I decided to wait for the results of Anson's search, and I was so sleepy after the wakeful night and the walk in the open air that I curled up in my room and slept for forty minutes and slept for forty. I woke to find Harriett in my room, sitting stolidly there confronting me with an air of grim severity.

Mary Hastings Bradley

I remembered that Anson had not volunteered anything about the open window, though it being open I have secured a trifle unusual. She had not volunteered anything, she had given me a distinct impression of different reticence.

CHAPTER IX

Nothing happened that night. I gathered in a stout, dignified gray cat that I found promenading the hall and fed morsels from my hand.

His Eyes Looked Me Through and Through. "What you to toss you a yarn to win the fever?" said Alan Deck with a sudden snarl.

Mary Hastings Bradley

I wanted to hold you in my arms, to soft music, your suggestions. And then he dropped into a chair—the deep cushioned chair beside the little table. I was sitting in—and said coaxingly, "Talk to me, Lella. Tell me about your picture puzzles and the fakes and the millionaires you rescue."

He merely nodded, then said earnestly, "I am telling Deck that I don't remember that I don't wash with a conker's juice."

CHAPTER IX

Nothing happened that night. I gathered in a stout, dignified gray cat that I found promenading the hall and fed morsels from my hand.

I needed all the rest I could get to face that tomorrow, so I took a hot bath and went to bed. At first I slept, then as my weariness wore off, my worrying thoughts kept coming to the surface, running me, and at last, the early morning dawn, I was wide awake, my mind racing like an engine.

I remembered that Anson had not volunteered anything about the open window, though it being open I have secured a trifle unusual. She had not volunteered anything, she had given me a distinct impression of different reticence.

I didn't want to stand there waiting so I walked on down the hall, past the closed door where Nora Harriett was sitting, and I knocked on the door.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

If, as is planned, a free public library is constructed in Prestonsburg, this town leaves far behind the ranks of the ordinary small town.

Industry, size and prospects for financial development do not thereby exempt a place. It all goes deeper than that. Good schools and churches are needed, the intellectual and the spiritual, the inner side must be developed.

A handsome edifice, dedicated to knowledge, to the wealth that lies in the pages of good books, goes along with beautiful churches and well-ordered schools. We need to know more of ourselves.

ELIMINATE FRAUD

If the machine introduced recently to the Kentucky Legislature is fraud-proof, some legislators have the opportunity of gaining the undying gratitude of every honest Kentuckian by making a determined fight to have this voting machine adopted by the state.

The young inventor of the machine, if it will do all he claims for it, is a benefactor to the ordinary citizen who knows only how to cast his vote honestly. He is, by the same token, a foe to the unscrupulous politician, if there are enough unscrupulous politicians—and by that is meant the type of those living and dead, of the great minds who recorded in imperishable type their thoughts.

Prestonsburg has an urgent need for the contentment found in a good book. Its young people need this quieting but mind-stimulating influence. The quiet hours of reading are as hours of silent communion, and they lift the mind above many things of a sordid nature.

Those who have worked toward realizing the fond dream of a public library here are not the sort who seek publicity; they are working unselfishly toward an end which, surely, none can criticize. We all should join them. Now is the time to join.

Those who are willing to risk their fortunes upon the honest, unbiased vote of the people—Kentucky will adopt the device, if it is worthy of adoption.

Surely somebody in this scientific age can devise a system whereby votes may be cast by the voter alone and counted as cast. Our civilization, the inventor is seemingly beholden to the point that nine out of every ten citizens think it impossible to elect a man by real, honest-to-goodness votes. Machine-voting, as we Kentuckians have been accustomed to it, is quite another thing from what it would be if this contraption works as advertised.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB HEAD IS SPEAKER

Dendy Tells Kivansians Here of Potential Tourist Trade If Route 23 Completed

Announcement made by N. W. Dendy, secretary and manager of the Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club, a division of the A.A.A., at the Kivans Club meeting in Prestonsburg, Friday evening, that the membership of the club had passed the thousand mark, was received with gratification by the members present, especially when Mr. Dendy stated that last August, when he became manager of the club, it had only 180 members.

