FULL FOOD BASKET

In view of the report by economists of the agricultural department, that the national food basket for this year will be nearly as full as was that of last year, it is reassuring.

These authorities set forth that "although the deficit has nearly into the nation's food crop, the total supply of foods in general for the twelve months ending with June, 1927, is indicated to be only about 3 percent below that of 1925-26 and only about 1 percent below that of 1923-24. Since exports of many of these products probably will be less than in the previous year, the supply of food available for domestic consumption will be almost as large as last year. So it seems the nation is in no danger of starvation.

But there is another side to this matter which does not receive the official attention it deserves. We will leave the details to the housewives of the country, merely saying that it concerns the cost to the consumer. If the national food basket is to be nearly as full as it was last year, full months, we are assured it will be met by imports. When the rise in prices, present and prospective prices are supposed to be governed by supply, if the supply is adequate, why do the prices remain so high?

This is something the Administration ought take into consideration. Apparently the food processors have not heard the good news which the agriculture department economists are passing out. They seem to be proceeding on the assumption that the country is still in a famine. It is not the duty of the welfare department is making its true job. If the secretary himself can spare a little time from the study of his tax and philosophy, that of the economy of society, he might do us a real service by seeing that the purveyors of foodstuffs get the true lowdown on the food situation as it has been revealed to the economists, otherwise consumers may be victimized.—Ashland Daily Independent.

AUTOS, TAXES AND

We are against taxes as much as anybody who has to pay them, but there are taxes which we think the public can well afford to pay. The basic objection to taxation arises, from the foolish expenditure of public money, either in the form of unnecessary purchases or downright pickings for gratifiers, both in and out of the public service.

There is much objection to taxes levied on automobiles and if well used for the proceeds are used for foolish expenditures or to waste the money collected carelessly or with intent by faten a grafter's pocket-book. However, basically the tax on motor vehicles for the improvement of highways is just. In fact, if the money is used mainly to build and maintain roads the motor vehicle owner saves enough to pay the tax and have a profit left over.

We see where the Illinois Manufacturers' Association has agreed out that the average motor vehicle operator in the United States paid $50 in taxes last year, or about one dollar per vehicle more than in 1924. The total is estimated to have been $128,000,000, divided between registration fees, gasoline and excise taxes, personal property and municipal taxes.

As we see it, the amount of $50 is not exorbitant when we consider the network of good roads that bind the nation closer together. Motorists can remember the repair bills that were common before the era of improved highways and the higher mileage one gets today on good roads. In fact, if the average motorist had to choose between using the modern highways and paying the tax, the vast majority would pay and gladly give the roads.

MERCHANTS AND TRADE

If all the articles that have been written about trading at home were stretched, cut to end, they would reach around the universe and lack none again.

The idea that if pass, citizens to patronize home industry is such simple truth that some "smart" people believe there is a catch in it, and they prefer to be "wise" and send away for something that the "foolish" town boosters miss.

The Times has heretofore urged its readers to buy everything possible in their home town, because a town or city has no way balance just as vital to progress as any individual budget. The more trading done in Prestonsburg the more profits there will be and the more prosperity, and benefited those who have faith enough to open up business here are entitled to the patronage of their community.

However, let's keep the argument on a sound basis, and to do this we must consider the merchant's obligation. He is not entitled to the trade unless he is really a merchant and not merely a middleman, content to pluck the profits of desultory trade. Local merchants to merit local patronage must be modern in their methods, up to date in their appliances and efficient in business. They cannot, and should not, expect a community to support ineptness, though mis-called home spirit.

GRASSHOPPER ADVISORY

Movement of orchard grass, which this year has been faster than last year, and that the average (1929-30) average in Kentucky and Missouri but slower than two years ago in Kentucky and Virginia. In Missouri about 90 per cent of the crop had been sown by growers, up to August 25; compared with about 75 per cent in Kentucky, and less than 25 per cent in Virginia, as of the same date. At U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The prices offered to growers on August 15 were much higher than last year, two years ago, and than the one-year average. In Missouri about $1.25 to $1.50 were being offered for seed, much less in Kentucky mostly $1.20 to $1.50 were being offered for country-run seed, compared with 80 cents last year, $1.05 in 1924, and 85 cents, the five-year average.

