Mountain Range Almost Directly Under Equator
Ruwenzori, a mountain range in equatorial Africa, is unusual in every situation. It lies almost immediately under the equator, surrounded by rank, steaming tropical forests and sun-drenched plains covered with tall elephant grass; yet says a correspondent in the Montreal Herald, it pushes its peaks up to eternal snows.
Where else are there comparable heights under the equator, rising from the heart of a continent? The Andes of Ecuador, relatively close to the coast, and the mountains of the Island of New Guinea, are the closest competitors.
Weather conditions do their part in contributing to the strangeness of this African mountain mass and in throwing an atmosphere about it of mystery and gloom. The peaks are hidden to observers from the plains and forests by clouds and fog except at rare intervals. As a result, the definite snow-capped peaks are unknown to Europeans until 1861, when Sir Samuel Baker, while exploring Lake Albert, saw a blue mountain to the south.
His observations were unverified until 1887, when Stanley saw the peaks and made known the fact, for the first time, that they were snow-capped. It was not until more than a decade later that the snow-line was first reached, and the crests were not attained until 1908, when the duke of the Abruzzi led his expedition to the top.

St. Peter's Church Said to Hold Record for Age
The oldest church in the western hemisphere is St. Peter's church in the ancient capital of the Bermuda, St. George's. Founded in 1612 with a structure of native timber and rebuilt in 1619, St. Peter's has seen almost three and a quarter centuries of continuous religious service, almost half a century more than any other church on this continent has today.
Its closest rival are the cathedral of Mexico, built in 1571, and the Old South Meeting house in Boston, which was built in 1609. St. Luke's church in England, which is also mentioned, after doing service since 1629, and the First Church of Salem, Mass., constructed in its same year, are recently mentioned for religious services.
St. Peter's, in its history and within the church itself and its crowded, shady churchyard, sums up the long and varied life of Bermuda. The very physical structure of the church reflects the changes, social and political, of the island, for it has been added to and repaired many times in its long career. The first church was built of the native cedar, but to quote an old book, "was of the same material as that which he (the governor) built another in a more close place of Palmetto wood." The steeple in its turn was replaced by a ston structure in 1711, much of the masonry being utilized in the present walls, which were raised in 1713—1714—1715.

Corp Favored 8000 B. C.
Corp is one of the favorite fishes in Germany, and it was also the chief diet of the people who lived in Baden some 10,000 years ago. This is shown by finds connected with the so-called non-race which have been made at Bergheim in the Danube valley, near the ruins of Eberstadt castle. At a depth of about fourteen feet excavators have found a stratum nearly a yard thick which throws new light on the life of man in the Mesolithic age (about 8000 B. C.). Great quantities of carp bones were found, and eggs of the carp were found in the evidence of the influence of the Mesolithic climate in that age. Among the remains that are preserved in a polished stone age of the transitional period from the Mesolithic to the Neolithic age.

The Piano's Inventor
Bartholomew Cristofori was an Italian lute-maker and the inventor of the hammer action used in the modern piano. He was born in Padua about 1615, and early served an apprenticeship as an instrument maker. After following that work for some years in Padua he began to know, elsewhere. About 1687 Prince Ferdinand, son of Grand Duke Cosimo III, persuaded him to remove to Florence. It was during the Florentine period that he made the first pianos. Descriptions and engravings of the time show that the invention is correctly ascribed to him. A grand piano by Cristofori is said still to be preserved in Florence. He died in that city in 1701.

Small Rattlesnake
The massasauga (Sistrurus catenatus) is a true but small rattlesnake which formerly was very numerous in the woods in southern western Ontario, and may still be found there in the wilder places. It ranges across 24 inches in length. Rattles occur new and then of the occurrence north of Lake Erie of the timber or banded rattlesnake of the United States, but they are not authentic.

Wine Cellar Under Church
The old university town of Heidelberg, so rich in attractions, possesses one known to few visitors. It is a wine cellar under the Catholic church of St. Anna, containing, among other large casks, a "Rhinische Cask," which is the five hundredth anniversary of the university, with a capacity of 4,012 gallons.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THANK PRESTONSBURG
We, the Martin county high school students, teachers, basketball team and the patrons wish to express our appreciation for the cordial treatment shown us during the regional tournament at Prestonsburg. Every courtesy was shown us at the gymnasium, on the streets, at the hotel and at the school, where excellent meals were served by a group of ladies who made the teams feel at home. The officials didn't seem to be interested in who you were but in what you did. We think Mr. Watson and the others connected with the tournament are to be commended for their success in handling it.

