"CUT-UPS"

Ever since our village newspaper cut-up boys (on our paper cutting machine) saw Brad Boyd's picture, "Silly" at the Unique, they've been singing a parody on one of the theme songs, butchered in the following manner:

Ooooooh! Mother, said to Mabel, Don't go out tonight, If James Gobble doesn't print it, Norman Allen might.

CONTEMPT OF COURT?

Sometimes we wonder if trials could not be conducted in the courthouse here in a more ethical manner. All a recent trial needed to make a perfect comedy was Mack Bennett to throw the judges, opposing attorneys (formally "shrew" everything else. From where we sit, it seems as if court procedure ought to be dignified and serious.

"GOOD NEIGHBOR"

After hearing so much over the radio at periodic intervals about the "good neighbor policy," we're wondering what would happen if we small-town neighbors should go to the postoffice and offer a penny for a three-cent stamp, or ask for a month's credit on our box rent, or if (the more fortunate) should fail to pay their income tax, or if we wanted (Continued on page eight)

JUSTICE PROMISES ROADS FOR FLOYD

County Will Get "Lion's Share" of Work, Reported to Short

"Your county will get the lion's share of the work done in this district during the next year," Highway Commissioner Zach Bushaw told County Attorney Forrest D. Short in a discussion of Floyd county highways.

Mr. Justice promised, County Attorney Short said, that both the Left and Right Beaver roads will be completed next year. He said that bids on surfacing of the Right Beaver route were rejected after the first call for bids because they did not cover completion of the highway as to shoulders, etc. When bids were asked again, he claims, contractors asked more for the work than the commission thought right to pay.

Spreading of gravel on the Left Beaver route has been under way for several weeks. A "missing link" of approximately two miles remains, however, between Wheelwright and Clear Creek, still leaving the head of Left Beaver isolated insofar as travel during bad weather toward Matrin.

Mr. Justice did not state if the Right Beaver surfacing will be of concrete or macadam.

M. E. PASTOR KING IS TRANSFERRED TO COVINGTON CHURCH

60 Church Members Honor the Kings, Prior to Their Departure

Sixty members of the M. E. Church here gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Francis, Monday evening to honor the Rev. H. F. King and his family, following knowledge that the Reverend King had been transferred from the local church to the First M. E. Church, South, of Covington.

The Rev. King's place will be filled here temporarily Sunday by the Rev. Guy Coffman, of Ashland, a former pastor at the Methodist Church here.

The Reverend Hoffman, of Virginia, will soon arrive in Prestonsburg to assume the pastorate left vacant by the transfer of Rev. King. He comes well recommended, having degrees from three colleges and universities. Rev. Hoffman was recently transferred from the West Virginia conference to the Virginia conference.

At the reception for Rev. King's family here, the family was presented with a set of Fostoria glassware by Miss Minnie Grace Harris, acting as donor for the church.

Informal talks and songs were enjoyed by all. C. D. Milby acted as toastmaster; talks were made by W. P. Mayo, Dr. O. T. Stephens, the Revs. Potter and Redding, B. F. Combs, and also by the Rev. and Mrs. King and Clara Oppenheimer.

A trio of girls, Alice Burke, Vivian Canfield and Myrtle Howard sang selections, as did Franklin Moore, accompanied by Mrs. Chalmers Frazier.

Two Civil War Vets Attend Memorial Rites

Among the hundreds who attended the two-day memorial services held at Hueysville for the late A. J. (General Jack) Allen and the Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Allen, two aged men commanded individual attention.

These were the only surviving members of the 39th Kentucky Mounted Infantry, the only two of A. J. Allen's "buddies" of the Blue left to attend his memorial rites. They were "Uncle" Jeff Sizemore of Prestonsburg, and J. P. (John Printer) Beaver of Spurlock fork of Left Beaver Creek.

Mesdames Sallie Humphreys and Bertha Walls returned from Cincinnati Wednesday last week.

