FLOYD'S TWO TEAMS LOSE GOLF MATCHES

Heinze's Sons Play In Featured Match Sunday At Allen

In the last round of matches played in the Inter City Golf League, Sunday, Pikeville defeated Abbott Heights 10 1/2 to 13 1/2 and Paintsville won from Beaver Valley 28 1/2 to 22 1/2. The final standing in the league finds Paintsville and Pikeville tied for first place. Beaver Valley is second, and Abbott Heights third.

A special match between the two sons of Dr. Hal of Paintsville and the two sons of F. L. Heinze of Prestonsburg, featured the match played at Beaver Valley. Bob Hall startled the gallery by shooting a 79 for the course. During the next two weeks qualifying matches will be held at Pikeville for the individual Ike Sandy championship matches to be played there Aug. 28, 29, and Sept. 4, 5 and 6. The present holder of the championship cup and title is Robinson of Pikeville. Whether he retains the cup depends on the golfing ability of Clarke, Morell, Hagans or May of the Abbott Heights club, or Adkins, Malone or Brooks of Beaver Valley, in so far as Floyd county is concerned.

When asked if he would enter the tournament Carl Corbin, Beaver Valley member, remained non-committal but said "I'm glad to be satisfied with my Civil War golf. (Out in 61. Back in 65). I leave it to the other niblick tossers to upset the bucket."

BOARD OF EDUCATION POSTPONES STARTING FLOYD HIGH SCHOOLS

High School Start Delayed From Aug. 23 to Sept. 7 in County

The opening date for Floyd county high schools was postponed to September 7 by the Floyd county board of education, which met in Superintendent Town Hall's office Saturday evening. The original date set for high school opening was August 23.

At Beaver on the head of Mud Creek, and the one at Bonanza, which will start August 23. All other high schools will adhere to the new ruling.

Superintendent Hall said that the postponement was caused by delayed construction of the new high school buildings at Garrett, Wheelwright, Betsy Layne and Weeksburg. Mr. Hall said that the steel strike was the major cause in the delayed construction as no steel could be procured for windows or siders.

Although the delay is caused primarily by high school construction in only four communities, the postponement is county wide in effect, because high schools at Maytown, Wayland, Martin, Prestonsburg, McDowell, Auxier, and others. Superintendent Hall explained the ruling was made county wide in effect because of the recently inaugurated county wide system of graduation: the Board

JOHNSON ARRESTED, MURDER SUSPECTED EXTRADITED TO VA. IN STRATTON DEATH

Deputy Constable Collins Arrests Johnson at Wheelwright

Although expected to violently resist, Gus Johnson, deputy constable who has figured in several gunbattles, meekly surrendered last Friday to Deputy Constable S. A. Collins who made the arrest at Wheelwright Junction.

A warrant for Johnson's arrest was issued by County Judge Walk Stumbo following the shooting and wounding of Charles Hanford at Martin last week. Hanford was wounded near the place Alton Patton was killed by Johnson several months ago.

After his arrest, Johnson, in the custody of Collins, was taken to Jenkins and lodged in jail there. Federal officers arrived the same day (Friday) with extradition papers to take him to Virginia for trial on liquor making charges and charges of evading and resisting arrest. The charges were more than a year old.

Although the federal officers expect Johnson to receive a five year sentence, he will be retained here in Floyd county after serving his sentence. Continued on page four

Son of Rev. Isaac Stratton Found Unconscious On Railway

With his head battered, Ballard Stratton, about 30 years old was found above the highway bridge on the C. & O. railroad tracks at Alton, Tuesday. He succumbed in the Stumbo Memorial hospital Wednesday, without naming his assailant. The coroner's verdict was "Death at the hands of party or parties unknown."

Stratton was beaten with a club from officers report. Witnesses and officers said that Stratton's body was placed across the tracks to look like an accident after the body had been hit by a train. The body was discovered however, before a train passed.

According to those who moved him to the hospital, Stratton's body was covered with blood, some of which had run into his shoes, which according to officers, proved that the victim was partially upright when hit.

Funeral services will be held for the deceased, who is a son of Rev. Isaac Stratton, at Banner, Friday at 2 p. m.

GRAY ARRESTS YOUTHS CHARGED WITH ROBBERY OF BICYCLES IN ASHLAND

Galloway Gray, of Allen, special officer for the C. & O. railway, took two youths, Tivis Cooley and Edgar Kidd, to Allen last week, charged with the theft of bicycles at Ashland. Mr. Gray said that this was the tenth arrest made within the past month for robbery offenses against the railway.

Both youths received 30 day sentences in County Judge pro tem Akers' court for freight train riding. After serving these sentences in the Floyd county jail, they will be transferred to Boyd county to be tried for robbery.

The bicycles stolen in Ashland were placed on manifest train No. 94, it is believed, and unloaded at Allen. Mr. Gray said that both boys admitted the theft of the bicycles, but refused to tell details about how they placed the stolen goods on the train.

"Uncle" Jeff Sizemore, 94 Year Old Vet., Tells Civil War Experiences

Upon a recent visit to The Times office, "Uncle" Jeff Sizemore, aged 94, of Water Gap, one of Kentucky's few remaining Civil War veterans, combated the interruptions of phone calls and customers, to give a brief discourse of his war experiences.

