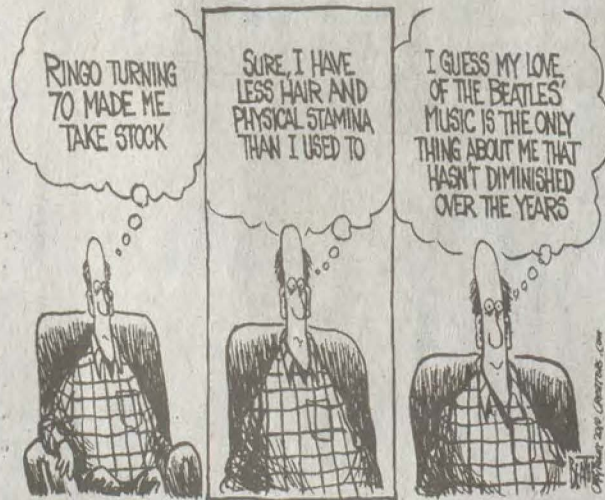

We still believe this rate request, made to the Public Service Commission shortly following a days-long power outage this past winter, was ill-timed, but there's no use in continuing to beat a dead horse. What's done is now done.

What we would like to see in the months moving forward is a more concerted effort to ensure that outages like the one we experienced last winter are few and far between. And that means a more proactive approach in clearing right-of-ways. We were happy to see that a part of this settlement between Kentucky Power and the PSC included language to ensure that this proactive approach is instituted.

Delivering reliable energy to remote or rural areas has never been an easy task, and we understand that there will be hiccups along the way. But the people of Perry County are without power much too much for our liking. Our latest outage, just a couple of weeks ago, came following a hard rain and left thousands without power for several hours. Though we thank the linemen and others who worked quickly to restore power, we have to think that the frequency with which these outages are occurring is much too high.

We hope that Kentucky Power Company can take to heart the copious public comments made during the PSC's review process leading up to last week's decision. There are a lot of unhappy customers out there. The power company will never be able to satisfy everyone all of the time, but we hope the company can make a good faith effort to do just that. After all, if you're going to charge more, shouldn't the customer expect more?

Beyond the Beltway

We've got to get out of there

by DONALD KAUL

Pretty much everyone (outside of the nutty "he's the Antichrist" coalition) thinks President Barack Obama did the right thing in firing his Afghanistan commander, Gen. Stanley McChrystal. Unfortunately, he did it for the wrong reasons.

McChrystal got fired for shooting his mouth off about his disdain for our president, his civilian staff, and our allies within earshot of a Rolling Stone reporter. (Generals and high officials get so used to kid-glove treatment from the mainstream press that they're often shocked when a real reporter shows up and actually reports.)

Obama had to get rid of the guy lest he, Obama, be labeled a wimp and lose his already slippery standing with the military and our allies. He immediately won points, however, for naming Gen. David Petraeus as McChrystal's successor.

This, Obama assured us, would mean a seamless continuation of the strategy we've been following in Afghanistan.

You know times are hard when keeping our Afghanistan War strategy is considered good news.

I don't know if you've noticed (with the World Cup and all, times are busy) but we're not winning the war in Afghanistan; we're not even tying. The strategy, whatever it is, isn't working.

There's a reason for this: Strategies that depend on invading and pacifying Afghanistan, thereby bending it to the invader's will, never work. Never.

It didn't work for Alexander the Great, for the Mongols, for the British Empire or for the Soviet Union, all of which considered themselves experts at invading and pacifying. They all came into the country with flags flying, and all left sadder but wiser—mostly sadder. It's what Afghanistan does to invaders.

Now it's our turn.

Whenever critics of the war bring up its parallels to the Vietnam Folly, supporters sternly admonish them with: "Afghanistan is not Vietnam."

Really? Let's review:

We're trying to suppress an indigenous insurgency—albeit one augmented with troops, weapons and support from outside sources—in a faraway land of which we know little.

We're bombing the hell out of them, using $500,000 missiles and multi-million-dollar drones to destroy mud huts, and in the process killing innocent people and converting indifferent bystanders into angry, hate-filled militants. It is a policy of destroying villages in order to save them.

In this effort, which is increasingly ours alone, we're dependent for legitimacy on a corrupt, feckless Afghan government that lacks the support of its people.

And, lastly, our success depends almost totally not merely on being able to reform that government, but on our ability to transform its largely unmotivated and illiterate army into a modern fighting force so that we can turn things over to them and desert the battlefield without seeming to.

Sounds like Vietnam to me. And, like Vietnam, it will end badly.

Hamid Karzai, Afghanistan's president, knows that. That wily man is already negotiating with the Taliban and its Pakistani sponsors. He knows we're not long for this war.

The Republicans would have it otherwise. Led by military geniuses like John McCain and Dick Cheney, they're incensed that Obama has set 2011 as the sell-by date of this war. Apparently, they're willing to keep fighting it forever.

And when we do leave, they'll blame the Democrats for "losing Afghanistan," much as they used to blame Democrats for losing China.

We're not going to lose Afghanistan, for the same reason we didn't lose China. We never owned it.

The Bush-Cheney bunch had their shot at taming Afghanistan. They didn't do it. Whatever their strategy, it didn't work. If they get another try at it, it won't work again.

A Taliban spokesman recently said this of his country: "Before Gen. McChrystal, many strong military generals suffered defeat. The Americans know that Afghanistan is the Graveyard of Empires but even so, they invaded this country."

The reporter was reminded of a Taliban saying: "The Americans have the watches, but we've got the time."

Another tragedy worthy of attention

The filming of the school bus tragedy shown at the MAC on June 25 was well deserved, as everyone will agree.

My question is this: Why were my brother and his teammate not shown the same recognition? Did they not merit the same acknowledgement?

Donald Gene Reatherford and Woody Salyers died from carbon monoxide poisoning from a faulty water heater in a makeshift gym. Both were football players for the Prestonsburg Blackcats in 1954.

Donald's accomplishments are too numerous to mention to put here on paper. They were involved in church leadership, and for the team he led prayer before each game. At 16 years old, he was already an exemplary individual. Everyone that knew him still today remembers him in this manner, and that makes us proud.

To me and my family, that was "the very worst thing."

