EAST KENTUCKY COAL OPERATORS WIN RATE PARITY

Looks Like We Are Over Last Hurdle, Says Neekamp of ICC Decision

"This looks like we are over the last hurdle," C. J. Neekamp, managing director, Northeast Kentucky Coal Bureau, wrote recently in comment upon the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission which ordered an increase on the freight rates for coal from the Logan, W. Va., field so as to equalize these rates with those effective for coal from this section to tidewater.

On May 13, the Interstate Commerce Commission denied petitions of the West Virginia Coal and Coke Company and of the Island Creek Coal and Coke Company, appealing against increased rates from their field. Work of the Northeast Kentucky Coal Bureau, and the Kentucky Railroad Commission figured prominently in obtaining this freight rate parity.

The following, taken from a news-story appearing in The Herald-Dispatch (Huntington, W. Va., covers the situation, which at this time has a pleasing aspect for Eastern Kentucky operators who long have suffered from a freight rate handicap in competition with the West Virginia field.

The railway company's notice of an increase in rates, following a meeting of the Island Creek Coal Co., the West Virginia Coal and Coke Corporation and some 50 other operators in the Logan fields follows the recent ICC order directing the promulgation of an equalized rate on coal for transshipment by barge produced in the Logan fields and the northeastern Kentucky fields.

Floyd Countians To Share Spotlight When Folk Song Festival Presented June 9

While Floyd countians have always played a prominent part in the annual staging of the American Folk Song Festival, they are expected this year to take on even more prominence in the fifth annual festival to be held at the Trapsain' Woman Cabin, picturesque home of the festival's founder, Miss Jean Thomason, on Sunday, June 9, it is announced.

Mrs. Josephine Harkins Browning, of Ashland, native Prestonsburg woman who sings and plays the role of Euphemia in the Infare scene, this year also will sing the leading part in a one-act mountain opera specially written for the Folk Song Festival.

Mrs. Reba Mayo, wife of Attorney W. F. Mayo, of Ashland, will be in charge of the art and handicraft exhibit at the festival this year, and will be assisted by Miss Tot Allen, also of Prestonsburg. The art exhibit of Mrs. Mayo's own

STOLEN BEAUTY SHOP EQUIPMENT LOCATED HERE BY AUTHORITIES

Sheriff M. T. Stumbo and Ashland police last week located here beauty shop equipment said to have been stolen from an Ashland beautician valued at approximately $500.

Frank Sherman, now in jail in Ashland, charged with slugging and robbing a taxi driver, and recently is alleged to have stolen the articles, most of which were found at the home of a local woman to whom they had been sold.

Others may be implicated in the case, it was said by authorities, but buyers of stolen equipment, officers are convinced, were innocent purchasers.

At the time the application was made and during the subsequent hearings before the ICC the Kentucky operators revealed plans for construction of extensive terminal and tipple facilities at Catlettsburg, where the Kentucky coal would be loaded on barges for shipment. Cost of this construction would approximate $250,000 according to C. J. Neekamp, of Ashland; managing director of the North-East Kentucky Coal Association.

Facilities are available at Catlettsburg. Mr. Neekamp last night was without any information as to the publication of the new tariffs and said that until such information was available he had no comment to make.

Principals operators in the Big Sandy fields include the Consolidation, Elkhorn, Koppers, Inland Fuel, Pike-Floyd, Glogora and North-East Kentucky companies.

Dr. R. H. Messer and family leave Friday for Harrington Lake, where they will spend a few days' outing, during which Dr. Messer will resume his favorite sport as a fisherman.

Mrs. J. J. Hatcher spent Friday in Ashland.

FLOYD MEN ASK GUFFEY BILL O. K.

Legislative Union Group Seeks Congressional Support for Visit to Capital

Washington, May 14—Support for the Guffey bill to stabilize the coal industry was sought from Kentucky members of Congress today by a delegation of political and mine union leaders from the Kentucky coal fields.

