"TO BE OR NOT TO BE—OR TO DO OR NOT TO DO"

A meeting of the American Legion, Post No. 129, composed of Floyd county World War veterans was held in the office of J. B. Clume at 7:30 o'clock Friday night. Clyde Saunders, district commander, was present to discuss a proposed district convention to be held here. This convention, if held here would bring at least 2,000 veterans from Johnson, Magoffin, Leslie, Breathitt, Floyd, Martin, Pike, Knott, Letcher and Perry counties.

It is customary to award the convention to the post having the greatest increase in enrollment for the year. The Floyd aggregation of veterans has that distinction. But, the Hazard post, it was learned

BLACKCATS BOW TO BARBOURSVILLE

Bad breaks accented themselves to the sorrow of the Prestonsburg Blackcats as they bowed to Barbooursville, Ky., a non-conceding team, in the final game of the season and administered an overdose of Logan, a small but fast backfield ace who justified his all-state rating in helping to short measure our boys 19-13. At Barbooursville last week two bad calls by officials were also credited with giving the local team its first setback in six games. Logan registered one 70 yard run and another of 55 yards to score on both occasions. He also scored the third touchdown.

"Smoky Joe" Meadows, linebacker at conference time, was the star of the game, nearly all the tackling to stop Barbooursville plays and Mayo made numerous runs of 30 and 50 yards. Mayo made one touchdown off tackle on a 25 yard punt. Jones tallied another through the line on a spinner play. Roark's try for extra point was good.

Prestonsburg made 14 first downs to Barbooursville's four. They completed 12 of 16 passes and two were intercepted. The local fighters journeyed to Hazard, one of the state's undefeated teams to engage the Kentucky river team. Coach Greenwell has devised new defense for this game and will take 18 players.

BALL PLAYERS IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Auxiliary Basketball Team in Collision With Loaded Coal Car on Drift

Miraculously escaping what might have caused fatalities, a team of five independent basketball players from Auxier on their way to engage a team at McDowell on Friday night were seriously injured as their auto was struck by a loaded coal car. It happened at the road crossing of the Turner Elkhorst Coal Company siding about 4:30 p. m. as the loaded railway car struck the automobile midway near the windshield and dragged the car and occupants 20 feet before it could be stopped, according to reports.

The same reports gave the reason for the accident, stating that it was dark and the driver of the auto did not see the approaching coal car until it struck the car.

Those injured were: W. H. Johnson, minor cuts and bruises.

Laffey Burton, broken arm and crushed elbow.

Donald Music, cuts, bruises, two teeth out and other teeth shattered.

Darwin Wells, minor cuts and bruises. Wells formerly attended Prestonsburg high school and played basketball.

Two of the injured, Burton and Harmon, were left at Martin in the Gearheart clinic and removed by ambulance Saturday morning to the Paintsville hospital. Latest reports show their condition to be satisfactory, considering the extent of their injuries.

GAPVILLE YOUTH ADMITS SLAYING

Young Man Slays Barbooursville to Gain Possession of Old Automobile

Reports received here Thursday indicated that Elmer Dillon, 16 years old, former Gapville youth, confessed to authorities at Adrian, Mich., that he waited in ambush for two hours and killed Melville Whaley, 65 years old, for his old model automobile. Dillon, it was stated, shot down the older man who had given him a home upon his arrival from Kentucky, as he (Whaley) got out of his car at a farm near Canadagau, Michigan, the miking Tuesday night.

Dillon fled from the scene of the slaying in Whaley's car but wrecked it and was arrested. A resultant investigation led to the discovery of the slayer's body. The youth, it was stated, left Gapville, which is located near the Floyd Magoffin county line, last March. Dillon is credited with saying that the aged man gave him a home and never did anything to harm him, but that he wanted the car to go visiting in Ohio or some distant point from Michigan, so he just shot him. Further details could not be learned here Thursday night.

VISITS HERE

Mrs. John R. Clarke and children, Yancey and Sally Gate, arrived Thursday for a visit with Mrs. Clarke's mother, Mrs. Osa Ligon.

