State budget contains Floyd projects

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

FRANKFORT — The General Assembly finalized a two-year-budget and road plan over the course of Friday and Saturday nights that will see Floyd County receive $66 million in funding for various projects over the course of the time.

Most of the money, $62.6 million, will be used for road projects such as the continued efforts on the Minnie-Harold connector, which will alone make up $40 million of that amount, said House Speaker Greg Stumbo who has been part of that project since its beginning several years ago. "Although we wish we could have done much more for education and the economy, I am proud that we're able to keep basic services intact and that, here at home, we were able to do a lot of positive things," Stumbo said. Some $3.21 million of the funding will be used for a variety of coal-severance tax projects and yet remaining amounts will be used on projects in the southern end of the county, Stumbo added. "We included more than $40 million for the Minnie-Harold connector, for example, and helped Wheelwright with its gym and swimming pool," Stumbo added, saying also he was pleased to see funding go to scholarships to the Highlands Center for Autism to help families cover tuition costs. More charity golf tournaments are also in the works for the center, Stumbo said, in order to bring the total of school or personal donations to $100,000 a year.

MOVING ALONG

Utility workers were well underway with work along West Graham Street Tuesday morning as Prestonsburg officials continued the process of replacing the outdated and problematic sewer system currently in place. The overall project has a price tag of about $8 million.

$8 million sewer project continues to move along

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — As summer settles across the city of Prestonsburg with temperatures peaking at more than 100 degrees in the past week, Mayor Jerry Fannin is, for once, optimistic about a reoccurring problem during this time of year.

In the past several weeks, city workers have been tearing up the old sewer system and replacing it with new pipes and other equipment. The work has focused so far along South Lake Drive, but turned the corner onto West Graham and beyond to Westminster and Deep Streets in the last few days.

"By replacing the open grates with closed grates and just an overhaul that's long been needed, but lacked funding," Fannin said. "Anytime you've got one of these old systems, you've got a problem with smell, especially in summertime and when the rains move the sewage and then it dries out and it's not moving fast enough."

The outdated sewer system that has served the city for several decades has long been a problem for residents during hot weather and heavy rains. Open sewer grates, constructed decades ago under earlier guidelines, have consistently created an odor throughout parts of the city that even became the focus of one opponent's campaign against Fannin for the mayor's seat eight years ago when Thomas Hereford ran advertisements that criticized the problem.

"One of the guys who ran against me said we needed to fix the problem," Fannin continued. "It's easy to say that, but it's hard to come up with the funding and we're not the only city that has had this problem."

HAROLD — A Harold woman is charged with second-degree cruelty to animals for allegedly shooting her neighbor's horse.

According to the police report, Clarondia Lou Hall, 40, allegedly shot a horse belonging to Jill Tackett on May 15.

The horse reportedly had a wound on its hip that appeared to be made from a gunshot, according to the police report.

According to a police interview with Tackett, she was fixing dinner when three boys knocked on her door and said, "Clarondia said tell you come get your horse. She shot it," Tackett told the

Magistrate seeks to void indictment

PAINTSVILLE — Martin County Magistrate John Harmon is fighting the basis of an indictment handed down against him in Johnson County last week, saying the allegations brought against him are "vague" and that he should have access to testimony that would paint a clearer picture for him as to exactly what he has been accused of in the action.

Harmon was elected May 18 to a third-term as a Martin County magistrate, just

BUCKLEY'S CREEK — With the success of past RAM events, organizers have scheduled another in Pike County later this month.

RAM (Remote Area Medical) Expeditions offer free medical, dental and vision clinics for all ages. This year's event is set for June 19 and 20 and will take place at Pike County Central High School.

Doors will open at 6 a.m. and without a pre-registration process, organizers have stressed visitors will be seen on a "first-come, first-serve" basis, while saying the that not everyone who turns out may be able to be treated based on the limited amount of supplies that will on hand for the event.

Among the free services offered, as has been the case in past years, will screenings for cholesterol, diabetes, cardiovascular disease, as well as female and male exams, including breast, cervical and prostate exams.

With a timeline of about one year to a year-and-a-half for the current work, Fannin said he hopes later to move into the West Prestonsburg area and a new plant or plant upgrade for the city.