The delegation conferred also with officials of the United Mine Workers of America. Shortly after this conference, U. M. W. A. said he expected John L. Lewis, president of the Administration support for the Guffey bill and indicated the industry might be faced with a tie-up at the beginning of the busy season if favorable action was not obtained.

While Lewis would not say a walkout was contemplated, he said the U. M. W. A. was "quite aware" of this possibility.

Lewis and Henry Warrum, general counsel of the union, discussed the Guffey bill with the Kentucky delegation before the group called on Senator M. M. Logan of Kentucky.

Logan told the delegation he was not entirely familiar with the measure, but believed he agreed in principle with the objective. The bill would establish a national coal reserve, provide for allocation of production, and set up a board to administer its provisions.

Joe P. Tackett, Prestonsburg, Ky., attorney and a member of the delegation, said he believed Logan would support the bill "with certain amendments," including districting the board so that membership would be distributed among all producing areas, and safeguarding against discrimination in allocation of production.

The delegation included Dr. W. L. Stumbo, Martin, county judge of Floyd county; Floyd Byrd, Lexington; E. J. Morgan, Madisonville, district president of the U. M. W. A.; Douglas Hays, of the Floyd

Installation Work On Pipe Organ For Church Here Begins This Week

Work on the installation of a pipe organ in the Methodist Church here will begin this week, according to a statement given out by Rev. H. F. King, pastor of the church. Parts of the organ have arrived and the completed instrument is expected this week. It will require about two weeks to install the instrument in a church.

The organ is a Pilscher, built by Henry Filcher's Sons, Louisville, and has been in the process of construction for the past four months, being designed especially for the church by W. E. Pilscher, Jr. It is a two-manual console, 568 pipes, and has along with other famous work the bearing of the Cathedral Chimes.

The date for the first presentation and dedication is set for June 16. A general "Home-coming" is planned for that time with a sumptuous dinner served in the church.

Dr. C. W. Twynham, who is pastor of the church from 1908 to 1910, will preach at the dedicatory service at 11 o'clock. Dr. Twynham, who is now residing in the Clarksburg district, served for several years in Europe, being pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Poland and Belgium.

On returning to America, he served as pastor of the First Church in Ashland until he was assigned to the Clarksburg district last fall.

Rev. J. M. Helm, of Fairmont, will preach at the evening service on the day of dedication. He will be remembered as the youngest and most popular pastor the church at this place has ever had.

Also has the distinction of having served this church longer than any other man.

Twenty preachers who have been connected with the local Methodist Church in the capacity of pastor or presiding elder are living and will be invited to attend these services.

The church is being repaired and painted in preparation for the home-coming and dedication of the organ.

In recognition of a generous gift by the Harkins family toward the purchase of the organ, several members of the

JACK HARRIS IS KILLED AT EMMA SATURDAY NIGHT

Harry Lee Leslie Is Freed Under $10,000 Bond In Slaying

Within 10 minutes after he had been shot in the region of his heart by a .38-calibre revolver bullet fired by Harry Lee Leslie, Jack Harris, 53, died Saturday evening, between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

The shooting took place in front of the store operated in Emma by W. J. Lafferty, who and the two men had met and engaged in an argument. One report says the trouble started with a discussion of the buying of a house owned by Leslie after Harris had sought to rent the building.

Friends of Leslie said this week that he had upon Harris when the latter was threatening him with a razor and that the shot was fired in defense of his own life.

Another version of the shooting is that Leslie had left his auto and walked back to a store when the bullet entered Harris' body near his heart and right shoulder blade. The wounded man walked into the store and collapsed, dying a few minutes later.

Leslie, a son of L. C. Leslie, veteran Floyd teacher and one of the county's best citizens, surrendered to authorities Saturday night and Monday morning was granted $10,000 bond when examining trial was waived and Commonwealth and defense counsel agreed upon amount of bail.

The victim was a member of one of the county's largest and best-known families, and had many friends in this section.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Helen Fisher, of Louisville, two sisters, Mrs. Bertram Burchett and Mrs. Bertram Porter, of Emma, and one brother, Ballard Harris, of Emma.