Although presses were running in the rear of the building, candidates were broadcast from the courthouse and sound trucks were blaring at the front of the building, "Uncle" Jeff, despite his age, was victorious in making himself heard, never retreating before enemy noises.

Prestonsburg, said Uncle Jeff, was deserted by all except eight citizens early in January in the year 1862. Folks here had heard of the approach of General Garfield and his union forces and knew that a battle would be fought in this neighborhood. After the battle of Middle Creek was fought, Jan. 10, 1862, "Uncle" Jeff said that he helped bury the Confederate dead. He added that the next day General Garfield moved his headquarters to Prestonsburg in the house now owned by Mrs. M. J. Leete. Soon after he moved his forces to Pantaville to be nearer his food supply.

At Paintsville, General Garfield issued a proclamation to Big Sandians, asking them to return to their homes, and "Uncle" Jeff, with vigorous gestures, delivered the proclamation in his own words. In all the war time phraseology with which he was written.

During his discourse, "Uncle" Jeff said slight heed to interrupting customers. Once, however, he paused until the customer was served, said, "where'd I quit?" and plunged back into stride. Again while a customer's order was being taken, "Uncle" Jeff, who has

WARNIE SLUSHER, 31 FLOYD JAILBREAKER, IS CAUGHT IN INDIANA

Man Who Broke Jail in September is Returned Here Saturday

After being arrested in Warsaw, Ind., Warnie Slusher, 31, who led a daring jail break from the Floyd county jail several months ago, was returned here last Saturday. Slusher was immediately remanded to the Knott county jail at Hindman for three separate indictments in this county. He is charged with a boxcar robbery, looting of the depot at Dinwood, Ky., and robbery of the postoffice and Troy Conley's store at Bosco. He was brought here by special C. & O. Agent V. W. Mitchell, after extradition papers were served.

Before his outbreak of crime in this county, Slusher was convicted of manslaughter in the Jackson circuit court. After serving five years of his 10 year sentence he was paroled.

Slusher has already confessed to the robbery of the store and postoffice at Bosco, which he robbed with the aid of Jack Hatfield. Hatfield is now serving two life sentences and one two year sentence, which under the habitual criminal act, resulted from his share in the robbery.

A minimum sentence of 20 years will similarly await Slusher here, if he is convicted of more than one robbery charge.

What S. Cobb Thinks about

This Business of Golf.

OKAY AND CALIF.—As I sit writing this, I look out where elderly gentlemen, intent on relaxing, may be seen tensing themselves up tighter than a cocked wolf-trap, and then staggering toward the clubhouse with every nerve standing on end and screaming for help and highballs.

I smile at them, for I am one who has given up golf. You might even go so far as to say I tried and tried, but I never broke a typhoid patient's temperature chart—never got below 102.

I spent so much time climbing into sand-traps and out again that people began thinking I was a new kind of hermit, living by preference in bunkers—the old man of the link beds, they'd be calling me next.

And I used to slice so far into the rough that, looking for my ball, I penetrated jungles where the foot of man hadn't trod since the early mound builders. That's how I added many rare specimens to my collection of Indian relics.

But the last straw was when a Scotch professional, after morbidly watching my form, told me that at any rate there was one thing about me which was correct—I did have on golf stockings!

Congressional Boldness.
WARNING to pet lovers: If you own guinea pigs or tame rabbits or trained seals or such like creatures, try to keep them away from them that some of the majority members of the lower branch of congress actually threatened to deny their man's voice.

The senate always has been known as the world's greatest deliberative body—and, week by week and month by month, don't those sides statesmen know how to deliberate!

But these last few years the house has earned the reputation of being the most docile legislative outfit since Aesop's King Stork ruled over the synd of the frogs.

So should the news ever spread among the lesser creatures, hither-to so placid and biddable, that an example had been set at Washington, there's no telling when the Belgian hares will start rampaging and the singing mice will begin acting up rough and the grabworms will gang against the big old woodpecker.

Professional Orators.
WE HAVE in Southern California a professional orator who long ago discovered that the most reliable basis on earth is the sound of his own voice. He'll speak anywhere at the drop of the hat and provide the hat.

Who's wearing this, coast-defender of our labors under the delusion that, if he shouts at the top of his voice, his eloquence will be all the more forcible. The only way to avoid meeting him at dinner is to eat at an owl wagon. But the other night, at an important banquet, he strangely was missing from the array of speakers at the head table. One guest turned in amazement to his neighbor:

"Where's Blank?" he inquired, naming the absentee.

"Didn't you hear?" answered the other climbing into...
"He bustled a couple of ear drums."
"Whose?" said the first fellow.

Foes of Nazidom.
THE veteran Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York has been reasonably outspoken in his views on Nazi treatment of his own co-religionists and the persecutions of other faiths as well. And one of the most venerable prelates of the Catholic church in Europe, while discussing the same subject, has exactly pulled his punches, either.

So what? A friend just back from abroad told me that in Berlin he heard a high government official fiercely denounce these two distinguished men. About the mildest thing the speaker said about them was that both were senile. Somehow or other, the speech wasn't printed in the German papers—maybe by orders from on high.

Well, far be it from this innocent bystander to get into religious arguments and besides I have no first-hand knowledge as to the Christian clergyman's state of health, although, judging by his utterances, there's nothing particularly wrong with his mind. But I do know Rabbi Wise, and, if he's in his dotage, so is Stanley Temple. And I risk the assertion that he would be perfectly willing to have one foot in the gutter if it could keep the other on Herr Hitler's neck.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD GIVES LAWS TO THE NATION

International Sunday School Lesson for August 15, 1937

Golden Text: 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Matthew 22:37-39.