We wish to express our thanks to the Morell Supply Company and the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company for the two beautiful trophies we received which they had donated. We hope our team conducted itself during the tournament that they will have no regret for this generous act. The donating of these trophies shows the fine spirit of co-operation of these companies.

We wish to offer some excellent teams who were defeated but not beaten because they fought every second of every game. They showed fine sportsmanship which, after all, is the purpose of the game.
When the one great speaker comes to write against your name, He will write, not that you won or lost, but how you played the game.

CLEAN UP ORCHARD TO DESTROY MOTHS
The increasing difficulty in controlling codling moth by spraying alone, brings the following suggestions from Dr. G. O. Eddy, extension entomologist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture:
A clean-up of the orchard, picking sheds and storage, followed by destruction of trash, debris, broken crates and the like, will kill many larvae of codling moth that may lay large numbers of eggs on apples next season. Other materials that may harbor codling moth larvae should be placed in insect-tight storage so the orchard most next spring can not bear fruit trees.

It also is desirable to scrape off and burn loose bark from the trunks and large branches. This destroys many larvae and at the same time prepares the trees for the use of poisonous sprays where moth infestation ranges from moderate to heavy. Trees should be thinned and pruned with a view to expedite application of spray materials. Abandoned and neglected trees should be removed.

Wish Name With 88 Letters

For more than half a century an abbreviated form of the name of the Anglo-Saxon, Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwilyllullobdugochystryllo, has been used at the railway station on the London-Holyhead line, on the island of Anglesey. The full name is 135 letters long and is pronounced in 14 syllables. It is understood to be in honor of the visit of Prince George to the residence of Lord Anglesey. The name is commonly shortened to Llanfairpwllgwyngyll, meaning 'the Church of St. Mary by the white head pool,' the name of the station is Llanfair P. G. and even to Llanfair. The full name contains 88 letters and 19 syllables. - London Times.

Where Squirrels Live

Chickadees, the common little red squirrel, is at home in almost any place, even in the orchard, about the barn, or in the attic, where one squirrel can make more noise than two boys. But the larger gray squirrel is a shy and timid creature of the forest, of the hardwood ridge and the wooded heights, where there is plenty of oak, hickory, beech, butternut and sugar maple. In favorable locations they will congregate in considerable numbers, living amicably together.

Aids to Agriculture

The revolution in method wrought by the tractor is not generally realized in agricultural communities. It is a source of power-farming, affording employment to a smaller number of persons, but with an increased and a vital output. The chemist with his fertilizers, the biologist by segregating special resistant qualities for particular climates and soils, have all contributed their quota to a development as significant in its way as the railway train and steamship.

Mrs. Winifred F. Johns and Mrs. E. G. Salisbury were in Ashland Wednesday on business.

Mrs. H. B. Patrick returned this week from the Paintsville hospital, where she recently submitted a major operation. She is recovering nicely.

BASEBALL TEAM OPPOSE REGIONAL CROWN

(Continued from page one) This season's team of spectators will play all the games during the season away from home. The handicap is offset, however, by a wealth of fine material and by the fact that no other sport attracts the boys' attention away from basketball. Coach Williams' reserves are particularly capable, and the loss during the tournament by a regular on fouls did not, apparently, impair the effectiveness of the team.

Throughout the tournament large crowds attended every session. Behavior of the crowds was excellent, and the tournament was a success. Both from the sporting and financial angles, Jim Barney, of Ashland, and Homer Eversole, of Hazard, officiated all games, and did excellent work. The tournament was managed by C. C. Watson, coach of the Prestonsburg team.

Following the finals, coaches of the various teams in the region assembled for the all-tournament team team:

- Pratt, Maytown, forward. Stone, Inez, forward. Deskins, Cumberland, center. Johnson, Inez, guard. Jenkins, Paintsville, guard. In addition to the championship and runner-up cups awarded Inez and Maytown, respectively, trophies were awarded to the following teams and players: Benedict, of Virgie, most valuable player; John Pratt, Maytown, high scorer, with 27 points; Maytown, best all-around defensive player; Clay, of Paintsville, highest percentage of foul goals made on 10 or more trials; basketball to each member of the all-tournament team.