At this meeting he introduced his former executive in the development business, Charles S. Emerson, one of the best-known newspaper men of Florida and a consistent booster of good roads in that state, for more than a quarter of a century. He told of the present enviable record of Florida, which now has 1,800 miles of paved highways connecting each of the 67 county seats and 3,000 miles of county roads leading into the farming districts which are being rapidly developed all over the state.

Mr. Emerson stated that these million people visited Florida last winter, at least 10 per cent of them coming from Ohio and Alabama, through which federal highway No. 23 passes, continuing through Eastern Kentucky, continuing through Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina to the Great Smoky Mountain National Park, which was visited last summer by more tourists than any other national park in the United States, then on to Atlanta and Florida.

He said if No. 23 was completed through Kentucky, Virginia, and North Carolina it would be used by more than a million motorists annually and the money they would spend while filling stations, gas, restaurants, hotels and stores would run into millions every year. He urged that the Kivans Club and other civic organizations join the effort now being put forth by the Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club to have this road completed in order to profit from the great tourist industry.

WHIPPINGS LAID TO HOODED BODY

FACE TRIAL AT SALTERS-VILLE IN BEATING OF 9 MEN, WOMEN

Salterville, Ky., May 28—Whippings of men and women in Magoffin county were blamed by officials today on a hooded order known in the community as the "Black Leg."

Seventeen men, indicted as charges of confederating in connection with the flogging of nine men and women, are at liberty under bond awaiting trial at the September term of circuit court.

At the trial of two at the April term, which resulted in hung juries, they were referred to in the testimony as "Black Legs."

The two defendants who will be retried are Noble Cole and Carl Hall. The others named in the indictments on charges of confederating are Jim Marshall, George Perkins, Everett Risher, German Rigler, Garfield Fletcher, Eddie Marshall, Lynn Marshall, George Marshall, John Clemons, Taylor Marshall, Bill Sloan, Newt Cole, Curtis Marshall and Greg Cole.

The indictment charged the defendants with whipping George Barnett, Charles Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cole, Hugh Marshall, Mary Barnett and her daughter, Deah, Sisie, Essmer and Ben Cole. The whippings were reported to have occurred in rural sections of the county.

Commonwealth's Attorney Earl R. Cooper, of Salterville, said: "From the evidence given at the examining trial, before the grand jury and the trials of Cole and Hall, it appears that the Black Legs are organized along essentially the same lines as the Black Legion. Several of the witnesses testified that the leader selected a secret number of men whom he designated as Black Legs, whose duties, he said, would be to clean up things. I have no definite information as to a connection between the Black Legs and the Black Legion."

road project, the official said, adding that others were flogged without being told why they were being punished. The whippings were described as "nothing serious, although the whippers, who wore black face paint, were armed with revolvers—some of them with shotguns." The whippers were charged with whipping out of town from trees.

The usual whipping consisted of "from ten to twenty licks, never hurting anyone very much." Its primary purpose was believed to be to frighten the victims, the official said, distributing to them, for that purpose, "black" magazines, "black" face charges of confederating and banding together to intimidate.

No insignia was noticeable on apparel of members of "The Black Legs." The penalty for confederating in the confederating charge is from one to five years in the penitentiary, the official said.

DRIFT MAN NEAR DEATH FROM SHOT

James Williams Wounded Thursday; Brother of Man Williams Shot Is Fugitive

James Williams, drift miner, is in the Georgetown hospital, Myrtle, he believed to be fatally wounded by a revolver bullet said to have been fired by Jimmy Caudill early Thursday evening, last week, at Wheelwright Junction. The bullet of a .45 caliber revolver passed through Williams' body from side to side.

Williams was accused of shooting Charles Caudill, brother of Jimmy Caudill, at Hunter about two years ago, and one report credits this affair with furnishing a motive for last week's shooting.

