GREENBURY HALL CASE GIVEN JURY THURSDAY MORN

Jurors, Still Deliberating Thursday Afternoon

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA

At 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon the jury in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Greenbury Hall, of Harrod, charged with the murder of Walter Hall, failed to reach a verdict. Though a verdict may be forthcoming, those interested in the case anticipate a lengthy deliberation on the part of the jury before a final report upon it.

It is reported by those in the Commonwealth who are interested in the case that Hall fired upon Bob without warning, while the latter was attending a party at the home of a neighbor. Hall fired a shot and a man from a shotgun was in the act of firing a shot at the man who had fired the first shot. The man who fired the first shot was identified as Fred and his father, Harry Hall, of the post office street and Co.

TO INVESTIGATE FREIGHT RATES

Move of Vital Importance to Kentucky Business

The committee in the history of the Commonwealth of Kentucky has long been interested upon motion of the Kentucky Railroad Commission an investigation of rates and commodity rates in seven points in the state of Kentucky.

The investigation has been in progress, being registered under Docket No. 344.

Behind this investigation is of vital importance to every citizen of the Commonwealth, and that every citizen concerned in any way with freight rates should find their assistance in the Ashland Traffic Bureau is offering its services, gratis, to any shipper, including organization of shippers of commerce desiring to affiliate themselves with the state in this proceeding in the way of preparing rate exhibits and representing such organizations at the hearings now being held.

Under the direction of J. W. Cunniff, attorney general, M. B. Hoffield, assistant attorney general, and D. C. Vest, counsel for the Railway Commission, there has been published in brief form a review of the freight rate situation which has been taken from study of rates compiled by L. E. Orr and Charles Satterfield, rate analyst.

This comprehensive review is worthy of much consideration on the part of every citizen of Kentucky, as the review clearly and concisely shows why Kentucky cannot industrialize.

Co-operation and assistance of the public is sought in the conducting of this investigation, as the future of Kentucky depends largely upon the facts developed in this docket.

Dr. W. J. Fitzpatrick, of Miami, Fla., arrived a few days ago for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Rosalind Fitzpatrick, and other relatives.

Community Chest Is Being Sponsored Here

Experiences of the times, with a black winter ahead and wide-spread unemployment and suffering in prospect have caused certain notable forces in Prestonsburg this year to take steps toward the realization of a Community Chest, such as has been used for the relief of the poor in other towns and cities for years.

According to present plans, an office will be opened in the Fitzpatrick building, and local organizations will be asked by the cooperation of the Floyd county health department and the American Red Cross.

STRESS LOCKING, DAMMING OF BIG SANDY AT MEET

Adherents of Project Argue Move of Greatest Importance

INTEREST SHOWN

Pikeville, Ky., Nov. 25.—After a silence of 20 years, the vibrant echo of the steamboat whistle could almost be heard again here Monday afternoon in the congressional session.

Major Herman came here yesterday to conduct a hearing for the War Department on the lock and dam project.

Mrs. John W. Linsley, representative of this district in Congress, spoke in favor of the project and said she would see a conference with the President and the committee on rivers and harbors and the War Department with a view to postponing the interment of the project. She also stated that she would see a conference with the War Department on the lock and dam project.

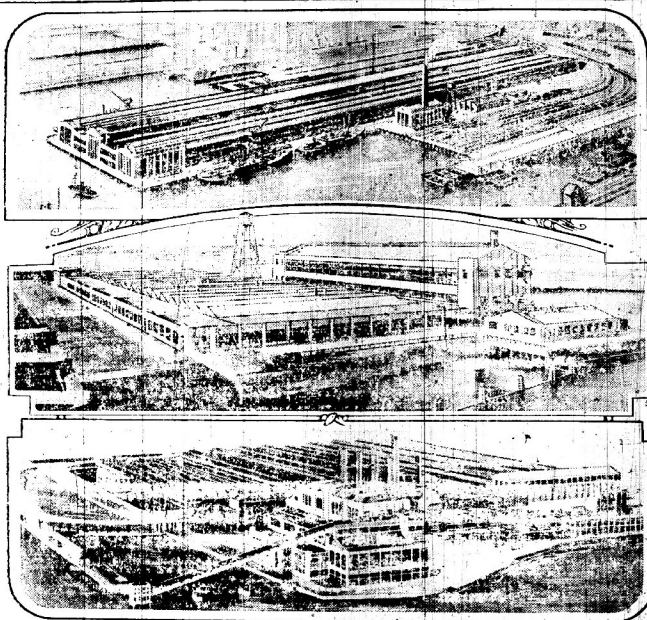

The improvements will be dropped nearly 20 years ago after three locks and dams were constructed in the Big Sandy and one in the Lewis fork and one in the Turck fork, on a course of the small stream of fresh waters.

