George Washington Fired First American Gun At Yorktown

About five o'clock on the afternoon of October 3, 1781, General George Washington stood in the American works before Yorktown. In his hand was a smoking fife with which he was to fire the first American gun in the bombardment of the town. The fife, which had been taken from the British, was the first to be fired. The British were firing their guns in the distance. The American gun was fired first.

The siege of Yorktown, which began in full seriousness with this shot, culminated in one of the most brilliant maneuvers in history. It will be remembered that only a few weeks before, General Washington was on the Hudson preparing to attack New York. In the event that General Clinton should send troops to Cornwallis at Fort Mifflin, the commander-in-chief would have to retreat. The fife was firing for the Chesapeake with a powerful fleet and a land force.

Washington immediately laid his plans accordingly. He wrote Lafayette to lead Continental on the peninsula of York at all costs. A gesture was made toward New York which completely deceived Clinton. Before the British discovered the ruse, Washington was well on his way to the south. Clinton was again the author named above. To break up a line of operations, he sent a powerful force and entered a new field, more than four hundred miles distant, in order to engage in a single enterprise, not a solitary effort. For the most of the time it was a great effort.

The soldiers had to march most of the way, and there were only half-stocked horses to draw the guns over the rough roads to the place where they could be procured. Washington thought the matter over thoroughly. He considered every thing to do. Once his mind was made up he proceeded with energy to carry out his part of the plan. The success of the enterprise depended upon the combination of several movements. Washington was determined that the movement should not fall through any fault of his.

James Hall, of Gallipolis, Ohio, is reported Tuesday as showing his calling relatives here. Mr. Hall was called here by the illness of his daughter, Mrs. Tom Moore, who is in the Parkville hospital. HUGE TASK IN DROUGHT AID MET BY RED CROSS Relief Given to Distressed Helms in Meeting Sponsors Situation, Chairman Payne Says.

"The year of the great drought" is these part twelve or more months, but he knows to future generations, brought great damage to millions. Not alone did the crops, which were burned in the fields in twenty-three states, in the summer of 1926, deprive several million persons of food, but the drought disaster continued in the summer of 1927 in the northwestern states, and a month other minor catastrophes in its wake, such as forest fires and the grasshopper plagues. (More than a year has elapsed since the American Red Cross launched, in August, its first massive relief of the drought-stricken farmers, and in that time more than 2,750,000 persons were given food, clothing, medical aid and other types of assistance. At no period during the year were there fewer than 70,000 persons being aided and at the present time the Red Cross is on March 31st, more than 2,000,000 persons were being helped.)

Today, still as a result of the drought, the Red Cross is giving extended relief in parts of North Dakota, Washington and Montana, where remnants of hundreds of families were wiped out this past summer, when a second and more severe spell of dry weather was prevalent in that region. This drought relief presented the greatest task that has ever been undertaken by the Red Cross in its history. The Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, while more spectacular, and calling for relief of a costlier type, was met by the Red Cross in a more swift and unobtrusive manner. The number of people who suffered because of the drought, who were in addition to the broad program of drought relief still being carried on, John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, said in the following suggestion to Chapter chairmen, in regard to unemployment relief: "Where there is suffering and want from any cause and the fundamental needs are not being met, chapters may participate in the community plans for meeting the need."

Some type of general family relief, whether for the drought victims, the unemployed, the war veteran and his family, or the childless, was carried on last year. Judge Payne said, "The Red Cross relief work of 1926-27 has been extended following last summer's drought, principally in Missouri and Mississippi. The assistance being given to ex-servicemen and their families, and the part which general home chapters are playing locally in their communities' relief measures are activities of the Red Cross, a central and local, which are met and are meeting some of the serious needs of the present situation."

To the Voters of the 13th Senatorial District:

As the Democratic candidate for the State Senate in this district, I take this method of laying before you my claims for your support at the election on November 3, 1931. It will be impossible for me to see all of the voters before the election.