Caudill jumped into an automobile and fled from the scene of the shooting. He had not been captured when this was written Thursday. The shooting took place at James Fitzgerald's restaurant, Emory Hall, where he is a regular customer, said that about an hour before the shooting took place, Caudill had asked him to arrest Williams, alleging that Williams was drunk. Caudill was sober at that time, Hall said. The arrest was not made until after Williams was shot. Williams was shot on January 1, 1935. Friends of Williams were quoted as saying that the shooting was approved.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

The Big "Black Legion" More and Better Babies

A worried Empire U.S. Dollars Emigrate The "titus" of the murderous secret society called the "Black Legion" contains some old-time features. The candidate for administration is "the" "white" to commit murder, to proceed against Catholics, Jews and Negroes; he must be "native born," Protestant, white and gentle.

The "Black Legion" which probably will not last long, had ambitious plans. Among other things it proposed to overthrow the federal government, which is not an original idea. It was also going to set up a dictatorship, with night-riding requirements to enforce discipline. Dictatorship is not a new idea, either. Strange things are done or planned in the name of "liberty," now, as they were when Madame Robespierre mounted the guillotine platform.

Russia wants bigger families, like Mussolini and others with "plans." Stalin wants plenty of new little citizens. A thousand million rubles will be set aside for Moscow to "subsidize large families and all mothers." Birth control ladies and gentlemen will be surprised that the "red" family will begin after the seventh child. Seven are taken as a matter of course; that is just the beginning of a Russian family.

Chancellor Hitler of Germany jets in the "more and better babies" cry. The German ideal is no longer the beautiful golden-haired Margaret, spinning her wheel and saying, "The Nazis demand women who, above everything else, can become the mothers of several children," and are willing to do so, according to a representative of Chancellor Hitler.

William Philip Smyth, English, is afraid the British empire may not survive, on account of "air feet parl." Britain is disturbed by the thought that her whole island line of communication, stretching 4,000 miles from the Straits of Gibraltar to the Gulf of Aden, is under "Mussolini" planes. Except that her empire is the biggest, England should not worry more than other countries. With surface ships losing all importance, except in the opinions of some Americans, anybody's bombing can break up any line of communications temporarily.

Americans investing huge sums in the Bahamas to escape income tax, says the New York Times, big type, front page. Americans have been "investing huge sums" elsewhere, outside of the United States. Billions of American money have gone to Canada, England and other foreign parts. More will go. In all the Bahamas, 4,000 square miles of beautiful territory, there is no income tax. Think of that for a happy country.

Needless to say, if enough American money pours into the Bahamas, the intelligent British will find a way to tax it. Germany has proved the "15-hour round-Europe-to-America" possibility, with American looking on. Now England is rushing preparations for a line of the "15-hour round" planes to fly between England and America, starting in a few months. The French, preparing a similar line, are negotiating for a halfway harbor at the Azores. The southern route was thought to be the wisest by Lindbergh, shortly after his great flight.

Many Frenchmen are disturbed and puzzled by the situation in Europe and General Mordrac, close associate of Clemenceau in the war, discusses the question, "What would Clemenceau do if he could come back?" France feels the need of "a man with a fist," an "homme a poigne," and Clemenceau was that kind. Concerning that ex-fighter from the Vendee, it is safe to say that if he could come back he would hasten preparations for another war. But he would not have waited until now.

Marshall Bogert, who cleaned up $100,000 on profits, has been called to Rome, perhaps as part of a mission to get to Italy and go to see the tree which, supposed to have its roots in hell, its topmost branches in heaven.

A new comet now approaching us, discovered by and named for L. Peltier, amateur astronomer, who works in a garage, will be the first comet visible to the naked eye since 1927.

Germany cut off the head of a sixty-five-year-old man convicted of killing 12 boys. Before the execution, the Nazi officials who thought he might be a Communist, he admitted many other murders. He was a secret poison that doctors could not detect.