The current work, which will most importantly, according to Fannin, include either plant work or a completely new plant at the lower end of the city at the sewer plant near Big Sandy Community and Technical College, will have an estimated cost of about $8 million.

Of that $8 million, some $5 million alone will be used on the plant near the college, said Fannin.

Fannin said the city has been seeking the grants for years, but that funding will often come in a rotating basis.

"Some years they may focus on tourism or other things, but the grants we've been needing for sewer work come this year," he said.

two days prior to his indictment in Paintsville. That indictment states a grand jury found cause to hand down a felony charge of theft by unlawful taking against Harmon for allegedly submitting travel vouchers for unauthorized travel and expenses, including travel to and from Martin County outside of jail business and unauthorized travel to conferences with related expenses.

Harmon's attorney, John Kirk, argues in a motion to dismiss the indictment that the details of the charge are such that his client can only "guess" as to "what illegal conduct the Commonwealth is claiming."

Kirk says that Harmon cannot defend such "vague charges."

In response, Harmon is seeking to obtain a transcript of the testimony given to the grand jury in the case, one of the key components of a jury's decision-making process.

Kirk, however, in filing his motion to dismiss, said that a request to prosecutors on May 27 to see the witness testimony in the case was turned down.

"The accused, unless the said grand jury testimony transcript is delivered to him as requested, will be expected to appear in court and will be expected to say 'guilty' or 'not guilty' without knowing more than is contained in the vague allegations against him in the indictment," Kirk wrote in his motion.

A longtime politician in his home county of Martin, Harmon, of Pilgrim, offered as an exhibit to accompany his motion to dismiss a letter of support signed by Martin County Judge-Executive Kelly Callahan, Martin County Sheriff Garmon Preece, Martin County Clerk

Carol Sue Mills and Martin County Deputy Judge-Executive Mike Crum.

Beginning by saying the four had known Harmon for many years and found him to be a "hard-working, honest, truthful person," the county officials went on to respond directly to the indictment itself.

"It was with shock, dismay and disbelief that we recently learned that a Johnson County grand jury had indicted John Harmon on a charge of dishonestly," the undersigned letter stated, "and, frankly we do not believe the charges have merit; rather, we believe that there surely is some sort of 'misunderstanding' and believe that when all facts are known that John Harmon will be cleared of any wrongdoing."

In the event Harmon's request to dismiss the indictment, Kirk filed an alternative motion to reset Harmon's arraignment.

interviewing officer that Hall still had the gun in her hand and said, "I told you if he got back in my yard I'd kill him." Tackett said the horse was lying in a pool of blood inside a barn belonging to Hall.

In her interview with police two days after the incident, Hall said that the horse put her father in danger, forcing her to shoot it. In the statement, Hall said that the horse was on her property chasing her mare for at least two hours before running it into the barn. Hall said her father went in the barn to get the mare out and Tackett's horse pinned him to the wall.

"I thought he was going to kill my dad, and that's when I shot it," Hall said.

Hall's father, Jack Bush Sr., gave a statement similar to his daughter's, and Hall's sister, Penny Bush, also gave a similar statement.

Hall is scheduled to be arraigned on the charge in Floyd District Court on Thursday.

State needs action on pension reform

It's been nearly two years since lawmakers met in special session to pass a first stage of reforms to the state's public employee pension system.

At the time, the system was underfunded by $27 billion due to the generous package of benefits Kentucky has offered state workers and teachers that for years hasn't been fully paid for by lawmakers.

That 2008 special session was supposed to be the start of the work to bring pension costs under control. House Bill 1 passed during the session was supposed to just be a first step to avoid the long-term bankrupting of the state that would come by fulfilling the promises made but not paid for by the General Assembly.

Instead, that's been the last serious attempt at pension reform, and there's been little indication from legislative leaders that they plan to finish the job.

The consequences of continuing to ignore pension reform, and the challenges of finally addressing it, become more prevalent each day. Look to Europe, where the government of Greece faced collapse due to the heavy burden of public employee pensions there. Efforts in Greece to raise the retirement age and freeze benefits prompted riots even while the Greek government's debt threatened to bring down the economy of the country and Europe.