I served the people of this district as a member of the State Senate during the 1924 and 1926 sessions of the General Assembly. I served you to the best of my ability. At the 1926 session of the General Assembly I was elected president pro-tempore of the Senate, which position carried with it the leadership of the Democratic party in that body. As your representative I stood for progress in the administration of the state government. I served the State Budget Act, sections 1992A-1 to 1992A-34, Kentucky Statutes, the Uniform Accounting Act, sections 4606A-1 to 4606A-6, Kentucky Statutes, the act creating the Crippled Children's Commission, sections 331-m-1 to 331-m-9, Kentucky Statutes. The feet and limbs of several thousand crippled and unfortunate children of Kentucky have been restored by the Crippled Children's Commission working under the provisions of the last named act.

The State Budget Act gives Kentucky one of the best budget systems in this country. It has been commented upon favorably by the highest authority. With the strict enforcement of the State Budget Act overhauls upon the state treasury will cease. Under the act a daily balance is required so that taxpayers may know the money of the state is being accounted for. Agencies of the state come to the state treasury unappropriated and must be approved by the various administrative offices, boards, commissions, departments, institutions, agencies and bureaus, entitled to receive money from the treasury, by a budget.

A favor budget systems for county, city and taxing district. The business of government must be placed upon a firm financial foundation. There can be no efficiency in government, state or local, without a careful budgeting of expenditures. The people have an interest against overdrains in government, state and local, without a budget system and expenditure control with it.

The financing of government, state and local, has a direct bearing upon the economic life of the people. In Kentucky taxes are largely expended in advance of collection. State and local government each year spend approximately $20,000,000 in advance of collection of taxes. This vast sum is largely evidenced by warrants without a dollar note.

I favor a financing plan making all papers, whether warrants or notes, negotiable. The paper of this character, issued against a budgeted account and within the budget, will be as good as cash in the hands of the people and banks. The system above outlined will place in the hands of our people and banks approximately $20,000,000 in current assets. The result will be approximately $40,000,000 more current assets in Kentucky available for the needs of business. This will tend to stimulate business and aid the people in every part of the state.

I wrote a financing plan along the lines above outlined when the State Budget Act was being considered, but at that time suits were pending in the Court of Appeals involving the floating debt of the state, and it was considered advisable, in view of this litigation, not to interfere with the old system of issuing warrants.

I favor the reorganization of the administrative offices and departments of the state government. In working out the reorganization, all related activities of government should be grouped together. The overlapping of duties and duplication of services can be eliminated. The report of the Efficiency Commission should be used as a basis for the reorganization program.

I am greatly interested in our road building program. I favor the speedy completion of our primary road system. I did everything I could as your representative in the State Senate in 1924 and 1926 sessions of the General Assembly to promote the road program in this section of the state. If I am elected as State Senator I will use all of my influence to get the potholes in this district constructed. I favor better schools in Kentucky. I favor vocational training in our common schools and high schools. I will support all constructive measures to advance education in the state. The child living in the rural communities of the state should have equal opportunities with the child living in the cities. I favor free textbooks for the children of the state.

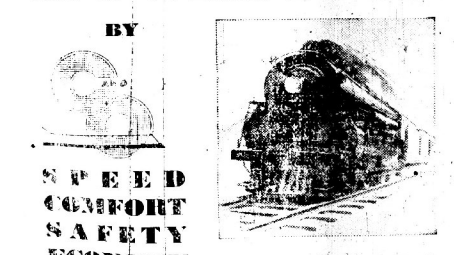

Agriculture should be fostered and promoted in every way possible. The work being done by the county agents is of great benefit to the people. The boys and girls in the 4-H clubs are doing a great work in this section. I favor supporting this work by the state to the fullest extent. We must have economy and efficiency in state and local government. The people are burdened with the cost of business depression. It is a problem for the people to find ways and means to meet their tax bills. I favor the re-classification of real estate for purposes of taxation so that the farmer and home-owner can be given a lower rate of taxation for state purposes.