WANT to be a camera man?

Who cherishes that ambition can't do better than to heed the advice of Hal Mohr, who knows what it is to start from scratch and win. He is one of our ace photographers, you know; did the camera work on "Mishmish," "Night's Dream" and "Captain Blood." Some reason that he won the Academy Award this year. "I got hundreds of letters from boys wanting to know how to become studio camera men," he said the other day. "They all want to come to Hollywood, and that is the worst thing to do. I'd say to them—

"Begin at home as an amateur camera man. Practice on your friends with your own money and any simple kodak. Learn all you can about trick photography, lighting, effects, enlarging and finishing—this is the foundation."

Mohr did that, years ago in his home in San Francisco, using a rather crude movie camera that he had made himself and photographing local news events.

It seems to me that Glinger Rogers and Lew Ayres have decided to part; they were such a nice young couple, and it is a pity. One of course, Lanny is the career trouble. Glinger has climbed right about his head since she's been coupled with Fred Astaire, and Lew Ayres has shelved the acting career that had such a brilliant start when he did "All Quiet on the Western Front" for directing. Here's hoping their difficulties can be repaired.

Charles Boyer continues to be the actor of the girls wanting for leading man. He's said to be ready to sign the wanted Merle Oberon and Marlene Dietrich to do "The Garden of Allah," which she will do after she finishes "Camille."

Do you by any chance listen to those "Vox Pop" broadcasts on NBC on Tuesday evenings? If you don't, form the habit; they're great. Parks Johnson and Jerry Belcher set up shop just anywhere around New York and gather in thousands of bystanders to broadcast; they ask question-erically ones, usually—and the victim replies.

The boys have been doing a bit of research work, and declare that people from small towns have faster, keener minds than city-bred people.

If you're interested in Radio salaries—Herry-Corn, who wrote Jack Benny's scripts and has a bonus had a big, received $1,000 a week. And if you're interested in the difficulties of a radio star Jack is having none, because his regular broadcast is done he has to repeat it, some time later, for the Pacific Coast. One of his chief charms is his effect of spontaneity; that's what he makes the first time, but he's tough to repeat.

RKO officials gave a little boy one of the most thrilling moments of his life recently. He is Sammy Mysath, seven years old, and he had been blind, because that is the hospital he went with his doctor and his nurse to the Radio City Music Hall, to a preview of the new "Dancing Partners," an all-color picture.

No doubt you saw the diabolical comedian known as Daffydumb in Eddie Cantor's recent "Strike Me Pink" you must have heard him on the radio, too. But you should have seen him at a big league baseball game the other day with his nine-year-old son. The boy had a top microphone, and loudly proclaimed to broadcast the exciting game. In the end, Eddie Cantor continues to be one of the most popular air comedians. Considering the number of years he has been broadcasting, he ranks as a veteran on the air.

Though 1936 Pennant Chase Is Plenty Tough

CHARLEY GRIMM—"where that hell is I'm not thinking, but I'm becoming a pitcher just because I've got this big yellow finger on it and because you've seen me warming for ten minutes. I've nearly breaking it for Larry French, who's got a lot of other things on his mind now besides new gloves, and I don't expect it for him. It's all in the day's work for a manager. Even when you're with the league champion, you've got to help out wherever you can."

"You think from what you've seen that I'd be a no more help to you than I'm now? Well, that's where you're wrong. Where you're right is that I can't get a pretty fair ball for ten minutes. I've nearly breaking it for Larry French, who's got a lot of other things on his mind now besides new gloves, and I don't expect it for him. It's all in the day's work for a manager. Even when you're with the league champion, you've got to help out wherever you can."

Warnock—"I don't know what you're talking about, but I'm not thinking, but I'm becoming a pitcher just because I've got this big yellow finger on it and because you've seen me warming for ten minutes. I've nearly breaking it for Larry French, who's got a lot of other things on his mind now besides new gloves, and I don't expect it for him. It's all in the day's work for a manager. Even when you're with the league champion, you've got to help out wherever you can."

