Betsy Layne School Destroyed By Fire

BUCKET BRIGADE SAVES GYMNASIUM; ORIGIN UNKNOWN

Classes to Continue Monday; Plans to Rebuild Structure Considered

Betsy Layne, Ky., Jan. 13 (Sp.)—The Betsy Layne high school building was completely destroyed by fire here at near midnight Tuesday with in a few hours after the community witnessed a basketball game in the nearby gymnasium.

A midnight bucket brigade is credited with saving the gymnasium.

At Prestonsburg, Wednesday evening, after returning from a trip of investigation to Betsy Layne, Mr. Hall placed the loss at approximately $40,000. Included in this was $1,500 worth of hand instruments. The building and equipment was insured, a report from the superintendent's office said, for $27,000.

County Supt. Hall said that the origin and cause of the fire was not yet determined. The school enrollment, said Mr. Hall, is about 500 pupils and served one fourth of the population of the Mud Creek, Mary Creek, Betsy Layne proper and the vicinity above Allen to the county line.

At the next board meeting, it is understood, a building to replace the old one probably will be discussed. The old building originally cost $23,000 but, it is estimated, building materials have advanced considerably in the last three years.

Arrangements were being made, Mr. Hall said, to rent some available vacant houses in which to hold classes, and have the students in their classes Monday morning, Jan. 18.

Superintendent Hall stated that some had expressed the opinion that due to the closing of the mine the building would not be replaced. He said that this rumor was false as plans would be rushed for a replacement although the new building might not be ready for use before beginning of the next school year.

On Wednesday, the court handled 60 cases. Some of these were continued, while there were 28 convictions, said Mr. Hall.

Tuesday saw two men receive terms in the penitentiary Harrison Ouley was sentenced two years in the pen for shooting without wounding. Did Case was convicted of stealing bee hives and given one year in the reformatory. On the same day, Clyde Harper was fined $500 and M. J. Prater was fined $250, both being convicted of driving while intoxicated.

CITY COUNCIL IN SPECIAL SESSION

Bond Issue Considered; Will See an Estimate Made

Members present, held a special meeting in the city hall Tuesday night. Those present discussed ways and means of meeting the cost of operating the city government and paying the deficiency already created.

The street lights, said Mayor Carter in the meeting hall, will be cut off on February 1, if enough taxes are not collected to settle the back light bill for street lights.

It was stated to The Times that the council plans to bring suit to collect delinquent taxes. "Everyone that has been sued," Mayor Carter stated, "their property will be sold by the court for the taxes."

Another progressive drive of the mayor's, it is understood, is adopted by the council, and is contained herein as a request to the people from the mayor:

TO THE PUBLIC:

Every one that has a city warrant is asked to list the warrant with J. M. Weddington.

LITTLE FLOYD, ORPHANED 'COUNTY'

Did you ever hear of Little Floyd? If so, you are one of the very few people in the Kentucky Legislature, had enacted in 1848 a special statute making his brother's farm a part of Floyd county.

A question of jurisdiction over the trial of a certain Floyd case has brought to the fore facts concerning Little Floyd, which is a part of Floyd county, but lying wholly in Pike county. A strip of Pike county one half mile wide separates it from Floyd county, proper.

TWO YOUTHS HELD; APPREHENDED HERE

Two Other Children Near Death: Funeral Services Held

Foggy weather and the blinding headlights of an approaching car was blamed for the accident that took the lives of two school children on the Mayo Trail at the upper edge of Betsy Layne Sunday night about 7 o'clock by two boys who were placed in jail here.

As a result of the tragedy, Bonnie Bess Layne, age 9, was killed instantly. Clarence Sargent, age 11, died in the Methodist hospital; Dorothy Layne, age 15, and Helen Sargent, age 8, have both legs broken. The extent of other injuries was not learned. The Layne girls, The Times was told, are the daughters of Bill Layne, of Betsy Layne, and the Sargent sisters were daughters of Sargent, an assistant mine foreman at Har old, Ky.

Within about 45 minutes after the accident occurred and a few minutes after receiving a telephone call, Deputy Sheriff O. H. Stumbo and Constable Epp Lasterly apprehended two youths at the intersection of the Mayo Trail and Court street here. They were in a one half ton pickup truck. The hood was dented, a headlight and horn smashed and fender dented on the left side of the truck.