I have no selfish motive to serve in making this race. My only thought is to be of service to the people. I appeal to you to become active in my behalf and to go to the polls in your respective precincts on November 3, 1931, and give me your support and influence. I remain, Your friend,

E. D. STEPHENSON

3 RULES
 big help to BOWELS

What a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork every day! It's easy if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour every day.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin, and other helpful ingredients that couldn't hurt a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

Modern Music Made Me Hit With Lord Balfour

In music Lord Balfour took a great delight and was an enthusiastic lover of the old masters, especially of Handel. Modern music had little charm for him, for him.

"I remember how patiently he would sit through dinner at his favorite restaurant in Paris until most of the clients had left, and the noise of jazz music in his personal memoir of Balfour, 'and would then ask the chef d'orchestre to play him some Eighteenth-century French music.'

Then during the same month Lord Balfour resided in Paris for the peace conference his house was the scene of many brilliant musical evenings.

"I remember one evening," says Sir Ian, "when Charles Heudey was going to sing, he inquired delicately whether anybody present objected to German songs. The chief (Balfour) promptly replied:

"I don't. I will take them as part of the repastious that they offer us."

Ingenuous Methods of Making Use of Suction

Some of our readers probably are old enough to remember the first suction cleaners and the interest aroused when it was found that a carpet could be cleaned of dust without a broom being used. Coal is now cleaned by suction. The pipe used is made of steel and is 12 inches in diameter, the nozzle is a box three feet long and something more than a foot wide, and the most ingenious part of the invention is an arrangement to prevent the whole thing getting choked by coal dust. The latest invention in this direction is a marvelous fish trap. In this case, a pipe of great size is lowered from the fishing vessel down into the sea, the air is exhausted, and the water rushes up, carrying with it the fish. The fish leaves the water kind of device is in the war against locusts. In Palestine, where there was a plague of these ravenous creatures, gigantic vacuum cleaners fixed on motor vehicles were used and the locusts drawn up by the million.

Royal Friend of Dogs

Queen Victoria's love of animals (a characteristic inherited by all her descendants) is shown in several passages of her recently published letters. In August, 1880, when everybody in London was infected with an unreasonable fear of mad dogs, she wrote a long memorandum on cruelty to animals which might almost be described as the Magna Charta of man's de-furred and penicillated. "As regards her poor dear friends," she writes, "she would repeat that no dogs should ever be killed by police unless the veterinary surgeon declared they were mad. That dog, who was close to their masters or mistresses or their home dog, was quiet and should be left alone and not molested."

Gallant

Mrs. Mahol Williams contributes a charming little episode in the life of her grandchild Patty who was visiting her grandparents near Riverside. She watched her grandmother plucking a turkey and finally

"Granny, what are you pulling those hen leaves off the turkey for?"

A little later in the day, Patty was shown the big hen's feet and in the excitement among them, accidentally stepped on a big gobbler's foot. Little Patty looked the big gobbler in the eye and said comely:

Roughness on Oceans

The zone of greatest storm frequency lies between latitudes 45 degrees and 55 degrees. The most severe storms are the hurricanes that begin in the tropical portion of the Atlantic. The North Atlantic lies in the path of the great procession of cyclones and anti-cyclones of the middle latitudes, and also in the path of the West Indian hurricane over its lower latitudes, and counterparts of these atmospheric disturbances in the South Atlantic. The Pacific is subject to sudden and violent storms, especially typhoons, but the frequency of storms is not so great as in the Atlantic.

Log of the Great Western

The original log of the Great Western steamship, which crossed the Atlantic in 1838, and only missed by a few hours being the first steamer to do so, came to light in Bristol. The log was found by an old sailor employed in the Bristol Corporation's office among a lot of rubbish. An expert recognized the name of Lieut. J. Hookin as that of the captain of the ship. The log and other experts have pronounced the log as genuine. The first steamship to cross was the Sirius.

Nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness

The whole question was settled long ago—as to how many cylinders it takes in a motor car engine to give satisfactory smoothness. Science definitely established the fact that at least six are necessary. And today, the public accepts the multi-cylinder engine in the same way that it accepts 4-wheel brakes, parallel-mounted springs and every other principle of proved and acknowledged superiority. Everybody knows that nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness.