Loss of Jobs to Tobacco Workers and Markets To the Farmers Threatened Unless Tax On Cigarettes Is Changed

By E. LEWIS EVANS President, Tobacco Workers International Union

I appeal to all the people of the twelve southern states who produce cigarette tobacco to join the tobacco farmers and the tobacco factory workers in urging Congress to put a graduated tax on cigarettes in place of the present flat-rate tax. What will happen unless Congress does take such action? Several hundred thousand farmers will lose the market for a large proportion of their tobacco crop. Scores of thousands of tobacco factory workers will lose their jobs. Trade with these farmers and workers will be cut to the starvation point. The government will lose a good many millions of dollars in taxes. What is this all about? Let me explain.

Wartime Measure

The present cigarette tax of 6 cents a package was fixed as a wartime measure in 1917, when 15 cents a package was the bottom retail price for cigarettes. After the war nobody knew about this tax so it was never altered. During the boom years and up until 1931 the manufacture and sale of cigarettes steadily increased. But the depression hit the industry at that time and it sank fast. Everybody concerned with the business, directly or indirectly, was hurt. To try to offset this slump certain manufacturers, notably Arton-Tisher Tobacco Company and the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation, began to make cigarettes—a good smoke that was cheap to retail at 10 cents for a package of twenty.

Popular "Smokes"

These 10-cent smokes immediately became popular. The sale of them went up fast all over the country, showing that millions of smokers wanted to use "tailor-made" cigarettes, instead of rolling their own, if the price was low enough.

These new low-priced smokes were a blessing to the farmer, giving him a tobacco market at better prices, and a blessing to the laborer and factory worker, giving him a steady job and support for his family. Business improved in the cigarette tobacco states and government revenue from the cigarette tax steadily upward. Manufacturers were able to give smokers a quality product and to make a modest profit on their business.

Conditions Changed

That was the situation several months ago. But now conditions have greatly changed, and unless a remedy is provided the results will be serious for everybody. The manufacturers have increased wages of workers to comply with the N.R.A. code. They now have a pressing tax to pay along with other increased production costs. They cannot further lower manufacturing or selling expenses. They are not profit whatever in 10-cent cigarettes. Without profit there is no inducement to continue manufacturing. If they quit making them, tobacco farmers and the tobacco workers, and the people who buy necessities from, will be out of luck. This brings us back to the graduated tax on cigarettes. As I have said, all cigarettes pay a government tax of 6 cents a package, whether the package sells for a dime, or 15 cents, or a quarter, or 30 cents.

Tax Not Quite Fair

Such a tax is not quite fair. It should be in proportion to the retail price of the cigarette, with the higher-priced smoke paying a higher tax. There is now such a graduated tax on cigars—15-cent cigars paying a lower tax than the 10-center, and the 10-center paying a lower tax than the 15-center, or the quarter cigar. Hence there is a graduated tax on cigars upon cigars, we feel so why pay a similar classification may not be applied to cigarettes. The makers of the 10-cent cigarette are not of course of course will put into effect the graduated tax on cigarettes, allowing a very small cut in the tax on 10-cent cigarettes, they can go on making this product. Very Little Cut They ask for a reduction of only two-fifths of one cent per package on the 10-centers; the present rate of 6 cents per package on 15-centers, and an increase of three-fifths of one cent above the present tax on smokes selling for more than 15 cents per package. It seems to me and to the thousands of workers I speak for, that this proposal of the manufacturers is just and fair to all. To their plea for a graduated tax I add that of the Tobacco Workers' International Union. I urge the tobacco farmers, business men and bankers to join us in this appeal to Congress, because all will be benefited.

Raise More Money

Perhaps a more cogent reason for the Committee to give the subject special research is that the higher the retail price of the "tailor-made" cigarette the greater the drift toward the "roll your own" smoke. The consumer is doing this not because he prefers to do it, but because he is hard-up. He gives little or no thought to the very important revenue fact that the "roll your own" makings return to the Government a revenue of only 18 cents a pound of tobacco, whereas the "tailor-made" cigarette gives a return of 81 a pound of tobacco.