In the third month after leaving Egypt the children of Israel found themselves in the Wilderness of Sinai, a plain two miles long by half a mile wide, having precipitous mountains on either side. Here the Israelites were alone with themselves and God and here God chose to speak to them.

Calling Moses to the top of Mount Sinai, God delivered several messages to him for transmission to the Israelites. He first promised that if these people would obey his voice they would be (1) God's own possession among all peoples; (2) a kingdom of priests; and (3) a holy nation. When this message was delivered the people answered together, 'All that the Lord hath spoken we will do.'

God then tells Moses that, after certain preparations were made, God delivers to them what we now call the Ten Commandments or the Decalogue. Although given so long ago, the Ten Commandments are still the law of life for everybody; and the laws of our country are based upon them. These laws deal with our actions and not with mere thoughts or emotions and are addressed to each one of us as individuals because each of us will have to answer as individuals to God for our actions.

'Thou shalt have no other gods before me.' The necessity for the first commandment will quickly be understood when we realize that the Israelites were accustomed to nations having many gods. This commandment not only forbids the worship of many gods, but commands the worship of only one—Jehovah.

The second commandment forbids the carving of images, or their worship. God is a spirit and they that worship him in spirit and in truth. The danger of using symbols of any kind in our worship is that we are likely to attach so much importance to the symbol that we lose sight of the One it symbolizes.

The third commandment demands reverence for God. A name stands for one's character and personality. To take God's name in vain, lightly or heedlessly is to profane the character of God. Not only is all profanity which uses his name lightly condemned but the perpetual making use of the name of the Lord by those whose life does not square with their profession is as surely a violation of this commandment.

God's fourth commandment requires the keeping of the Sabbath Day, which God hallowed, or set apart as the day holy unto him. This commandment is being broken more often by Christians today than any other of the Ten Commandments and the consequence is being felt and seen in the loss of spiritualism and the ease with which many Christians are succumbing to the temptations of the world.

The fifth commandment, the first with promise, commands reverence of parents. Perhaps no sign of the present time is more sad than that of the prevalence of disobedience on the part of children to parents and the lack of reverence and respect which children have for their elders. The fault lies, however, not so much with the children as with the parents who have either failed to train them properly or do not live so as to merit the respect and honor of their children.

The next three commandments have to do with our human relationships—life, purity, property and reputation. The sixth commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill,' of course forbids the taking of human life by another. Some hold that this forbids capital punishment, the defense of country or the taking of life under any circumstances. However, the Bible does not teach this. God commands punishment for murder and also expects men to fight in defense of their country. There are murderers, however, beside those who consciously set out to kill who violate this commandment. Those who recklessly drive automobiles, parents who do not provide adequately for their children, adulterators of milk and food-stuffs and the like are equally guilty.

The commandment against adultery is set next to that against murder because as Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein says, 'adultery is very often the forerunner of murder.' Christ said that he who indulged in evil mental attitudes is as guilty as he who is an adulterer.

'Thou shalt not steal.' This applies to underhanded dealing just as it does to the taking of property, belonging to another. All chiselers—wherever they are and whatever they do, are stealing, whether it be time, property, money or another's work.

The ninth commandment forbids false witness or slandering. The law primarily refers to the giving of false testimony in court, but also applies to the passing on of false facts about another under any circumstances. Slander is like counterfeit money. Many people who would not think of being the first to circulate it will pass it along when it comes into their hands.

The tenth and last commandment is regarded by some as the most important of all in that it is the coveting of something one does not possess that leads to the breaking of the commandments against the ill treatment of others. We get it fit for covetousness, happiness and contentment in the world would be multiplied many times over.

A device to measure brain waves will be found in the Hall of Health and Science at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

THE FARM AND HOME MANY SS RECIPIENTS GET AID LAST MONTH

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

In reorganizing farms, it is often found necessary to relocate roads and lanes, especially where gullying has occurred in them. Private drives should be located where they will result in the least damage to the farm.

Many women prefer dry bread for making sandwiches in preparing them for picnic lunches, they should be wrapped in wax paper packed away from other food and covered with a slightly damp cloth if they are to be kept out doors for some time.

In building, or remodeling houses, give attention to closet space. Fewer and larger closets carefully placed with a window and artificial light, are now preferred by most homemakers. Some should contain cupboards and shelves.

Water and shade for livestock of all kinds are receiving attention by more farmers every year. Concrete tanks are appearing on many farms. Clean containers filled at every day are considered essential for poultry.

Selling or penning of roosters, gathering egg two or three times a day, and keeping them in cellars, caves or other cool places help to improve the quality of eggs. They should be taken to town at least twice a week.

Refrigerator don'ts: Don't put hot foods into the refrigerator. Don't crowd the shelves and hinder free air circulation. Don't open the door unnecessarily, and don't store things in the refrigerator that do not need refrigerating, such as potatoes, canned goods and bananas.

try the 2,000 pounds of fish for the day. The CCC are bringing their famous rolling army kitchen with its pans and ovens and they will put on a demonstration for the holiday crowd's 5,000 empty stomachs.