Mayo, chairman of Public Welfare, told members of the threefold plan which includes engineering, enforcement and education when carried out shows a reduction of 20 per cent in deaths due to traffic accidents. Mrs. E. P. Arnold White and Mrs. Martha Kieling will serve as a committee to aid Mrs. Mayo in making the campaign a success.

A delegation of Sunday School girls made an earnest appeal to the women to use their influence in regulating the sale of liquor in Prestonsburg and vicinity. Jane Clark expressed herself in favor of voting it out of town. Winifred Sturgill said she would prefer looking at something other than liquor in the drug store window displays.

KY. ART TREASURES TO BE RECORDED

As Floyd county's contribution to National Art Week, Mrs. W. P. Mayo, vice president of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs and also State Art Chairman, requests that any one who has an art treasure in their home will have it recorded in the Catalogue of Kentucky Art to be published soon by the Extension Department of the University of Kentucky. The data is to be collected by the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs and turned over to the University Department.

Mrs. Mayo says: "Perhaps the greatest art treasure handed down for many generations and is more worthy than you think. Give its name and the name of the artist and date of painting as nearly as possible. Or if you have a picture of a painting by a recognized artist, get it recorded. Of course only original work is considered. In case you are doubtful of whether your possession is worthy of the catalogue, there is no penalty of course. Artists chosen from the Art Department of the University to pass on this matter, so send in your data."

This information should be furnished before the new year and it is necessary to have a card for naming and describing each picture. These cards may be obtained from Mrs. Mayo, who is chairman for the Department for Floyd county, Prestonsburg, Ky. Mrs. Mayo is an accomplished artist and has been very busy with the program.

FORD DEALERS MEET IN HUGE CONCLAVE AT DEARBORN, MICH.

For the first time since the Ford Motor Company was founded more than 33 years ago, Ford dealers from all over the United States and parts of Canada gathered in Dearborn, Edsel Ford as president of last Friday for a huge deal.

The windmill was purchased for Mr. Ford more than a Greenfield Village for the year ago by a committee of dealers. It was carefully presentation of the Cape Cod.

THE BELL SYSTEM FULFILLS ITS OBLIGATIONS TO ALL GROUPS OF PEOPLE. Millions of times, every day, events occur which are small or great in the lives of individuals or the nation and in which some phase of the telephone industry plays its part.

There is an obligation to telephone employees, whose honest loyalty would not exist if it were not deserved. There is an obligation to users of the service, and the United States has over half the world's telephones because good service at a reasonable cost is the rule. There is an obligation to the people who have invested their savings in the Bell System, and their confidence has been justified. There is an obligation to the people of the nation as an organized whole, expressed in the payment of taxes, and in this the Bell System has carried its share. There is an obligation to the future of telephony, and the Bell Laboratories have been a conspicuous success in meeting this duty to the future communication needs of this nation and the world.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

We do not know of a single individual institution in America that has done as much good as the Red Cross in every disaster in America and abroad, in Kentucky or China or Japan in earthquake shocks that leveled the great city of San Francisco in famine which took millions of lives in China—wherever the evidence of human need has been seen, there was the Red Cross with its helping hand.

When floods came into Eastern Kentucky with a cloudburst when tornadoes swept over Southern Kentucky, when epidemics of disease have invaded this and other states, there the hand of the American Red Cross, its doctors and nurses, its food and bedding, its tents and tarpaulins, to provide temporary shelter until homes could be restored and food supplies made certain.

In the past five years, because of such things happening in Kentucky, the Red Cross has paid out to relieve distress five times as much as Kentucky members paid to it in roll call dues. This year the Red Cross has set a goal of 104,000 members for Kentucky. It ought to reach that goal.

WILL YOUR NAME BE NEXT?

The past summer was one of the worst on record in the matter of automobile accidents and deaths.

And the most dangerous driving months are still to come—the months of rain and ice, and few daylight hours.