Pikeville signs D-II transfer Wheeler

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE — Kelly Wells has wrapped up this year's recruiting class with a transfer whose former coach is well-familiar with Pikeville College.

Dwayne Wheeler will join the Bears after playing one season at the University of Charleston for Greg White.

White coached the Bears for five seasons in the late 1980s, where he coached both Todd

May, a first-team All-American, and Donnie Jones, who led the nation in assists and is now an NCAA Div. I basketball coach at the University of Central Florida.

At the NCAA Div. II school, Wheeler, a 6-1 guard, started 10 games as a freshman.

"Dwayne is the final piece to our recruiting puzzle for the 2010-11 season," said Wells. "We are thrilled to add Dwayne to the PC family. He is a proven winner and an explosive athlete.

"He will be able to play both guard positions and will have three years remaining to play at PC. Dwayne's skill set is very impressive on the offensive and defensive areas of the game. He is an excellent fit to our style of play and team."

Wheeler played at Princeton Day Academy in Lanham, Md., where he averaged 17.1 points and nine assists per game. At Baltimore's Mount Carmel High School, he averaged 15 points, six rebounds and four assists while helping the team compile a 25-3 record.

The Bears are scheduled to open the 2010-11 season on Oct. 29 in the East Kentucky Expo Center against Temple Baptist College. Pikeville will then visit the University of Kentucky on Nov. 1.

Track and field rules changes reflect more lenient penalties

TIMES STAFF REPORT

INDIANAPOLIS — Several of the 15 new rules changes approved by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) Track and Field and Cross-Country Rules Committee have more lenient penalties than in the past, including a team warning for the first jewelry violation when observed during competition. The changes, which were subsequently approved by the NFHS Board of Directors, will take effect with the 2010-11 school year.

While jewelry is still prohibited in all track and field events under Rule 4-3-3, the first violation witnessed by an official will now result in a team warning. The observing official shall report to the meet referee, who will then notify the coach of the offending school. All subsequent violations will result in a disqualification of the athlete(s)/relay team from the event.

Becky Oakes, NFHS assistant director and liaison to the Track and Field and Cross-Country Rules Committee, said the committee was trying to remain consistent with other sports that prohibit jewelry without being too harsh. "Other than a handful of field events with minimal risk minimization concerns, there isn't a real risk of injury in this sport from wearing jewelry," Oakes said.

"The committee, after discussion and review of the questionnaire, believed this penalty was more appropriate."

With regard to medical-alert medals, which are not considered jewelry and are allowed, the rule now reads that the alert should be visible. Oakes said the committee thought medical alerts that aren't visible defeat the purpose of wearing information that may be important to those responding to an emergency, and responders may need immediate access to the alert.

The rule has also been updated to reflect new technology in medical-alert notification items. Any bracelet made of metal or an unyielding material still needs to be taped to the body, but a bracelet made of pliable material does not require taping. Medals worn on necklaces of any kind still need to be taped to the body.

Additionally, Rules 4-3-3 and 9-6-7 were amended to allow additional means of hair control. Unadorned devices, such as bobby pins, barrettes and hair clips, no longer than two inches, may be worn to control a competitor's hair. This rule was updated to reflect common practice in some states and achieve consistency throughout the rule's application. These items for hair control are not considered dangerous for the contestant and are not considered jewelry or adornment.

Welcoming a return to good sports

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

So apparently last night was the night. The world can sit back quietly on its axis now. Brett Favre can return to the spotlight.

Our long national nightmare is over. We now know where LeBron will play next year.

Let me tell you, for me it's been a difficult summer. If there are two things I don't care too much about it's World Cup soccer and the NBA. It seems as if the sports world has completely forsaken baseball in its efforts to breathlessly discover where the powers that be will land in the NBA and how distracting the vuvuzelas have been at the soccer matches.

I'm writing this, of course, before the announcement as to where LeBron will play. I am fairly certain, however, that there was no way ESPN went on the air at 9 last night without the world knowing. It just doesn't happen that way.

On Wednesday morning, I finished up listening to Mike & Mike and rolled into The Herd, which is something I normally don't allow. There is no more annoying person on the planet than Colin Cowherd, no one who takes himself more seriously. You either agree with him or you're not only wrong but also you're a complete buffoon incapable of putting together cohesive thought.

One of the things he said Wednesday was, "Don't kid yourself. You'll be watching. You know you will."

I can't say for sure what I was doing last night at 9 — I'm guessing either walking or watching the Reds — but I can feel fairly certain it didn't involve the NBA. I had already given up a couple of hours of my year watching the draft. I don't have a lot more time to flush away. I mean, summer's coming to an end soon and I'll have nine sports going full blast. I need to make the most of the time I have.

Worrying about where the latest mega-millionaire will play next season isn't high on my priority list. I don't begrudge LeBron or any of the rest of them the money they're making, but it doesn't make much of a difference in my life where he plays and where he doesn't.

For weeks, ESPN has been running polls on the soccer tournament and the NBA stuff. I always wished there was an option to vote, "I don't care." I wonder if they'd learn that for a large percentage of their fan base, we don't really care.

Baseball rules change puts moratorium on composite bats

TIMES STAFF REPORT

INDIANAPOLIS — One of six new rules changes by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) Baseball Rules Committee forbids the use of composite bats until they can meet the Batted Ball Coefficient of Restitution (BBCOR) performance standard. The changes, which were subsequently approved by the NFHS Board of Directors, will take effect with the 2010-11 school year.

After thorough testing by the Baseball Research Center at the University of Massachusetts-Lowell, the NFHS Baseball Rules Committee voted to outlaw composite bats until they can produce consistent results through the life of the bat, be made tamper-evident and be labeled as a composite product.

Elliot Hopkins, NFHS liaison to the Baseball Rules Committee, visited with James Sherwood, director of the Baseball Research Center, and spent several hours witnessing composite bat testing. "Rolling the bat gives it a higher performance," Hopkins said. "It can significantly increase the performance and that's huge in our game."

Rolling the bat isn't the only problem. Rolling only speeds up the performance enhancement that would occur over time after normal use. Even composite bats that were not altered will eventually see this increase in performance, and the rules committee views that as a major concern.

Rule 1-3-2 through 5 was completely rewritten with the intention of creating a rule that preserves the intent and spirit of the old rule, but is better suited to products resulting from new technology.