2 Murders Per Week Cause Of Special Jury

Murder in Floyd county during the last fortnight at the rate of two men per week, Monday morning, led Circuit Judge John W. Canfield, upon the convening of the October 7th term of court, to summon a special grand jury into session for October 13 to investigate the crime situation.

The order calling the special session pointed out that the regular grand jury failed to investigate fully three suspected murder cases and a number of other offenses. Because, the order cited of the "further facts that, since the adjourning of said grand jury, there have been four homicides and a number of casualties by automobile accidents brought about by reckless driving, the court is now of the opinion that there is an emergency existing sufficient to call a special grand jury."

Among the cases not fully investigated or which did not develop until after the September grand jury adjourned were: The death on the railway tracks, near Allen, of Ballard Stratton, son of Rev. Isaac Stratton, of Banner.

The slaying of Robert D. Callihan, admittedly at the hands of Bob Keefe, on Rock Creek, near Garrett.

Slaying of Roosevelt Blawick, near Wheelwright.

Fatal shooting of Bill Bingham, Garrett mine, at Garrett by his brother-in-law, Vernon Combs.

Stabbing to death of Jesse Curtis at the hands of three women Sunday near Jump, Left Beaver Creek.

Names of jurors selected for the special session follow: W. J. Conley, Martin; Joe McGuire, West Prestonsburg; Banks Wallen, Langley; Elsie Smiley, Laney; Will Warrick, Allen; Green Gayheart, Sr., Hueysville; Andy Coburn, Hueysville; Tom Holtorok, Brainerd; Dave Gayheart, Water Gap; J. W. Hamilton, Teaberry; Brack Hall, Melvin; H. C. Akers, Ligon; Theodore Warrick, Dwaile; Mrs. Lou Marshall, Prestonsburg; Bob Stumbo, McDowell; Mrs. Amy Music, Cliff; Maxie Lane, Tom; Mrs. Sarah Hammonds, Allen; Avery Cecil, Harwood; Mrs. Susan Crisp, Dwaile; Jim Hammond, West Prestonsburg; J. G. Gray, West Prestonsburg; Andrew Baidridge, Blue River.

D. W. SPURLOCK DIES AT HIS HOME FRIDAY

Though Expected, Death Comes As Shock to Family and Friends

D. W. Spurlock, prominent business man in Floyd county for the past 35 years, passed away at his home in West Prestonsburg at 10:30 a. m. Friday following a lingering illness of two years. Although his death was not unexpected, it came as a shock to Mr. Spurlock's many friends and relatives.

Funeral services were held at the home Sunday at 1 p. m., with the Rev. George W. Redding, of the Baptist Church, officiating. Burial services, under the direction of the Arnold Funeral Home, followed at 3 p. m., on the Spurlock fork of Beaver Creek near the old home place.

Mr. Spurlock was 65 years old at the time of his death. He was born on the left fork of Beaver Creek, the son of H. K. Spurlock and Betty Spurlock, whose marriage united two of Floyd county's oldest and most prominent families.

Mr. Spurlock moved to Prestonsburg in 1913, where he had been engaged in the mercantile business ever since.

CATS SCORE FIRST AGAINST ST. XAVIER

Local Eleven Beaten by Louisville Team Under Unaccustomed Lights

Under glaring, unaccustomed light last Friday night Prestonsburg's nery Blackcats faced the redoubtable Tigers of St. Xavier at Louisville, and paced by Quarterback Dick Mayo, drew first blood in a thrilling football encounter that was witnessed by approximately 3,000 fans.

Louisville fans were supplemented by an additional 200 here, who flocked about Clark's Drug Store to hear telephonic reports of the game. Playing the Tigers off their feet the first quarter of the game, the Blackcats found themselves faced with an entire new and freshened St. X. team at the start of the second quarter. This new and heavier team, although held at bay in the center of the gridiron for the most part, amassed 26 points before the final gun, the game ending with the Tigers on the long end of a 26-7 score and Prestonsburg's Blackcat punter, Dick Mayo, heralded as the greatest kicker to perform against St. Xavier in years.