Every season sees better, more scientifically designed highways—and yet accidents grow worse, both in number and severity—Every year sees stronger, more easily controlled and mechanically safer cars—yet the carnage grows.

It is true that a percentage of accidents can be directly attributed to mechanical failure of automobiles or to road conditions. This percentage marks but a very small part of the total crashes. The human element is responsible, and alone responsible for the great majority of accidents minor and major.

Worst menace of all is the driver who attempts to push the throttle through the floor board—who operates his car at excessive speeds. And excessive speed is a flexible term—there are times when 50 is safe, and 15 too fast.

Then there are the drivers who pass on hills and curves who hog the center line, who allow their car to wander to the wrong side of the road—and drivers who commit a thousand and one driving errors that may save a minute, and may also send themselves and others into eternity.

You see many headlines like "Five Killed When Cars Collide." You read the names of the victims, go on to other articles and forget all about them. Next time you see such a headline just reflect that your name, or the name of a friend or loved one, may be in the next similar list of corpses. Then it won't be so easy to forget.—Ashland Daily Independent.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

Creole Cookery has held an individual place in the world for many years. These famous recipes are the mingling of the customs of France, Spain, Mexico, the Choctaw Indians and the old colored mamies from New Orleans. Many of the dishes are made from small portions of ingredients and the use of piquant sauces in this way the housekeeper can easily use left overs.

Creole Hash
Use equal parts of ground cooked meat and potatoes, some minced onion, chopped green pepper, salt and black pepper to taste. A dash of nutmeg is put in at the last. Cover and cook very slowly 12 hours. Turn once and cook deep hot fat and drop the until the crust is crisp and fritters in by tiny spoonfuls.

Meat Loaf
To 3 cups of cooked meat mix a small slice of meat 1-2 cup of mushrooms. 12 teaspoon each of salt, pepper, allspice, 3 cloves and a dash of cayenne. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs and moisten with a little milk or gravy. Line the bottom of a baking dish with strips of bacon and fill with meat mixture. Dot on top with bits of butter. Bake 40 minutes in a rather hot oven.

Fig Fritters
Combine 1 cup of flour, sifted, with 12 teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt, 1 teaspoon of sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs and 1 1/2 cups each of cream and milk. Add the fruit last. Then cover and cook very slowly 12 hours. Turn once and cook deep hot fat and drop the until the crust is crisp and fritters in by tiny spoonfuls.

They'll puff up and brown very nicely. Peel the figs cut into pieces and sprinkle with sugar. Let stand for an hour. Add juice and fruit to the batter. Canned figs are equally good and, of course, need not be left to stand.

Lemon Fritters
Combine 1 cup of flour, 12 teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon baking powder, adding the beaten yolks of 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon of butter, and 1 cup of water. Beat in 2 1/2 cups of sugar and the juice and rind of 1 lemon. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs. Fry in the same way as all fritters.

Chicken Gumbo
Cut up a 4 or 5 pound chicken and brown it in fat in a deep kettle along with a pound slice of ham. To this add 1 quart of diced okra, fresh or canned, 1 quart of tomatoes fresh or canned, 1 large onion chopped, a bit of hot red pepper and the herbs—some parsley, bay leaf, thyme and a little horseradish root. Before you cover the pot for a long, gentle simmering, add 2 quarts of water and salt to taste. Simmer for several hours, very gently, on low heat. Serve with quantities of hot dry cooked rice.

Bean Croquettes
Take 2 cups of cooked beans add salt and pepper to taste, 1 teaspoon vinegar and 1 tablespoon melted butter. Form into small balls, dip into beaten egg and roll in bread crumbs. Fry in hot fat and serve hot.

Pecan Cream Cake
Chop 3 cups of pecans as most as fine as meal.
1 1/2 cups of sugar
2 tablespoons of flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
6 eggs
Beat yolks of the eggs well, add the sugar and beat again thoroughly. Mix the baking powder with the flour and mix. Fold the nuts and flour mixture into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Fold them in, don't beat. Then fold the egg white mixture into the egg yolks and sugar. Blend very gently and pour the mixture into 2 layer cake pans that have been lined with greased paper. Bake in an oven 375 deg. for 15 or 20 minutes, then remove them very carefully and let cool in pans. Just before served, spread whipped cream thickly between layers.

