AN IMPORTANT AGENCY

Reviewing the affairs of Floyd county during the past year, few but can be impressed with one factor which has played a far more important part in the welfare of this county's citizens than is readily recognized.

This agency is the county health department. Such a year as 1930 has been, with its long-continued drouth and disease-producing conditions, found Floyd county and all other counties in similar circumstances in greater need of an active, efficient health agency than ever before. It was possible, and we could pass through such a year WITHOUT this health department and then go through the same year WITH the aid of the department—then the contrast would be sharp, unforgettable, and everybody would know beyond the shadow of doubt the supreme need of such work.

Approval of the health department by the Floyd fiscal court and the resultant appropriation made by this body for continuance of health work through the year formed one of the truly progressive moves of the court last year. Who can criticize the court for this action—who cannot offer praise?

How many hundreds of children or men and women were saved from the ravages of typhoid during the past summer and autumn through precautionary measures taken by the Floyd county health department or by citizens at the urgent request of the health department? How many, as the result of inoculations made in 1930, will be saved in future years from the terrors of the disease?

Go on down the list of diseases, read in The Times of last week of the activities of the department. Consider the value of one life, the infinite tragedy and pity of one death which could have been thwarted by the proverbial "ounce of prevention" which is the health department's stock-in-trade. The work done by the health department, if valued in dollars and cents, runs above $50,000. But it cannot be reduced to the inartificialness of figures.

The health department costs Floyd county, as represented by the fiscal court, $1,750 annually. A like amount is paid annually by the county board of education. If this work should be discontinued, the fiscal court, acting under the law, would be obliged to establish a county health unit, with a physician placed at a salary of from $1,000 to $1,200 for part-time service. No physician valuing his private practice and his popularity as a private citizen can do, or can be expected to do, all the work to which the health department dedicates itself. Consequently, the change from the present health department, which has the backing of the United States Public Health Service and the Rockefeller Foundation to the health unit would be a saving in money of only a few hundred dollars and the loss of service which, if bought at established rates, would cost thousands.

If The Times has been remiss in its praise of the Floyd fiscal court and the Floyd county board of education in its support during the past year of the Floyd county health department, it has neglected its duty, and to its apology adds the promise that future support of this work—support which, we believe, will be forthcoming—will not pass unnoticed.

CLOWN IN THE PULPIT?

The spirit of the jester and the symbolic cap and bells are not uncommon to the pulpit nowadays. "The Baptist," religious publication for the church of the same name, says, in a recent article.

Decrying such vulgarization of religion, the magazine mentions as typical of such pulpit buffoonery such sermon topics as these, recently recorded: "Can a Bobbed-Hair Woman Go to Heaven?" "Will There Be Any Bootleggers in Heaven?" and "How Do Sons-in-Law Get Along With Mothers-in-Law in Heaven?"

Rather cheap, these, it must be admitted, and incompatible with stained glass, the solemn notes of the organ or the mellow call of the church-bell to all to join in worship of sublimity personified.

On the other hand, there is much to say against the staid old, matter-of-fact sermon titles of yore. To this modern world, the sermon topics, "The Remission of Sins," or, simply, "Hell," have little drawing-power, however important they may be. This is a fast-moving age. All of us are imbued, to an extent, with the spirit of an age in which movement and color predominate. It is an advertising age, and the clever advertiser, even though he be a clergyman, must write so as to catch the eye and to attract attention.

Jesus himself was not bound down to the literal. When his doctrines were threatened with becoming too dry, mere platitudes, he resorted to that majestic and wonderful vehicle of his, the parable, in which truths became all the more unforgettable because more attractive.

Thus it seems to us, speaking as an onlooker, that there is a middle-ground which the alert, wide-awake pastor may well follow in the advertising of his church and of his sermon topics. This is the use of not the sensational or the vulgar but rather, employment of topics which have human-interest, yet finding anchor well within temple walls.

(Frequently, in church announcements published in The Times, attractive sermon titles are given. Interesting as they are, they never are cheap, and have actually drawn new listeners. With these in mind, and certainly with no intention of posing as a critic or an authority, the editor has written the preceding paragraphs.)

MARTIN VICTORIOUS IN TWO CONTESTS HERE

The Martin Ramblers met and defeated the Floyd county high school team in the Prestonsburg high school gym, winning Bonanza in the first encounter and Auxier in the second.

In the first contest the Martin team was very crafty, Bonanza leading at the half by two points, but the Martins settled down during the last half and won 15-8. Smith was best for Martin with five points, while Howell and Spradlin scored three points each for Bonanza.

The last game was very close and interesting throughout. Martin lost at first and was never headed. Collins and Smith led for honors in this contest with two points each. Cartwright was best for Auxier with seven points.

Next Saturday night, the Bonanza team, coached by Mr. Hurd, will meet the boys' team from Lenoxy, tutored by Mr. Craft, on the Prestonsburg floor. The Martin Ramblers may play the Lenoxy lads.

The lineup:

Rheumatism So Bad He Walked the Floor in Agony

"Karnak has done me such a wonderful amount of good that I believe every rheumatic sufferer should give it a trial. No one will ever know the tortures I have gone through with rheumatism during the past three years. I ached all over. At nights the pain was so great that I walked the floor, and I've gotten out in the middle of the night to go to the doctor for a hypodermic. I tried every thing in an effort to get relief. Even serum treatments failed to help me. My relief finally came when a friend advised me to try Karnak. To my surprise this medicine went right to the roots of my trouble, and brought complete relief. Every ache and pain has disappeared, and I am now in condition to resume active duties once more. Thanks to Karnak."