Kentucky isn't the only state facing the prospect of owing far more than it can pay to its employees as its public work force ages and state revenues dry up. States are raising retirement ages for new hires, like Kentucky did in 2008, and considering moving away from defined benefit plans toward defined contribution plans like 401(k) plans offered in the private sector. No state has found the right long-term solution, and reforms have faced opposition each step of the way despite the growing threat to state treasuries.

In February, the Pew Center on the States released a report that said states are $1 trillion short of the money they need to pay for public pension and retiree health care benefits. The situation is even more dire than what lawmakers faced in 2008 when they met in special session to enact initial reforms.

But at least in Kentucky, the response to the impending financial crisis brought on by its pension promises is more hand-wringing rather than problem-solving.

Because of the "inviolable contract" that Kentucky has with its employees to provide pension benefits, there's no clear path how to avert the financial disaster that the cost of these benefits could cause on the state treasury. Lawmakers should be held accountable for putting the state on the hook for billions of dollars in benefits while putting off paying the bill that grows larger each year.

The need for pension reform won't diminish even as the economy improves, and for now Kentucky has no way to meet its obligations. The balanced budget just passed that brought across-the-board cuts to most state agencies includes only a portion of what's required to make the pension system whole in the future, and stepping up payments into the system in future years will bring even more tough choices.

The public, including public employees, can't continue to let the legislature push pension reform off into the future or state workers will be left with no retirement security and taxpayers will be faced with a bankrupt Kentucky state treasury.

House week in review

by REP. HUBERT COLLINS

Talk of a budget impasse turned to talk of budget passage in Frankfort on Friday as lawmakers neared the end of a six-day special session by passing a $17 billion two-year spending plan that slashes spending by at least $1 billion from 2009 levels and doesn't raise a single tax.

The bare-bones 2010-2012 Executive Branch budget package, which includes the state spending plan and a revenue plan, includes virtually all the recommendations in the governor's latest compromise budget, along with specific House and Senate provisions required to help the state weather a budget shortfall of at least $1 billion over the next budget cycle.

Both the governor and the General Assembly agreed early in the 2010 Regular Session — which ended last month — that there would be no new taxes in any budget that was passed. The plan, instead, was to reach a deal that would avoid a government shutdown while plugging the expected two-year shortfall.

The budget, passed and sent to the governor for his signature on Friday, accomplishes these goals through cuts of 3.5 percent in fiscal year 2011 and 4.5 percent in 2012 for most state agencies with lesser cuts for postsecondary education and Corrections-increased government efficiencies, limited new bond indebtedness (which means no newly authorized water or sewer projects for Kentucky communities this next budget cycle) and funding from the revenue plan. Exempt from across-the-board cuts that most agencies will face are Medicaid, merit-based KEES scholarships earned by thousands of Kentucky high school students each year, and per-pupil funding that public schools receive through the state's SEEK formula designed to equalize education funding among school districts.

The two-year spending plan maintains all 177 instructional days currently on the public school calendar (with one day paid for by school districts and the rest paid for by the state), holds down additional General Fund-supported debt, limits agency-fund debt for universities and other entities to around $515 million, adds around $20 million to the state's "rainy day" budget reserve trust fund, and allows the governor to order furloughs without disproportionately targeting lower-paid workers. Changes to employee and teacher health insurance also ordered by the budget are expected to save the state around $94 million over the two years.

Added to the budget in the final hours of the special session was a mechanism for school districts to fund aging schools most in need of replacement. Under that plan, the state will match funding for districts that levy what is called an "equalizing nickel", or 5 cents per $100 in property value, to fund facilities construction. The money would only go to so-called "Category 5" schools — those facilities considered to be in the worst shape.

The revenue plan, also given final passage and sent to the governor Friday, is expected to save the state upwards of $89 million over the budget cycle through tax code changes, including modifications to the state's new home tax credit and a credit for the film industry. Tax incentives to benefit rural and low-income communities through business investment are also part of the revenue legislation.

The Executive Branch budget was the top priority this special session, although other state priorities were also taken up and approved. One of those priorities was a bill to shore up the state's ailing Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund. That measure — which is similar to a bill that passed the House but stalled in the Senate in the recent Regular Session — gained success on Friday when it was given final passage in the Senate. The bill now goes to the governor for his signature.