33979 Granted To Floyd County Through Local Office

A report issued by Dr. A. Y. Lloyd, director of Public Assistance, for release this week shows 408 persons in Floyd county received old age assistance in July. The total amount now being received by aged needy persons within the county is $3,979.

Assistance for aged needy men and women in Kentucky shows a steady upward trend, with a marked increase in the number of grants for the period ending August 1, as compared with the period ending July 1, 1937.

The total number of recipients of old age assistance in Kentucky for the month of July was 38,813. These persons received assistance checks totaling $388,075.65. Present steady advance is maintained, it is estimated that the aged population of the state will have received approximately $15,000,000 when Governor Chandler's term expires in 1939.

The many difficulties which attended the work of the Division of Public Assistance during the early months have nearly all disappeared. A thoroughly efficient staff of office and field workers assures immediate attention to all cases, with possible delay resulting only from a complete lack of documentary evidence to prove eligibility.

Putting Power to Work on the Farm

For many years the line crews of this Company have been engaged in extending electric service into rural areas wherever there was sound business justification for these extensions. Today, if you were to follow our poles and wires over county roads you would traverse 125 miles of line and pass the homes of 1,162 users of our electric service.

More and more the farmer is turning toward electric for the profitable operation of his farm. For example, an electric milk cooler enables the dairyman to keep down the bacterial count to secure higher prices for his milk. Rural folks receive a service equal to that enjoyed by city dwellers, backed by 50 years' experience in this business. Ours is not "amateur service"—it is electric service upon which the farmer may depend.

Our city customers will commend this policy of low rates for farmers realizing that an efficient, prosperous countryside is the surest guarantee of busy industry and prosperity in the cities.

This holding down the line at drama critic on another. He has written copy for advertising agencies, toured Europe with a musical unit and was a magazine columnist. Fred Groff, who has taken over the CBS network on Friday nights, plans to feature several of the members which elevated him to the ranks of one of America's foremost comedians. The eyes of aspiring girls vocalists of the nation are now being focused on the career of Trudy Wood. Six months ago, the petite warbler was just a member of a singing group heard on the radio. Green's singing she was selected by Green to sing the song which has taken over from Fred Astaire. Pretty Jean O'Neill, favorite star of "The Doc Revue," is called "the college boy's pet" radio inspiration," by NBC attaches. Radio fans who have long enjoyed the voice and personalties of Harry Von Zell on the Phil Baker and Fred Allen programs, were delighted when Harry was selected to emcee the CBS Sunday night summer show which will feature Baker in Hollywood. Von Zell is one of the most versatile men on radio combining the talents of producer, announcer, actor and master of ceremonies.

MAY THANKS VOTERS

I take this method of thanking the people of this county for their support and influence in my race for sheriff. I can truthfully say I made a clean race without being out any money more than legitmate expenses. I feel proud, returning Sunday from Louisville where they have spent with the odds against me and fraud and money spent against me by some of my opponents. I received 1734 votes.

Respectfully,
LEE P. MAY

STEPHENS CONCEDES HILL NOMINATED

I want to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to the people of Floyd county, who so loyally supported me in the recent August primary for County Judge. Edward P. Hill has won the nomination over me by fifty eight votes and I want to still say to the public I will not contest him and I am for him 100 per cent and feel there is no doubt about his being elected this fall. I feel that Mr. Hill will make an excellent County Judge and will serve the people well.

I wish to further state, however, since my home and newspaper have been made an issue in this campaign and feeling that there is considerable feeling among the people generally against those who have acquired something, I now offer same for sale. I would never have entered this race in the beginning if I offer same for sale. I would never have entered this race in the beginning if I offer same for sale. I would never have entered this race in the beginning if I offer same for sale. I would never have entered this race in the beginning if I offer same for sale.

Say, did you know there is one corporation in Floyd County that has saved approximately $200,000 in the last eight years in taxes? Let us hope that the people will again soon be represented. I believe under Edward P. Hill all the people will be represented and that both the rich and poor alike will receive a square deal and when the people have accomplished this purpose, they will be satisfied. Everybody get behind Edward P. Hill and make his term a success.

I am yours very truly,

SADDLEBAGS, RETICULES CARPETBAGS, ETC.

Trunks on automobiles or even trunks themselves could hardly contain as many and as varied things as people used to carry in saddlebags, and other popular containers. There were many sorts of saddlebags. The best known kind were capacious and roundish, lying across the saddle and capable of holding clothes, bottles of sundry kinds, hymn books et al. Of course, I do not imply that any one set had such a combination, but certainly saddlebags were put to sundry uses. (I just cannot get away from that sundry: it sounds learned; I heard it often in the country church.) The early circuit rider would have been lost without his saddlebag to hold his Bible and his Bible. I have read that a copy of Wesley's sermons, a hymn book and a Bible of some made up the entire library of most of the itinerant Methodist preachers. All travelers took a pair of saddlebags along to hold their purchases when they went to town or their apparel when they went a journey. Physicians had a special make of saddlebags, designed to hold their cat o' nine tails and other standard remedies.

