COMING OF FALL MARKS REVIVAL OF "LASSES" MAKING

By WILL ROGERS
Hoyersville, Ky.—When the spirit of fall settles over the hills, and the trees begin to cast their leaves, it is time to make "lasses," or if you like, according to Webster's, molasses. Sometimes the true millman may sit in his heron-stomached chair and wonder if all the good old customs and practices of his forefathers have not passed into everlasting oblivion; but at such times, he forgets "lasses" making, with its yellow jackets, and odors, and noisy, fustian foam, and is pleasantly surprised to wake up to its existence in the glorious days of early fall.

True, some of the facts and fancies that went with "lasses" making in bygone times, may be missing, but there is still enough of the old-time spirit present to soothe the plating soul. And for that reason, one can find around the cane mills, these days that individual who is often written of and seldom seen—the genuine Kentucky molasses-maker.

He will not be clothed in the latest standing garments, he is safe to say, but he will probably speak meekly of the things and days of long ago. The cane mill will most surely revive in his mind. A whirl of far-away look will be in his eyes, and he will dip into the rummy, tasty foam that gathers on the boiling molasses. It is this when he would quote poetry, if he had only been lucky enough to learn any. Jokes, old, homeward, rusty, new, cracked, are cracked and re-cracked at the mills, and some one of the crackers knew in earlier times is usually credited with being the author. However, there is a joke there at the cane mill that has a habit of being all green, and sizes of grins of faces, it is the "stop-hole," where the green, sticky foam which first forms on the juice is dumped. Usually those who step into it are as green as the juice, both before and after the incident, but such is not always the case. There are cases, recorded in which the "lasses" maker fixed the stop-hole up like a trap, covering it with cane stalks, then stepped into it himself.

Incidents such as the foam, or apparently so, have given and blossomed and faded and died within the one mill's walls, and bulley, and scum-bugs have there met many, many agonizing deaths. And hundreds of people have gone there well and departed very, very sick, the result of having dipped the waiting paddle into the thick foam too many times. Perhaps, in such jobs, the molasses-maker will tip his mill after night, while school children crowd about, the foam contempt and gush to their hearts' content. Next day, in many cases, they have to send the teacher standing arguments, he is safe to say, in an excuse for absence.

In earlier times, walnut roasting was as firmly associated with molasses making as "hook" is with sweet potatoes, today. But there was lots of walnuts, larger than, while, now it would be a true task to gather a bushel of walnuts, due to the great scarcity of walnuts in the one mill furnace and according to the best of the information, never hesitated to get the brown berries with the "lasses" foam.

Perhaps, the "lasses" maker will fade out of the picture in a few more years, but the old, good, old-time custom is here.

DO NOT NEGLECT COMMON COLDS
The traditional period between early fall and the actual coming of winter is usually marked by what is commonly termed the common cold. There is no reason to believe that the common cold is any more common now than it was in the past. It is, accordingly, difficult, said Dr. McCormack, state health officer, in a statement issued here.

...of the body. At an average of $4 per day, the economic loss, so recurring amounts to $100,000,000 annually. The common cold is the most dreaded enemy of the body. It is the most common of all diseases. It is the most annoying of all diseases. It is the most persistent of all diseases. It is the most contagious of all diseases. It is the most difficult of all diseases to cure. It is the most common of all diseases. It is the most annoying of all diseases. It is the most persistent of all diseases. It is the most contagious of all diseases. It is the most difficult of all diseases to cure.

...While the table shows that the disease runs a more serious course in older persons, particularly if they are weak and the common cold is especially prevalent in childhood. It is, therefore, essentially important that preventive measures be employed to the ultimate possible limit in protecting children.

...The common cold is recognized as a germ disease, transmitted by the excretion from nose and mouth. No specific preventive or treatment has yet been found that is effective in all cases. Various remedies have been used with varying degrees of success, and numerous remedies have been suggested, such as quinine, bicarbonate of soda, bismuth in small doses, inhalations of chlorine gas and injections of mucus to stimulate the production of white blood cells. The greatest measure of prevention, however, lies in learning the simple rules of cleanliness and practicing them until they become habits. These simple rules may be summed up as follows:

- 1. Be careful to keep out of the mouth everything except food, drink, and the tooth brush.
- 2. Wash hands with soap and water after each meal.
- 3. Cover all coughs or sneezes with handkerchiefs.
- 4. Avoid people with symptoms of "cough-cold."
- 5. Keep body in good condition, clean, regular diet, and proper exercise.
- 6. Avoid over-exertion, colds and sleep with window open.
- 7. Upon first appearance of acute symptoms go to bed and rest in the daily physician.