Supporters of the unemployment bill say it will help balance the fund that pays weekly benefits to Kentucky's thousands of unemployed by gradually reducing the percentage of weekly benefits paid by the state and raising the taxable wage base that determines employer premiums paid into the fund. Employers are expected to save money under the measure, which became necessary after months of high unemployment forced Kentucky to borrow hundreds of millions of dollars from the federal government to keep the fund afloat.

Agreement on a two-year state road plan and a bill that will fund operations of the Transportation Cabinet was reached on Saturday. The bills, passed late Saturday night, will provide funding in several key transportation areas through 2012, and lawmakers were determined to see the measures passed. Important work on roads, bridges, aviation and other areas can continue because of action taken on these bills in special session.

The final item on the governor's special session agenda was a call to allow distilleries and wineries to offer free samples of their product at locations other than their private grounds. Both the House and Senate took up separate measures to allow the businesses to offer samplings or tastings of beverages like Kentucky Bourbon and wine at such events as the upcoming Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games and Kentucky Derby, although neither bill was passed into law by the end of the session. It is possible, however, that some expansion of sampling will be addressed by the governor through executive order.

My colleagues and I are very pleased that we were able to finish this special session within the one-week time period lawmakers had set for ourselves (although we had hoped for five days instead of six). But the good thing is the extra day enabled us to take care of the transportation issues left hanging Friday night as midnight approached.

The budget is stark, given our state's economic situation, but we have hope that our finances will have improved enough by the 2011 Regular Session that more money can be put into education, human services and other critical areas that have suffered this recession along with so many Kentuckians.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCE

Let the sunshine in

by SANDY MILLER HAYS
AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

I'm sure you've all seen that TV commercial where the young man is talking on his cellphone and keeps asking over and over again, "Can you hear me now?" In a slight variation on that theme, I'm just glad that you can't see me now — because I look more like a raccoon than any human being should look!

If you're a regular reader of this column, you know that my husband and I love to sail. And this past Saturday was one of the most perfect sailing days we've ever experienced: pleasant temperatures, winds just right, bright blue sky with big fluffy clouds. Since it wasn't overly warm, I was covered head to toe — hat, sunglasses, long sleeves, long pants — and I didn't even think about sunburn until day's end.

Then I discovered that even on cool days, you need sunscreen! I'm your classic redhead with pale skin and freckles, and when I took off my sunglasses, the part of my face that they had covered was still pale and freckled — but the rest of my face is red as the proverbial beet. The result: a red-and-white raccoon mask! (Although it doesn't take much to sizzle me; I could probably get a sunburn from my makeup mirror light.)

So I definitely got too much of a good thing on Saturday ... but in fact, sunshine really is good for you (heads-up to all the computer geeks out there who get the bulk of their light exposure from their computer screens).

Did you know you can get a vitamin from sunshine? That may sound like an old wives' tale, but it's true. According to the National Institutes of Health, vitamin D is known as the "sunshine vitamin," because the body manufactures this particular vitamin after exposure to sunshine. Now you certainly don't have to do what I did on Saturday; just 10 to 15 minutes of sunshine three times a week is enough to produce the body's requirement of vitamin D.

Yet, odd as it may seem, even people living in sunny climates don't always make enough vitamin D naturally, and may need to acquire more through their diet or dietary supplements.

Vitamin D isn't hard to find in the foods we eat; it's in cheese, butter, cream and especially milk, which in this country is typically fortified with vitamin D. It's also in fish, oysters, fortified cereals and margarine.

And if you're a "lady of a certain age" (as I am), you might even find your doctor prescribing a super-dose of vitamin D — as much as 50,000 International Units (IU) — to be taken once a week or perhaps once a month.

Why all the emphasis on vitamin D? It's because this particular vitamin helps your body absorb calcium — and the older we get, the more important that is.

In fact, among older adults, the popular thinking often runs that boosting calcium intake is a good way to reduce the likelihood of a bone fracture in case of a fall. But a study funded in part by the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) has shown just how important vitamin D is in the equation, versus just loading up on more calcium.

Our current calcium intake recommendations are not tied to vitamin D. Here in the United States, that recommended amount is 1,200 milligrams (mg) daily for adults aged 50 and older.