Since then there has been marked development of the coal field and great increase in freight tonnage. Congressman Fred M. Vinson, of the Ninth district, referred to the project as one that would not only benefit the people of this county, but also of great benefit to the conspicious public of the central United States.

Mr. Vinson submitted printed briefs in support of the project. It was an excellent opportunity for a discussion of the subject contained in a protest he made against the abandonment of the Big Sandy river improvement in 1925.

Mr. Vinson pledged his full support to the completion of the project, promising to hold his bill in the Senate, if he might be able to give prefer to next March, with the year carries on the large in Congress.

PLAY BY PLAY

That Knute K. Rockne's celebrated Notre Dame football team was lucky to emerge from its encounter with Northwestern last Saturday afternoon seems is pretty well evident. Had not the gods smiled on the Irish, they would have been scored upon twice.

NICK WORK BLACKCATS
Frostburg high school has a good football team. By that, we don't mean that the Blackcats have a dangerous attack which can be depended upon to net into itself the long ends of games; but we do mean that the defensive ability makes it hard on other teams, while a fair offensive punts away.

In short, the Blackcat tribe is a fighting bunch of boys! Sometimes, we just revel in dope—especially when the dope makes our side bright and good. Study the figures of that Pikeville-Louisville game last Saturday. What do you see? Just this—that the team which Frostburg has twice held to a tie scored upon Louisville and barely lost by a one-touchdown margin.

THE SEASON'S YOUNG YET
Rather ironical of fate, it seems, that just when the Maytown consolidated school has a gymnasium, one of the finest in Eastern Kentucky, in which basketball games may be played, the Maytown team goes into a slump, losing to almost every opponent. A year or so ago, when the boys there played on an open dirt court, you had to get a wiggle on to beat them.

Early Railroads Carved Little for the Humble

The shades of early third-class travelers ought to smile with satisfaction on hearing the report that first class railway travel is "doomed." The railroads were planned for the wealthy. Down to 1850 the third-class passengers had no legal status at all, many companies refused to carry him at any price, while others put him in an open stock truck with movable seats placed across it and charged him 1 1/2 pence a mile for the privilege.

Great Mission Pioneer Revered in California

The mission of Carmel stands as a memorial to Father Ramon Messtres as well as to the great Padre Junipero Serra. Products of different epochs, Padre Serra and Father Messtres were both pioneers, the one in mission founding the oldest of San Carlos, which it was partly due to the fact that Father Messtres' birthplace in Spain was nearly that of Padre Serra (that is, in the district of San Carlos at Monterey, he was inspired with the zeal that restored the neighboring Carmel mission from the wreck into which it had fallen. The first restoration Father Messtres served the traditions of his church and the welfare of the state to which he brought back the remnants of the great age of romance of early California.

BLUE PRINTS WORTH MORE THAN BUNK

"Let me say to business and industry, this is your problem," writes a man to one of the "Inquirer's" columns in a Kentucky development, as he unfolds his solution of the unemployment puzzle. "You must solve it, or you must pay the bill," the writer adds, "addressing only men in business and industry went on and on. But he succeeded in giving his readers the benefit of his own patient experience, both in meeting pay rolls and in moving goods out of warehouses or off the shelves. Hundreds of Kentucky employers, who have been hesitating to keep the shops working during recent months would probably rather have workable employment blue prints than employment rhetoric."

The big interests of the country put forth what they call a solution to the present depression. They say to the people: "If you don't buy, you can't buy, you can't buy, you can't buy. That sounds good, but is it? In the first place, what are the people going to use for money? How can anyone buy now, or any other time, if he has no money with which to buy? How can the other side of the big list of retail dealers, although their factories are closed, still buy millions of dollars and are living in ease and luxury? If they had a bid to they could open up their factories and start production and give thousands of men and women work. They have the money to do this, if they would. They, and then only, can the people buy. The industrial capitalist over-production, but the only reason we have over production is because we have no money to buy with. Give the people jobs first—then they will buy. Ambitious are speculators and men with money in circulation and men with jobs, they would not be over-production long. Industrial production. "Buy Now" it seems that "Open the Factories Now" would be a far more reasonable request."

Words Can't Describe Good Karnak Did Me

"I used to think there was nobody in all the world happier than I about this wonderful medicine, Karnak. I have taken all kinds of medicines and treatments in the past ten years trying to get some relief from my suffering, but nothing helped me until I began Karnak.
"Oh, how I suffered with stomach trouble. I was almost a nervous wreck from it. I had no appetite to speak of, food just didn't have any taste to me. But even though I would only eat the lightest kind of things, I would suffer for just the same.
"I had just lost all my strength and at times would feel so weak I could hardly walk across the room.
"I could not eat and rest and I couldn't get any sleep to amount to anything, and in the morning I could hardly get myself out of bed. It began to look mighty blue for me, but Karnak has changed everything. It is too good for words."