Under the new rule, bats with composite handles and tapers would still be legal. The stricter language applies primarily to the barrel of the bat.

"While the handles and taper are important components of the bat," Hopkins said, "the area that we recognized as more susceptible to abuse is the barrel."

Other rules changes this year aim at increasing convenience for coaches and umpires by simplifying the substitution policy and clarifying several rules.

Rule 1-1-2 now requires coaches to list all known substitutes on the lineup card before the umpire accepts it. Coaches will still be able to add a substitute without a penalty, but this should speed up substitutions and player changes during the game.

A change to Rule 2-16-2 was also made to clarify an existing rule and ease its application for coaches and

Return

Or maybe, in the end, it's just me.

— Shocking headline of the day: Ex-Cat Orton struggles again in summer league.

— Patrick Ewing, on Orton: "He has to pick up his energy, in my opinion."

Me, on Ewing: "You think?"

He can't play! Perhaps someday he will develop into a decent player. Perhaps. My money, though, is on it never happening. The kid needs work and he left that possibility behind when he pulled out of Lexington. The NBA doesn't have time to develop players. They play 82 games a year. How hard do you think they work in practice?

I'm guessing not very hard. So he'll never develop, never get appreciably better, and go the way of Randolph Morris.

Or maybe, in the end, it's just me.

— I wonder how the local youth baseball and softball tournaments worked out this year.

— Speaking of that, if you're interested in watching the best youth softball players in the state, the folks in Paintsville have you covered. Beginning today, three different statewide Cal Ripken softball tournaments will be contested at Johnson Central High School.

It's a pretty big deal if you think about it, and the Johnson County girls will be playing in all three. It's a short drive to Paintsville, so head on out and support the locals while seeing the best that the state has to offer as far as youth fast-pitch softball.

— Remember Armando Galarraga, the Detroit pitcher who was robbed of a perfect game by a bad call at first with two outs in the ninth? It's gone from bad to worse for him, all in less than a month.

This week Galarraga was sent to Triple-A because the Tigers decided they won't need a fifth starter for a couple of weeks due to the break. How does a guy essentially throw a '28-out perfect game and still be the No. 5 guy?

Because since the infamous start, Galarraga has thrown 33.2 innings in six starts. In those, he's allowed 42 hits and 21 earned runs, striking out 11 and walking 13.

During that time, his ERA has ballooned from 2.57 to 4.45. And that just doesn't cut it.

Or maybe, in the end, it's just me. And, of course, the Tigers' brass.

2010 KENTUCKY SPECIAL OLYMPICS

Kim Wilson traveled to Richmond on the weekend of June 4 for the Kentucky Special Olympic Games. Kim competed in the softball throw and the 100 meter walk. She placed second in the softball throw and received the silver medal. Kim got a participation ribbon for the 100 meter walk. This makes Kim's fifth year competing in the State Special Olympic games since being with Champion Supports and Services, Inc.

Also, several of Kim's teammates placed at the state level, including first-place win the 100 meter walk and second-place in the 100 meter dash.

Stewart hopes to ride second-half spurt into NASCAR's chase

by BILL FLEISCHMAN
PHILADELPHIA DAILY NEWS (MCT)

ELEVEN RACES into the season, Tony Stewart was an uncharacteristic 18th in Sprint Cup points. Seven races later, the two-time Cup champion is ninth. What magic legal potion did Stewart and his No. 14 Chevrolet team find in their toolboxes?

"I don't know if there is one particular thing that has really changed it all for us," Stewart said on a Tuesday conference call. "It's kind of like last year [in reverse]. We had a great first half, then just kind of fell off. We didn't really feel like we were doing anything different. We just weren't hitting on the things that we needed to in the fall to keep us good."

Last year, in his first season as a co-owner, Stewart led the points standings for the 13 weeks leading to the Chase for the Championship. He won four races and finished sixth in the standings.

"I think it's worked the opposite way this year," Stewart said. "We just weren't finding the things to make the car happy. Every week, we're just learning a little more about what to do to get the feel in the car that I like."

"I'm still not really comfortable where we're at in the point[s] standings, but we're definitely making gains. It's a lot of little things. The engine department, they keep making gains. Our chassis are getting better."

"You don't have to find one big chunk to make a big gain. A lot of time, it's very small details that each individual department will find that helps bring the whole performance of the team up."

As co-owner of Stewart-Haas Racing, the 39-year-old Indiana native has more on his mind away from the track than racing. Like several owners, Stewart is searching for sponsors for next year.

"I would say there's probably zero percent chance we'll expand to a third team for next year," he said. "We're still trying to fill the void when Old Spice changes [after] this year."

Office Depot will continue with Stewart, who said he has other sponsorship opportunities.

"It's just a matter of finding a package that works for somebody to fill our spot," he said. "There's still races we're trying to take care of on Ryan's car." Teammate Ryan Newman is 15th in points, 80 behind Carl Edwards, who holds the 12th and final Chase for the Championship qualifying position.

Believe it or not, cheetahs were a discussion topic during Stewart's call. Hey, it's NASCAR: You never know where interviews will go.

A television reporter mentioned she was preparing a feature on cheetahs at the Indianapolis Zoo for airing before the Brickyard 400 on July 25. Stewart helped build a cheetah exhibit at the Indy Zoo. A cheetah from the zoo named Ro spent a day at Stewart-Haas Racing filming TV spots to promote the zoo. The videos are at YouTube.

"Toward the end of the day, I was walking Ro around the shop," Stewart recalled. "It was really cool to do that." Tony Stewart and a cheetah, walking around the race shop . . . just when I thought I'd heard and seen it all.

An emotional win Many racing fans went through several boxes of tissues after Dale Earnhardt Jr. won Friday's Nationwide Series race at Daytona in the No. 3 Chevrolet. Dale Sr. drove the blue-and-yellow No. 3 Wrangler-sponsored car.

After saying his late father would be proud of him, a smiling Junior added, "I'm proud of myself. I just want everybody to be happy."

Later, Junior reiterated it's the last time he'll drive a No. 3 race car.

"I have to move on," he said.

The Wrangler car probably will be on display at the NASCAR Museum in Charlotte, N.C., and at the Richard Childress Museum in Welcome, N.C. Earnhardt Sr. won six Cup series titles driving for Childress.