The study funded by ARS involved about 10,000 men and women aged 20 and older. The study leaders looked at the participants' blood levels of 25-hydroxyvitamin D as the primary indicator of vitamin D adequacy. Among the participants, a large fraction of the younger as well as the older adults

Ten Years Ago (May 28, May 31, and June 2, 2000)

Johnny Ray Turner, who voters elected to serve as their new state senator for Floyd, Johnson, Knott and Breathitt Counties, is inviting his new constituents to get to know him a little better. On Thursday, Turner will be at Archer Park to meet local residents and hear their concerns.

Shirley Plymale, of Louisville, is dead after the truck she was riding in went out of control and slammed into a coal truck. She was driving north on Route 199 at Stone when she lost control of her vehicle.

Thunderstorms, left little in the way of damage, Saturday, but did cause some inconvenience. A downed 7,200-volt power line, on Front Street in Prestonsburg left nearby residents without power for hours. The line went down around 11 a.m. and Prestonsburg firefighters, were called to the scene to prevent traffic and pedestrians from getting near the line. American Electric Power workers, finished repairs at 3 p.m., but not before having to shut down a power grid for 45 minutes, leaving most of the city in the dark.

A Prestonsburg family has filed a lawsuit against Billy Frasure Trucking Company and others seeking damages for injuries that allegedly occurred while unloading a tractor-trailer. Filed last Friday, May 19, the suit alleges Randall Risner was injured, May 21 of last year in the process of working for the trucking company.

Coal mine blasting is a serious public concern and has been the topic of much debate in recent years. Kentucky leads the nation in the use of explosives, primarily due to coal mining activities. Three families currently have cases in Floyd Circuit Court, alleging their homes or properties were damaged by mine blast.

Four bids were received by the city of Prestonsburg for the construction of its mountaintop golf course clubhouse. All of the bids reached more than a half million dollars, with two nearing the million-dollar mark. The Prestonsburg Properties Commission met briefly, Tuesday morning, to receive the bids. Ranger Construction and the commission gave the nod of acceptance to Goggins.

Back in the winter, the Times ran several stories about Brian Hughes and his struggle with leukemia. Family, friends, and community members provided financial and emotional support to Hughes and his family. The Markey Cancer Center at the University of Kentucky Chandler has found a donor for Hughes and say it is a 100 percent match.

Local and regional leaders met with the Appalachian Regional Commission to brainstorm ways that agency can better meet the needs of distressed counties.

Saying they do not believe local, state and federal authorities have done enough to combat the spread of meningitis in local schools, a group of parents and others held a protest along US 23 at the entrance to Betsy Layne Elementary, site of the most recent outbreak. Holding handmade signs urging the school board to shut down the school for the rest of the year and the federal Centers for Disease Control to investigate the cause of the illness, as well as asking passing motorists to show their support by honking, many in the group said they plan to continue their protest until their demands are met.

The Floyd County Board of Education met in special session, Tuesday night, to consider, among other things, a topic that stirred some controversy—the reorganization of the central office. Before the board got into agenda items, Supt. Paul Fanning briefed the board on the meningitis situation at Betsy Layne Elementary. Jody Mullins said the board should have a special meeting at Betsy Layne to at least hear the parents' concern.

Twenty Years Ago (May 30 and June 1, 1990)

As predicted, voter turnout was poor with only 33 percent of those registered bothering to vote.

A trip to Frankfort by Jenny Wiley Theatre representatives last week resulted in commitments by state officials to assure adequate parking for theater-goers, despite the construction of a convention center going on in the middle of the theatre parking lot.

The debate is heating up over the presence of a medical waste incinerator at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Residents met to discuss their fears, and officials of Medisin, the HRMC affiliate that operates the incinerator, said the facility is safe.

The Jenny Wiley Theatre season opens June 5 with a performance of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat."

There died: Delphia Cole Bailey, 83, of Allen, May 24, at Highlands Regional Medical Center; Kenneth D. Maggard Sr., 79, of Pearisburg, Virginia, formerly of Hindman, May 21, in Altamonte Springs, Florida; Johnnie Fielding Hoover, 75, of Hueysville, May 28, at his residence; Julia Bradley Moore, 86, of Dema, May 26, at the home of a daughter, Edythe Faye Reynolds Kemp, 52, of Milton, West Virginia, formerly of Ligon, May 27, at HRMC; Evan Hamilton, 71, of El Cagon, California, formerly of Craynor, May 18, in San Diego; Allie Fair Standifur Webb, 92, of Richmond, formerly of Floyd County, May 26, at Patty A. 29, at HRMC; Rev. Elder Kaney Goble, 72, of Prestonsburg, May 20, at HRMC.