Creole Pralines
3 cups white sugar
1 cup water
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vinegar
3 cups pecans
Place sugar, water and vinegar in deep pot and boil to the soft ball stage. Add butter and 3 cups pecans. Continue to cook until syrup when dropped from the spoon spins a thread. Remove from fire and beat 1 minute; then drop by spoonfuls upon buttered boards or well greased old teacup saucers which will scrape nicely to mold the candies.

TURKEY SHOOT
Attention, shot gunners! Try your skill at winning a turkey, duck or goose at the big turkey shoot scheduled to be held at Fort Knox Airport on Sunday, Nov. 15. The grounds will be open at 11:30 a. m. There is no admission charge. If you pride your self on your skill as a rifle, pistol or shotgun shot, come out and see how many birds you can win. There will be rifles fired to suit every man, weapon and purse. Bring your own rifle, pistol or shotgun.

Bring your family; if they don't shoot they can enjoy themselves at the numerous game, of skill provided by the entertainment committee. Food and soft drink will be purchased on the grounds. Music will be provided by the First Cavalry Band. All proceeds of the shoot will go to the Fort Knox Post Children's School under the auspices of the Parent Teachers Association.

THE FARM AND HOME
(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)
Persons who desire to increase their weight often find a rest before meals helpful. Fatigue decreases the appetite and interferes with digestion. Food digests better and one can eat more if he fresh up and relaxes before going to the table.
In purchasing ewes it is good policy to dip them if they are infested with ticks.

of less than two dollars will be required, depending upon the kind of dip. Carefully follow directions on the container.
Farmers who plan to improve their poultry, select breeding pens, while the hens are laying in the fall. These hens are kept separate until spring, and then mated with males of high production blood.
Walls for a warm pig house may be made by tramping straw between strips of woven wire fencing, or bales of straw may be used to build up the sides. Corrugated iron can be used for a roof and a door made of lumber.

Milk is the starting point in planning the child's daily diet because it is valuable for growth. The proteins of milk are very efficient, and both whole milk and skim milk supply calcium and phosphorus. Every child should have at least a pint of milk daily.

GUNLOCK RANCH

by FRANK H. SPEARMAN

CHAPTER XII—Continued

"Why, yes, Gus," admitted Bull, but only too good-naturedly. "I believe you did."
"You believe I did?" echoed Van Tassel, enraged. "How did she get a horse out of my corral?"
"Why, she came down here to get her pony up herself—I helped her a little."
The veins in Van Tassel's huge neck swelled. Grabbng Bull by his powerful hands, he fastened his iron fingers on the old man's throat and choked him pitilessly, pouring on him as he did so a torrent of curses heard by Quong, who ran to the kitchen door to listen.
Only by struggling for his very life was Bull able to wriggle free from the deadly grip. In doing so, he fell backward to the ground, scrambled to his feet, and ran into the barn.
It was inside the barn that Bull's voice was heard by the China boy, begging for mercy. "Why, Gus," he urged, "Jane's a nice girl. Don't take it so hard. I've worked for you a good many years, and you never found me round here honest, didn't you?"
Van Tassel uttered no word. He had pursued Bull to the farthest corner of an empty stall and, filled with silent, murderous rage, caught up a broken wagon stake and swung it over his head. "Don't hit me with that," Gus, cried the frightened man in a low, fearful impression from Van Tassel answered him.
"Now I'll give you what's comin' to you!"
"Why, Gus, you ain't a-oin' to kill me!"
Grunting and mad for blood, Van Tassel struck at the cowboy and rained blow after blow on him till he sank to the floor. Then, suddenly, he dropped the stake and, bespattered with blood, staggered out of the barn and into the house.

"It's close to dead, boys," exclaimed Carpy, low-voiced, to his companions. "Get him to the kitchen. Help 'im working with him, look for Van Tassel."