According to officers, the boys are Noah Newsum, 23, who gave his address as Har old, Ky., and said that he was the owner of the truck, and Clifford Adkins, 18, also of Har old, stated that they were on their way to Van Lear, Ky. Officers quoted them as saying they couldn't see the girls until they were hit. They said they did not stop because they didn't think the girls were hurt. They readily admitted hitting the girls but claimed due to a heavy fog and glare of headlights of an approaching car that the tragedy was unavoidable.

Newsum said that they were going over 25 miles per hour.

Arresting officers stated that Newsum was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

The two boys in custody stated that they saw only two girls, to officials Sunday night. One theory of the accident was rumored that the what Irvin Cobb thinks about:

Glory Vs. Undernourishment.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Because their dictators are piling up armaments and building up armies at a rate unprecedented, the German people must, it appears, go on rations, cutting down their daily consumption of breadstuffs and fats, with the prospect of still more stringent restrictions.

But their overlords—a reasonably well-nourished lot, to judge by their photographs—keep right on preaching that such compulsory undernourishment is all for the greater glory of the vaterland.

I know of but one historic parallel to this match. It is to be found in Mother Goose, where it is poetically set forth: There was a piper had a cow.

So he pulled out his pipes and played her a tune. And bade the cow consider.

Signs of Disapproval.

ONCE, in Montana, I heard two cowboys talking about the father of the sweatshirt of one of them.

"I've got a kind of a sneaking idea that Millie's don't care deeply for me," said the lover.

"What makes you think so—some thing he said?"

"No, because he don't never say nothing to me, just sniffs. But the other night I snuggled over there to see Millie, and as I was coming away, I happened to look back and the old man was shoveling my tracks out of the front yard."

The archbishop of Canterbury is likely to wake up one morning and find the British public shoveling his tracks out of the front yards.

International "Missions."

JUST about the time the contesting groups in Spain lose the twenty or thirty confusing names the correspondents have hung on them and resolve themselves into the army that's going to take Madrid next afternoon and the army that's going to take Madrid until the cows come home, a fresh complication breaks out in China.

General Chiang gets into a mixup with General Chiang, possibly on the ground that he's a typographical error, and the red forces of the north get all twisted up with the white army of the north and the pink army of the north by northeast and so on and so forth, until the special writers run out of names.

Just one clear point stands out of the messification. When the dust clears away come small human brothers wearing the Japanese uniform will be found sitting on top of the heap. China is Nippon's meat, every pop.

Rationalizing the Calendar.

THE plan to adopt a rational calendar is finding favor in administration circles at Washington, as in European countries.

Every time the proposition—which is so sensible and seemingly unattainable—bobs up, I think of the little story of the venerable Alabama peasant who dropped into the general store just in time to hear the proprietor reading aloud from the newspaper that the prospect for thirteen months of twenty-eight days each had been laid for consideration before the League of Nations.

"I'm ag'in it," declared the aged one. "I'd be jest my luck for that extra month to come in the winter time and ketch me short of fodder."

Stunts in the Films.

FOR ordinary film stunts, current prices are: Tree fall, $25; stair fall, $30 (each additional fall, $35); bend-on auto crash, $200; parachute jump, $150; mid-air plane change, $200; high dive, $75; being knocked down by auto, $15; being knocked down by locomotive, $100; truck horse riding, $125; crashing a plane, $1,500.

It doesn't cost a cent, though, for practically every slightly shopworn leading man, on or off the screen, to crave to play "Hamlet" on the stage. But it is almost invariably expensive for the producers who occasionally satisfy these morbid cravings.

Here's Swell Game for Flu Victims—

"What's His Name?"

MAYBE it's not a very good game, but anyhow it's better than the flu and so the nurse, the doctor and the patient can play it.

As you do it remember some nicknames that once were spread across the sports pages or was otherwise familiar to thousands of cash customers at athletic arenas. Then you laugh fendishly, while your playmates try to recall the baptismal moniker of the party associated with it.

For instance—But probably you believe some snappy ones were, too. If so—What's His Name?

- 1—The Honest Blacksmith.
- 2—America.
- 3—Slick Willie.
- 4—Canada's Boy in Blue.
- 5—Old Smoke.
- 6—The Boy Wonder.
- 7—The Boy Wonder (Billiards).
- 8—The Boy Wonder (First of the numerous baseball heroes with that name).
- 9—The Molly McGuire (baseball team).
- 10—The Wizard (Billiards).
- 11—The Black Archer.
- 12—The Indoor King.

13—The Wax Acker (Just to make the jinx number more complicated this is a football play.)