That Kid Cavaretti Is Okay at First Base

"How about first base? Well, what about it? That's what you're talking about. Cavaretti is coming along okay. He's holding pretty and he's picked up plenty up there at the plate. So yeah, maybe I could get out there because I honestly am feeling swell. But I tried it twice this spring and that's what I meant to slip in my back. So I'll try it better for me to be ready if necessary, and meanwhile give a kid who's going so well his due and let him be a first baseman. My fellow who stated that swelled head was wrong."

"The rest of the race? It's going to be closer than it's been for a long time. These second-division boys are giving the rest of us plenty to worry about. Pittsburgh got all the power in the world last year, but if those Braves and the good pitcher it might be that nobody could stop them."

"Brooklyn's no soft touch either. If they had one few hundred they'd be blamed had to beat. Almost all of the guys in the race think they've got such a good chance that they just hate to give strength to get strength in some other spot—Okay, go on over and interview Terry. I've got to get some hitting practice anyhow."

Terry Needs a Pitcher but Where's the Trade?

Bill Terry—"How do I know how long my legs going to let me stay in there? It swells up like a balloon at night that it's pretty tough sleeping, and what's worse there doesn't seem to be anything anybody can do for it. But I'll stick in there just as long as I can."

"Bartlett! Don't believe everything you read, he's had a charleyhorse in his leg and that's naturally slow him down, but he's coming along all right."

"Trade? Certainly I'd make one. I'm not saying I haven't looked bad a few times in the last couple of weeks, but we've got a pretty fair ball. Give us another pitcher to go along with what we have and we'll be all right."

It says this will be the liveliest fight for years and years, with glee clubs gurgling and the boys out with brass bands and brass-knucks; and batteries of college professors firing on opposition professors.

What do you think of this? The first man would win. When Bryan was a discovery instead of a chronic recurrence. Two long islands would meet. "What do you think of this?"

There is an unwritten law that these shall be "throwing at the light." The light is the sun, so difficult for a pitcher of 40 days; that's the hardest-learned pitcher prefer to aim at the sun's center rather than at the sun's edge.

Honoring Lee and Jackson. The nation's Post office department includes among the gallery of the greatest Americans, to be pictured in the new issue of memorial stamps, the faces of the Confederate chieftains, Lee and Jackson, what happens?

Why, nobody waves the bloody shirt, nobody makes a "no war" sign, nobody by applying it to the memory of those two gallant soldiers and simple Christian gentlemen. Nobody in the name of patriotism drags the moldering bones of sectional rancor out of the ground. Nobody beats the "Rogue's March for Rebels" on hats snare drum.

Instead, all over the Union, men and women applaud this generous but needless gesture. A leading paper of Boston—Boston, no less, once the marching band of abolition and the breeding ground for anti-southern sentiment—editorially commends the idea.

Keep a small pair of scissors in the drawer with your knives. Scissors are the most useful and most handy than a knife. Also they are very convenient for preparing bread sandwiches.

Salt should never be added to stew, cover the stew with boiling water after they are cooked. If put in first it toughens the fiber of the meat and takes out the juices.

If liquid in which olives are bottled is thrown away when bottle is opened, olives may be kept indefinitely if olive oil is poured over them after they are put back into bottle.

If you rinse plate with cold water before breaking eggs on it, add to them a pinch of salt and then stand where there is a current of air, you will have no difficulty in beating them to a froth.

To remove fresh grease spot on a rug, cover for amount of food served. Then press with a hot iron. Cover the spot with magnesia, let it remain for 24 hours, then brush off.

When serving a steak smothered in onion, spread the juice of a lemon over it before serving and you will find the flavor greatly improved.

Never serve food in a dish that is too large for amount of food served. It detracts from the appearance of your table.