Particular attention is to be directed out, should be given to protection against colds and their after-effects. To this end, the following precautions are advised: The child's power of resistance should be maintained by maintaining the general health, by securing food, clean, fresh air, and plenty of sunlight and the proper amount of sleep. The child should be taken to the family doctor at regular intervals for inspection and advice. Diseases of the child should be promptly treated. The child should be kept in a clean, warm, and comfortable environment. The child should be kept in a clean, warm, and comfortable environment.

HUEYSVILLE

The first grey fox in this vicinity in many a day was rounded up Tuesday by Claude and Johnnie Huff and Coley and Johnnie Martin, of this place. The animal was found in a little hollow near here and after being chased down into the bottom, ran under a corn crib, where it was easily taken.

Mr. Huff, well-known man of this place, had been out a few days ago and made a rough estimate of the amount of country he had walked since he began walking 22 years ago for the Louisville, Oh. & Gas Company of Louisville, Ky., which company he has since first of last January the same Post Oil Company. He has walked for short distance of 105,000 miles and this is a very conservative estimate, according to Mr. Huff.

The Hueysville graded school last Monday morning, increasing in volume throughout the day and far into the night. Heaver Creek is running for the first time in months, and the smaller streams are fast coming to life; wells, dry for many weeks are again ready for use; cattle are now able to get their water in pastures, and much tension and hardship is relieved. The water question has really been more acute in many parts of the county than it was during the terrible drought of 1909.

By Red Cross

Distress in All Areas Met by Giving Food, Clothing and Other Aid

More than 3,000,000 families throughout the nation were given relief of various types by the American Red Cross in the first six months of aid since their distress caused by unemployment, disaster or other misfortunes.

A major relief task, that of unemployment, has been met in the bituminous mining counties in twenty states, was met by the Red Cross chapters alone, or participating with other agencies. In these counties, the Red Cross aided, through its agencies through giving groceries, school lunches, clothing, food and other necessities to combat privation.

Flour, milled from government wheat turned over to the Red Cross by Congress, was given to 10,000,000 persons in the period from March 8 to June 30, the close of the fiscal year. Flour will continue to be given through the winter of 1932-33, and Red Cross chapters also will give cotton clothing, made from government cotton turned over to the Red Cross for distribution.

"The Red Cross faces the heaviest winter since the days of the World War," Chairman John Barton Payne said. "It is organized in virtually every one of the 3,072 counties in the United States, and will cooperate with all agencies to meet distress wherever found. The flour has proved of great benefit, and the cotton clothing will be given wide distribution."

While carrying on nationwide relief measures, the Red Cross also was engaged in its regular peace-time activities in public health nursing, service to ex-service men and their families, teaching home hygiene, life saving and first aid. The Junior Red Cross, composed of almost 7,000,000 school children, also rallied to the support of the society's relief efforts, and the children aided others of their age in practical ways, turned sewing and food kits to classes, and were of great assistance in chapter relief work.

While the wheat and cotton were given by the U. S. Government, no money was provided to pay for the necessary work entailed. The Red Cross will meet this expense of almost $600,000 from its treasury. Citizens can aid by joining as members of the local Red Cross chapter during the roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

Clothes for the Needy

Women volunteers sorting for the needy under direction of the Red Cross produced 250,000 garments last year, and will produce millions of garments in the winter of 1932-33. These will be from the millions of yards of cotton cloth distributed by the national Red Cross from the 500,000 yards of cotton turned over to the committee by Congress. Cloth was sent to all chapters requesting it, but there is now proposed to send some of the best made garments, including trousers, overalls, undershirts, sweaters and so on.

Mega-Tank of Food

Red Cross public health workers work in hundreds of communities, endeavoring to meet the greatest health problem of their country, tuberculosis. They are promoting the health of the community and aiding in the control of disease. They are also working to prevent the spread of disease by teaching the public to keep their homes clean and to avoid contact with persons who are ill.

LABOR DAY Outing May Prove To Be Last Call to Campers

LABOR DAY is an ideal time to enjoy a day in the open and for many it probably will mark the close of this year's camping. You may wish to gather a congenial group, go to the woods, build a campfire and cook a meal in the open. All who have cooked out-of-doors know how delicious steak and corn and beans can be when appetites have been sharpened by hours in the open. If it is not practical to attempt actual cooking, you can assemble a picnic lunch, drive out into the country and enjoy it in some particularly beautiful spot. Below is a time-honored menu for a camp supper—one that never fails to please; and also a menu for a picnic basket lunch.