PRESTONSBURG'S COMMUNITY AT THE CHEST ?

From now on during the hard winter, when a pitiful figure knocks at your door or pulls at your coat sleeve begging for food or clothes...

As for Thanksgiving, on this day, among other things, let us thank God for the long Indian Summer that has spared the poor from the agony of cold so long.

All of America is faced with the problem of unemployment and the needy now. And every self-respecting community is making organized effort to take care of its own situation.

The health unit has offered at their own initiative a room for the chest office. This is the large front upstairs room in the Fitzpatrick building.

The plan as formulated so far is to keep the Chest office open at least every afternoon except Sunday, throughout the winter, to keep a register of all applicants and their circumstances and what is furnished them.

First, clothing, to give of their immediate clothing and covers; also at least half a day of their time for each month. In this way we expect to have the chest office run by two women present every afternoon.

Second, all these employed at remunerative work to give money of its equivalent, such as staple foods, fuel, etc.

If you have a fire in your house and food on your table, then, at least this year, you are not poor. You are in a position to help others. It is evident that there will be whole families at the mercy of your efforts this winter.

This chest, which we expect all the churches and clubs in Prestonsburg to sponsor, is to be run in co-operation with the health department and the American Red Cross, we are very glad to know. However, since both these organizations are county-wide and can only give us our proportional share of help, the real burden rests on the shoulders of our good women and men, both young and old.

Let's get Let's erase the (C) by another week.

CERTIFICATES OF ELECTION ISSUED

Official Vote for Each Candidate Given in Report

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 24.—Certificates of election were issued by the State Board of Election Commissioners today to congressional candidates who won in the November 4 election. The election gave the Democrats a senate seat that has been held for the past six years by a Republican, and changed Kentucky's representation in the national House of Representatives from eight Republicans and three Democrats to nine Democrats and two Republicans.

STATES INDIAN POPULATION

Kentucky is the domicile of at least 14 noble Red Men. This fact is disclosed by the Bureau of the Census in announcing the figures which are the basis for representation where the state will have only nine representatives in the house, beginning with the 73rd Congress. The Bureau reports the population of Kentucky on April 1, 1930, as 2,914,599, but it subtracts 314 Indians not "assimilated" from this number.

Senator Alben W. Barkley is the other Democrat. Other certificates of election also were issued to Judge Basil Richardson, Democrat, who defeated Judge W. G. Grigsby, Republican, for judge of the court of appeals in the third appellate district; and to Scott Mayes, Democrat, who defeated J. Graham Cox, Republican, for judge of the Eleventh judicial district. Judge Grigsby was appointed to the bench last year by Governor Simpson to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Chief Justice H. A. McAnisles.

FOR KENTUCKY AUTOS

Registration fees for passenger automobiles will be governed by the new license act on and after next Tuesday, December 2. The rate of 1930 was changed at the last session of the General Assembly, reducing present registration fees by what has generally been calculated about 25 per cent. The new law fixes the fee at 50 cents for each horsepower of the vehicle registered to be calculated on the rating fixed by the Society of Automobile Engineers, plus 50 cents on each 100 pounds of seat automobile. The weight of the vehicle is to be determined by standard service bureau with the vehicle fully equipped. The old law fixed the registration fee at 700 cents for each horsepower of the vehicle registered.

Test for Posture

An excellent test for correct posture, says Margaret Agnew in the Parents' Magazine, is to stand facing the wall, placing the hands against the wall in front of the thighs so that the palms point upward. Now notice which part of the body strikes the wall first. If it is the chest, well and good; if it is the head, it is not so bad, but if the stomach touches first, something is wrong. To attain correct posture stretch the arms above the head until the back is arched and the chest high. Then with elbows pulled all the way down, draw the hands down to the shoulders, head back. Now retaining the general position of the body, return the hands to the sides and nod with head forward standing motionless. Stretch the arms above the head and incline pushing up with the arms from a standing position and holding the head in the same position.

Good roads produce benefits—social and economic—that cannot be adequately expressed in terms of easy money. They are the ground work on which to build a greater and more prosperous nation.

PLANNING AHEAD FOR ROADS

According to the Sixth International Road Conference recently held in Washington, D. C., all countries face the problem of providing secondary and local roads suited to the needs of the farmer and modern motor traffic. To do this, the conference points out that it is necessary to create highway progress years in advance. Funds must be carefully budgeted. Adjustments to meet changing conditions (or improper methods may be made as the projects develop. In this country few states have given sufficient attention to their farm-to-market or rural road problems. Within the last few years, however, the agricultural depression has brought vividly to the front the fact that farm progress in the future will depend largely upon good roads. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has pointed out that living standards are higher where roads are good than where they are poor. It is the duty of every citizen to see that his state has a good road system.