Today, six-cylinder smoothness is within reach of every new car buyer. For Chevrolet has produced a quality car, powered it with a firmly-mounted six-cylinder motor—engineered it to run with unsurpassed economy—and priced it down among the very lowest-priced cars in the market.

Why Kentucky Is In Need of a Constitutional Convention

It is a well-known fact that a revision of the constitution is one of the most important duties of a government. In the case of Kentucky, the need for such a revision is more acute than ever. The present constitution, adopted in 1792, has become antiquated and inefficient. It fails to provide for the needs of a modern state. The population has increased, the economy has changed, and the government has become more complex. A new constitution is needed to address these issues and to ensure the effective and efficient governance of the state. The proposed amendments include changes to the executive branch, the judiciary, and the legislative process. These changes are necessary to modernize the government and to reflect the current needs and aspirations of the people of Kentucky.

portion of their salaries from the state. This does not mean that they should be more home-rule, or that the country would need to run from the state capital. It simply means that the two arms of government should be brought into closer harmony. It is not a matter which should necessarily be put into the constitution, but it is a matter which should be permitted by the constitution. But in order to revise this the constitution must be re-written. Save County Money In a previous article we dealt with the saving in administrative costs of the county. In this brief article we wish to bring to the attention of the county certain other savings that could be effected if the constitution were revised to make it possible. In every courthouse in Kentucky there are two clerks' offices: one is the county clerk, who keeps the records of the county, issues all orders of license, and performs a number of other necessary functions; the other is the circuit clerk's office, that keeps and maintains records of the circuit court. In almost every county, both the county clerk and the circuit clerk are appointed by the county. Fully half of the county officials have deputies who do a major portion of the work. While the character of the two offices is somewhat different, there is no reason why the two offices could not be joined together, nor is there any reason why the two offices could not be administered by a single person. It is also likely that the salaries of the two offices, the number of the number of counties. If the saving would be well over a thousand dollars a year, even with the present number of counties. We have much talk about high taxes, and most of us who are paying taxes would like to obtain relief, but at the same time, the government must go on. We are committed to a free public school system, and to building roads, and we must have courts, so that people can have the only legitimate way for a reduction in taxation is by directing economies in the administration of our government. The economies suggested here would greatly reduce the burden of taxation, and would probably result in greater efficiency, and nobody would be the worse for it. But, it must be remembered that the constitution has got to be revised in order to effect these economies, and that question will be voted upon at the November election. There's the taxpayers' opportunity. But you can't stop when you vote for the convention. You must then see to it that you set up a body of able men to revise the constitution. The Justices of the Peace The local court is a remnant of the old days of our existence. The idea of having the county divided up into districts so that people could have a court of law near at hand, was at the time it was established a very practical arrangement, and probably necessary. But this day has long past. We have emerged from the old court system, and have come into the age of roads, automobiles, and it frequently happens, especially in some of our larger counties, that the magisterial districts are so arranged that all of the magistrates can live at the county seat. Since magistrates are dependent upon fees for their compensation it frequently happens that you have five or six justices of the peace courts sitting at the same place, competing with each other for business. The sort of competition in courts is inherent to democratic government. Further more, the jurisdiction in these courts is so narrow that if one man were to spend all of his time at the job he would handle all of the work that the justices of the peace now handle in one county. This situation constitutes a grave waste of the people's money, time and energy. The justices of the peace should either be abolished or the number reduced so that there would be ample work for those who hold office. But this cannot be accomplished without a revision of the constitution. No one doubts that the magistrate court should be reorganized, but few people claim that it could be done by the simple process of amendment. This is seriously doubted, because there are six parts of the constitution that refer to the justices of the peace, and it is quite possible that it would take six amendments just to revise that one matter.

