Habeas Corpus Action Fails To Return Wife

Morgan Helton's attempt to cause the return of his youthful bride to him through a habeas corpus proceeding recently came to naught. The Middle Creek farmer, a man of advanced years, decided to drop the matter when his wife's mother did not agree to let Mrs. Helton return home after the writ had been served on her. His mother-in-law countered with a threat to take the matter to court, it is said, and this is believed to have influenced Helton in his decision to forgo further action.

NEW LAW TO VOID MANY NOMINATIONS

Unless Teachers Are Hired Before June 13, Is Prediction

Seventy-five per cent of nominations already made by sub-district trustees for teachers in Floyd county schools will be voided unless the county board of education hires teachers before June 13, it was predicted here Monday.

This situation arises from the fact that the law barring nomination of a teacher for a school by a trustee nearer than a second cousin to the teacher-candidate takes effect June 13.

The board did not meet Monday as scheduled. Dr. W. D. Osborne and Professor Conner were the only board members to appear. It was hinted that the board may not meet until Ballard Hunter, superintendent-elect, takes office July 1. The law barring recommendation of kin by a trustee or the vote of a board member for a relative nearer than a second cousin will result in teachers being shifted from schools at home to other districts.

If a board member's kin is nominated for teacher, such nomination must be made by another member and the vote of all members of the board is required to hire. The law may have another effect. That is to make the office of trustee less desirable, since these officials will be unable to recommend kinmen nearer than a second cousin as teachers. Election of trustees will be held this year on Saturday, July 14.

This Cattle Reduction Plan Would Be Good-If Workable

This would be a more simple plan than the government's proposed reduction plan—if it would work.

Dewey Justice, a Pike county farmer, is reported as having had a sick cow on his hands. Despairing of her life, he struck upon a "happy" idea which didn't after all turn out to be so happy. He didn't exactly cherish the idea of the cow being a complete loss; so, the story goes, he drove the animal three miles and tied her to the tracks of the Norfolk and Western Railway Company at McCarr.

HUGHES RETURNED HERE AS SLAYER OF FLOYD YOUTH

$10,000 Bond Asked For Release of Prisoner in Ashley Killing

Billy Hughes was returned to this county Saturday morning to face trial for the killing of Ashland Gusty at Bosco, several weeks ago. He was captured at Neosho, Mo., about two weeks ago and was returned to Floyd county by Deputy Sheriff R. R. Allen and Claude Flanery, of Martin. The return trip here was uneventful, the deputy sheriff said. Following the slaying of Gusty, Hughes fled and persistent search in this county failed to reveal his whereabouts.

His bond has been set at $10,000, and friends and relatives of Hughes were here Tuesday seeking to execute bail in this amount.

Cash Triplett, second of two alleged Floyd slayers, was captured in other states within the past month, executed $10,000 bond and was released from the county jail here last week. Both Triplett and Hughes will probably be given trial at the September term of the Floyd circuit court.

MANDAMUS ORDERS RECORD SURRENDER

Reynolds Directed To Deliver Treasurer's Office Appurtenances to Archer

Circuit Judge John W. Caudill last week in the Knott circuit court at Hindman granted a mandamus asked by the Floyd fiscal court declaring George P. Archer the legally elected county treasurer of this county and directing W. I. Reynolds, who is contesting his dismissal as treasurer, to surrender all records and moneys in his possession which belong to the office.

Judge Caudill granted a stay of 20 days of execution of the order, so that the defendant may submit the case to the court of appeals for an opinion. Mr. Reynolds had not, up till Tuesday morning of this week, forwarded his brief to the court of appeals, but it was said a few days ago that he plans to do so.

The fiscal court is to meet Monday, it is announced.

THE FAMILY NEXT DOOR

Vegetables For Next Winter

With June just begun, it may seem odd to be looking forward to next winter, but the facts of the case are that next winter's vegetables do depend to a great extent to what is done now. The vegetables that should be started now are cabbage, beets, carrots, tomatoes, broccoli and late cauliflower. Also, the bi-monthly plantings of beans should be doubled, during this month and July, so that there will be surpluses for canning and for making "shucked beans," the beans dried in the green pod stage.

As for beets, carrots and tomatoes for late fall and for winter storing, last week's discussion should suffice, except to give this reminder as to the varieties. These are Detroit Dark Reds, Marglobe and Chantenay carrots, and almost any variety of tomatoes except Earliana. In the event the wilt disease of tomatoes has given trouble in the past, the wilt-resistant sorts, Marglobe or Pritchard, sometimes called Searlet Tomatoes, should be used instead of the more ordinary varieties.

