Floyd County Times Prestonsburg Kentucky

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY BY Prestonsburg Publishing Company Incorporated

NORMAN ALLEN, Editor

OFFICIAL ORGAN FOR FLOYD COUNTY, KENTUCKY $2.00 per year Payable in Advance

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1931

ADVERTISE FLOYD COUNTY

One of the most interesting pages—from the surprise angle—in a recent publication, "The Coal Industry of the World," is that in which coal producing counties of Eastern Kentucky are listed, only Floyd county being omitted.

Attention of the publishers to this omission was called by Mr. F. L. Henze, engineer in charge for the new Beech Creek Consolidated Coal Company, who pointed out that Floyd county is expected to produce coal by two other Eastern Kentucky counties, Harlan and Letcher. The publishers, in turn, pointed out that it was their belief that their information was supplied by the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

It is probable, however, that what really did happen was that Floyd county coal operators were making questionable requests for information as to the coal output in this county, and then, as so often in the case, failed to reply.

As a result, it thus is the case, Floyd county has such valuable advertising which would have cost nothing.

The most serious fault in this case is that information relative to the coal production of this county was never the opportunity is presented. You can't see the fault, and it is possible that you will never see it.

IT'S NO VESUVIUS

When Vesuvius spouts molten lava, fire-hot cinders and poisonous gases, residents of nearby cities and towns and of the surrounding countryside flee in dismay and death.

There's nothing else to do. The forces of nature, breaking forth from the bowels of the earth, are too strong for the feeble means which man might employ in an attempt to curb them.

Now, the smoldering heap of slate across the river from here is no Vesuvius—but, so far as the attempts made here to extinguish it are concerned, it is quite as invincible. All agencies that might be able to effect eradication of this nuisance are ineffective. Meanwhile, a large part of Prestonsburg is pervaded by sulphurous fumes emanating from this slate heap which offer a menace to the public health, which are damaging property and the stench of which is well-nigh intolerable.

Those affected by this nuisance could move out and let the blaze go on. But a mere pile of burning slate is no volcano; so that there is no need to run away if the nuisance is met with aggressive action to curb it.

The Times has no desire to see any person or firm put to extra expense, but somebody certainly can be held responsible for this condition. If neither the coal company nor the landowner can remove the nuisance unaided, perhaps assistance from the town of Prestonsburg will get something done.

A pall of smoke and the sickening stench of sulphuric fumes form a very discouraging welcoming committee to the visitor. Those who are already residents of Prestonsburg will find little inducement to remain, so long as they are faced with the unsavory task of sticking it out here until the dump burns itself out after long months.

HUGE TASK IN DROUGHT AID MET BY RED CROSS

Relief Given to Distressed Hops in Meeting Serious Situation, Chairman Payne Says.

"The year of the great drought," as this year of twelve or more months will be known to future generations, wrought great damage to millions. Not alone did the crops which were burned in the fields in twenty-three states, in the summer of 1931, deplete several million persons of food, but the drought disaster continued in the summer of 1932 in the northwestern states, and also brought other minor catastrophes in its wake, such as forest fires and the crop-rotting plague.

More than a year has elapsed since the American Red Cross launched its program to help the millions of people who are in need of food, clothing, medical aid, shelter or other type of assistance. At no period during this year were there fewer than 30,000 persons in need of aid and at the peak of the relief work on March 1, last, more than 200,000 persons were being helped.

Today, still as a result of the drought, the Red Cross is giving extended relief in parts of North Carolina, Washington and Missouri, where resources of hundreds of families were wiped out this past summer, when a second and more severe spell of cold weather was experienced in that region.

This drought relief program, the greatest in the Red Cross's history, is being carried on in the Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, with some special treatment for the victims of the American Red Cross, has given the following assistance to charity children in need of an adoptive mother: "Where there is suffering and want and any cause and the fundamental needs of all peoples, the Red Cross may participate in the community plan for solving the need."

Some time of a special family relief, whether for the greatest victims, the unemployed or the war veteran and his family, were granted on by more than 2,000 Red Cross chapters last year.

FOUR CHILDREN HIT BY TRUCK

Charley Akers, 10, Suffers Head Injuries, Broken Leg and Arm

Four Wheelwright children were taken to Methodist hospital, Pileville, suffering from injuries received October 17 when struck by a truck in Wheelwright.

The injured are: Charley Akers, 10, and Hazel Akers, 12, son and daughter of Andy Akers; Ethel Coolidge, 10, and Mary Coolidge, 11, daughters of Frank Coolidge. Of the four injured, Charley Akers' hurts are reported to be the most serious.

He suffered a compound fracture in the right arm, a broken arm and injury to the neck. Hazel Akers sustained minor injuries about the head and was able to return home on Monday. Ethel Coolidge received a broken leg in the right thigh and other bruises on the body. Mary Coolidge, suffering injuries about the spine and other bruises about the body.

The four children were on their way home after attending the picture show when the accident occurred. They were walking in front, Hazel and Mary were following, walking together with their arms about each other and Charley was walking behind them. An old truck, badly in need of repair, was in the street near the school house. The driver, who was unable to stop, struck the children, and the truck rolled down and then hit the children.

The truck is said to be owned by Curtis Hall.

SPORTS

HERE FATHER, UNLIKE SON

An interesting case in the local sports world is that of a young football player who has been attempting to follow in the footsteps of his famous father, who is the owner of the football field in Pileville.

The father, who is a well-known football player, has been a member of the football team for many years. The son, who is a young boy, has been playing football for some time and has been very successful.

It is interesting to note that the father is a member of the football team, while the son is a member of the football team. This is a rare occurrence in the local sports world.

THE REAL HERO

Through the brilliant hitting and daring base-running of "Poppe" Martin was heralded throughout the land, and though the powerful Pepper is now a member of the football team, it is the hero of the recent World Series. The hero of the recent World Series, who are reminded, none other than the old-time hero, who is now a member of the football team.