Please, no more conspiracy theories. Does anyone really think NASCAR could persuade the other drivers to let Dale Jr. win? Even if NASCAR tried it, the gossip flow in the garage area is like the BP oil spill: No one can stop it. Someone would say something if the race had been, uh, arranged.

A TNT prerace Saturday-night feature on Dale Sr. finally winning the Daytona 500 reminded me of an unforgettable scene. After Earnhardt won the 1998 Daytona 500 and was coasting down pit road toward victory lane, all the opposing crews lined up to high-five him. One of the classiest sights I've ever seen in sports.

Grand-Am at NJMP The Grand-Am Rolex series makes its third appearance at New Jersey Motorsports Park in Millville July 16-18. Scott Pruett and Memo Rojas have won six of eight Grand-Am races this year driving for the Chip Ganassi Racing with Felix Sabates team. Pruett and Rojas teamed to win last year's race on the 2.25-mile Thunderbolt Raceway course.

This week's race:

2009 pole: Brian Vickers (184.162 mph)

Track qualifying record: Jimmie Johnson, 188.147 mph (July 8, 2005)

Track facts: Jimmie Johnson's wife, Chandra, gave birth to a daughter yesterday. No other details were released . . . Mark Martin led four times, for 195 laps, including the last 16, in winning last year. Jeff Gordon was runner-up; Casey Kahne was third . . .

Gordon is making his 600th Cup start (all consecutively). His 47-race winless streak matches his career high, first set before he won at Texas in April 2009 . . . Kevin Harvick and Tony Stewart are two-time winners at Chicagoland. Harvick won the first two Cup races at the track (2001 and '02) . . . Chevrolet drivers have won seven of the nine Chicago Cup races . . . Todd Parrott is Elliott Sadler's new crew chief. They worked together in 2004 at Yates Racing. other means of hair control, such as flat clips," Oakes said. "The rule change doesn't open up the wearing of adornments or other items that pose a risk of injury."

Other rules changes allow more leniencies in what is considered a foul, primarily in high jump and pole vault. Under Rule 7-2-12, if improperly fastened supports slip downward when a jumper hits the crossbar, it shall be ruled a no jump and the jumper will get another trial, regardless of the initial jump's result.

In the same vein, a note was added to Rule 7-5-29a that if a crossbar and/or uprights are placed incorrectly by the contest officials and the crossbar is displaced by the competitor, the trial is not recorded and the competitor receives an additional trial.

"All of these things used to be fouls," Oakes said. "But if equipment is placed improperly by the officials or there is an equipment malfunction, the rules should not penalize the jumper."

The committee also approved several other rules changes in field events. First, Rule 7-5-16 has been deleted and replaced with new guidelines for the warm-up of pole vault competitors who have passed three consecutive heights and not entered the competition. Those competitors are now allowed two minutes of warm-up jumps per competitor entering at that height. These competitors often sit out long enough that a proper warm-up is in order. Such a warm-up wasn't being provided by the old rule that allowed only one warm-up jump.

Rules 7-4-11 and 7-5-18 have been modified to clarify protocol when there is only one competitor left in a vertical jump competition. Only after that person has been determined the event winner may he or she determine successive heights of the crossbar.

Additionally, a revision to both throwing and jumping rules allows for a change in the order of competition. The head judge may now change the order, in both preliminaries and finals, to accommodate those who may be excused to participate in other events. Competitors may take more than one trial in succession.

Following are other changes made by the NFHS Track and Field and Cross Country Rules Committee:

— A significant editorial change that will affect all sports requires that any athlete who exhibits signs, symptoms or behaviors consistent with a concussion, including but not limited to loss of consciousness, headache, dizziness, confusion or balance problems, must be removed from the contest immediately and shall not return to play before being cleared by an appropriate health-care professional.

— In addition, Rule 4-4-1 was added, stating that if a hard or unyielding item, such as a guard, cast, etc., is worn, it is up to the referee to determine if padding is required. Such padding shall be closed-cell, slow-recovery foam no less than one-half-inch thick. Unaltered knee and ankle braces do not require any additional padding.

— Rule 4-4-2 clarifies the use of prosthetics in track and field. Each state association may authorize the use of a prosthesis, which in its opinion, is no more dangerous to competitors and/or equipment than the corresponding human body part(s) and does not place an opponent at a disadvantage.

— New to the rules book but commonly practiced, a letter of authorization shall be provided by the state association for any modifications to uniforms or equipment due to medical or religious reasons. The letter shall be made available to the meet referee prior to the beginning of competition.

— Rule 3-3-1 identifies the meet director as the official representative of host meet management; 3-3-2 makes that person responsible for handling unsporting conduct by spectators and other matters outside of competition rules.

A complete listing of all rules changes approved by the committee is available on the NFHS Web site at www.nfhs.org. Click on "Athletics & Fine Arts Activities" on the home page, and select "Track and Field."

Outdoor track and field is the second-most popular sport for boys, with 558,007 participants, and most popular sport for girls, with 457,732 participants, at the high school level, according to the 2008-09 NFHS Athletics Participation Survey. The sport ranks second in school sponsorship with 15,936 schools sponsoring the sport for boys and 15,864 sponsoring the sport for girls.

players. The rule now reads: "A foul tip is a batted ball that goes directly to the catcher's hands and is legally caught by the catcher. It is a strike and the ball is in play."

Similarly, a "last-time-by" rule has been instituted. The new rule states that if a runner correctly touches a base that was missed the last time he was by the base, that last touch corrects any previous base-running infraction. This last-time-by practice is commonly accepted, but is now legally Rule 8-2-6l.

The last two rules changes were approved on recommendation from the NFHS Sports Medicine Advisory Committee. First, in a change to Rule 1-5-8, all hard and unyielding items such as braces, casts, etc., must be padded with a closed-cell, slow-recovery foam padding no less than one-half-inch thick. Knee and ankle braces that are unaltered from the manufacturer's original design/production do not require additional padding.

Second is an update to concussion language that has been added to the rules for all high school sports. The new rule, 3-1-5, puts strict constraints on players who may have suffered a concussion. The rule states that any player who exhibits signs, symptoms or behaviors consistent with a concussion, including but not limited to loss of consciousness, headache, dizziness, confusion of balance problems, must be removed from the contest immediately and shall not return to play before being cleared by an appropriate health-care professional.