RED CROSS RELIEF IN 79 DISASTERS IN YEAR

Forest Fires, Plagues, Storms, Earthquakes, as Well as Drought, Call for Help. The forest fires which have raged in Idaho and other western states this year have presented a serious disaster—one of a number, in addition to the enormous drought relief problem, which have been met by the American Red Cross relief force. Suffering, faith and courage are contained in a story coming from the Priest River section in Idaho, told by a volunteer Red Cross worker as follows: "Picture a happy little homestead near the banks of Priest river in northern Idaho. While father, with a little son tagging at his heels, is out tending crops and tending to the clearing, mother is at home making preparations for another arrival. Then comes the fire demon, sweeping all in its path. While father tries to protect his little home, the storm announces its arrival. Mother and baby are bundled in a quilt and loaded on a truck for the race through the flaming forest. Father drives the truck and the little boy sits at his mother's side, brushing away the sparks which fall like rain upon the improvised litter. To the Red Cross worker, the mother expressed her anxiety to return to the hills to rehabilitate the little homestead. All they possessed was lost in the forest fire. The Red Cross aided all of the families and working to help them rebuild their homes. Although governing authorities notified for fire, father died and mother during the year just closed. Aside from the drought, which required more than 60,000, and a drought relief fund of more than $15,000,000 of which $2,000,000 came from the national Red Cross treasury, help was given in 22 fires, 13 tornadoes, eight storms and eight floods, six forest fires, four earthquakes and four mine explosions, three typhoons and three epidemics, two cloudbursts, and one coal mine mine cave-in and railroad accident. Aside from a major earthquake, such as the drought, when the whole public was asked to contribute funds for relief, Red Cross relief in these disasters was met through the organization's funds and from special local contributions. Part of each membership subscribed to Red Cross Chapters at the roll call period from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, goes toward this important work.

Chief Justice Hughes In Tribute to Red Cross

One of the finest tributes ever paid the American Red Cross and its membership was seen by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court, on the occasion of the fifteenth birthday anniversary of the organization on May 21 of this year. Mr. Hughes said: "The American Red Cross represents the united voluntary effort of the American people in the administration of mercy. It is the finest and most effective expression of the American heart. It knows no party lines, no religious distinctions, no racial or creed or political philosophy. It moves with the precision and the discipline of an army to achieve the noblest of human aims. The American Red Cross is not only the finest, but the most efficient of our institutions. The American people rely upon its ministrations in every great catastrophe. It has given its aid in over one thousand disasters. When, as we hope, war will be no more, still the Red Cross, in its ceaseless activities of relief and rehabilitation, will continue to function as the organized compassion of our country."

Aid for War Veterans

More than 400,000 ex-service men and their families are being cared through 2308 Red Cross Chapters and the national organization during the year ending June 30, 1931. Dependent families were cared for, veterans' claims were filed, hospitalizations obtained and many other services given. Part of each contribution during the American Red Cross annual roll call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, goes toward supporting this vital work for veterans of the World War and other wars in which our United States has engaged.

WHOOPIING-COUGH. A Dangerous Disease to Children and Grow-ups; How to Know It and to Treat Sufferers From It. Whooping-cough is largely thru carelessness in coughing and in the disposal of mucus and throat discharges that the disease is spread. It is especially serious for infants. The mother whose children have had whooping-cough does not need to be reminded of its symptoms. She remembers her child running, or her scraping for breath, clutching hold of her skin for support and finally breaking into that painful rasping cough. STAY WITH A COLD. Whooping-cough starts with a slight cold, running at the nose, fever and a dry cough. The eyes are bloodshot. After a week the cough gets worse and the child coughs many times in succession. It becomes rarer and draws in his breath with a sharp scraping sound. This is the "whoop." In some cases this is not always present. In mild cases, the child will have four or five coughing fits a day; in severe cases, he may have more than that. CARE THE ELDOR. If your child shows the first signs of whooping-cough call the doctor and follow his directions absolutely. The child frequently vomits because of the hard coughing. Give him foods that are easily digested. When he loses his meal, an egg, well beaten in milk with a little sugar and vanilla, can be given. As a result of the vomiting, many children will be a little more weak in this condition and easily get other serious diseases. Whooping-cough may also cause brain strain, and the child should be carefully examined by the doctor before he is allowed to return to school and play. CARELESSNESS SPREADS DISEASE. The disease is spread mainly by coughing. It is very catching and is infectious in the earliest stages. All matter that comes from the mouth and nose while the child is sick should be treated in a piece of clean old linen or paper, and buried. Luck-Simpson Wedding Held

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, John M.
Theobald of Grayson, made a very lovely picture and her bridal gown of brown crepe and chiffon, velvet hat, shoes and gloves of brown, completed her outfit with a handsome arm bou-quet of fall-rose.