If the bottoms of legs of furniture are waxed they will not scrat or polished floors when moved around on them.

Kentucky Folklore

BY Howard Wilson, Ph.D. WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE BOWLING GREEN, KY.

NEGRO SPIRITUALS

Though much has been written in recent years about Negro spirituals, the Kentucky negro has as yet attracted the attention of few folklorists or musicians. Prof. Karl J. Folkert, now of New York University, collected many negro songs in Louisville when he was teaching in the University of Louisville. Miss Nancy Allen Orison has published a delightful collection entitled "NEGRO SINGS A NEW HEAVEN," discovered among the negroes of Louisville and Columbia. In practically every part of the state there are equally rich resources of negro songs, waiting the attention of those who know and care for these valuable contributions to folk-lore.

A phase of negro music that has always been interesting to me is the "holier" or "froler." Since Swiss mountain music has become well-known everywhere, negroes as well as whites know how to give these calls; but the distinctive "holier" is a thing entirely different. When I was a boy in the Jackson Purchase, every negro had his individual holler. At almost any time of the day, particularly as we went to the field to work early in the morning, these articulate longings of primitive souls could be heard ringing across the fields. I early learned to express myself in this same fashion and could imitate a dozen or so of the negroes, for each one had a distinct twist to his call. Nearly all the hollers began far up the scale and, by two or three descents, came down to the bottom, with a great mixture of minnows. I have heard several commercial exploiters of our folk folk lamentably in trying to imitate these calls as to talk like an old-fashioned dandy or to use "you-all" correctly. Scholars have about agreed that the distinctive parts of negro music owe their origin to the primitive chant of the savages of Africa. The characteristic Congo song has a leader who improvises ranzas or exclamations while all the chorus join in on the refrain. A good illustration of this can be heard now where a crew of negroes are working. On a steamboat, when the deck hands are pulling in a rope, one negro will make some melodious call as a leader, while all the rest answer together as they pull, inserting many a quaint phrase or turn of expression. The holler of the negroes of my boyhood is a remnant of the primitive chant still in vogue, just as the so-called "minnow" at church. Practically all spirituals keep this elemental chant, a remnant of the half-literate life that Vachel-Lindsay has tried to express in his "The Congo."

Most of the negro's music, of course, is merely a reworking of the music he heard in the early days of slavery, adapted to his own mood. Recent studies made by musicians of old songbooks used by the pioneers of Kentucky and the neighboring states show that all the negro has added to some of his spirituals is the inimitable swing and harmony that the high-pitched voices of the whites seldom can acquire. In fact, I have myself heard in many a country church of the whites the songs that have since then been collected and published as negro spirituals. When Mr. J. D. Rowlett, now of Murray, conducted his tobacco factory in the hills near the Tennessee River, the negroes, particularly the women, would sing at their work the very songs that we sang in our churches, but it would have taken a good musician to recognize in the rich negro music the rather flat, bleak, rasping sounds we produce in our white "churches." This factory became the show place, to which all visitors were taken, to hear the negroes at work, and to hear them sing.

GOVERNOR SPEAKS AT ALUMNI BANQUET

Richmond, Ky., May 27—Speaking at the annual Alumni banquet of the Eastern State Teachers College here last night, Gov. A. B. Chandler pledged his support to education, lauded the new school code, and assured his hearers that he would not allow politics to be played in the operation of state schools and colleges. Former Governor J. C. W. Beckham was also present and spoke before, offering in his address on the Eastern campus as a student of old Central University, Eastern's predecessor. "If I have an alma mater," he said, "it is here." He said he had watched with intense interest and affection and enthusiasm the growth of Eastern from its small beginning during his administration as Governor to one of the best institutions of the country which it is today.