Thirty Years Ago (May 28, 1980)

Two former department heads in the Prestonsburg Mine Reclamation Office appeared before a federal grand jury last week. The grand jury is investigating reports Gene Stewart and Nevard Wells had been ordered to "hit" Martin County mines whose ownership did not support Terry McBrayer in the 1979 race for governor. Stewart and Wells allegedly received word from Gene Brandenburg, who was commissioner of the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement. Thirteen mines were on the "hit list".

Two bodies were recovered in the space of two days from the Big Sandy River. Robert Wayne Newsome drowned May 2 after a fishing boat capsized. Newsome's body was discovered this week by two fishermen. Charles Lee Hall drowned Friday after his boat capsized. Hall was discovered Saturday, about 300 feet downstream.

The bottom line from this study? Correcting inadequate blood levels of vitamin D could be more important than boosting your dietary calcium intake beyond an additional 566 mg a day for women and 626 mg a day for men to achieve better bone mineral density.

So, just like we learned in elementary school—if you want to do right by your bones, drink your milk every day, but be sure to go out and play in the sunshine, too!

Pikeville signs another NCAA D-I transfer

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE — Another player with vast NCAA Division I experience has joined the Pikeville College men's basketball program. Coach Kelly Wells and the Pikeville College men's basketball program have signed Youngstown State transfer Vance Cooksey for the 2010-11 season.

Cooksey is an accomplished 6-0 point guard from Marian Catholic High School (Chicago, Illinois).

As a junior during the 2009-10 season, Cooksey averaged 5.3 points, 2.3 rebounds and 2.0 assists per game at Youngstown State while competing in the Horizon League (NCAA Division I). A key contributor for Youngstown State, Cooksey logged minutes in all 30 of the team's games last season.

"We are very excited to add a player of Vance's credentials and experiences," Wells said. "Vance is a true point guard with the ability to score and distribute the basketball. He is a floor leader who is all about the TEAM and winning. He brings great academic credentials along with great basketball IQ. We anticipate Vance being an immediate impact on our team!"

After playing three seasons at Youngstown State, Cooksey will compete for the Bears during his senior season.

Mills named ALC women's basketball coach

PIPPA PASSES — John Mills is back on the sidelines at Alice Lloyd College. Mills has been named Alice Lloyd College women's basketball head coach. The former men's basketball head coach replaces Betty Noble-Acevedo as head coach of the Lady Eagles. Acevedo only spent one season as the ALC women's basketball head coach.

Mills guided the Berea College men's basketball team to a 19-10 record in the 2009-10 season. In an earlier stint, Mills guided the Alice Lloyd College men's basketball program.

Class 2A State Meet set for Thursday in Louisville

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

HYDEN — The Prestonsburg High School track and field program will be well-represented in this year's Class 2A State Meet. The Prestonsburg boys' team won the regional title for the first time in the Blackcat track and field program's history. The Prestonsburg girls finished fourth, turning its highest finish since 2002.

"We thought we had a good chance of pulling this off, but you never know for sure," Prestonsburg Coach Dewey Jamerson said. "With eight personal records and two season-bests for the girls and five personal records and two season-bests and four new school records on the boys' side, it made for a great day."

The Prestonsburg boys dominated the jumps.

"I told my boys' jumpers that we really needed to dominate the jumps and did they ever," Jamerson commented. "We scored four first-place finishes, one second-place, one third-place and one fifth-place. In all, we had three school records in the jumps and 62 points from the field event people. I will take that every year. I want to thank Coach John DeRossett and Coach James DeRossett for their help. The work these guys get in the weight room is a tremendous plus on the track."

Prestonsburg will compete in the Class 2A State Meet on Thursday at the University of Louisville.

A breakdown of Prestonsburg's individual results from the regional meet follows. The top two in each event qualified for the state meet.

Girls' 100 Meter Hurdles: Catherine Tincher, 1st, 17.98 (personal record).