Mr. W. G. Simpson, Jr., of Frankfort, Ky., brother of the groom, was the groom's only attendant.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony, members of the bridal party, relatives and a few intimate friends, incurred to Cincinnati, Ohio, where a very elegant six-course dinner was served in the Black and Gold room of the Netherlands Plaza Hotel, to eighteen guests.

Following the dinner, Mr. and Mrs.
Simpson left for a wedding trip to Asheville, North Carolina, where they will be guests at the Grove Park Inn for a fortnight. After November 1, they will be home at their 2106 S. 23rd Wendover avenue, Louisville, Kentucky, where Mr. Simpson has a beautifully furnished home awaiting his bride.

Mrs. Simpson is one of the most beautiful and cultured women of Eastern Kentucky and is the daughter of Mrs. John M. Theobald, and Mr.
Theobald of Grayson. She is a graduate of Mt. DeSales School in Baltimore, Maryland.

Mr. Simpson is the son of the late
W. G. Simpson, Sr., and Mrs. Simpson, now residing in Frankfort. He received his education in the Ohio Military Academy in Indiana, and at Center College in Danville. Mr. Simpson is now sales manager for the C. T.
Dearing company, of Louisville, Ky.
Guests for the wedding included Mrs. W. G. Simpson, Sr., of Frankfort, mother of the groom, who was given in black lace; Mrs. J. O. Higdon of Newark, New Jersey, sister of the groom, who wore a lovely brown lace afternoon gown; Miss Martha Theobald, lady in a brown chiffon afternoon dress; Mrs. John M. Theobald, in black lace; several relatives, groom
in black tuxedo, trimmed in cream lace, and Mrs. H. B. Brown, who accompanied the groom in black velvet trimmed in white.

Many other guests from Newark,
Cincinnati, Grayson, Frankfort, Lewis-ville, Bowling Green, and Cincinnati, Ohio, also were present at the wedding. Asheville Daily Independent.

BLACKCATS WIN GAME HERE, 7-0

Protestants' high school's Blackcats broke into the win column in the Eastern Kentucky athletic conference standings Saturday by decisively defeating the heavier Collettsburg Wildcats here Saturday afternoon, 7 to 0.

A superb line play victory for Protestants. The visitors, much heavier than the Blackcats, fought hard, especially in the first half, but seemed stuck and unworkable of their plays.
Protestants' combination in the first half came as the result of "Red" Brumfield's abeyant return of a Collettsburg punt to the visitors' 10-yard line from which a punt was kicked over. The play of Brumfield, Protestants troughed out on a sliding hit, the ball troughed six, making the opposing conter back in more to goal health.

The only unavailing feature having any connection whatever with this game was the report made to the Ashland Daily Independent from Colletts-burg, charging the officials with poor work, alleging that Protestants were yards away from the goal when its touchdown was scored and claiming for the Collettsburg team 25 feet down to Protestants' three.

Any unbiased fan who saw the game will admit that the game was remarkably free from altercations, that Protestants scored its touchdown with ease and grace, and that the foul team was at least even if not ahead in the matter of first downs. As a matter of fact, the first downs made by both teams, added together, would have made no more than 25.

This week, the Blackcats go to Franklin, where they tackle a tough foe in the Jenkins high school eleven.

Study of Languages Old

It is a great error to think that schools for foreign languages are a modern innovation. In almost prehistoric times, some 1,000 years ago, such a school existed on the shores of the eastern Mediterranean, the cross-roads point between Asia, Europe and Africa. As many as six languages considered modern by the students of the fifteenth century B. C. were taught in the institutes of a town called Zanzura, which was described by two French archaeologists. Clay tablets, which served as school books to the pupils, and of ancient times, and one of the world's first dictionaries, were among the outstanding finds made.