Late cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower seed should be started now. There are two ways: A planted may be prepared in which the seedlings, later to be transplanted, are grown, or the seed may be sown in pairs where the plants are to stand and one seedling left at a place. The latter way is surer, for this is removed the hazard from transplanting in the hot, dry weather that usually prevails in mid-July. Good locations are in rows of peas or early spinach, for their harvesting is completed or soon will be. Caps in the rows where onions have been pulled green may similarly be used. In fact, a good plan is to pull onions to be used in such a way that gaps occur spaced to accommodate these later crops. Whatever onions stay to be pulled when they mature may remain, with no harm to the growing cabbage, if they will not need the space until long after the last onions are pulled. Cabbage and the other members of this group should not follow mustard or early kale or radishes, for being related crops, they are all subject to the same diseases.

For late tomatoes and beets and carrots, the soil should be refertilized with a complete fertilizer, for these vegetables need all three food elements. For cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower the main need is nitrogen. This manure furnishes, with the soil thoroughly warmed up as it is in midsummer. A good plan is to dress the row with chicken manure at the rate of one bushel to 200 feet of row, and to spade it in two weeks before the plants are set. Lacking manure, the soil should be spaded and any high-grade complete fertilizer sown down the row in a band about 12 inches wide, at the rate of one pound to 25 feet and chopped in with a hoe or worked in with a rake. Nitrate of soda may be used instead of a complete fertilizer, but the rate should be one pound to 100 feet of row.

The varieties to use are: Cabbage, Drumhead, Late Flat Dutch or Houser; Cauliflower, Snowball; Broccoli, Green Sprouting Calabrian.

Spelling Champion

Sarah Wilson

Correcting the misspelling of "deteriorating" by James Wilson, Canton, Ill., representing The Peoria Journal-Transcript, and then spelling the word, "brethren." Sarah Wilson, a 12-year-old junior high school pupil from Gray, Mo., emerged victor in the tenth annual National Spelling Bee conducted by The Courier-Journal. By virtue of her victory over 18 territorial champions, Sarah received the first cash award of $500 and the two Courier-Journal spelling Bee plaques, one for herself and one for her school. This was Sarah's second year in the national final as the entrant of the Portland Evening Express. Last year she finished in tenth place, winning a $75 award.

James Wilson, the runner-up, received $300 as his share of the awards. Third place went to Helen Sullivan, entrant of the Hartford Times, who finished sixth with a score of 375. Margaret, the youngest of the 13 spellers, misspelled "pious" to end her chances at the national crown. She spelled the word "pias." Margaret is a sixth grade student in the consolidated school at Hardinsburg. She was accompanied to Washington by her teacher, Mrs. Marshall Norton.

James Martin, speller for Southern Indiana and The Louisville Times, won $50 by finishing eleventh. James, a 14-year-old eighth grade pupil of Washington, Indiana, spelled "systematic" with two "m's." Mr. E. E. Meade, his teacher, chaperoned him to the national finals.

The judges for the contest were Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Belmont C. Farley, of the National Education Association, and the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, the chaplain of the House of Representatives. The pronouncers were Dean C. E. Hill, of Geo. Washington University, and Dr. H. E. Warner, of Hine Junior High School, Washington. The Bee was presided over by Dean George B. Wood, of the American University. Mr. T. D. Martin, of the National Education Association, was secretary.

ALLEN POINTS NUPTIALS READ

At a morning wedding yesterday in the parlor of the First M. E. Church, South, Miss Ethel Mae Allen and Mr. Edmond M. Points, both of this city, were united in wedlock by the Rev. G. W. Twynham.

Both of these popular young people are members of families that have formerly lived in Ashland. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Allen, who now are living in Salyersville, and Mr. Points is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Points of Morehead.

Mr. and Mrs. Points are known by many in Ashland circles, and have both been for some months employees at the Henry Clay hotel pharmacy.

For their informal wedding at 10 o'clock yesterday there was a group of close friends and members of the immediate families, who had come here for the ceremony. An attractive brunette, the bride looked especially pretty in a navy blue and white crepe ensemble with finger-length coat. Her hat was dark blue and large brimmed. A shoulder spray of white geraniums completed the effect.