Boys' 110 Meter Hurdles: Joseph Jamerson, 1st, 15.62; Wes Robinson, 5th, 20.06 (personal record).

Girls' 100 Meter Dash: Catherine Tincher, 2nd, 13.63 (personal record); Alessandra Lamolinara,

(See REGION, page three)

Josh Craynon (above) and Joseph Jamerson (below) each had first-place finishes in the regional meet held on Saturday in Leslie County. Several Prestonsburg track and field athletes have advanced to the State Meet.

Watkins finishes second in All-American event

TEE WATKINS

Morrow captures title ahead of local angler Tee Watkins

TIMES STAFF REPORT

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — Sometimes practice really does make perfect. Just ask boater Troy Morrow, who ran away with the 2010 All-American title with more than 8 pounds to spare by sticking to the successful patterns he found before the BFL championship began on DeGray Lake.

Local angler Tee Watkins (East Point) placed second behind Morrow in the event.

Morrow left his home in Toccoa, Ga., in time to allow himself seven practice days on central Arkansas' DeGray Lake leading up to May 17, the start of the off-limits period ahead of the All-American. After just four and a half days, he had 92 waypoints plugged into his Lowrance GPS unit and enough confidence in both the shallow and deep patterns he had developed that he decided to go home.

"This lake fit me to a T," he said. "Early in my practice, I could go down the shorelines and get 20 pounds easy — almost for the fun of it."

Morrow said he loves fishing jigs, but figured by the time the tournament kicked off May 27, it would be a contest won deep. He quickly switched it up and started honing in on a pattern that he applies on his home water of Lake Hartwell, another fishery with blueback herring as a primary baitfish.

"I practiced ahead of what the fish were doing," he said. "I fished out deeper to find a different pattern."

What he found was myriad locations with brush piles submerged in anywhere

(See WATKINS, page two)

ALL-CONFERENCE: 58th District champion Allen Central and runner-up Betsy Layne paced the All-Floyd County Conference Baseball Team.

ALL-DISTRICT: Allen Central took its sixth straight 58th District championship last week. Five Rebels were named to the All-58th District Baseball Tournament Team.

from 18 to 25 feet of Troy Morrow caught five-bass limits over the first two days and finished up Saturday with four bass for 8-11 water in the midlake area of DeGray. That way he could catch them with a fluke-style topwater bait over the brush in the mornings, and then transition to deeper fishing with crankbaits (Spro Little John, DD), which landed most of his kicker fish, or plastic worms (NetBait T-MAC).

"I like to fish jigs, but I could never get them to bite," he said. "But I love to fish deep, so it all worked out."

Morrow proved these methods Wednesday during the official practice day and went to work from there. He caught five-bass limits over the first two days of the tournament for 13 pounds, 12 ounces and then 16-6, and he finished up the event Saturday with four bass for 8-11, giving him a three-day total of 38-13, worth the first-place prize of $100,000 plus a $20,000 Ranger bonus.

Morrow - who said he works in construction, tree removal "or whatever it takes to get me to the next tournament" - doesn't lack confidence, a trait that served him well at the 2010 All-American and his him looking ahead.

"Needless to say, I won't be working for a while ... I just happen to live 35 miles from Lake Lanier (site of the Aug. 5-8 Forrest Wood Cup, for which he qualified via his All-American win)," he said, revealing the widest smile he'd shown onstage all week.

As the end of the weigh-in approached, the only boater left among the top 10 who had a chance of catching Morrow was Watkins, a veteran bass pro. But after a second-day surge, he couldn't repeat his success on Saturday, weighing only three fish for 5-6, giving him a three-day total of 30-12, and a runner-up check for $20,000 plus a $10,000 Ranger bonus.

"I stayed shallow and managed to get a good bite some of the days," Watkins said, adding that he fell victim to the fickle nature of the bass he'd patterned today. "I had the fish to win it, and I just missed a few - especially that big one on day one."

Watkins' primary pattern was swimming a 3/8-ounce black/blue Pro Cast jig made by Cumberland Pro Lures with a black/blue Berkley Critter Chunk on points along a six-mile stretch in the midlake area.

Boater Keith Green of Arkadelphia, Ark., finished third with 13 bass over three days for 30-8 and $16,000.