Now if You've Not Peeked Here Are the Answers

For the benefit of those who have not peeked the answers are printed below. Some snappy ones were inserted here and there but those getting 10 correct can award themselves medals and go to the head of the class.

- 1—Famous prizefight referee and generally credited with being the first referee to enter the ring wearing a dinner suit.
- 2—Gus Schoenlein. A very good light-weight wrestler of 15 years or so ago.
- 3—Silent Mike Tiernan. A pitcher who became one of the greatest of all time right-handers. He played for the original New York Giants.
- 4—Edward Hanlan, who was born in Toronto, 1858 and became the greatest of all single scullers.
- 5—Another of the names for the Ron. John Morrissey, who won the American heavyweight championship in 1853, was elected to congress and provided Saratoga with its first high-class gambling.
- 6—Riley Gramon, one of the most famous of race-tracker bettors. When famous of Nevada track that celebrated dead heat with Domingo, Riley had 100 G's riding on Henry.
- 7—Willie Hoppe.
- 8—Arthur Cummings. As early as 1868 he was advertised all over the country by that name and for the fact that he was the only man in the world who could make a ball curve. It was a sweeping outcurve and he pitched it for, among others, the Famous Stars of Brooklyn at the old Capitoline grounds.
- 9—The Cleveland Club's name in the days of the eminent Deacon McGuire was manager.
- 10—Jack Schaefer, Sr. Greatest of them all at rail play, once having run 3,000 points on the rail without a miss and the run unfinished.
- 11—Isaac Murphy, most celebrated of all negro jockeys.
- 12—Jay Eaton, one of the most noted bicycle riders of the Nineties.
- 13—Stagg invented it so that Chicago could beat a well-favored Michigan eleven, 15 to 6, in 1900. It consisted mainly in having a pusher back of the fullback who plunges through the line.

His friends insist that the dearest ambition of Branch Rickey, very able head of the St. Louis Cardinals, was to be able to own the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Cecilia Colledge, top among the British amateur figure skaters, is teaching Vancouver a trick or two they never understood. By insisting that she is entering the movie industry on her acting ability she retains her amateur sports standing.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

UNLESS he receives the $15,000 which he is more than worth, Van Munro probably will be the ball's toughest 1937 holdout. . . . Joe Louis pays no rent in Chicago. . . . The Bomber and Maria recently moved into their own building, a six-suite apartment house which Louis purchased with his hit from the Schenckling affair. . . . Myer Aaronson, all-New Jersey high school guard last year, is high scorer for the George Washington University football team. . . . George Read, the celebrated turf clocker, used to train game cocks and once continued a start that was undefeated in 11 battles.

Senator (by personal nomination) Wild Bill Lyons carries a cane that is, in reality, a Winchester rifle. It is a gift from Mrs. James A. Farley, wife of Bill's pal, the Postmaster General. . . . Big Bill Dwyer, the turf and hockey magnate, once was an actor in a theater. . . . Fight Announcer Harry Balogh has a dinner jacket, per orders. . . . At the Garden he does not wear a dinner jacket, per orders. . . . Tex Rickard, who built the Miami Beach dog track, died the night it opened.

Bookies who squawked all summer about how tough the grind was in New York are having easier going at Miami. About 25 of the better known price makers are assembled there and, although Washington Park is decorated with numerous signs prohibiting bookmaking, a whizzer, a wit or a gesture does wonders. . . . The best prospect on the N. Y. U. frosh basketball team is Bobby Lewis, who played for the championship DeWitt Clinton quintet. His brother Normie is captain of the hotel fencing team. . . . Johnny Killane, former featherweight champion, is active in promoting amateur boxing in Cleveland. That town by the way is erecting a new 18,000-seat indoor arena and plans to be represented in the big time hockey and pro football leagues next year.

Springfield college has instituted community singing between the halves of its basketball games. Basketball, incidentally, seems to breed iron men. Johnny Moir, leading scorer of the Notre Dame team which will attempt to repeat against N. Y. U. in New York in February, broke his jaw in a recent contest. One game later he was starting against Northwestern. . . . Boxing's latest mystery is—Who snatched the pot with which the signing was done for the Brodbeck-Schmeling match? It belonged to Deputy Commissioner Joe McGuire, who when last seen was in the hand of the Garden matchmaker.

Joe McGuire.

There may exist different conceptions of beauty; everyone has his own personal opinion, but there can be no question about the truth of the feeling of beauty. That is real and palpable. Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 17, 1937
Lesson Text—John 4:7-26

Golden Text: "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst"—John 4:14.