Baseball is the fourth-most popular sport for boys at the high school level, according to the 2008-09 NFHS Athletics Participation Survey, with 473,184 participants nationwide. The sport ranks third in school sponsorship with 15,699 schools sponsoring the sport.

Cousins inks contract with Kings

TIMES STAFF REPORT

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The Sacramento Kings today signed rookie center DeMarcus Cousins to a contract, it was announced by Kings' President of Basketball Operations Geoff Petrie. Terms of the contract were not disclosed. Cousins was Sacramento's first round selection (5th overall) of the 2010 NBA Draft out of the University of Kentucky as an undergraduate.

An early entry candidate, the 6-11, 270-pound Cousins averaged 15.1 points (.558 FG %, .604 FT%), 9.8 rebounds, 1.8 blocks, and 23.5 minutes per game in 38 appearances while leading the Wildcats in rebounds and blocks. He was second on the team in scoring. Cousins recorded a freshman conference and school record 20 double-doubles and scored in double-figures in 31 contests. He tallied 20 or more points in four games, including a career-high 27 vs. Sam Houston State (Nov. 19, 2009) and at South Carolina (Jan. 26, 2010). In 21 games, Cousins recorded two or more blocks.

Cousins is only the third freshman chosen by the Kings in the lottery, and the second in the last two years after the Kings selected Tyreke Evans after his freshman season at Memphis in the 2009 NBA Draft. Spencer Hawes (10th in 2007) was the other freshman chosen by the Kings in the lottery. Cousins and Hassan Whiteside are the fourth and fifth freshmen selected by the Kings, joining Evans, Hawes, and Gerald Wallace (2001, 25th). The Kings have selected an early entry candidate in six of the last seven drafts.

Cousins is only the second player to be selected out of Kentucky by the Kings, joining Bob Guyette who was drafted in the third round of the 1975 NBA Draft.

MOVIES FROM THE BLACK LAGOON

'Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry'

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

In April 1974 audiences were thrilling to "The Poseidon Adventure." It was a box office juggernaut that started the "disaster" film craze and featured an all-star cast that was decimated over the course of the film's running time, as they strived to escape a capsized luxury liner. The film was box office dynamite but was eventually ousted by "Mary and Larry."

Tom Doty
Times Columnist

The plot is pretty simple. Two guys rob a grocery store (using a technique cribbed from "The Friends of Eddie Coyle") and try to escape. That's it, but it suffices for 90 minutes, thanks to quirky characters, a bold director (who cut his teeth directing the action sequences for a TV show called "The Avengers") and the best stunt driving ever committed to film.

The movie begins the same morning as the robbery. Larry (a NASCAR hopeful with more attitude than smarts) has just celebrated a one-night stand, but sneaks out without saying goodbye to join his buddy Deke (who was Larry's racing mechanic) so they can rob the grocery store. Deke's job will be to hold the wife and daughter of the store's manager hostage in

This Town, That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request.

There is an old adage which I too seldom heed. It runs to this effect:

If you have nothing worth saying, keep your mouth shut.

The weather is deadening. The news saddens. I am tempted to follow that advice.

DOG DAYS

But comes one inquiring if these be Dog Days, and I can't refuse to give of the wealth of my knowledge on the subject.

Webster's says this is "the period of the year comprising about six weeks of the hottest and most sultry days of July and August, at which period the Dog Star rises and sets with the sun."

That's a bit too scientific for me. Back when Dog Days really meant something to me, even the most ignorant of us knew that that was when dogs went mad and snakes went blind and wading in the creek was dangerous, for the water was pizen, and a sore toe wouldn't heal hardly at all.

If any of you find dog fennel "berries" big enough to use for marbles (I've lost mine), you may know with greatest assurance that Dog Days have indeed "set in."

I wouldn't say that Dog Days have arrived yet. But these are dog-

YARD OF THE MONTH

Richmond Street home awarded a second time

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — Carla Burchett's yard has a lot of history, even though she just moved to her home on Richmond Street in 2005. Burchett's yard was selected by the Prestonsburg Women's Club as the Yard of the Month for July.

"When I moved here in 2005, there were no shrubs, flowers or anything in the yard," Burchett said. "I spend at least two hours a day watering the yard, fertilizing, pulling weeds and planting. I like to keep it blooming all summer long. That's been a lot of work."

Burchett also credits Bo Sturgill for helping her keep the yard in excellent condition.

"Bo does a lot of my yard work. He's one of the reasons it looks the way it looks," Burchett said.

The yard includes a rose bush that belonged to Burchett's mother who moved from the area in 1982. Burchett had the rose bush moved to her yard.

"The rose bush has been unattended for over 30 years before we moved it," Burchett said. "I love having my mother's rose bush in my yard."

Also, when she moved back home from Nashville, Burchett brought a lot of plants from her gardens to plant them at her Prestonsburg home.

In 2006, Burchett's yard was selected as Yard of the Month, and she hoped she would get the honor again.

"I was hoping it would come around again, but there are a lot of beautiful yards in town and the surrounding area," Burchett said. "I'm very happy to win again. I love working out in the yard."

Eating on the move

It never fails that you finally get everyone in the car and someone is hungry. Then again maybe you're going to be out all day and don't want to spend a fortune on fast food, even the healthy choices. And maybe you're going on a road trip and are wondering just how to stay out of the fast food lane.

Whatever the reason for eating on the run, if plan this type of food the way you would your family's menu, you and the kids can be eating healthy even if you've got some long road trips.

If you know that a lot of time in the car is a given, why not keep homemade granola bars, fruit, dried fruit and nuts in your purse or a stash of this stuff in a bag you always take with you in the car—kinda like the diaper bag, but this one fully loaded with snacks. Buy some zippered baggies and fill them with a portion of dried fruits, whole grain cereals, nuts, and homemade granola mix.

No one says you have to eat lunch in a restaurant if you're on the road. Just get out your cooler!

Create wrap sandwiches using a whole grain tortilla, layering sandwich items like lettuce, meat, tomatoes and roll 'er up! Wrap inside of aluminum foil or plastic wrap leaving the top easy to open, creating a pocket of sorts. Let kids make their own wraps using peanut or almond butter and jelly. They can spread it themselves, wrap them up and you might need to help them put it in the foil or plastic wrap. Either way, the accomplishment of making it

Colonoscopies save lives

Q My 58-year-old brother just had a colonoscopy, and he said the doctor removed some precancerous polyps. This concerns me because our father died from colon cancer. Is there anything my brother and I can do to help prevent it?