His wife preceded his death about two years ago.

From Heights of Aviation to Depths of Downy Bed Range Ambitions of P. H. S. Seniors

By Bob Potter

What is he like—this Prestonsburg and Floyd county high school senior, who next week goes out to try the world for his oyster, and who will find how dry and rancid an oyster can be? Where's he going, Jean May, Louis Harkey Mayo, from, and where's he going, Jeannette McGuire, Eula Mae Nunney, Jack Salisbury, Carl Smith, Ernest A. Thomas, Helen I. Tacey, Jesse Wallen and Emma Mae Young?

For one thing, he or she or whatever you will call this composite senior, is 18 years of age the graduates vary from 18 to 22—18 bits the average. The senior is more of a boy than a girl, as far as the 26 go, with 14 lads and 12 lassies. The town-country proportion is not the same, and from them we shall construct our 1935 senior. This composite picture is formed from the following members of the class:

Kermit Baldrige, Ethel M. Burke, Hern Burke, Ruby Burke, Olive Cooley, Ashland high school senior, who next week goes out to try the world for his oyster, and who will find how dry and rancid an oyster can be? Where's he going, Jeannette McGuire, Eula Mae Nunney, Jack Salisbury, Carl Smith, Ernest A. Thomas, Helen I. Tacey, Jesse Wallen and Emma Mae Young?

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of the Ohio Conference of Synods, and Editor of Watson Newspaper Guide.

Lesson for May 26 THE LORD'S SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:17-20; 1 Corinthians 11:23-26. GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me—1 Corinthians 11:24. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Supper Jesus Gave His Friends. JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have the Lord's Supper. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Observe the Lord's Supper? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

1. It was instituted by Christ (Matt. 26:26-28). The time of it (1 Cor. 11:23). It was on the night of the betrayal of Jesus, just after the betrayer had been announced.

2. The circumstances of (Matt. 26:26). It was in connection with the eating of the Passover. At the command of Jesus the disciples had made ready the Passover, and while they were eating he took bread and blessed it and gave to the disciples.

3. The elements used (v. 26). Bread, doctored with salt, and the Passover feast, and the cup which was the fruit of the vine.

4. The significance of the Lord's Supper (1 Cor. 11:24-25; cf. Matt. 26:26-28).

Jesus took natural and literal elements and made them to be symbols of his own body and blood. The bread and drink are transformed into brain and brawn, becoming integral parts of our bodies, so by means of these symbols the communicant partakes of Christ. We are in him and he is in us.

5. It is a memorial of the Lord (Luke 22:19). When he left the world he left the bread and the cup by which the disciples would remember him. Every true disciple will gladly avail himself of the opportunity thus to remember his Lord.

6. To show the Lord's sacrificial death (v. 28). Jesus Christ did not die as a hero, but as a substitutionary ransom. On the cross he made expiation for us.

7. It is a guarantee that our sins are forgiven (Rom. 4:25). "It was the sign of the Son of God attached to redemption."

8. It symbolizes the believer's reception of Christ (1 Cor. 10:16). The communicant thereby participates in the body and blood of Christ, becoming a member of his body.

9. It is a forward look to a completed redemption (1 Cor. 11:26). When faith is exercised in Christ, redemption begins and its completion will take place at the coming of Jesus Christ (1 Thess. 4:16, 17). The bread and the cup constitute the keepers of the Lord until he returns. These elements possess not only a spiritual, but a pronounced psychological value, both as a memorial and as a prospect.

10. Qualifications for Participation in the Lord's Supper (1 Cor. 11:27-29).

1. A proper apprehension of its meaning (v. 27). Eating and drinking unworthily primarily refers not to the desert of the communicant, but the failure to grasp the meaning and importance of the ordinance. To engage thoughtlessly in this service is to do it unworthily. Only a regenerated person can discern the Lord's body. Faith in the integrity of Christ's person and work is essential. Anyone who does not believe in the absolute deity of Christ and his vicarious atonement to an unworthy communicant.