Watkins will return to competition this week, fishing in a BFL Volunteer Division event on Lake Chickamauga in Tennessee.

Free Fishing Weekend set for June 4-5

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT - Each year, the celebration of National Fishing and Boating Week includes Free Fishing Weekend. Anglers may fish in Kentucky June 5-6 without a fishing license, or a trout permit. All fishing regulations such as minimum size limits and daily creel limits remain in effect during Free Fishing Weekend.

This year, National Fishing and Boating Week runs June 5-13. The celebrations aim to bring new people into fishing, boating and other water-related recreation.

"We also want to stress that getting outside and enjoying fishing is a healthy activity for kids," said Marc Johnson, aquatic education coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "It gets them off the couch."

Kids ages 15 and under may fish without a license or permit year-round. The Free Fishing Weekend allows their parents or family visiting from out of state to join them for free.

The week starts early as the department hosts its annual Fishing Derby for youth ages 15 and under on Friday, June 4 from 5 to 8 p.m. The derby continues at 7 to 10 a.m. Saturday, June 5, at Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Headquarters off U.S. 60 in Frankfort. The Upper and Lower Sportsman's Lakes will be closed to adult anglers during the fishing derby.

"They will stock 1,200 catfish and 1,000 sunfish up to 1/2 pound in the lake," Johnson said. "After the kids are done June 5, the public is welcome to fish the lakes after 10 a.m."

Prizes will be awarded by random drawing throughout the event. "We try and make sure everyone walks away with something," Johnson said.

The event is free, but participants must register at the lake to be eligible for prizes. Participants are encouraged to bring their own fishing equipment and preferred baits or lures. A limited amount of fishing equipment and bait will be provided for those who need it. Participants do not have to re-register on Saturday if they want to fish both days.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife stocks 29 lakes with good-sized fish as part of its Fishing in Neighborhoods (FINs) program. These lakes are all located near cities.

"All FINs lakes have recently been stocked or will be stocked prior to the Free Fishing Weekend," said Dane Balsman, urban fisheries biologist for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife.

Daily limits for most FINs lakes include five rainbow trout, four catfish, one large-mouth bass and 15 bluegill. Anglers cannot exceed these limits during Free Fishing Weekend.

For more information about the FINs program, including directions to lakes, go online to fw.ky.gov/urban-fishing.asp.

Wildcats to play Portland in 2010-11

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON – En route to the 2010 EA Sports Maui Invitational (Nov. 22-24, 2010), the University of Kentucky men's basketball team will make a stopover in Portland, Ore., to take on the University of Portland on Nov. 19, 2010, head coach John Calipari announced on Friday. A start time and broadcast information has yet to be determined.

In an effort to break up the long trip to Hawaii, the Wildcats signed a contract with Portland, stating that in exchange for this year's game, the Pilots will make two trips to Lexington in the upcoming 2012 and 2013 seasons. The game is scheduled to be played in the Rose Garden, home of the Portland Trailblazers.

"When I arrived at Kentucky and first looked at the schedule, we immediately started talking about the possibility of breaking up our trip to Maui by playing a game on the West Coast," Calipari said. "Portland gives us the opportunity to play in a great basketball city with a great venue, and more importantly, gives Terrence Jones a chance to go home and play in front of his family and friends."

UK defeated Portland in their lone meeting, an 88-71 win in the 1990 UKIT. The game will also mark the first appearance by the Wildcats in the state of Oregon.

Fans interested in the roundtrip air charter with the UK men's basketball team and coaching staff via Delta Air Lines from Lexington to Portland to Maui should contact Total Sports Travel at 1-888-367-8781 or email info@totalSportsTravel.com.

Single-game tickets for the game will go on sale July 30 at 1 p.m. ET through all participating Safeway/TicketsWest outlets, by calling 877.789.ROSE (7673), at ComcastTIX.com or in-person at the Rose Quarter Box Office (M-F 10a.m.-5 p.m., local time). Ticket prices will range from $12 to $50.

Fans living in the Portland area can secure preferred seats to the event by purchasing Portland season tickets or a four-game flex pack, available now by calling the Portland Box Office at (503) 943-7525. Season tickets for the 2010-11 season will cost $195 for Upper Level Reserved and $280 for Lower Level Reserved, while flex packs are $75.