The old time carpet bag was much more ample and could be slatched to fabulous proportions. It came to be the badge of important travellers and similar in style to the aviation bag of our time. Then there was the telescope that we used when we went away to school, 30 years ago, which could hold nearly all of one's belongings. Suitcases of many varieties are still in use, but I fear the telescope is a lost institution. I can still recall how out of style I felt when the telescope began to lose caste. I coveted the more stylish suitcase of the other fellows. In those earlier days we had trunks too, great big fellows that had to be packed skillfully and roped tightly to keep them from being torn all to pieces. I was out two perfectly good trunks in my early college days. Some of my earlier schoolmates used to help pay their way through college by hauling trunks, and other passing institution, as you all know. A joke we used to repeat every year was that when our friends were ready to pack their trunks, we would come over and help tramp to the contents for them a figure borrowed, of course, from the method used in packing to bacco into headsheads. I cannot define reticule. I suppose it means any small container for necessary articles, usually carried along by a woman. There have been so many varieties since I should not attempt to list all of them. One such container used to be carried along full of teacakes when the family went to church. My brother was always decorous as long as the teacakes lasted; no amount of fear of the preacher or of what might happen when we got home could keep him quiet after the teacakes were gone. From fourthly to nineteenthly the wriggling continued unless Mother grew tired of it all and sought the out of doors and a switch. Some poet ought to pay his respects to the teacake as a moral force in the preceding generation: many a good child at church owes by reputation to the adequate supply of these goodies stored in a receptacle or handbag.

What containers we shall use next it hath not yet appeared, but what we now use will seem equally as funny then as receptacles seem now. And I wish some collector would start right now to preserve all all forms of handbags, reticules, telescopes, and trunks that can be found in attics and lumber rooms.

Mont St. Michel Tides Among World's Wonders

One of the fastest and strongest tides in the world ebbs and flows off Mont St. Michel in Brittany. With a deep moaning sound heard for miles, the tide flows rushing back over the eight miles it has receded at ebb-tide and within a few minutes transforms about 100 square miles of ocean bed from a stretch of sand into turbulent sea. The highest tides of the year occur before the spring and autumn equinoxes, when the Mont is entirely surrounded by water. At other times throughout the year the tide runs high, though not reaching the equinoctial records. The granite ledge of Mont St. Michel rises 250 feet. The quaint houses of the one-street village and the Gothic abbey and castle are surrounded by a medieval wall and towers. In addition to the scenic lure of the Mont, there is the attraction of omelettes Poulard, cooked by a special method in a long-handled frying pan over an open fire, and Pre-Sale, which is the local variety of lamb raised on the salt marshes. And besides the region, the tides there is an abundance of sea food lobsters and fish.

Terms Used by Birdmen Dog fanciers have nothing on bird tides when it comes to strange words. In fact, the terminology of the terms used by ornithologists are absolutely necessary in writing bird descriptions. For example, says a writer in the Washington Post, birdmen refer to the feathers covering the base of the quills on the wings and tail as coverts. The quill feathers of the wing are primaries. Thus, primary coverts are the feathers at the base of the primaries. Secondaries are merely the flight feathers of the wing. Tertiaries are the feathers closest to the body. Shoulder feathers are scapulars. The regions about the ears are auriculars. Dorsal refers to the back; frontal to the forehead, and crown to the top of the head. The bend of the wing is the carpal joint; the occipital, the back of the head; the nape, the back of the neck.

White Potato From America The white potato was introduced into Ireland from this country. The Irish, however, were the first to recognize potatoes as a staple food. John Hawkins, a slave-trader, carried some potatoes from Virginia to Ireland, about the year 1655, and Sir Walter Raleigh, who had estates in Ireland in the county of Cork, began growing them on a large scale. He popularized them so far and to such an extent that they became known as Irish potatoes.

Reservation in Hawaiian Islands Since 1898, when the Hawaiian Islands were annexed as an American territory, more than 27,000 acres have been set aside for army and navy reservations alone. Of this total 14,400 acres are being used for Schofield barracks, largest army post in the nation. In addition to these 27,000 acres, several National parks, also owned by the Federal government, contains 118,235 acres. This park is located on the islands of Hawaii and Maui.

Baseball, English Game, Played as Early as 1744

Baseball was a popular children's game in England as early as 1744, according to a book by Dr. A. D. Peacock, who organized the first baseball team in America. Robert W. Henderson, in the official bulletin of the New York public library, says of the game played in England nearly 200 years ago: "It is a game for boys, not one-old-cat, nor even four-old-cat. We repeat: a children's game called baseball, in which player after striking a ball, ran round the bases until he reached 'home.'" The evidence is found in a book written to book collectors. For many years it was regarded as the first book issued for children by the first publisher of children's books. The claim has in recent years been proved erroneous, but the book is still cherished regardless of the fact that it is no longer established as the first in history. Not alone was baseball made known to book collectors, but it was States through the pirated juvenile books, but English children coming to this country with their parents, brought the game with them and baseball was played here long before Abner Doubleday gave the game its name. (Anna of American Sport), but he did not invent baseball; England did that.

Saint Sarah, Egyptian, Is Claimed by Gypsies

That Saint Sarah was a gypsy is the firm conviction of the nomad gypsies of the world. If the coronation legends are to be believed, says a correspondent in the New York Times, she landed at Saintes-Marie-lez-Marseille with her women who gave their names to this village namely, Saint Mary Salome and Saint Mary Joseph. Sarah was their servant, and all three are declared to have been personally acquainted with Jesus. Saint Sarah was an Egyptian, and since her skin was burnished, the gypsies adopted her as their own. She is their private saint. Further, their wanderings to Saintes-Marie have formed the subject-matter for poems, novels and folk songs. For many years the gypsies "occupied" this Mediterranean village for four days; the first two for fasting and prayer; the last two for hilarity and dancing. Sarah, the past century, reduced the number of days has been reduced to two, but the program remains the same. During this two-day pilgrimage Saintes-Marie assumes unusual animation and color. Its population is made up of natives, who have their harriet become a chaos of dialects, melodies and costumes.