They carried Bull to the kitchen door. Scott entered carefully and, groping in the dark, struck a match and lighted the lamp. Bull, breathing stertorously, was laid on the table.
Paradise tried the door leading to the dining room. It was locked. He rapped on it. He rapped again loudly, but the summons brought no reply.
"Stand to one side, Bob," murmured Paradise. "I'm goin' to bust it."
He threw his shoulder against the door. As it crashed open, Paradise, followed by Scott, walked into the dining room. The door to the living room stood open. This room, inspected, revealed no sign of disturbance.
Of the two bedroom doors opening off this room, the one leading to Van Tassel's bedroom, was closed. Setting the lamp on the table in the middle of the room, Paradise knocked on Van Tassel's door and, getting no reply, tried it. The door was locked.
Paradise called out, "If you're in here, Van Tassel, open your door. I'm here to talk with you." Paradise awaited in silence a response from within, but there was none.
Paradise threw himself into the door. He got so easily that he stumbled across the threshold.
The bedroom was dark. Scott relighted the lamp. Paradise held it above his head and, followed by Scott, walked into the bedroom.

They saw the huge figure of a man lying across the bed. Paradise, passing the lamp to his companion, put his hand on the man's shoulder, saw that he was unconscious, and peering closer, turned the face toward him. It was Van Tassel.
"Call Carpy, quick, Bob," muttered Paradise. "He's unconscious."
When Carpy stalked into the room, Sawdy with him, the doctor, aided by his companion, turned the body partly over and examined it.

"Doctor!" she exclaimed faintly, "He's dead!"

"How is he, Doc?" whispered Paradise.
"Dead."
Already seized by the excruciating pain that cost him his life, Van Tassel had left his victim and staggered in his distress to the house.
"It was the quick-kill boys," said Carpy to those around him.
"Tranquilized by agony, the cruel features could not be softened."
"Holding more to his lips here," said Carpy in the living room. "Take Bull over to the bunkhouse now and lay him on his bed."
The clatter of hoofs was heard in the yard. "It's the boys back from town," said Sawdy, looking through the window. Carpy turned to Paradise. "Go out and tell them what's happened, and not to touch a thing until after the coroner comes out!"

Doctor Carpy came into breakfast the next morning. Jane, who had finished her breakfast, called him as she rose.
"I'm late," he admitted.
"Night work?"
He nodded.
Standing beside the table, she was looking over the newspaper. He put his arm around her.
"Sit down a minute, Jane. I've something to say to you. News for you."
She blushed a bit. "About Bill, Doctor?" she asked anxiously.
"Not a thing in the world about Bill. It's about your father."
"Who told you that, Quong?"
Carpy shook his head. "Not now, Jane. He's not angry with anybody now."
"Doctor! What do you mean? Have you seen him?"
He nodded. "Yes, last night. You know what a man he's been."
"Doctor!" she exclaimed faintly. "He's dead!"
"He died last night."
She hid her face in his arm and broke into tears.
"Jane, your father had lived his life. There was nothing for him to look ahead to."
"This makes a great change in your life. I'll take you up to the hospital. Bill must know this. Now I've got good news for you and no fooling. You have a big surprise and a happy one coming at the hospital. I took the bandages off Bill's eyes yesterday to examine them—and his eyes are much better. If we can only hold it now!"

CHAPTER XIII

Bull Page was only a broken cowboy, but Bull was loved in Sleepy Cat. Yes, even the members of the committee of Van Tassel in Sleepy Cat were softened somewhat when men heard of Jane's unrelenting attention at Bull's side in the hospital. Van Tassel was buried. McCrossen took charge.
To Jane's infinite relief, Bull recovered and went back to Gunlock.
"At the ranch there was an air of cheer when Jane was installed; everybody or tipsed to render service. McCrossen was especially eager to please."
"Well, Jane, I guess you know what ever I can do to take care of things in 'goin' to be here, twenty-four hours a day if need be," he said. "All you have to do is to leave it to me."
"I shall depend on you for everything," she returned.
"Everything, Jane?" he echoed, smiling as if to invite a confidence.
Jane was not unkind. "Everything connected with running the ranch," she said evenly.
But it became increasingly evident as the days went by that the committee foreman still regarded himself as a savior.
For a fortnight nothing further occurred to break the routine of ranch work, and McCrossen said no more. The general impression in town was that Denison, as far as Jane was concerned, was out of the running. Jane, it was argued, would never marry a blind man, and the consensus of opinion was that Bill's sight was gone.