More than four hundred persons were present for the reunion follow-ingly. Those included, among others, alumni members of the 1936 class, and friends. Members of the 1936 class of 1911 and 1926 were honor guests. Providing his full support for fair salaries and funds sufficient to operate the schools efficiently, Governor Chandler, referring to demonstrations and lobbying on the part of school teachers said: "I don't believe teachers should have to come to Frankfort to ask for their just rights. Kentucky will continue to educate in the next four years than ever before for a similar period. "Let the new education which has been made to some of the new tax measure enacted during the recent sessions of the legislature, particularly to the cigarette and whiskey taxes, he said, "if you have enough money to smoke and drink whiskey, you ought to pay taxes." Income taxes, he said, were necessary to balance the state's budget and that he himself as well as others would pay his share of this tax. "Public debt is not a good thing and the great educational institutions of the state are more needed while in my opinion than private interest of tax 'defenses' he said. "Backwardness of education in Kentucky ought to be resented," Governor Chandler stated. "No attempt will be made during my administration to change of our school code. You can't build school systems with money and buildings alone. You must have the right spirit of service." Touching on the education of women, he said in the same address colleges and the centralization of graduate study at the University of Kentucky, Governor Chandler said this system was necessary in the interests of economy. He related the agreement reached between teachers College presidents and the president of the University whereby the University would discontinue courses in education in the next few years if a large and able teachers college would stand all their graduates students to the University. Praising Dr. B. L. Donovan, president of Eastern as a college administrator, he, Chandler said, "Dr. Donovan has no superior in the state and few equals in the country. It is no mere chance that Eastern ranks high as an educational institution." He said that when the needs of the colleges were being studied he asked Nat B. Sewell, state inspector and member, which of the colleges was most economically administered, and Lieutenant Governor, saying, "He is FLOYD POST TO NAME Mr. Sewell replied, "I mean good as loyal and true a state official as has ever come to Frankfort to serve the people."

Refering to the fixing of the state appropriations and allotment of $1,000,000 a year for the operation of Eastern, the Governor said that after a study had been made of the amount available, the reduced appropriations were fixed in the interest of orderly, decent, respectable government not a future indebtedness and asked the cooperation of all of the state's educational institutions to live within the state's income, and a member of the Dramatic Club, a local post of Sons of the Legion. "Combining his address, Governor and the Young Women's Christian will be made. Dinner will be served at 7:30 o'clock.

Annual election of officers will be held by Floyd Post, American Legion, at its regular meeting to be held at the Auxilio Hotel here Saturday evening. B. M. Rogers, Van Lear district commander, has been elected. Mrs. M. E. Rogers, Van Lear district commander, has been elected. Mrs. M. E. Rogers, Van Lear district commander, has been elected. Mrs. M. E. CONGRESSMAN A. J. MAY

PAYMENT OF OLD AGE PENSIONS

Each meeting will be asked to elect a county security board. No elective or appointive public official would be eligible to serve on the board, and its members would receive no compensation.

Each county board, thus elected, would recommend to the welfare department five eligible persons, one of whom would be selected by the commission for welfare as the director of public assistance in that county.

The county boards would serve as advisers to the county directors. Members could be removed by order of the welfare department.

At the start, it was believed one director would be chosen to supervise welfare field work in one or three smaller counties. In such cases, the field workers would call representatives of these counties together at a central place to organize a consolidated board, to be composed of three members from each county.

Federal relief authorities have estimated the administrative cost of the first year's old age assistance would be in the neighborhood of $750,000. Wallis, however, today expressed belief the figure would be close to four hundred thousand, of which one hundred and twenty-five thousand is to be provided by the federal government, for all the department's field work and old age assistance overhead.

HUNTER CLAIMS OFFICE REGAINED

Hill and Holson, Hall's attorneys, claim, however, that Hunter's petition for restoration to office has not been acted upon in circuit court here and therefore, was not up for a court of appeals ruling. It was indicated that a temporary restraining order would be sought to prevent Hunter from re-entering office.

The superintendent's office had not been opened at 8 o'clock Thursday morning.

Friends of Hunter hailed the court of appeals decision as a major victory, and are confident that his restoration to office not only is effected but that it will be permanent.