Early Veterinarians

Ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome had veterinarians. But then they concerned themselves with horses the only animals deemed valuable enough to merit medical care. Most important to the ancient past were their armies, and horses composed a big part of their armies. The first college for veterinarians was established in France in 1761; in America almost a century later. Then came the automobile, and horses lost their value. Veterinarians became fewer and fewer. But the recent increase of valued pet dogs and cats saved the profession. Veterinarians have their own medical association, and must study three or four years in a recognized college to become members. Student "vets" study all domestic animals, but often specialize in one, or even one breed of dogs.

"The Petticoat Candidate"

Gen. William Henry Harrison, first Ohio president, was called "the petticoat candidate" during his hard cider campaign of 1840, and here's how the nickname started: Before the battle of the Thames, several Indians, friends of the Americans, told Harrison that the British general, Proctor, had promised to march into the woods and turn Harrison over to them if the American general was captured. In turn, Harrison replied that if Proctor was captured, he would hand him over to the Indians on the American side so that they could dress him in a square. For his courageous response, a group of ladies presented Harrison with a petticoat, which he used as a starter if Proctor was captured, and later his opponents tried to make something out of this by labeling him "the petticoat candidate."

"Stink Birds"

Found only in northern South America, hoatzins (also called hoazin) are birds that are brilliantly colored in olive, brown, buff and yellow. They exhale such a strong odor that they are called "stink birds." Relics of proprotors, they are gradually losing their primitive characteristics by wings permit them to fly only from branch to branch. They live near rivers and lakes, yet do not swim. They are not water birds and fruit. If the adult hoatzin is strange, the baby is even more so. It has a long neck, and its feet are like those of a monkey, with sharp claws in the ends of undeveloped wings. It is also a very good swimmer, and these abilities are lost, however, as it grows up.

White-Headed Vulture of 116 Years

Dr. A. D. Peacock, Professor of Natural History, Dundee university, in writing on the ages of animals and birds, says: "The remarkable longevity of the food and frog may reach 30 and 12 to 16 years, respectively. A Japanese salamander has lived 40 years in the zoo. Exact European records show 40 years for captive pigeons. Experienced students believe that no great ages are attained in lizards and snakes. For birds the figures tabulated are not exact in all cases, nor average, but as they relate to actual observations, a certain value attaches to them. The figures represent years. White-headed vulture, 118 (in captivity); parakeet, 120 probably (in captivity); parrot, 120, probably (in captivity); golden eagle, 104 to 150; falcon, 23 to 102; heron, duck, 100, crow, 100; swan, 70 to 100; raven, 69 to 100; eagle owl, 68; heron, 60; woodcock, 60; cuckoo, 35; oyster-catcher, 30; rhea, 30; canary, 28; skylark, 18 to 30; canary and peacock, 24; crane and goldfinch, 23; magpie, 23; kiwi, 20; night-gale, 12 to 25; turkey, 16; pheasant and partridge, 15 to 20; hen, 10 to 30; robin, 12; brush; goatuck and swift, 8 to 9; starling, 8 and wren, 2 to 3.

Siam's King Given Bath Before His Coronation

"May you reign for 120 years!" cries the chief priest at the coronation of a Shah of Persia. When the ceremony is over the Shah appears before his people seated on a marble throne brought from Shiraz. Surrounded by princes and ministers, he puts to his lips a pipe loaded with jewels instead of tobacco, then inquires as to the welfare of his people, and expresses his hopes for the future. The date and time of the coronation of a king of Siam is fixed by his Brahmin astrologers. Before his coronation he is corresponded in London Answers Magazine, he has to endure a ceremonial bath with scented water, of which the sides are square to the cardinal points of the compass. King and his attendants are seated under a canopy of white silk. This is done no fewer than eight times, the king facing in a different direction each time, and getting a thorough soaking. Then comes a blast of unearthly music from brass bands, during which the very king is dried and invested with his royal robes. He then sits under a black parasol, umbrellas from the Chakrabarti, together with the crown, sceptre, sword, and other regalia. Right at the important part in Japanese coronations.

Crowds Kept Cool In Texas Hot Spot At Dallas Pan-American Exposition

NO matter what the weather is outside, the merry-makers who throng to the Casino, immense night spot at the Greater Texas and Pan-American Exposition in Dallas, have no difficulty in becoming comfortable and remaining that way, once they are inside the building. Air conditioning creates ideal weather for the patrons, just as it does in clubs, hotels, restaurants, stores and countless other locations throughout the country. The Casino seats more than 2,000 patrons and the temperature is kept 25 degrees lower than outdoors for the pleasure of the guests and for the comfort and efficiency of the performers and other employees. Only one attendant is required to keep the temperature and the humidity at correct stages and to maintain constant circulation of the purified, cool air throughout the immense building. William B. Henderson, executive vice-president of the Air Conditioning Manufacturers Association, declared that the Casino is one of the country's most conspicuous examples of the success with which weather can be "made to order" in any structure. Unaffected by changes in outside temperature, the Casino is one of the most famous centers in the country, including the internationally known dancers, Georges and Janna, shown here, among the most famous entertainers in the air conditioned Casino.