A Colon cancer does not get the public attention it warrants. Most people do not know that more people die from colon cancer each year than from breast cancer and AIDS combined. It is estimated that more than 102,000 new cases of colon cancer will be diagnosed in the United States in 2010. About 50,000 will likely result in death. Luckily, you have already taken the first step toward preventing colon cancer: informing yourself.

Colon cancer forms in the large intestines, and it begins as small benign polyps, like what your brother had. These polyps are precancerous, meaning that they will turn into cancer if left to grow. Had the doctors not removed your brother's polyps, he would have developed colon cancer.

Unfortunately, colon cancer seems to be genetic, so your family history does increase your risk. Colon cancer is more common in people over the age of 50, but it can also occur at a younger age. People who suffer from a chronic colon disease, such as ulcerative colitis or Crohn's Disease, are more likely to develop colon cancer.

The good news is that there are lifestyle choices you can make to lower your chances of developing this disease. Some are dietary: increasing your intake of fiber and limiting your intake of fat both help. If you smoke, quitting now can reduce your risk. So can moderating your alcohol intake. Diabetes and obesity are associated with higher rates of colon cancer, but fortunately, exercising and eating right are the most important treatment plans for these conditions, as well.

As you and your brother well know, an early diagnosis can save your life. Pay attention to any sudden, persistent changes in your bowel habits, especially if your bowels have always been regular before. Examples of such changes include diarrhea or constipation for more than a week, blood in the stool and lasting abdominal pain with gas and bloating. Unfortunately, many people either have no early symptoms, or their symptoms are too mild to seem important.

This is why one of the most effective ways to prevent colon cancer is to get a colonoscopy when you turn 50. This routine cancer screening typically takes place in a hospital or outpatient surgery facility. You will be instructed to take laxatives and stick to a clear liquid diet the day before the screening in order to empty your intestinal tract. For the screening itself, you will be given a mild sedative, and a very small fiber optic camera will be passed into your colon. If no polyps are found, your next colonoscopy can wait about ten years. If a polyp is found, it can be removed immediately, and then you should talk to your family physician about a schedule for regular colonoscopies.

Colon cancer may not be a pleasant thing to talk about, but it is very important to get the facts about the risks of colon cancer overall and about your personal health. A colonoscopy may not be your idea of a good 50th birthday present, but it will increase your chances of celebrating many more birthdays to come.

KIM'S KORNER

To finally surrender is to finally win

by KIM LITTLE FRASURE

Have you had one of those days, or weeks where you have felt totally powerless? Portions of a Word for Today a daily devotional email is shared below. May you enjoy be enlightened and most of all receive all that God has in store.

Kim Little Frasure

A situation that's taking place in your life, with your Spouse, your child, your job, your finances or maybe it's just you - that just can't seem to get over the hurdle, heartache, illness, or grasp hold of enough faith to keep your head held high with a smile on your face.

Maybe you feel like the world is at arms reach, but just as you get ready to stick your hand out there and grab hold BAM - another wall erupts out of nowhere and there's fiery darts shooting at you and sticking so sharp in your body your mind is in a whirlwind of what to do, where to turn, or how is it going to end or will it ever end?

In the Book of Joshua in the Bible. In fact, there's a wonderful blueprint for winning life's un-winnable battles in the account of Joshua's most powerless moment. It's recorded in Joshua 5, beginning with verse 13, Joshua is leading the Jews into the Promised Land that God has said He would give to them. But immediately, they come upon this massive, seemingly (incapable of conquering) city; the walls are looming toward the sky. It's the world's oldest city, Jericho. There's no way Joshua's going to break those walls with anything he knows how to do.

You may be facing one of those "Jericho's" in your life right now, where the size of the challenge is far greater than any resources you have. So, this one's for you and for me. Joshua 5 says, "When Joshua was near Jericho, he looked up and he saw a man standing in front of him with a drawn sword. Joshua went up to him and asked, 'Are you for us or for our enemies?' 'Neither,' he replied, 'but as commander of the army of the Lord I have now come.'

Then Joshua fell face down to the ground in reverence, and asked him, 'What message does my Lord have for His servant?'"

Here's Joshua, a man who has never lost a battle, going face down on the ground in the most powerless position a man can be in. Joshua had never surrendered to anyone. But standing before the Commander of the Army of the Lord, he falls down in total surrender. Some Bible scholars believe this "Commander" is the Son of God making one of His pre-Bethlehem appearances in the Old Testament. Face down before Jesus.

Could that be where He wants you and me right now? Maybe that's the only way we're ever going to conquer our Jericho; the only way we're ever going to have peace. When Joshua surrendered, God gave him the miracle plan that pulverized the walls of Jericho. The issue never was the conquest of Jericho; it was the conquest of Joshua. The issue in your life really isn't the conquest of your impossible challenge; it's the conquest of you. It sometimes takes a Jericho to level some of us Joshua's. It could be that you've given Jesus everything: your talent, or have you?

Your time, or have you? Your money, or have you? Your service, or have you?

Maybe you have given everything but one thing, and that is, control. Is it still my way, my will, my agenda, my plans, my timing.

God has you here for a reason. You are not where you are by coincidence no matter what you think. And He has gifted you with a position you are supposed to play with no exceptions. Just like a good coach positions each player on a football team. If you can kick like nobody's business but can't run worth a plug nickle then the Coach isn't going to have you running ump-teen yards for a touchdown.

These young boys surrender to the knowledge of their coaches to put them in the best possible position on the team to take them places they've only dreamed, to make them most valuable players.

God is our Head Coach and He has placed each player just exactly where He wants them on His team playing the positions He created for each of us, the positions He gifted us for. And you are one of those team members. God has gifted you! He's prepared you, He's destined you, assigned you to play the position He knows is best for you and for His Church and this hurting and dying world.

Maybe it's time we stop trying to get Him to play us somewhere else. Maybe it's time we fall face down like Joshua and surrender our all to Jesus and do what He has called us to do.