Our lesson last Sunday recorded a conversation which Jesus with one of the most important men of his day, Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews and a Pharisee. The appeal of the gospel to people of all stations of life is shown further in the lesson for today which records his conversation with and conversion of one of the very lowest creatures which Jesus might have come in contact with, a woman of Samaria.

There were several very distinct reasons why she would have been considered too low for Jesus to have cared for. First, she was a Samaritan, and the Jews despised the Samaritans and would have nothing to do with them. Second, she was a woman and a rabbi was not supposed to talk with a woman on the street; not even his own wife. And, third, she was a woman, open in her having had five husbands, and at that hour, was living with a man who was not her husband.

However, Jesus overcame the prejudices of sex, nation and station in life and, using a figure of speech in which she and all inhabitants of that country were intensely interested began a conversation which resulted in lifting her from a life of sin into a position where she could testify so fervently that many others were led to a faith and belief in Jesus as the Messiah.

Tired after a long walk from Judea to Galilee, Jesus sat down by the well of Jacob while his disciples went to the nearby town of Sychar to buy food. While Jesus rested, a woman of Samaria came to the well to draw water. Jesus courteously asked for a drink of water to the great surprise of the woman, who, of course would have the feeling of hate between the Jews and the Samaritans.

Water in that country was one of its greatest needs, consequently was greatly prized. The woman of the family often walked long distances in the late afternoon to bring the necessary water to the home for the following day. Thus when Jesus spoke of "living water" which he spoke of something that was of deepest interest to the woman to whom he spoke.

When the woman expressed her surprise that a Jew had asked her to draw water from a Samaritan well, Jesus answered, "thou knowest the gift of God, and who it is that sayeth to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked him, and he would have given thee living water."

Seeing that Jesus had no rope or vessel with which to draw water from the well, the woman asked him if he was greater than Jacob, who dug the well by which they talked? Jesus answered by explaining the difference between the water which she could give him and the water which he could supply. The physical thirst could be quenched with water from Jacob's well but he himself would thirst again. While he who drinks the "living water" which Jesus supplies shall never thirst again—he shall be contented. The water, taken into our selves, shall become a part of us, strengthening us and helping us in our daily lives. If we do not do this, then we have not partaken of the "living water" which Jesus offers us.

In order to help the woman farther, Jesus delves down deeper into her inner life, allowing her to convict herself that Jesus was one endowed by God with a knowledge of things withheld from ordinary men. When Jesus asks her to go and call her husband and bring him to him, the woman stated that she had no husband, to which Jesus revealed his knowledge of her life, that she had had five husbands and the man with whom she was living was not her husband.

Attempting to change the subject, she asked Jesus to settle the long-standing dispute between the Jews and the Samaritans as to the right place in which to worship. Jesus then pointed out that God may be worshipped anywhere, the place not mattering nearly so much as the manner in which the worshipper worships. He said, "God is a spirit and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth."

He then reveals a truth to woman which he had not told the Jews as yet when he says, in answer to her statement that the Messiah when he came would settle all such disputes, "I that speak unto thee am he (the Messiah)." That the Samaritan woman accepted this statement as undeniable was evidenced by her action recorded in the larger lesson, in which she went back to Sychar and begged her townsmen to "Come, see a man, who told me all things that ever I did." Through her testimony many believed in Christ.

Thus we see that Jesus, instead of resting, used this casual meeting with a despised woman and a subject which was of deep interest to her, to convict this woman of sin, to a belief in and acceptance of him as the Messiah and giver of eternal life and so enthused her with joy at her regeneration that she became a witness to "those things which she had seen and heard," winning others to Jesus.

COMMON CAUSES OF HEADACHES

With our irregular mode of living and abundance of food supplies very few of us get by without occasional headache. Most headaches are loss of time. If we were all more watchful of our diet and lived on more simple foods including vegetables and fresh fruits lessening the work of our digestive organs, making it more simple for the body to eliminate waste products, many of the common headaches would be eliminated.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

More and more fish are being eaten as we learn how to market and cook them; and nowheres is good cookery more important than in fish dishes. The right garnish or sauce or both and the combination of foods with which fish is served have much to do with the popularity of fish. In the following recipes one fish may be substituted for another.