Daredevil Faces Electrocution In Air Before Big Carnival Crowd

PLUNGING toward earth in a balloon which had failed him, George W. DeGrange, professional daredevil, escaped instant electrocution before a night carnival crowd at Emmitsburg, Md., when his flash-light disclosed an electric high-tension line below him. The light enabled him to maneuver his craft clear of the wire, although he missed them only by inches. DeGrange's brush with death was his closest, he says, in a long career of parachute jumping. He was watching the huge balloon being inflated when he realized the wind was dying down. And he needed a stiff breeze to carry him away from the town, so he could make his jump in open country. Fearing the breeze would die out altogether, he ordered the balloon crew to speed up the inflation. In that time the crew failed to inflate the bag sufficiently, but DeGrange did not realize this until it had taken him about 400 feet up. Then, when he was directly over the town square, the balloon refused to rise another foot. DeGrange could not use his parachute because he had not enough altitude. He would have to come down with the balloon. "Presently the balloon began settling," said DeGrange. "The streets were lighted, but the houses and yards were in black shadow. I got out my flashlight and shot its beam into the darkness through which I was by now dropping rapidly. "In my career of providing thrills for crowds, my heart has been in my mouth many times, but I never experienced such a shock as I did when the flashlight beam revealed the wire. Then I did the only thing I could do—I risted my neck on my ability to maneuver the balloon clear of the wire. "Hauling on the stove, axes, and jerking and swinging my body, I succeeded in steering the bag by the high-tension line. "Long training in handling balloons and parachutes helped me out, but I never would have had a chance if that flashlight hadn't worked when I needed it, and if I hadn't made sure those batteries were fresh when I put them in." In escaping the wire, DeGrange landed in the top of a towering poplar tree, entangled in its parachute. Using his light, however, he worked himself free and got down to safety, giving the carnival crowd its second thrill of the evening.

SYNOPSIS

Preparing to close her summer home and spend the winter in France with a great-aunt, Anne Vincent, a middle-aged widow...

'Let's stop in here, then. This place has good muffins and nice deep-chested chairs and they have real India tea, which should always be drunk, Miss Vincent, without any fillings—no sugar, cream, lemon or whatnot.'

'But what's it all about? Why do you try all this? Don't tell me you're writing a book.'

'Listen, my haughty beauty, in spite of the popping soap bubbles, very little to do with morals and none at all with interest of character, I know stacks of people who don't wash and don't shave much, but they're swell, nevertheless.'

'The lovely flower may have been born to blush unseen, Midway, but not you. Anyway, what chance could you have of going unnoticed when you wear one of these exciting new frocks by Sew-Your-Own—not the Ghost!'

you that cunning big-little-girl look go over well with both mother and you. You may have it button all the way if you like—it makes laundering easy and it's smart. Mommy will let you choose the material if you ask. You won't go wrong on gingham, silk crepe, broadcloth or percale. So here's hoping, Little Sis.

Rachel knew better. Oliver hung around because she liked him and he liked her, very much; yet it was not as simple as that. Oliver was not a simple person. He might like her—very much—but he might be willing to let her know that she was not a simple person.

'Well,' said Rachel, reflectively, 'it's the first time I've been out of one of Vinco's young men—'

'Curt stopped her with a shout. "Hey, lay off, I'm not one of Vinco's young men, God forbid. I'm just a country newspaper boy who's taking a sabbatical year to learn about the big city. And Louis Vinco, a piece of many money in my way as often as he can, because he worries about his finances. I'm not really hard up, but Louis thinks anything less than a plush suite and a private bath with toilet attached is squalor. Needless to say, Louis didn't get those ideas in his native village."

'I don't want to give my name— please let Mrs. Cayne it's— it's someone she knew—a long time ago.'

'The voice answered as if by rote: "What is the name, please, I will see Mrs. Cayne at home—"

Thumbs up on affets: eyes right for pattern 1349! It's a picture-pretty frock with a knock for bringing out the best in you and your court. It's a dream for waltz time; it's supreme for luncheon or afternoon wear. A happy idea is to cut one copy with short sleeves for now, another with the long style in a fallish fabric for that popular season just ahead.

'Everything seems to be going nowhere, nothing that really makes sense,' she thought unhappily. 'I might as well have stayed in Rockboro with my mother and done nothing at all about the one thing I wanted most, nothing.'

'But what's it all about? Why do you try all this? Don't tell me you're writing a book.'

'I don't want to give my name— please let Mrs. Cayne it's— it's someone she knew—a long time ago.'

Pattern 1341 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material plus 2 1/4 yards of machine pleating.

Pattern 1329 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. Size 6 requires 2 1/4 yards of 35 inch material plus 1/4 yard contrasting.

CHAPTER VI

It turned out not to be a bore at all. The man model who sat beside her in the car was quite different from the usual Vinco brand. Rachel thought she had been wrong before but he told her she was mistaken.

DRIFT BEATS SHELBY 9-2 IN LEAGUE GAME

Drift Continues to Lead the Big Sandy League in Wins

(By "Shikepoke") The "Gas House Gang" of Drift with their "Murderer's Row" functioning perfectly, humbled the Shelby nine at Drift, Sunday, 9 to 2 to retain their league lead.