No excitement occurred in Sleepy Cat until one day John Lefever was reported arrived at Thief River with a herd of cattle for the reservation. Sawdy, who had gone to work at Gunlock when Lefever left for Texas, rode down to Thief River to help Lefever check the herd him at Gunlock Agency and to give him the big Sleepy Cat news.
But Lefever, too, brought news. The two crates set down to compare notes, when Lefever said to McCrossen, "I want to tell you something—I see into nears Thief River," said Lefever. "There's a little sliver of the ranch, a mile south of town run by our old friend, Clabfoot, the butcher—remember how he shined up the horses in the race? While our herd was housed for the river, I stopped for a few minutes where a couple of his boys were loading a wagon with hides for shipping. I happened to know one of the boys. He wrangled for us, comin' up once. And I noticed the hides I saw him tye up had a Gunlock brand."
"How's this?" I say. "Does Van Tassel peddle his steers down this way?" I inquired at once.
"This bunch," says he, "was poked sters."
"It looks like McCrossen is right," Gunlock settled to pay his neighbor, said Sawdy.

When Lefever had made his delivery, he marched with Sawdy to the hospital to call on their disabled side partner, Denison.
Bill had been promoted from a dark room to a shaded one.
"If I knew I was going to lose my eyes, boys," said he, "that would be one thing. I could see it all at sight down to making baskets for a living. But Doc keeps telling me he's going to save my eyes; and that keeps me hoping—so the days and weeks hang on. All the same, it's tough, when you never were laid up before in your life. What's the news with you boys?"
The visitors talked about the discovery Lefever had made of the hides at Thief River.
The half-blind ranchman listened intently, not with any noticeable excitement. But Sawdy imagined he could see Denison's lightning.
"Seein' you're not fixed up just yet, is there anything you'd like us to do about it?" Sawdy asked.
"Why, yes, there is—just do one thing."
"What's that?"
"Keep my months about till I get out of here. I guess you both know I've got a long score to settle with that blind. He was misled up in burning up my range house and burning me out. I'll attend to McCrossen myself some day," he repeated slowly, "in my own way."

The two men left the hospital somewhat uneasy. They laid their story before Carpy.
The doctor heard it unmoved. "Well," he commented, "that's not the first bunch of steers McCrossen has stolen—and it won't be the last."
"Not the first," interjected Lefever. "That's the closest anybody ever came to 'nillin' it on him."
"Anyway, I don't think he should be left there to rob the girl right along," added Carpy.
"Are you goin' to tell her?" asked Lefever.
"I ain't today. She's coming to town and will be in to see me."
They told him of their talk with Denison. "It let us leery, Doc," said Sawdy. "If Bill ever got up to the strength over McCrossen, he's liable to bust out on McCrossen before his eyes are in shape to give him an even break."
Doctor Carpy waved his hand. "See your worry for something else, Sawdy. His eyes got scorchred; but when I let one of the boys, keep away from the small end of his gun."
"Jane, you'll think I don't bring you anything but troublesome news," the doctor began. "But this last really news. I've known for months—two or three years, in fact—that McCrossen was stealing Gunlock steers. But this is what John Lefever brought up from Thief River today. . . ."
"Now, there's nothing to get excited about," observed Carpy, after he had finished the story. "For it's nothing new. But if I were you I would get rid of McCrossen!"