By Red Cross

Distress in All Areas met by Giving Food, Clothing and Other Aid.

More than 3,000,000 families throughout the nation were given relief of various types by the American Red Cross in the past winter, to aid them in their distress caused by unemployment, disaster or other misfortune.

A major relief task, due to unemployment and other unusual conditions in the numerous winter months in twenty states, was met by the Red Cross chapters alone, or participating with other agencies. In these 125 sections, the Red Cross aided 59,000 families through giving groceries, school lunches, clothing, four and other necessities to combat privation.

Flour, milled from government wheat turned over to the Red Cross by Congress, was given to 1,000,000 persons in the period from March 8 to June 30, the close of the fiscal year. Flour will continue to be given through the winter of 1932-33, and Red Cross chapters also will give cotton clothing, made from government cotton turned over to the Red Cross for distribution.

"The Red Cross faces the busiest winter since the days of the World War," Chairman John Barton Payne said. "It is organized in practically every one of the 3,072 counties in the United States and will cooperate with all agencies to meet distress wherever it is found. The flour has proved of great benefit, and the cotton clothing will be given wide distribution."

While carrying on nation-wide these unemployment and other relief measures, the Red Cross also was engaged in its regular peace-time activities in public health nursing, service to ex-service men and their families, teaching home hygiene, life saving and first aid. The Junior Red Cross, composed of almost 7,000,000 school children, also rallied to the support of the society's relief efforts, and the children aided others of their age in practical ways, formed sewing and food canning classes, and were of great assistance in chapter relief work.

While the wheat and cotton were given by the U. S. Government, no money was provided to pay for the necessary work entailed. The Red Cross will meet this expense of almost $500,000 from its treasury. Chapters can aid by joining as members of the local Red Cross chapter during the fall call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

Clothes for the Needy

Women volunteers sewing for the needy under direction of the Red Cross produced 194,000 garments last year, and will produce millions of garments in the winter of 1932-33. They will be from the millions of yards of cotton cloth distributed by the national Red Cross from the 440,000 bales of cotton turned over to the commission by Congress. Cloth was sent in all chapters requesting it, and later it was proposed to send some simple wardrobe garments, including sweaters, overalls, underwear, slippers and so on.

Helps Task of Service

Red Cross public health nurses who work in hundreds of communities are meeting the greatest demand for their services. In the past year, visits in maternity hospitals, preventing the birth of children, and child and infant care, have been the most frequent. In addition, thousands of women, who are the backbone of the Red Cross, are being trained to do their work more effectively.

Later Day Outing May Prove To Be Last Call to Campers

By JENNIFER GIBSON, Hamilton, Ohio Field Editor.

LATER DAY is an ideal time to enjoy a day in the open and for many it probably will mark the close of this year's camping. You may wish to gather a congenial group, go to the woods, build a campfire and cook a meal in the open. All who have cooked out-of-doors know how delicious steak and corn and beans can be when appetites have been sharpened by hours in the open. If it is not practical to attempt actual cooking, you can assemble a picnic lunch, drive out into the country and enjoy it in some particularly beautiful spot. Below is a time-honored menu for a camp supper—one that never fails to please; and also a memo for a picnic basket lunch.

- A Campfire Supper
- Hot Steak Sandwiches or Bacon and Olives in Rolls*
 - Oven Baked Beans (In Thermos)
 - Corn on the Cob
 - Fresh Cucumber Pickles
 - Prepared Mustard
 - Watermelon
 - Chocolate Cup Cakes
 - Coffee
- A Basket Picnic
- (A menu requiring little preparation)
- Cold Baked Ham
 - Oven Baked Beans (In Thermos)
 - Prepared Mustard
 - Tomatoes
 - Mayonnaise Salad Dressing
 - Sandwich Roll
 - Assorted Fresh Fruits
 - Coffee
- (* Indicates that recipes are given below.)

Hot Steak Sandwiches with Chili Sauce—Take fresh buttered rolls, each wrapped in waxed paper, from home. Broil the steak, cut into strips, in a corn popper or on a long handled fork over the campfire. During the broiling, season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire Sauce. Place the steak in the buttered rolls. Also place in each sandwich a slice of onion and one of Fresh Cucumber Pickle, and if desired, a slice of tomato.

Oven Baked Beans (In Thermos)—Wrap thin slices of bacon around Stuffed Spanish Olives and put several of these rolls or "bobs," as campers call them, on a long fork or sharp stick, and broil until the bacon is sizzling and crisp. Then place in buttered rolls, and add Chili Sauce or Prepared Mustard.