Fish Chowder
2 pounds haddock filets
2 sliced salt pork, diced
1 onion, sliced
1 1/2 cups diced potatoes
2 cups milk
2 teaspoons salt
Pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
Cut filets in uniform pieces, not too small. Fry pork until crisp, add onion and cook until delicate brown. Strain fat into a chowder kettle, add fish, potatoes, salt and pepper. Cover with cold water, bring to boiling point and simmer until potatoes are tender. Mix flour with a little water until smooth and add to the chowder with the milk. Bring to boiling point again and add butter. Add a few broken crackers. Serve with buttered cornbread, a green salad and a lemon pie.

Salmon with Celery
Salmon 1/2 cup of celery cut in small pieces in salted water. Make a cream sauce of two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons flour, blend. Add one half cup of celery water and one half cup of evaporated milk. Season to taste. Fold in 1 small can (about 7 ounces) of salmon. Put the drained celery in a baking dish, cover with salmon. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and add a few dashes of paprika. Bake about 20 minutes until brown in oven 350 degrees. Serve with baked potato, broccoli and grated raw carrots and shredded cabbage salad.

Creamed Tuna Fish
Drain 1 can of tuna fish. Make two and one half cups of medium white sauce, seasoned with dash of curry powder, juice of one half a lemon and 2 tablespoons of pimentos. Add the tuna fish and serve hot. Serve with a vegetable salad, deviled eggs and hot biscuits.

Baked Stuffed Haddock Fillets
2 haddock filets
1 cup dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons boiling water
One fourth cup melted butter.
1 tablespoon chopped onion
Salt and pepper
8 slices fat salt pork
Mix crumbs, butter and chopped onion. Moisten with boiling water and season with salt and pepper. Cut the filets (about five eighths of an inch thick) in halves, put spoonful of the bread mixture on top of each piece of fish, then a thin slice of salt pork. Put in a baking pan with a little water and the other 2 slices of pork. Bake 50 minutes in oven 400 degrees, basting occasionally with the water in the pan. Serve with tartar sauce, parsley, potatoes, grilled tomatoes and a salad made of shredded cabbage, green peppers, shredded lettuce and bacon dressing.

Fish Omelet
5 eggs
6 tablespoons milk
Salt and pepper
1 cup canned or cooked fish, flaked
2 tablespoons fat
Mix eggs slightly, just enough to blend yolks and whites. Add milk, salt, fish and pepper. Melt fat in omelet pan and turn in the egg mixture. Pick up with a fork until the whole is of a creamy consistency. When brown above, fold and turn out on a hot platter. Garnish with diced beets.

Broiled Finnan Haddie
Wash fish thoroughly. Let soak in cold water, skin side up, for one half hour. Pour off water, cover with hot water and let stand 15 minutes. Put on a hot platter, spread with butter and a little cream. Sprinkle with pepper and garnish with lemon. Serve with chilled tomatoes, cucumber and baked potatoes.

SINUS TROUBLE
Sinus trouble is another contributing factor of many headaches. The sinuses are the bony cavities that open into the nose and drain secretion from the mucous membrane which are identical and continuous with the lining of the nasal passages. The obstruction of the narrow passages causing swollen tissues and retention of secretion which upon lying down at night does not drain freely is more or less the cause of morning headaches, these headaches disappearing later in the day when the secretion has a chance to drain and the nose relieved of the congestion.

CHILDREN'S DAY

A good old custom that grew up in the Sunday school was Children's day, a custom that I have not observed in many years, though I am told that it still exists in some parts of the state. I recently asked my freshman class how many had said pieces in a Children's Day exercise, only to discover that not one of the 37 in the class had seen such a program. Evidently the custom is going the way of many another fine thing. After it had been in existence for a generation or two, it broke into our small neighborhood. Of course, our little church stands to celebrate. The teacher of the country school was instructed to plan a program and put it on. I was in the lanky, skin and ny age at that time and was fond of the church. I do not know where I could lay by fore and after the services. Someone thought I could sing long ago joined other devotional groups in other worlds: small children in a song called "Remember the Sabbath Day." In order to make it thoroughly in accord with the occasion, the director asked a little girl of the neighborhood to play the organ as an accompaniment to the young choristers. She could play the song only at high key, a mile or so above where it was written. Consequently, I was the only one who could make the high notes, but the others joined in after I had screamed the bars alone. I can still do my part, nearly 40 years after, and can still feel the rasping of my vocal chords when I shrieked out "And keep it holy, holy to the Lord." The second "holy" was in the range of the others who, like me, had had an abundant experience at calling hogs so that I note got plenty of time. As I recall it now, I tip toed at the highest part in order to get my voice up to the right pitch. I suppose this was as necessary as to work the tongue when one is writing with a slate pencil.