An early luncheon was given at the Henry Clay hotel dining room for the happy young couple, their relatives, and a few of their friends. Immediately after this they left for a short wedding trip to Lexington, the bride choosing for her travelling costume a brown linen suit and large brown hat.

When Mr. and Mrs. Points return to Ashland they are to live in the Henry Clay hotel and will receive the congratulations of many friends. They both went to Ashland high school, graduating in different classes—Mr. Points in '29 and Mrs. Points in 1931.

Here for the wedding were the parents of the bride and groom, the matron of honor, Mrs. Meadows and the bride's aunt, Mrs. C. S. Landrum, of Lexington and Miami, Fla.—Ashland Daily Independent of June 8.

Mrs. Points formerly resided here with her parents. She has many relatives and friends throughout Floyd county.

BORROWING YOUR NEIGHBOR'S TELEPHONE

By R. C. Tuck, MANAGER SOUTHERN BELL Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Neighbors may borrow for years and remain friendly, so long as such is careful to promptly return, in full measure, that which is borrowed. But let one get careless and forget to return items borrowed; then his friendship is almost certain to disappear.

If we haven't a law now, for example, and continue borrowing our neighbor's, he is soon likely to feel that he is being imposed on. And so it is when we make a practice of borrowing the use of our neighbor's telephone. Every time we do it, we are borrowing something we can't return, and soon our accommodating neighbor grows weary of the one-sided arrangement. He may not say anything to us for fear of hurting our feelings, but he is wondering, since it is apparent that we need a telephone, why we don't get one of our own.

When people start borrowing the use of a neighbor's telephone, they don't intend to impose on him. They just don't stop to think how much they may be inconveniencing their neighbors. They apparently forget the important fact that when they borrow a telephone they assume an obligation they can't pay back, and that next month they will probably force him to intimate that it isn't convenient to have us running in to use his telephone, or else to avoid trouble he may remove his telephone.

HEALTH NEWS

Packing Rabies Specimens For Shipment

The recent increase in rabies has resulted in a large number of dogs, heads and other animals reaching the Laboratory in containers which are in a leaking and dripping condition. This is extremely dangerous both to individuals handling the specimens en route to the laboratory and to the laboratory workers who open the packages and do the examinations.

The following general directions give necessary information as to the proper preparation and packing of specimens sent in for examination: First, and most important, do not kill the suspected dog or other animal if it can be confined in a safe place and watched closely for symptoms to develop. If the animal has already been killed, or if killed later, after symptoms have developed, (by shooting thru the body and not the head), the following packing directions must be observed.

(All victims who have been bitten about the face and neck and upper part of the trunk should begin treatment immediately, without waiting for confirmation of the diagnosis of rabies in the animal. In such cases, the animal is to be watched, as above, and the brain examined after the symptoms have developed. If an animal remains healthy for 10 days, it may be assumed that he positively did not have rabies at the time of the bite. In such a case the bitten victim may safely discontinue the treatment.)

The head should be placed in a metal container, a tin can with a tight fitting top being preferable, and, if humanly possible, the lid or top should be sealed by soldering, so as to make a water-tight container. This can should then be placed in a larger container, preferably a wooden bucket, or similar vessel, and ice packed around the inner can. If ice is not available, sawdust should be used as packing material, as the head must be well preserved in order to get a satisfactory examination.

Packages containing specimens of rabies should be sent by express, charges prepaid, and the packages must be labeled prominently "DOG'S HEAD," etc., and "Perishable - Re-ice." Rabies specimens positively must not be sent by mail.

In addition to the shipping directions given above, please bear in mind that a negative report, which you will usually receive by telegraph, does not rule out rabies, as the animal may have been in a very early stage, in which the brain may not be positive. It is probable, of course, that an animal is not infective until the stage in which Negri bodies are present in the brain, but we are not justified in following this assumption, as the presence of a very few Negri bodies may not be discovered by routine examination.

43,311 CHEVROLET UNITS DELIVERED

Detroit, June 1.—Chevrolet dealers delivered 43,311 units during the first 20 days of last month, according to William E. Höller, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Retail deliveries during the year to May totaled 324,344 against 223,857 units for the same period of 1933, 145 per cent of the same time last year.

Retail deliveries of commercial cars and trucks continued to gain. Dealers delivered 7, 943 commercial units during this 20-day period against 5,470 for the same period a year ago.