If there's someone or something that you're still holding tightly in your hands, afraid or unwilling to surrender control of. Afraid to do what God has called or placed you in the position to do. Then consequently, your Jericho's will remain standing.

It is an insult to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ to covet or want a position someone else has, or to compare ourselves to another player on His team, or belittle ourselves and our position as being less important than others, or to tell Him we can't play that position, or sit on the sidelines or leave the game because we don't like our position. To do so is depriving Jesus of a contribution that He has gifted us with, and keeping ourselves from making a contribution that only we can make.

Ephesians 2:10 says, "We are God's workmanship created in Christ Jesus for good works He prepared in advance for us to do."

God produces spiritual champions today just like He produced Joshua and placed him in a position to conquer if only he would surrender.

The most powerful position in the world is powerlessness. The secret of peace and the release of God's power into our situations is total surrender. At that point, He will commit all His forces to the battles in front of us. To finally surrender is to finally win.

Won't you surrender today?

Til next week, God bless!

Salome's Stars Weekly Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Starting something new is always exciting for the adventurous Aries. And here's the good news: This time you might be able to get some assistance in helping you finish what you've started.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Put your daydreaming penchant on hold for now, and face the facts as they are, not as you'd like them to be. Your customary hardheaded approach to "deals," etc., would be called for.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Problems beyond your control might delay some of your plans. But things should start to get back to normal by midweek. The weekend could bring an unexpected (but welcome) visitor.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a good time to buckle down and tackle those unfinished tasks so you'll be ready to take on other projects. The week's end could bring an invitation from a most surprising source.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Mixed signals could create a few stressful moments for the Lion. But by midweek, explanations should help ease the tension. The weekend is party time! Share it with someone special.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good "catching up" week for finishing tasks, calling old friends and maybe reading that book you haven't opened yet or renting that movie you wanted to see again.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters should be worked out, even if it takes time away from a more romantic situation. Better to settle things before feelings turn hard and angry on all sides.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A job-related problem could turn out to be less troublesome than it seemed at first. Just a few moments of talk 'twixt the parties resolves everything to everyone's satisfaction.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The Sagittarian Archer takes aim at health and fitness issues this week. Watch your diet, and try to put more exercise time into your typically busy schedule.

career or job change, it's a good time to look over some of your rarely used skills and see where they can fit into your future workplace plans.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A loved one's health might be worrisome, but there's good news by midweek. Expect people who share your ideas and your goals to try to contact you by the week's end.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A colleague's request that makes the typically perceptive Pisces feel uncomfortable is a request you probably will want to turn down. The weekend favors family get-togethers.

My feud with modern fiction continues. This "realism" bit leaves me less than enthused. Especially when it takes the place of reality. I know, life is not all one glad song but neither is it a dirge. Short, nasty, chopped-up sentences equal realism, and they let the realities go hang. I know I'm an old fogey, but I can't see that wallowing in a sewer is any more true to life than wading in a clear, sparkling

I wish to have it in the record, the fact that I brought the Cincinnati Reds a bit of luck, the other day. This fellow Chaney was coming to bat with the bases loaded, and I expatiated at some length on the folly of that dumb manager letting that fellow try to hit. I had no more than declared with considerable emphasis that Chaney couldn't hit the ground with his cap when it happened. It was his first homer of the season and the first grand-slam home run of his career.

Corey Ford in his book of a few years back, "The Time of Laughter," closed the work with this paragraph:

Tom and Ray delve further into monitoring devices

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

TOM: A few weeks ago, we answered a question from Blair, the mother of a 16-year-old girl, who wanted to find a device that would help her keep track of her "spirited" daughter's driving.

RAY: We suggested a convent.

TOM: We actually suggested one of the Global Positioning System (GPS)-based black boxes that can track a driver's speed and aggressiveness, and report violations to a parent instantly by e-mail or text message.

RAY: These devices are called Event Data Recorders (EDRs), and there are a number of them on the market.

TOM: But driving fast isn't the only danger to new drivers. Cell phones provide a whole new smorgasbord of ways to crash a car. There's the distraction of conversations, and even worse, the sending and reading of text messages, which multiplies the risk of an accident many times over.

RAY: Well, now there are cell-phone applications that you can install on your kid's (or parent's, or spouse's) phone to cut down on these distractions.

TOM: They all work pretty much the same way. They use the phone's GPS to determine when the phone is moving faster than walking speed. Then, it presumes, you're driving.

RAY: Of course, if you're riding the school bus, you're out of luck. But nothing's perfect, right?

TOM: Once the application senses that you're moving at vehicle speed, it shuts down some or all aspects of the phone. One app might turn the whole phone into a brick. Another app blocks texting. One is highly customizable.

RAY: In all cases, once the car is stopped for a certain amount of time, the phone is released again to fully function for the user.

TOM: A few of these apps have override systems so that, presumably, a passenger can program in some numbers and then text and chat while the driver pays full attention to the road. Of course, teenagers will figure out how to scam that one in no time.

RAY: They all allow you to dial 911 anytime, and allow certain "emergency numbers," like parents' numbers, to get through under all conditions.

TOM: They're not perfect, but they're worth a look. Their names are iZup, CellSafety, ZoomSafer and TXTBlocker.

Is engine rev harmful, or just annoying?

Dear Tom and Ray:

My wife and I live out in Southern California and have some ... well, to be polite, interesting neighbors in our condo complex. One couple in particular is very proud of the Porsche 911 Carrera they're leasing. The car probably is a 2007 (about a year older than the woman's face ... the rest of her is a 1950-something). Whenever they start up this car, or before they turn it off, they make sure that they rev the engine loudly, in case we all forgot that they have a Porsche. My question is this: Can revving the engine while the car is not moving damage anything? — Chris

TOM: Well, clearly it can damage relations between neighbors, Chris. Not that there's going to be anything left to damage after she reads your comments about her new kisser!

RAY: The answer is that damage can occur from revving, but it has nothing to do with whether the car is moving — it depends on whether the car is warmed up yet. So, in the case of your neighbors, they may be doing damage by revving it first thing in the morning, but not at night, after they've just driven the car home.

TOM: When you first start a cold engine, especially if the outside temperature is low, it takes the oil a few seconds to build up pressure and fully circulate. That means for those first few seconds, crucial parts of your engine are not fully protected.