We also had an acrostic exercise in which children gave letters that spelled CHILDREN'S DAY. And we all knelt in devotional exercises while a little girl who lisped said the twenty-third Psalm and a boy said the Lord's Prayer. When kneeling in the country church, I do not know whether to laugh or cry. Many long ago joined other devotional groups in other worlds: small children in a song called "Remember the Sabbath Day." In order to make it thoroughly in accord with the occasion, the director asked a little girl of the neighborhood to play the organ as an accompaniment to the young choristers. She could play the song only at high key, a mile or so above where it was written. Consequently, I was the only one who could make the high notes, but the others joined in after I had screamed the bars alone. EASTERN TO OFFER SPECIAL MUSIC WORK

Richmond, Ky., Jan. 11—Last summer Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, as a special feature of the first summer term, offered five weeks of music instruction to High School students in the form of a music camp. About 100 High School students from 13 Kentucky counties and 4 other states took advantage of this training. They were housed in special sections of the regular college dormitories and received their meals at a private dining room operated in connection with the college cafeteria. Including this work in the summer school program last year was an experiment, because of the enthusiastic way in which it was received by high school music people. Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of Eastern Teachers College, and the members of the musical faculty have decided, according to college officials, to make this high school music training a permanent part of the summer course. The music instruction for high school students will be offered during the first summer term of this year, which begins June 14 and ends July 17. In order that no good high school musician may be denied this instruction because of a lack of funds, the college authorities have decided to charge only the actual cost of board, entertainment and a small incidental fee. Prof. Henry Schnabel, director of music at Eastern, will be in charge of all music instruction for high school students. Before joining the Eastern music faculty in September, 1936, Prof. Schnabel was director of the Parts north, O. high school band. Under his direction the Parts mouth organization won several state and national honors. His wide experience with high school music camps makes him an ideal person to direct the Stephen Collins Foster Music Camp at Eastern Teachers College. The entire music faculty will assist Mr. Schnabel in working out the music program for the high school students. In addition to music instruction, a complete program of recreational and social activities under the direction of the physical education staff will be provided for those students who are enrolled for the music camp.

Hearty Esters
 If certain celebrities really ate what legend says they did, the wonder is that they managed to do so much work. Dumas, they say, was insulted if offered less than three steaks for a meal; Balzac consumed 100 oysters, a dozen lamb cutlets and a sole or two at a sitting. But don't feel inferior if you require only a ham sandwich for lunch. Isaac Newton lived on a scanty diet of bread, water and vegetables.

HEALTH and BEAUTY

DR. SOPHIA BRONSON

Kindness and Self Control
 Through all the thousand years, want of self control has continued to bring down sorrow and suffering upon this sad old world. Men are no nearer self mastery today than they were five thousand years ago. You cannot glance over a newspaper but you can find many records of brutal, unprovoked killings.

He who lacks self control easily flies into a passion, which generates poison in his system so rapidly that his judgment is warped as completely for the time being as though he were under the influence of alcohol or some other equally pernicious and powerful drug.

Prof. Gates performed many experiments to discover the effect of anger upon the body. He found that the perspiration of an angry man on being treated with a chemical reagent, showed a certain color that of a man in grief showed another. All these experiments indicated that each mental state always gave the same color reaction. They found that emotions affect the blood, and hence the whole body. Gates condensed the breath of several different individuals. From angry persons a bit wishy precipitate was obtained which he administered to men and animals. It caused great stimulation and excitement, even the killing of small guinea pigs. He says that "every emotion of a false and disagreeable nature produces poisons in the blood and cell tissues."

In an old medical book, it related that a strong, vigorous, well developed young mother, rather of the bovine type, had a baby that was quite as healthful as herself. Something occurred that threw the mother into a better fit of rage. Shortly after she nursed her hungry infant, the child was thrown into convulsions and died within a few hours. The best authorities asserted that the milk killed the child. The poison generated in her blood by her milk. Similar circumstances have been observed, even among animals.

Men little realize what a force for good or evil thought is. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Want of self control, anger, and disagreeable emotions poison the body and injure the mind. Children were taught that it is disgraceful to give way to temper, much regret and sorrow in after life would be avoided in after life. Teach them that kind thoughts give rise to kind deeds. If they are taught to love their fellow men, and the helpless, defenseless animals, it would incline them toward gentleness and justice.