Freedom for Elders— The Ruling of Parents by Grown Children Often Amounts to Tyranny

RECENTLY, says a woman writer of note, I read a letter from a young married woman, who, having a house in which she evidently took pride, and large enough to accommodate her mother, was disturbed. She requested the fact that her mother refused to live there, although she had been invited to do so. She complained of her mother's travels, and her insistence in keeping her own home.

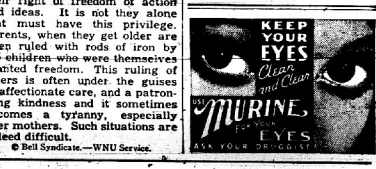

It was impossible not to consider what were the reasons underlying the invitation. The young woman said her friends thought the situation strange, and she feared they blamed her for not having her mother with her. Such super-sensitiveness is certainly a mistake. It can scarcely be taken as the real reason for her annoyance. The home atmosphere would scarcely be improved by having a reluctant member included in the family life, even though the husband agreed to it willingly.

A reason of money might exist. That is, there is a lurking suggestion that the daughter disliked the mother being at the added expense of keeping up her home, and spending money in travels, which went as far as European trips. The letter said that the mother's health was good. Could she not be kept at home by the mother should she live with the daughter? Or would the mother be expected to pay board—or make some contribution to the home, although of a less stipulated sum?

Whatever the fundamental reason for the daughter's dilemma, one cannot but sympathize with the mother. Here is a woman who cherishes her mother and is enjoying it evidently. Either she had been accustomed to traveling, and keeps it up, or she has not been able to indulge her longing to see the world, until now, when she is free to do so and has the where-withal.

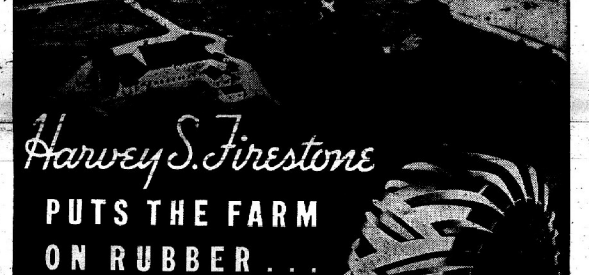

A great deal has been said and written about letting children have their right of freedom of action and ideas. It is not they alone that must have this privilege. Parents, when they get older are often ruled with rods of iron by the children—who were themselves granted freedom. This ruling of elders is often under the guise of affectionate care, and a patronizing kindness and it sometimes becomes a tyranny, especially over mothers. Such situations are indeed difficult.

Ideas of Lunary
It is interesting to collect people's ideas of Babylonian luxury. One man's notion is to afford to eat only the heart of dead ripe watermelons; another's is to be able to sleep calmly through a night thunderstorm, leaving the windows open to let it rain upon whatever rugs and furniture are exposed. Ours is to own a private projection room with a sound projector and a collection of all the filmed exploits of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Pluto.—Kansas City Star.

Harvey S. Firestone PUTS THE FARM ON RUBBER.
EVERY car owner who does much driving over unimproved roads and who is to use chains, can save the cost and bother of applying them by equipping the rear wheels of his car or truck with Firestone Ground Grip Tires. This wonderful new tire, was designed and developed by Harvey S. Firestone working with his engineers on his own farm in Columbiana County, Ohio. It was tested on all kinds of roads and found so efficient that it was also adopted for tractors and all wheeled farm implements.

The rubber lugs of the tread are so placed that they clean as they pull, and since the design is continuous, the tire does not bump when used on paved roads. Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords are placed under the tread—a patented Firestone construction feature which welds the powerful super-traction tread to the patented Gum-Dipped cord body, making them one inseparable unit. Gum-Dipping is used only in Firestone tires.
Farmers, country doctors, school bus operators, rural mail carriers, in fact, all who do most of their driving off the paved roads cannot afford to be without Ground Grip Tires. Go to your nearest Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today and equip your car or truck with Firestone Ground Grip Tires—the tire that makes its own road.

The 1936 Christmas Seals are now in Kentucky, according to Dr. L. E. Smith, executive secretary of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association.