2. Church membership (1 Cor. 11:18-19). Christ's body is the Church, which is composed of regenerated men and women united to him as head and to each other as members of that body by the Holy Spirit.

3. Orderly walk. Conduct which disqualifies for participation in the Lord's supper is:

a. Immoral conduct (1 Cor. 5:1-13). It is most perilous for one who is guilty of immorality to approach the Lord's table (1 Cor. 11:30). Sickness and death are often visited upon such. This explains why some are mysteriously taken away in death.

b. Heresy (Tit. 2:14; 1 John 4:2-3). The one who does not believe in the deity and incarnation of Christ is a heretic. Such should be excluded from the Lord's table.

c. The one who stirs up party strife (Rom. 16:17). Those who cause divisions in the Church should also be excluded from the Lord's table.

Freedom and Triumph To be granted by an individual necessarily from without is slavery; to be borne along the path of duty by an inward force, which we would not resist if we could, is freedom, peace, triumph.

SEED THOUGHTS Often it takes some tide of grief to lift us to our best.

Remember that every drop of rain that falls bears into the bosom of the earth a quality of beautiful fertility.—G. H. Lewis.

All things and all acts in this whole wonderful universe proclaim to us the Lord our Father, Christ our love, Christ our hope, our portion, and our joy.

Floyd Countian Finds Fan Dancer Of Artistic Mind

The following interview with Sally Rand, of fan dance fame, was written by Harrison Elliott, teacher this year in the Wheelwright school, and a young composer and singer of local fame. Mr. Elliott at present is in Ashland, where he is singing over station WMCL and working on original music compositions.)

Sally Rand, that grey-eyed charmer with the blonde tresses who weighs 115 pounds and is five feet tall, was born of Scotch-Irish parents in the Ozark mountains of Missouri. These things and many more I heard from her own lips in an exclusive interview with her in her dressing room at the Keith-Albee theater in Huntington, Friday.

Miss Rand's earliest ambition was to become an actress, at the age of 13, having completed one year of high school, she joined a dramatic stock company in Kansas City. After a few years in dramatic stock she swung into musical comedy, and first commanded attention when she appeared in musical shows staged by the great Gus Edwards.

On her latest, the dancer there six months. Get a job in any chorea you can get into, and work, work, work!" Miss Rand believes that the theater has a definite place in the entertainment, cultural and educational life of the nation and insists that the next five years will bring a Renaissance in the ballet form of the dance.

Contrary to popular belief, Sally Rand is an intellectual who enjoys reading more than anything else. The April issue of Review of Reviews carries an article by her. Miss Rand is completely sold on the works of Oscar Wilde and is warm in her praise of John Murray Anderson, who recently staged Wilde's epic poem, "The Little King." Miss Rand is the producer of "She Loves Me Not," and "Of These I Sing," the greatest modern showman. The writings of Tiffany Thayer and Frank Swinnerton have a great appeal for the fan dancer.

She bought "God Earth" by Pearl Buck is her favorite novel. Her favorite poem is "Tristram" by Edward Arlington Robinson. Miss Rand gets a lot of kick from water sports, horseback riding and gardening. She is a devotee of cracking corn and bread, although she lists unions with step-ins and flannel underwear as "romance destroyers." Her opinion of men? Here it is: "I couldn't do without them. My entire entourage consists of men. I am entirely surrounded by men, even have a "man drawer." She says men are the most important part of any woman's life. Miss Rand is a bachelor girl and has no immediate intention of becoming anyone's wife.

Is Miss Rand superstitious? Well, just because I witnessed in her dressing room, she made me go out in the hall, turn around three and swear. This apparently broke the ill luck "spell." She was satisfied. Is she a virgin? Miss Rand said she was. But she said she was a virgin. Miss Rand bought my fountain pen for five bucks. It seemed she liked the stub-point in the pen. I was very that my interview with this interview. The dancer had "stuck his head in the door and announced that it was almost time for her next appearance on the stage. Her public awaited her, anxiously.