The quality was indicated to be mostly fair to good in Kentucky, fair to poor in Virginia, and fair in Missouri.

ODD FELLOWS MEET HELD AT HAZARD

The meeting of the Odd Fellows held in Hazard on Saturday, August 10, was attended by the largest gathering of the kind ever to assemble in Hazard, and at no time was the hall sufficient to properly accommodate one of those attending. A number of distinguished Odd Fellows from the Big Sandy valley, Hindman and Sasfras, attended. It was estimated that more than 200 members were present. There was a total of seven candidates who received votes. The splendid degree from W. J. Land lodge conferred the initiatory talk and first degrees in a most impressive manner. The famous Sasfras lodge then took matter in hand and conferred the second degree under the able leadership of their official degree team captain, Mr. Samuell. One of the most interesting parts of the program as arranged by the Hazard lodge was the presentation of "The N. C. Crawford, who is the oldest Odd Fellow in Eastern Kentucky of a fighting race, which was presented to him by Past Master C. W. Napier in a most impressive manner, and on behalf of the brethren present wished for Mr. Crawford many more birthdays. Mr. Crawford was 81 years of age on August 14. This is the second birthday party Hazard lodge has given in honor of Mr. Crawford, the first one being in 1935, and the lodge presented him another birthday party last year. Mr. Crawford made a few interesting remarks in the Odd Fellows' hall in Hazard following the presentation, and at 2 p. m., on Saturday, September ed that at the close of the meeting he be permitted to shake hands with every Odd Fellow present before leaving the hall, which was done.

The ladies of Hazard's Rebekah chapter served refreshments to those attending, and before departing were called into the hall by Past Grand Master, Circuit Judge John W. Cunkle, of Prestonsburg, and a fine talk was given. Thanks were given for the delicious refreshments and after a very interesting address he asked them to be seated and made a fine talk on Odd Fellow and Rebekah organizations, which was thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed by every one present.

In the course of Judge Cunkle's address we learned that he had been a member of the Odd Fellows for more than 22 years, having already served the Odd Fellows of this state as their grand master, and is now a lodge having defeated Congressman A. H. (Babe) Tarnel attended this meeting, the first one in years, and handed his reinstatement to Hazard lodge; and Ray Baker, formerly a member of the Hindman lodge, handed his reinstatement to some of the delegation from Hazard.

The district association meeting of the Order of Rebekahs is to be held with Hazard Rebekah chapter next year. Mr. Crawford's remarks in the Odd Fellows' hall in Hazard following the presentation, and at 2 p. m., on Saturday, September 12, and the Odd fellows in Sasfras, Ky., with Sasfras lodge as a p. m., same date, and Hazard lodge joins with Sasfras lodge in extending invitation to every Odd Fellow and Rebekah to attend this meeting. Refreshments will be served at the Sasfras meeting by the ladies of the Daughters of America.

Hazard lodge wishes to announce that the grand master has granted to Hazard lodge a special dispensation for initiation and degree work for a period of 40 days from August 11, so that this lodge may now accept and initiate new members for $3, the lowest ever in Odd Fellows' history, and they now have on a complete, and they urge all men between the ages of 18 and 50 to get in touch with any member of Hazard lodge, who will gladly furnish them an application blank. They also announce that reinstatement are also solicited and a special rate has been given in order to induce any former members to again affiliate with them, the fee being reduced to $2.

ARMY QUARTERMASTERS SEE INCREASE IN FOOD COSTS

Army quartermasters, who buy so much food that they have 50 keep posted, expect America's food costs to be more than 20 per cent higher next spring than they are now. This will affect not only the army, the quartermasters say, but the average family as well because the regular army diet on which the estimate is based includes 39 kinds of food.

The quartermasters buy food for the Civilian Conservation Corps as well as the army. Already, they say, the rising prices of milk and other dairy products, fresh meats and vegetables, have increased from 44.01 cents in April to 45.30 cents in July. The average cost of feeding one OOD recruit. The prediction is that the cost will swell to 53 cents next spring.