"Because of the tremendous public demand for the new 1934 model knee action cars, production has not yet been able to keep pace with sales requirements," said Mr. Höller. "The May 20 report shows that Chevrolet dealers have on hand 30,000 unfilled orders for knee-action models. This together with the sales activities of the dealers, assures a very satisfactory last 10-day period in May.

"Unquestionably, fully enclosed knee action, shock-proof steering, cable-controlled brakes, 80-horsepower engine, and Fisher body have definitely met with public acceptance and have established an outlook for increased activity during the coming summer."

'Honest Abe' Himself Editor of Biography Which He Contributes

Springfield, Ill., June 3.—A copy of the William Dent Howell biography of Abraham Lincoln, written in 1860 with many penciled corrections in the margin made by Lincoln himself, has been located.

Benjamin P. Thomas, executive secretary of the Abraham Lincoln Association, told today of the biography in the Association's June bulletin.

The book belongs to Samuel C. Parks Jr., Cody, Wyo., whose father, Logan county, Ill. lawyer, rode the circuit with Lincoln.

On the book's flyleaf appears the following notation: "This life of Abraham Lincoln was corrected by him for me, at his request, in the summer of 1860, by notes in his handwriting, in pencil on the margin.

"It is to be preserved by my children as a lasting memorial of that great man, and of his friendship for me."

It was signed by Parks at Kansas City, Mo., May 22, 1901.

Several stories which have been based on traditional evidence are substantiated by the corrected biography, Thomas said.

One is a Lincoln Black Hawk War experience, which Albert J. Beveridge, a Lincoln biographer, and other Lincoln authors regarded as improbable.

This story, allowed to stand in the Howell's biography by Lincoln, has to do with an old Indian who wandered into the camp area, seized by soldiers who threatened to kill him. Lincoln, so Howell narrated, intervened, and when the soldiers accused him of cowardice, agreed to convince any of them to the contrary.

Howells was 23 years old when he wrote the biography of the Civil War President.

Thomas said Lincoln's corrections deny several stories which often have been accepted as true.

Howell told that when Lincoln enlisted in the Black Hawk war, the men voted for their captain by lining up behind the candidate of their choice. He said three-fourths of the men immediately lined up behind Lincoln.

The rival candidate, Howells stated, was a harsh and exacting employer and had treated Lincoln, "whom everybody else loved and esteemed, with the greatest of rigor."

Lincoln crossed out the quoted passage and wrote at the bottom of the page: "William Kirkpatrick—I never worked for him—"

On another page, Howells asserts that as a member of the Illinois Legislature, "Lincoln used to perform his journeys between New Salem and the seat of government on foot though the remaining eight of the long line (the Sangamon county delegation) traveled on horse-back."

Lincoln crossed this out and wrote: "No harm, if true, but it is not true."

Howells gave the name of Lincoln's mother as "Lucy," which Lincoln crossed out and wrote "Nancy" in the margin. Lincoln later appointed the senior Parks, a native of Vermont, to the Supreme Court of Idaho, when that state was still a territory.

THE SHAMOKIN EXPERIMENT

At Shamokin, Pennsylvania, says a recent newspaper report, it is to be the first experiment to be undertaken by the national government for the relief of unemployed miners.

The plan is to induce private industries to move into the community, thus furnishing employment for the unemployed there and, if necessary, for others who may be moved to Shamokin.

If such an experiment is as applicable to the bituminous coal fields as the anthracite, Floyd county offers a fertile field for this work.

This county has ideal sites for factories, with gas and coal and waterpower in abundance. It needs diversified industries.

The Shamokin experiment might mean something to Floyd county. Emphasize the word, "might."

That gang down at Frankfort might be called the "allegislature," if it doesn't do something worthwhile.

JESUS ON THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew, 27:32-54. GOLDEN TEXT—Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith...

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Dying for Us. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Giving His Life for Us.

In a real sense the grand climax of the entire lesson given today is this one. It is not a matter of learning the lessons taught by a great teacher...

They led him away to Golgotha, a hill north of Jerusalem, resembling a skull. He was crucified without the pain...

It was the custom for the soldiers who had charge of the crucifixion to receive the garments of the one crucified. This superstition was placed upon Pilate...

He was reviled by the passers-by, the chief priests, the scribes, the officers and the very malcontents who were crucified with him.