Few things are more conducive to self control than real kindness of heart. If boys and girls could experience the joys of hunting the birds and instead of guns, we would see less crime and fewer murders in our country. A new era of peace on earth, good will to all of God's creatures would be ushered in, if they would grow away from many of the savage instincts, that persist in spite of mere literary education.

What the human race needs is a baptism of kindness and self control. Peace and goodness would reign on the earth, instead of hate, misery and discontent.

Home Living Crops Increase

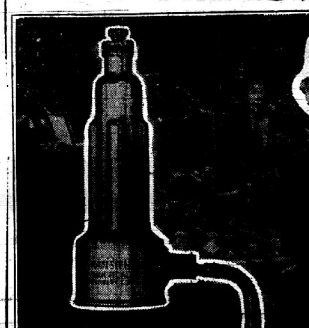

The almost universal tendency to plant crops for home consumption is clearly brought out in comparison with the number of farms in the recent enumeration reporting vegetables and the acreage devoted to them with statistics of the 1920 census.

Phoenix Sacred in China
 The phoenix, called in Chinese "feng huang," is one of the four sacred creatures of the country, the others being the dragon (perhaps the most important of them all), the tortoise, and the unicorn. Girl Gets Pointers on Balking Prison Release

Oklahoma City, Okla. — Lea M. Nichols, chairman of the state board of affairs, was dubbed the Solomon of the board after he disposed of a knotty problem that had the other members baffled. A girl in the state penitentiary appended to the board to be allowed to complete her sentence of a year. She hoped the added time would be sufficient to effect the cure of an ailment. But the law said she had to go. Time off for good behavior had reduced her term to a little more than seven months. Nichols had a happy thought. He told the girl: "Go out and have a fight with one of the inmates and you will lose your good behavior time. Then you can stay the rest of the year. She took a swing at a fellow prisoner and precipitated a scuffle. Her good behavior time was withdrawn and she can finish out the year.

SYNOPSIS

Kezia Marsh, pretty, selfish and twenty, arrives home in Corinth from school and is met by her older brother, Hugh, who drives her to the Marsh home where her widowed mother, Fluvanna, is waiting. Her mother, Fluvanna, is a kindly, understanding soul, welcomes her. Kezia's sister, Maggie, is a kind and understanding girl. Kezia's father, who is at work with them, is a kind and understanding man. Kezia's mother, Fluvanna, is a kind and understanding woman. Kezia's father, who is at work with them, is a kind and understanding man.

CHAPTER I—Continued

"I'm telling you first, before anyone," the girl went on. "I can tell you things, Fluvanna—you understand. I'm exquisitely—divinely happy! . . . Why, Jerry—she shook her head, murmured: "It's boys' school, and I'm feeling I never thought anything so nice would happen to me!" "All nice things should happen to you, Ellen." "I wish Mother were as easy to tell things to as you, Fluvanna." She gave a rueful smile. "She won't be pleased—my father. It will be hard—that part—the telling them. Perhaps I'll wait a while." Fluvanna called up the stairway. "Ellen is here. Hurry down, Kezia." Ellen returned with the flowers arranged in vases. "I mustn't stay for breakfast. I went out early painting in the ravine and left word that I'd be back by breakfast time. She'll worry. I'll stay until I see Kezia. Nice to have her home, isn't it?" "Not so lovely for you, Fluvanna." "Very nice. And I'd have been much lonelier if a certain person hadn't been very kind about coming often." "I? . . . Puff! I loved coming . . . you're just fascinating to me. I'm of the opinion of being with you—perhaps fascinating isn't the word." She sat down on the dormer beside Fluvanna. "I told Jerry I could turn in with while I'm immersed in the halls of learning, she grabs off the best-looking man in town!"

CHAPTER II

The back yard lawn of the Hugh Marshes was in the twilight light which comes just before darkness. The west was a faint smoky streak with mauve; birds talked in sleepy twinges; a wood dove cooed in a willow. Dorrie reclined on a wicker chair, leaning against Hugh as he smoked a pipe. Hugh's eyes were on the arabesque pattern of the trumpet vine. "I'm constitutionally lazy," he murmured. "Are you interested? Did you hear what I said?" "That you are lazy? Yes, I heard. I don't know what to do about it." She shrugged and a curling smile lit her eyes. "I'm not complaining." His mind slipped away to the plant. If they landed the Cincinnati order and the one from Dayton would keep them running all through June, when there would be a natural recession. They needn't done badly for a small plant, considering conditions. "You're not thinking about me?" said Dorrie sharply. "Who else?" He knocked the ashes out of his pipe. "If I think about the business, it's for you, isn't it?" "I'm trying to make a confession, but you won't listen." His left foot went up in its humorous twinkle. "What's bothering you, Kezia?" "I should have your family here once in a while. We're always being invited to your relatives'. It's the things I ought to do, but don't want to." "You mean you don't care for my family?" "I don't care for many people, do I?" she tossed back, smiling. "No; but I thought you and Mother."