EARL ALLEN, Collector.

In a recent check of employable able-bodied men on relief rolls in Floyd county, more than 1,500 have failed to avail themselves of the opportunity to register with the National Re-Employment Service, in order that they may be considered by private industry or permanent placement or for employment on PWA projects.

W. A. Peterman, district manager of the 11th district, Pikeville, urges that all able-bodied persons on relief rolls avail themselves of this opportunity now, to register for a chance to be permanently placed in private industry. Those who are unable to go to Pikeville, should communicate with Mr. Peterman at Pikeville, who will arrange to have them registered.

The National Re-Employment Service not only is an agency created to handle PWA, but also to assist unemployed persons to secure permanent jobs in private industry.

Many Children Accident Victims

Out of the total of 24,000 persons killed last year in automobile accidents in this country, nearly 1,500 of the victims were under five years of age and around 3,800 others who met death were between the ages of five and fourteen, according to figures on the results of automobile accidents compiled by the Travelers Insurance Company.

Nearly 80 per cent of all the children killed under the age of five were on the streets as pedestrians, the total of such casualties amounted to almost 1,200. Slightly more than 75 per cent of the children between the ages of five and fourteen also were on the streets as pedestrians.

Although many children are killed because of playing in streets, the records for last year show that out of a total of approximately 4,500 children who were only 1,800 that resulted from playing in the streets.

When Worlds Collide
By EDWIN BALMER and PHILIP WYLIE.
Copyright by Edwin Balmer and Philip Wylie. WNU Service

"And we must take one of the reputed scoundrels of the earth."
"What?" said Tony.
"The grasshopper—the loudest. Such an insect will be vitally necessary to keep the greenery from choking our new earth; and the one best suited for this job is paradoxically enough, one of mankind's oldest scourges, the grasshopper. He is an omnivorous feeder and would keep the greenery in check—after he got his start. Our first problem may be that he will not multiply fast enough; and then that he will multiply too fast. So to keep him in check, and also the butterfly and the moth, we will take parasitism flies. We will have to have one or two or three of the dozen common Tachidae have been chosen."
"We are bringing along vials of microbeum and other fungi spores. Our next destination would fall down never degenerate, and pile up till everything was dead. I will take the size of your thumb. Ideas several billion spores of assorted fungi—in case the spores of the fungi or Brouson field take and succeed, they are absolutely essential."
"Also, we are taking bottles of steamed pond water and samples of seawater containing our micro-organisms such as diatoms, plankton, unicellular plants and animals which form the basis of our own biotic economy and world supplement, or replace, such life on the other globe."
"About animals," Tony urged.
"Yes, about animals," he said.
"There is, naturally, still discussion. Our space is so limited, and there is most tremendous competition. Birds offer a somewhat simpler problem."
"The matter of dogs and cats is the most difficult," Henderson said, closing the subject. Air pumps gurgled somewhere within the ship, which seemed half-empty. Electric generators hummed, and faintly glowing, indicating the high note of one of the electronic engines. Tony led Henderson and went from the ship.
That night the emigrants from the earth gathered again in the dining hall. Henderson addressed them, outlining the general and preliminary instructions to meet such contingencies as could be foreseen.
After the meeting, the crowd moved outdoors and stood awhile, looking at the Brouson Apollo. As in their former approach they saw and increased in diameter proportion during the last few days and nights, and they had dominated the heavens. Alpha looked at Beta, which rushed toward the earth ahead of it, in the same position as that held by a planet in transit across the face of the sun. The spectacle was one of weird beauty, and one calculated to strike terror in the bravest. Brouson Alpha looked like the rising moon, except that it was much larger than any moon had ever seemed to be.
Already the discipline and warring nature of man's world was stirring to their approach. Slight earthquake shocks were felt from time to time, and the very winds seemed to be moving in a consistency of the aerial catapans that was drawing near. All over the world the plants and animals lay about since the shattering of the moon—rose again and flicked up the sides of the trees, ran across the people who had looked on the seas and prairie plateaus that might know instinctively that this was indeed the end.
Tony sought out Eve. "Come walk with me," he said.
"I'd like to. It's so strange to wait, with everything done that must wait. For it's all done. Tony's every thing that we're to take with us has been prepared and put in place."
Tony was excited and on edge with nerves which he tried to quiet and could not.
"Do you suppose," he said, "there'll be other ships coming from this side of the world tomorrow night and from the other side, the evening after?"
"Father doesn't know. When the radios were working well, months ago, he broadcast the knowledge of Earth's world. It must have become obtainable from volcanic eruptions in other places. But we've got to wait for any one else to start. One thing is certain. No party can count upon the arrival of any other. Each crew has to assume on its own that only one that gets across to Brouson Beta."
"And I'm lucky if it lands, too," agreed Tony.
"The English, Father thinks, surely have preserved enough organization to build and equip one ship, and the French, the Germans and Italians ought to do the same. Then there are the Russians and the Japanese. I read with interest the potential ability to do it. There's a chance in Australia and another in South Africa—Lord Rhodog would head any party there. Fe-ther Rhodog...