RAY: That's why with modern, fuel-injected cars, you're not supposed to step on the gas at all when you start the engine. You just turn the key, and ba-da-bing, the engine starts and automatically idles at a nice, low RPM.

TOM: If you really stab the gas pedal the moment you start the car, and go VRRROOOM-VRRROOOOOOM right away, you will put extra wear and tear on things like the rings, the cylinder walls, the valves, the crankshaft, the bearings and other parts that absolutely require proper lubrication. And those parts are very expensive to replace.

RAY: Of course, your neighbors are just leasing this thing, so what do they care if it burns oil at 80,000 miles?

TOM: On the other hand, all they're really doing is enjoying their car. I mean, the engine of a Porsche does sound wonderful. In fact, I may buy one just so I can rev it up and listen to the engine.

RAY: I don't know, Tommy. If I were you, I think I'd save the money for your face.

their home while Larry strolls into the grocery and collects the money. It's a well thought out plan and they've planned for every contingency except the last minute tryst. Turns out her name was Mary and she's smart enough to have figured out what they're up to and she means to get a share of the kicks.

By the time you reach the 20-minute mark, they've gotten the money but you'd better buckle up now, because getting away with it will not be as easy they thought. Especially when a resourceful and wily law officer takes the case personally.

What follows is 70 minutes of beautifully choreographed car chases, while the characters begin to open up about themselves while dealing with the stress of a high speed pursuit.

The finale is the best sequence and includes a showdown with a deputy driving a pimped-out cruiser and an in-camera battle between a Dodge Charger and a helicopter. Great stuff that is even better if you take a few minutes to watch the extras, which include observations from the cast and director that shed some light on how dangerous it was to work on this film and how seriously everyone took their responsibilities.

This film may belong to the stuntmen but the actors deserve a little credit. They include a star turn by Peter Fonda, who is quite credible as Larry. Fonda is the anti-Fonda as he avoids drama and underplays his roles to perfection.

He is well matched by Susan George (hot off her career making role in Sam Pekinpah's "Straw Dogs") as Mary. George manages a decent American accent but she's at her best during the quiet moments when she's just taking in all of the insanity around her.

Vic Morrow makes for a fine foil as Franklin. He comes across as shrewd and just proud enough that he will take this chase to the limit. There is also a blink-and-you'll-miss-it cameo from Roddy McDowall as the supermarket manager. He appears unbilled as a favor to the director and was also a featured player in the film they knocked off of the number one spot, making April 1974 McDowall's best month (not too bad considering his lifelong career included "My Friend Flicka" and "Planet of the Apes.")

This one hasn't aged a bit (scenes from Quentin Tarantino's "Death Proof" will look familiar after seeing this) and it still contains the best ending in an action movie — ever. It's an ending that's as shocking as it is sudden, and it was the reason that John Hough agreed to direct the film. Stick around for it. It should be required viewing for every teen on the cusp of getting their license. Best line: "Will you stop calling me dingleberry?" 1974, rated PG.

Four exceptional films made their DVD debuts this week, with each film giving viewers a chance to catch some great work that wasn't seen by enough moviegoers.

■ "A Single Man" — Colin Firth gives the performance of a lifetime here as a depressed man methodically planning out his suicide after losing his lover in L.A., circa 1962. This may sound pretty bleak but the film has a lot to say about living as well and owes much of its success to Firth's acting (which was recognized with an Oscar nomination).

■ "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo" — One member of a rich and troubled family is convinced that a relative murdered his daughter in this sharp adaptation of Steig Larsen's thriller that begat two sequels. This one has plenty of twists, as the man engages a disgraced reporter and a brutal computer hacker to investigate his own family. See this before the American remake tones it all down. Be sure to check out the two sequels, which are scheduled to debut later in the year and include "The Girl who Played with Fire" and

"The Girl who Kicked the Hornet's Nest."

■ "Brooklyn's Finest" — The director of "Training Day" returns with an examination of large scale police corruption in the titular borough with this drama that failed to ignite at the box office. What a shame as this sleek thriller features a whole host of great actors. Ethan Hawke, Don Cheadle and Richard Gere star as three cops with shady records heading for a deadly showdown. Supporting casts don't get much better than this and include Lili Taylor, Will Patton, Wesley Snipes and Ellen Barkin.

■ "Last Chance to See" — Absolutely no one turned out for this documentary on endangered species. Maybe that's part of the problem, but viewers who rent this documentary will be surprised at how funny it is when it isn't driving audience to tears. It is actually a sequel to an effort made 20 years ago by the late Douglas Adams (author of "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy" novels) and zoologist Mark Carwardine. Now comedian, actor, and writer Stephen Fry joins Carwardine to check up on the critters previously profiled. The results are somewhat shocking, but there's always hope that people will see the movie and pay attention.

Next week looks safe enough for viewers wanting some distraction with the debuts of "The Bounty Hunter" and "Our Friend's Wedding."

Strange ... but true

■ You might be surprised to learn that it was theoretical physicist Albert Einstein, one of the best-known scientists of all time, who made the following sage observation: "If you want your children to be intelligent, read them fairy tales. If you want them to be more intelligent, read them more fairy tales."

■ On average, a man's beard grows about a half-inch every month.

■ Do you suffer from coprolalia? I would hope not! If you're a word deconstructionist and up on your Greek, you might be able to figure out that coprolalia means an uncontrollable use of obscene language, since "copro" means "dung" and "lalia" means "chatter" or "babble."

■ Marilyn Monroe's iconic film "Some Like It Hot" (which in 2000 was named the greatest American comedy film of all time by the American Film Institute) was originally titled "Not Tonight Josephine!"

■ The next time you have jury duty and want to get out of it, you might want to keep this in mind: A judge in Liverpool, England, dismissed a man from the jury when fellow jurors complained about the fleas in his beard.

■ At one time, the Catholic Church considered it sinful to eat a hot dog.

■ If you're ever visiting Egypt and asking for directions, remember that in that country, "upstream" means south.

■ It's probably fair to say that people have been enjoying mixed alcoholic beverages for hundreds of years, but the word "cocktail" wasn't in general use until 1888, when it was printed for the first time, in a bartender's manual.

■ In Connecticut in the 17th century, it was illegal to smoke more than one cigarette a day, and that one had to be smoked at home.