The Drift team collected 9 hits, while L. Stumbo was holding Shelby's sluggers to two.

Ted Stumbo doubled Vincent home in the first inning and came back in the third to bash out another two run hit, scoring Vincent and M Stumbo.

Shows pinch hitting for Akers in the eighth, with two on and two out, hit another two run bingle.

Milton Stumbo, the Medwick of the Big Sandy league, hit a triple in the seventh with two on, and scored a moment later on Ted Stumbo's long fly to center.

Young Lloyd Stumbo continued his great pitching by completely handcuffing Shelby's sluggers. While allowing only two hits, he downed 12 via the strikeout route. By virtue of their victory, Drift continues to lead the Big Sandy League.

Drift goes to Wheelwright for a game August 15, and plays Pikeville at Pikeville August 22, in two games that promise to be red hot encounters.

UNCLE JEFF SIZEMORE

Continued from page one. He was dubbed the "knowsman" man in Floyd county, upheld his reputation by telling little known facts about the customer's grandparents.

Later, after he had been interrupted by a jingling telephone for the third time, Uncle Jeff pounded a rhythmic fist and disgustedly bellowed: "Have I got time to speak now?"

At present Uncle Jeff is preparing a speech to be delivered at the Bull Creek grave of a man slain in the war days of the '60's.

Despite his reverence for Civil War generals, Uncle Jeff thinks Napoleon was the greatest general of all time. "Napoleon was a great man," Uncle Jeff then paused and scratched his grey locks, before summing up his idea of the Little Corporal with the statement "he was a bigger'un".

German Race Uses More Than Twenty Dialects

In describing Germany, Julius Caesar called that part of the country inhabited by the lowland tribes Germany Inferior, Lower Germany, and the more elevated regions to the south and southeast, Germany Superior. In terms of the linguistic designations of Low German and High German were applied to the dialects used by the inhabitants of these two regions.

There are more than twenty distinguishable dialects in the speech of the common people of the Teutonic or German race. These dialects shade into one another, observes a writer, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the difference increasing according to separation, traveling on a line from the highlands of southern and southeastern Germany toward and through the lowlands bordering the North Sea and the Lower Elbe.

The Low German language comprehends several dialects of the north of Germany as well as the Frisian, Dutch and Flemish dialects, while the High German dialects are usually classified in two divisions as Low German and Middle German. But since the time of Luther, whose translation of the Bible into vernacular in literature as new High German, in distinction from the cruder literary language of the antecedent old High German, all these dialectic differences have been rapidly dying out, and are perpetuated only in the spoken language of the lower peasantry.

Of the Low German dialects, the old Frisian is practically extinct. Dutch is the national language of Holland, more correctly the Netherlands, and has a literature of its own, while Flemish has given way to the language of northern Belgium and by more than 200,000 people in the Nord department of France.

Goldfish Are Produced by Selective Breeding

Goldfish as we know them do not exist anywhere in the wild state. They are a product of long years of selective breeding. The first from which goldfish were developed belong to the carp family and are numerous in the streams of China. They do not naturally have the brilliant colors which are characteristic of the ornamental fish. Centuries ago the Chinese fish culturists interbred light-colored specimens and produced beautiful varieties. Fancy breeders further induced and strengthened the golden and silvery colors by regulating the quantity of food.

When goldfish are restored to a natural environment, says a writer in the Indianapolis News, they often revert to the original dark color after a few generations. It is supposed that goldfish were introduced into England in 1691. Some of the first specimens sent to France were presented to Mme. de Pompadour, mistress of Louis XV. Goldfish are produced in large commercial aquaria.

Most Valuable Wood

Teak is the most valuable of all known timbers. For use in tropical countries it has no equal, and for certain purposes it is preferable to any other in temperate climates, according to The Bits Magazine. Teak has great strength, elasticity, and remarkable durability. It is not very hard, is easily worked and takes a beautiful polish. The average weight of a perfectly-seasoned piece of teak wood is between 40 and 46 pounds per cubic foot. Once seasoned, it does not crack, shrink, split or alter its shape. Teak grows in India, Burma, Siam, the Philippine islands, and the Malay archipelago. The trees are about 100 feet to 150 feet high, and 2 feet in diameter when full-grown. They often produce leaves 2 feet long by 1 foot wide, which the natives use for thatching and wrapping bundles. The leaves contain a red dye once used in treating silk and cotton.

States and Shore Line

The United States coast and geodetic survey lists only seacoast and not the coast of the Great Lakes. Florida has 339 miles of coastline on the Atlantic and 793 miles on the Gulf of Mexico, a total of 1,132 miles of seacoast. California is listed second with 913 miles of seacoast. In tidal shore line (including islands) Florida has 2,276 miles of shore. Though according to the methods of the coast and geodetic survey Maine has only 228 miles of coast line (without islands) if all the indentations are measured that state would have about 3,000 miles. Michigan has a total of 1,715 miles of coastline on the Great Lakes, including 905 miles in the Upper peninsula and 810 miles in the Lower peninsula.

Father of Experiment Stations

Norman Jay Colman (1827-1911) is sometimes called the father of the experiment station because he was the author of the Hatch bill which authorized their creation in the states and territories. As commissioner of agriculture under President Cleveland he succeeded in raising the bureau of agriculture to an executive department represented in the cabinet. He was the first secretary of agriculture and was editor of Colman's Rural World, a Missouri farm paper.