"Any one else?"
"A possibility in Argentina, and China."
"That makes two, counting our two possibilities. That's all, of course, we know nothing about them. Father says they may get ships out into space."
"What five?" demanded Tony.
"He did not name them."
"Five into space beyond the attraction of the world?"
"The world won't be left then, Tony." Eve reminded him.
"Right. Tony how one keeps forgetting that, isn't it? So there'll be no place for them to drop back to if they miss Brouson Beta. They just stay—out there in space—in their rocket units."
They were off by themselves now, and Tony drew her nearer to him. She neither encouraged nor resisted him. He tightened his arm about her, and felt her softness and warmth against him. For a moment more she remained motionless, neutral; then suddenly her hands were on his arms, clapping him, clinging to him. Her face became tense, thrilling, and as he bent her lips burned on his.
She drew back a little, and at last he let her go. In a shadow he kissed her again; then her lips close to his, said: "Farewell to earth, Tony!"
"Yes," he said, answering. "Yes, I suppose this is our last see night."
"No; we leave tonight, Tony."
"Tonight? I thought it was tomorrow."
"No; Father feared the last night—if any one knew it in advance. So he said tomorrow; but all his calculations make it tonight."
"Tonight, Eve?"
"In an hour, dear. You'll have the beds in the dining room, you'll see."
"And Dave?" asked Tony jealously.
"Dave is the best of us, his great strength was to be commanding, except as to scientific matters, of the party in the second ship. Tony was named second only to Henderson on the first ship; and Tony had no interest of Dave for that. Moreover, Eve was to travel in the ship with her father and Tony; if he were saved, she would be the one to lead him out there, he had told himself that he had conquered his jealousy of Dave; but here it still holds him."
"No," said Eve. "Father told Dave tomorrow, too. But we leave the earth tonight."
"So tomorrow," said Tony, "tomorrow we may be ourselves with yesterday's thousand years." He held her again as he thought of his hour—the last hour of which he could be sure.
"Come away," he said. "Come far away from here."
"From what, Tony?"
"From this place, and from this world," he said. "I'll draw her on. He led her, indeed, toward the edge of the compartment, where the wires that protected the ship were, he heard and she heard a child crying.
There were no children in the compartment. There never had been. No one with little children had been chosen. But here was a child.
Eve called to the child, and it ceased crying; so Eve had to call again for a response that would guide her to its father's side.
There were two children, together and alone. They were three and four years old, it appeared. They had brought their mother, Papa had held and brought them there in a dark and noisy hallway. Papa had told Tony to stay there and somebody would come.
Eve had her arms between the wires and the children clinging to her hands while they talked. Now Tony lifted them over the wires; and Eve took them in her arms. The little girl asked if this was "Mamma." Mamma, it appeared, had gone away a long time ago.
"Do you see only? Eve interpreted for Tony, for they wouldn't remember her."
"Probably in the destruction of the first passage," Tony said; and they both understood that the mother must be dead.
"He brought them here to us," Eve said; and Tony understood that, too. It was plain enough. Some father, who had heard of the camp and the Space Ship, had brought his children here and left them—going away, asking nothing for himself.
"Clear and loud in the night a bunle burst, and Tony and Eve both started. "Gabriel's horn," muttered Tony. "The last trumpet!"
"Father advanced the time," returned Eve. "He decided to give a few minutes more of warning; or else he fooled me, too."
"You are carrying that child?" asked Tony. "Eve said the little girl."
"Yes," said Eve. "You are carrying the boy."
"The boy?" Tony. "Rules or no rules, necessities or no necessities, if we can take sheep and goats I guess we can take these two."
"The boy," said Eve; and she strode across beside him into the edge of illumination as the great floodlights blazed out, and the passengers ran back and forth, calling, crying, shaking hands, embracing one another.
"They were all to go; every one in sight was being told to start. One by one would be on one ship, some on the other. Would they meet again—on Brouson Beta? Would either ship get there?"