OPPOSE FEDERAL ELECTRIC PLANTS

2,500 Miners, Producers "Go On Record" In Protesting Projects

Chicago, June 4—More than 250,000 coal miners and mine owners in 12 states producing over 200,000,000 tons of bituminous coal annually, have gone on record vigorously opposing any further development of hydro-electric projects by the federal government, according to compilations completed today by the National Job Saving and Investment Protection Bureau for the coal industry.

Acting through the coal code authorities for their respective states, these workers and property owners have forwarded to their representatives in Washington resolutions condemning the proposal of Senator Norris of Nebraska for the development of hydro-electric power in the 10 states comprising the Missouri river watershed. The resolutions also opposed such hydro-electric projects as proposed for Nebraska, Arkansas, Indiana and other states.

These protests are in addition to those filed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, on behalf of the 600,000 coal miners of the nation; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; A. F. Whitney, of the Railroad Brotherhoods; the National Coal Association; and the National Job Saving and Investment Protection Bureau, it is pointed out by the bureau.

"The action of these scattered groups in so strenuously protesting the water power development program of the Public Works Administration," the Job Saving Bureau states, "is indicative of the determination of the coal industry, the workers and owners alike, to stand on its rights and protect its job and its tax-paying property."

"Each time one of these hydro-electric projects is placed in operation steam plants stop running and a market for coal is destroyed. Many jobs in the coal mines, on the railroads and in other lines more or less dependent upon the coal industry, are eliminated."

"The FWA has carried out its program in a high-handed and arbitrary manner without even allowing those whose welfare will be affected an opportunity to present their case. It is, in fact, confiscation of property and jobs without a hearing and the coal industry is a unit in demanding the right to defend its jobs and its property."

States whose Congressmen have received copies of resolutions condemning the hydro-electric development proposal of Senator Norris are Utah, Colorado, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Arkansas, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Ohio, Tennessee and Georgia.

GRIFFENHAGEN REPORT DISCUSSES CONDITIONS

The recent report of Griffenhagen and Associates, after an extensive audit and audit of the several branches of the state government, says:

"From the standpoint of the profession approach to its duties and the scope and effectiveness of its work, the State Board of Health is probably the outstanding agency of the state government. It is one of the few state agencies whose methods and accomplishments rank high in comparison with those of other states."

In 1931 President Roosevelt, then Governor of New York, appointed a commission to study and make recommendations upon public health procedures in that state. After a year's study, Mr. Roosevelt, and his commission recommended the adoption, almost without amendment, of the exact plan which the Legislature of Kentucky had enacted into law in 1918. In presenting this plan to the Legislature and people of the state of New York, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The rewards of following this plan will redound to ourselves as individuals, no less progress to the prosperity and civilization of the state. No consideration is involved other than to prevent needless death and suffering for the people and needless social ills for the state. We have gone far enough in the right direction to be assured that we can finish the job. The tools for it are designated and the methods outlined here."

One-third as many people now have been associated with the average age of our citizens at death has more than doubled. Improved public health in Kentucky has resulted chiefly from the work of three agencies, all controlled by a wakened and sympathetic public opinion. These agencies are: the legislature, the medical profession, and those who have been associated with the conduct of the state and county health departments.

One need not approve every section, or even every principle, in the laws enacted to say, fairly, that the recently adjourned session of the Legislature of Kentucky began the accomplishment of more for the economic and efficient government of its people than had hitherto been accomplished by any preceding Legislature. Among the major measures considered and enacted were the State Reorganization Bill, the State Financial Code, the State School Code, the re-organization of the State Bar Association, the several bills reforming budget and financial control of the counties, and the law providing for the completion of the Mammoth Cave National Park.

A special recess committee was appointed to consider revenue and appropriations bills. In considering tax measures, this committee, composed of representatives of both parties and all factions, is reported in the Courier-Journal of April 6 as saying they were being considered from the following standpoints:

First—Which ones are the most equitable and will fairly distribute the burden among all the people.

Second—Which ones are the most feasible and plausible methods.

Third—Which ones can be the most effectively administered and economically collected.

Fourth—Which ones will provide immediate revenue during the emergency.

It is apparent to all men that without adequate revenue the reform legislation of the regular session would be "as idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean."

The people of Kentucky must purchase health at a relatively small cost, or ill health at a very high cost.

The people of Kentucky must pay for the education of their children at a relatively small cost per child, or for wasteful ignorance at a far greater cost.

The people of Kentucky must continue to build and maintain good roads at a relatively low cost, or to drag through mud and bump over stones and ruts at a far greater cost.