Unsettling decision in the contempt suit of Jack Franklin against Guy Phillips and Harold Bailey, who on the face of last election returns were elected to the County Board of Education, is pending in the Floyd circuit court.

Timor was elected for a four-year term starting July 1, 1934 and on January 6 Henry Dyer filed one or more charges against him, alleging that the superintendent had neglected his official duties while engaging in undue political activities.

BIRTHDAY CANDLES BURN FOR RUSSELL E. HAGEWOOD

Saturday evening, May 23, at 7 o'clock, friends and neighbors of Russell Hagewood, teller and bookkeeper at the First National Bank, met at his home at Graham street to celebrate his birthday. The party, with its 20 candles was placed in the center of the table, and surrounding it were fried chicken, salads, strawberry shortcake and delicious foods.

In speaking of the occasion, Chairman, William Seizer, cashier of the First National Bank, said: "Never before have I seen gracious hosts entertain more appreciative guests than this evening."

A very useful present was handed Mr. Hagewood by "The Boy" by E. C. Hill, who said: "We are glad to be here this evening to enjoy with you on this occasion, because our boys are multiplied when shared with others. Thirty years young, you are still the prime of life and we trust time will also compare with you and there will be many more of useful years ahead. Perhaps some day you will be president of a bank or some thing better. But that is my opinion, unless you are content to be some self-satisfied member that you have in your own boy, and your friends will know you as an honest, industrious, trustworthy man. This gift, though it is small, is my tribute to you and I hope it will refresh your memory of this happy birthday occasion."

Richard Spurlink expressed thanks for the hospitality shown these years, while J. E. Stanley said he wished Mr. Hagewood had been two or three birthdays each year.

Super Liner Queen Mary's Kitchen

The largest electrically equipped kitchen in the world.

GOOD of the finest quality prepared by expert chefs to delight the palate of the "Governor" will be providing for the thousands of passengers on the Cunard White Star Lines "Queen Mary" as she races swiftly across the Atlantic.

The main restaurant is the largest room ever built in a ship. It is 100 feet long and is so large that the steamship company's first transatlantic liner, "Britannic," could be placed within it.

There is intense rivalry in the transatlantic trade for supremacy of the sea. This rivalry extends not only to the speed of the ship but to her equipment and the service to passengers. For this reason, the designers of the "Queen Mary" have placed particular emphasis on her culinary department and have equipped her with what are perhaps the largest and most completely equipped kitchen in the world.

Here is the first word in modern kitchen construction. It is a vast scale, 1,000 square feet in area, divided into 100 small ranges, supplied with pure electric heat, and finished metal work throughout.

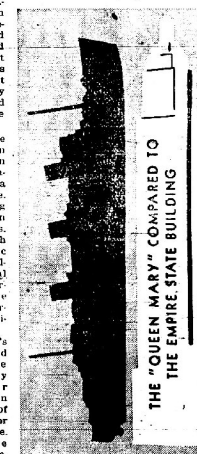

It is designed to give assurance of efficiency.

The ship's kitchen would delight the heart of any housewife for they contain every sort of electrical labor saving device. Everything is complete and in addition, each laborious task is made easy and done with ease. Machines take care of both operations on the "Queen Mary." Every conceivable electrical device for kitchen efficiency is as found on the ship, from orange juice extractors to huge ice cream freezers.

Raoul Ricourt, born in Marseilles, France, 54 years ago, is the chef who directs her staff of cooks and bakers. M. Ricourt had completed his apprenticeship in cooking at the age of 15. He has presided over the kitchen of internationally famous restaurants and hotels. His own kitchen contains two large electric ranges, each with 8 ovens, and one small, or more with 3 ovens for the vegetable cook. The main service hot-water in the kitchen is 65 feet long.

The "Queen Mary" vast cooking department has a total electrical load of 1500 kilowatts. In speed and comfort this superline sets new standards in transatlantic travel.