It would seem therefore to be good financial policy by the Committee to make the very slight concession asked

Cider, Natural Apple Juice

For Pioneer Americans Cider has been called the American national beverage. It is not peculiar to the United States, England, France and many other temperate zone nations make cider, but it is true that the juice of the apple has special connections with America. In fact, other countries do not grow in such abundance of over so broad an expanse. There was a time when not many people knew the difference between cider and apple juice. It was but little more than a century ago that Applesauce, that curious hermetic product of the northwest territory, spent a lifetime in wandering over parts of three or four states, purveying its "delicacies" with plaudits of apple seeds. So, in addition to the thousands of filled and grafted apple orchards, the country knew literally thousands of apple trees planted by the side of the road, in open pastures, on the edge of woodlands, beside streams, the sacred groves of a western beverage for the pioneer American. Its making was easy. No elaborate machinery was required. Its raw material was a fruit of which there was so great a surplus that the producer could not be humbly consumed. It was a beverage which, in one stage, was suited to the delicate palates and light hearts of women and children, while in another it became a sort of Viking's breakfast.

So characteristic of America was the drink that it became the symbol of a President's campaign. William Henry Harrison, who, incidentally, came from the very heart of Applesauce John's domain, was swept to victory on a hard-cider platform.—Washington Star.

Irish Setter Said to Be Able to Hypnotize Prey

In his native country the Irish setter's true worth is enjoyed, his emerald in the field being to the exclusion of all others throughout the Emerald Isle. Developed there from the setting Spaniels, his first appearance in this country was in white, through careful breeding white has been discarded and is never present; the rich golden coat, chestnut colored, mahogany predominating the well-bred specimens. Presumably there is also a mixture of the old Spanish pointer in all setters, for from no other dog could a breed inherit the wonderful scolding power, the staccato attitude, the keen eye, when their style is drawing up to the game, holding their speckled at the wish of the hunter.

When occasion demands the Irish setter displays the courage of a lion. Yet he is notably good-tempered with man. His keen or brown eyes affirm his finer expression his responsiveness disposition that endears him to all dog lovers in and out of the field. Few dogs which grace the show benches are more admired than this 90-pound creature, reputedly the most intelligent of the setter family. Behind a laterally oval skull there is plenty of brain room. This oval-shaped foundation produces much of the well-chiseled outward conformity that designates him as a classical head.

Breaking a Mirror

Don't be alarmed if you break a mirror and some one says that you'll have seven years' bad luck, because, like most superstitions, it is all nonsense and merely the end of witchcraft that was practiced during the Middle Ages. In those days if some one wanted to do harm to some one else he would contrive to break a mirror into which the second person had lately gazed. It was said that if the mirror could be broken before the fringe of the victim had "evaporated" seven years' bad luck would be bound to follow the smashing of the glass. Actually, of course, the whole idea is ridiculous, just as ridiculous as thinking that the spilling of salt will bring bad luck. That particular superstition is the result of the very ancient idea that to spill salt at a man's table after one has dined with him is to insult him and challenge him to battle.

Raleigh and a Comma

The will of Diego, a son of Christopher Columbus, recently discovered in Spain, was first thought to cast doubt upon the generally accepted story that Sir Walter Raleigh first introduced smoking into Europe, says Tobacco Topics Magazine. This will, dated May 2, 1528, more than 60 years before Raleigh smoked his first pipeful of tobacco, disposed of a sum of money to a certain Antonio described apparently as "tobacco merchant of Lisbon." Closer examination of this document causes scholars to believe that the clause reads "Antonio Tobacco, merchant of Lisbon." The name of Raleigh as patron saint of tobacco therefore seems to rest on the placing of a comma.

Opium Poppies

Opium is obtained from the milky juice of the young capsules of the poppy grown in China, India and Persia. The climate must be tropical or subtropical, there must not be an excessive rainfall, and the industry can be carried on successfully only where labor and land are sufficiently cheap and abundant. The cultivation of opium poppies for the production of opium is not possible in this country, even if it were permitted by law. It is said that every species of poppy is capable of yielding opium to a greater or lesser extent.