The people of Kentucky must extend and improve the care of its insane and other unfortunates, delinquents and underprivileged, at a relatively low cost, or they must inadequately care for them in a hospital in their homes at a much greater water cost.

The people of Kentucky must support their courts of justice, or they must reap their neglect in increased and unnecessary crime and litigation.

The cost of efficient government, economically administered, comes, of course, from the pockets of the people. The cost and waste of inefficient and inadequate government is much greater and it comes out of exactly the same pocket.

C. & O. WINS IN U. S. COURT

Deliberating for about 10 minutes, a jury in the United States district court Friday afternoon returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, dismissing the plaintiff's petition in the case of the Cow Creek Coal Company vs. the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

Alleging that one of their coal tipples in this county was destroyed by fire as a direct result of the negligence of the defendant company, the plaintiff had asked judgment in the sum of $3,000.

Immediately after the verdict was returned in the above case, Judge Cochran dismissed the jury and recessed court until June 21.

WOMAN LOSES 41 LBS OF FAT

Blood Pressure Down Too

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for my health and for high blood pressure and rheumatism and it helped both. My blood pressure was high as 290 when I started to take Kruschen. I weighed 255 and now I weigh 214. That is losing 41 lbs. in about nine months and I feel fine." Mrs. W. Eckert.

A half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of warm water every morning SAFELY takes off unnecessary fat, helping to re-establish proper functioning of body organs—at the same time it energizes and helps build up robust health. Food never younger—ACT IT and LOOK IT. One bottle lasts 4 weeks. You can get Kruschen Salts at any drug store in the world.

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR KILLERS

Robert George, who was convicted of murder by a Floyd county jury in 1928, has been released from the state reformatory in Frankfort and is a free man again. The Courier-Journal does not attempt to pass on the merits of the claims made by George for leniency, but his case is so typical of the operation of justice in Kentucky that it bears repetition.

George was tried for the murder of a neighbor, Banner Prater, in April, 1928, protesting innocence and claiming he killed Prater in self-defense. Judge C. E. Wheeler later wrote to the Governor that he was convinced the defendant was "crazy drunk" at the time of the killing and other Floyd countyans sent word to Frankfort that they believed George must have been in a high state of intoxication to commit such a crime.

The jury convicted the defendant of murder, however, and gave him a sentence of life imprisonment, which would suggest that they did not put a great deal of stock in the self-defense theory. Two years later, in July, 1930, representations were made to Floyd D. Sampson, then Governor of the state, which moved him to commute George's sentence to 21 years. Sampson was just then in the midst of a pardoning rampage and had made the declaration, that the office of Commissioner of Pardons was "the most useful in the state."

Another four years passed, and Governor Ruby Leflon looked with sympathy on the case of Robert George. He commuted his 21-year sentence to 10 years, which made him immediately eligible for parole. Thus, after serving exactly six years in the state reformatory a man who has been convicted of a first degree murder and given a life sentence is out from behind the bars.

The individual case of Robert George may have some alleviating circumstances, but the handling of the case is an other precedent on which our criminals can base their calculations as to how much of a penalty they may have to pay if they commit a major crime in Kentucky. The George case is only one of dozens in recent years that show the peculiar leniency of Kentucky justice toward the man who takes another man's life. This Courier-Journal.

Eiffel Tower Now a Thermometer, as French Adapt World's Fair Idea

The giant Haviland thermometer proved such an outstanding feature of the Century of Progress in Chicago last year that its basic principles have been copied for the famous Eiffel Tower in Paris. Christianized as a "monument to Chicago's climate," the modified structure of the American structure will be visible again this year at the Paris Exposition in 1937.

WARRANTS OUT FOR 2 FOLLOWING ATTACK ON GARRETT MERCHANT

Bill Francis, Garrett merchant, swore out five warrants here Thursday morning for Ed Vanderpool and George Hancock, of Garrett, following an altercation between them and Francis in the latter's store Wednesday afternoon. Two warrants charged Vanderpool with striking and wounding and a third alleges reckless use of a deadly weapon. The two warrants for Hancock allege drunkenness and breach of the peace. Francis said that after he had been threatened, he ordered the two out of his store, that after a time they left, but that Hancock returned with a rock in his hand, threatening to kill him. When he attempted to protect himself, the merchant alleges, Vanderpool struck him on the head with a pistol and sought to shoot him. Francis' son, Celestine, interfered and was also struck, he stated. A window in the store was broken out by Hancock, the merchant said.