"I'm fond of your mother. She has an extraordinary effect on me. I feel me feel good inside and out—like a steam bath and a soothing oil rub by a Swedish masseur." "Gosh, Dorrie!" "Margery since she has those children, doesn't talk my language. I can't get passionate over croup and measles and things like that. But Kezia has a streak of wickedness I understand. Fun to watch her manipulate our purposes." (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Kezia sulked for a minute. Then she broke a piece of toast, crumpled it thoughtfully. "I suppose I might have come down." Her mother smiled as she saw victory in sight. Kezia was ashamed of her action, but had had to defend it.

"She has a tough time at home. No wonder she comes here so much." Cousin Gavin is too nervous to allow the radio to be played when he's in the house, and her mother, pretentious and calculating, nags the life out of her—"what a mother!" shuddered Kezia. "I have no reason to be envious of Ellen. If it were possible to over her—they think of Lizzie for a mother-in-law—then it's good-bye Ellen!"

She sat there, her eyes dreamy and misted. "I'm so mean," she faltered, "and you're so good to me! Oh, Mother, how do you put up with me?" Fluvanna was moved, as she always was when Kezia was pensive and misty-eyed—even though she knew it did not hinder her from doing the same thing over again directly. The girl rose in a sudden whirlwind and came around to her chair, laid her cheek against her mother's. "I love you, Mother. Charming, emotional and impulsive—like Jim. Her heart plunged with missing for Kezia, a vague another. She caressed her automatically. Kezia went back to her chair. The nice her when she comes again—oh, better still, telephone her."

"I'll see you," Kezia nodded between bites. "I'll telephone her this noon. Pete told me about this Purdue she has been going with—very smooth looking fellow, a Ronald Coleman. They're all betting it won't last a month!" "I wish he'd be too sure." Kezia looked up quickly. "H-m-m-m, have you a scoop?—she felt you anything?" "Not for the public yet. So keep it secret." Kezia's brows went up. "Well, it's a headline, even though she's put it over! Cheers for Ellen!" Kezia rose from the table. "I'll breeze around there after I get through playing tennis and ask her to bring him over some night soon." She dropped a kiss on her mother's hair. "I'll tell her that while I'm immersed in the halls of learning, she grabs off the best-looking man in town!"

Simple, Practical Frocks

WHERE, oh where is the feminine wardrobe that wouldn't take its momentum through the addition of just these three simple, wearable frocks? Surely like the Modes, it would be hard to find. And the thrilling thing—the important feature—is that these frocks are planned and patterned exclusively for the modern woman who sews—for you, a member of The Sewing Circle. Pattern 1914 is a house dress with a future. It is young and practical. The new notched collar, ending as it does in twin scoops below the yoke line, gives the waist front balance and brightness. The bodice is slightly and to make this a comfortable style to work in as well as one that is attractive to look at. The skirt is slim lined and simple, as you would have it. Use dimity, dotted swiss or gingham for this number. Designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 38 requires 3 1/2 yards of 35 inch material. Pattern 1989 is the polite young model caught with its back this way, perhaps the better to show off the beautiful shoulders and cinched-of-the descending lines. You'll run-up this frock in short order but you'll wear it endlessly and with that happy confidence which only a style with distinction can give. Make it of raspberry wool crepe and trim the collar, cuffs and hem with royal blue. Pattern 1206 comes in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 2 1/2 yards of 54 inch material with 3 yards of braid for trimming. Pattern 1206 is a most attractive newcomer to the blouse category. An alliance of this sort brings glamour and romance to the girl wearing a gold or silver metallic cloth, or perhaps shimmering satin for the blouse with a skirt of velvet will make a million dollar outfit. Make it yours in a couple of hours. It is available in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 2 1/2 yards of 54 inch material for the blouse and 2 1/2 yards for the skirt. The blouse with long sleeves requires 2 1/2 yards 20 inches wide. A detailed sewing chart accompanies each pattern to guide you every step of the way. Send for the Barbara Bell Fall and Winter Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents in coins for your copy. Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1023, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Patterns 15 cents (in coins) each. To Sell Syndicate—WNU Service.