SENIORS' AMBITIONS
and away outstanding farming. Nine seniors classified their fathers as farmers; the rest were largely scattering. But though his father is a farmer, he's not going to be! Not one of the 20-30 stated his purpose; although time and circumstances—which have a way of knocking the props from questionnaires—are likely to show differently.
The 1935 graduate is going to be more than anything else a teacher. Four of the boys selected the teaching post for an occupation, so did three girls. You schoolboards need not worry about running out of applicants! Next to teaching, stenographic work had the greatest claims, with a quarter of the females figuring on fingering the typewriter. Two seniors aspire to be social workers; two are headed for the heights—aviation; a couple more—one, a girl—plan to become members of the legal profession. Then there is a business man, a merchant, a nurse, a beautician, an architect, an engineer, and a pipe organist.
Only two seniors wrote down "undecided." A rather nervous crowd, aren't they, when a profession or good business and professional men have been knocking at a door, marked "Stay outside" and asking for a pick, or a shovel, or a sandwich?
The seniors' favorite pastime may have to read this with his tongue in his cheek when he sees the way books may be dropped at a horn's honk—is reading. Fourteen seniors called reading their chief diversion. "All sports" took first place with three others; two favored hunting; and a like number went in for roaming. One mentioned football and other athletics; one, an athlete, chose the cross-word puzzle; one—good honest soul—says sleeping for her; and one—stand back, fellows, name will be furnished at headquarters on request by telegraph—several cooking.
Well, well, there's a suggestion that seniors too will make homes, even though none of the girls selected matrimony and allied arts as a profession. Don't bother, boys; they don't at first, but this career business.
One senior boy named as his favorite diversion studying and observing the beautiful in nature. Not a bad choice, young graduate, for:
Nature never did betray the heart that loved her.
In a land that has from the days of the first settlers been accounted Christian, most of the seniors—well into middle adolescence—have not allied themselves with any branch of the Christian church. Only five listed themselves as church members; three being Methodists, one a Presbyterian and one a member of the Disciples of Christ.
But while not members of the church the seniors do look highly upon the Bible. Even discounting the fact that it is easy to say so, the further fact the questionnaire was so worded as to cause them to take a general view rather than a personal one, notwithstanding the tendency of one senior to follow another in his selection, and the further tendency for people to be polite and try to say what will please the giver of the questionnaire, the Bible's prominence in the list of books that has helped the most was significant. The Bible took 12 senior votes; other choices were scattering, including "Pilgrim's Progress," "American Problems of Democracy," and "How to Develop Self-Confidence."
One senior listed a dictionary first, and another—likewise a girl—chose the geometry textbook.
The favorite authors in vantage are not so far behind individuals themselves. None of the brightest lines of said list could be changed and said excessive number of voters be included in the adjoining precinct or Cliff No. 29. It is therefore ordered and