The crowd of fans was kept in constant excitement by Mayo's remarkable punts, most of which con- (Continued on page eight)

SIT-DOWN STRIKERS WANT HIGHER WAGES

Knott county sit-down strikers who are demanding a wage increase in Prestonsburg Tuesday, attempting to effect an agreement with the Warfield Natural Gas Company. No settlement was reached here.

The strikers are asking 80c per hour for unskilled labor, and other labor rates will be proportionately higher. The entire group is under C. I. O. organization.

The strike started 10 days ago. It has been peaceful, according to reports here. The workers had been engaged in building roads to locate and the laying of pipe lines.

E. C. Leard, Warfield superintendent, said that upon hearing of the strike under orders from headquarters, the Knott county work was immediately shut down until further notice.

CRIPPLED YOUTH IS STABBED TO DEATH AT JUMP, SUNDAY

Jesse Curtis, 17, Dies Instantly of Knife Wound in Heart

BOY WAS CRIPPLED SEVEN YEARS AGO

Three Women Are Jailed Here in Connection With the Slaying

Guns were stilled in Floyd county over the week-end to the extent that there was not a bullet victim in the county, but knives came into play instead to change the method of murder, and a cripple was stabbed to death allegedly at the hands of a 15-year-old girl.

Jesse Curtis, 17 years old, died instantly Sunday when a knife, said to have been wielded by Liza Tackett, 15, penetrated his heart at the home of Mrs. Lena Tackett, mother of Liza.

The mother and daughter and Rosa Belle Hall, 15 were jailed late Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Elson Kendrick and Constable Ep Lafayette, and remained in jail as this was written Wednesday morning, pending preliminary hearing on their connection in the slaying.

Liza Tackett was quoted at the county jail here as saying that she killed Curtis when he attempted to assault her on the porch of her mother's home. Rosa Belle Hall said Curtis struck Miss Tackett with his cut-throat razor.

Another report received here says that young Curtis became enraged when she had been teased by the girls began teasing him about a girl and that he chased the Hall girl, brandishing a cut-throat razor.

The victim was a son of Thurman Curtis, whose whereabouts are unknown. His mother resides at Jump. He had been a cripple since falling beneath a train at Jack's Creek seven years ago. Besides his parents, he is survived by three brothers, Lonnie, Floyd and Amos, and one sister, Alice, all at home.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday at Drift, the Revs. Marion Ridd and E. H. Howard officiating. Burial was made under the direction of the Ryan Funeral Home.

Politics Blamed By Tate, Faced By Return To Pen

Politics were blamed by C. F. Tate, well-to-do Hindman farmer-coal operator as the cause of his imprisonment in the Knott county jail at Hindman, where he awaits the arrival of Oklahoma authorities to return him to McAlester, (Okla.) penitentiary to serve out a seven-year sentence imposed upon him in that state in 1911.

"It's politics pure and simple," said Tate.

He added, "I have just about two more years to do and then I'll be free of the whole thing. There has to be an end some time and I guess this time is as good as any."

"When this is over I can start over again. I'm 68 years old but I can still make a living two years from now."

Tate had served five years of his term in the Oklahoma prison before receiving the parole, which has now been revoked by Oklahoma Governor E. W. Masland.

The Governor revoked the parole after Tate had applied for restoration of citizenship to become eligible to run for sheriff of Knott county. A letter, alleged by Tate, written to have been forged by Tate, Governor of the stationary of Sheriff Henry Sturgill, and signed with Sturgill's signature, is the cause given by the governor.

Tate said that when he was running for nomination for sheriff of Knott county in the August primary, he went to Sheriff Sturgill and told him he was intending to ask for a pardon and that he wanted one of Sturgill's letter heads on which to write his request.

Tate said that at that time he had brought it to him, he would have signed it anyway."

In reiterating that the letter was an outright forgery, Sheriff Sturgill said, "Why, my brother, John, was a candidate for sheriff at that time, I certainly didn't ask that Tate be pardoned."

Tate last week was released from the Stumbo hospital after being treated for gunshot wounds, allegedly inflicted by his wife. It is said that the shooting contributed to Tate's parole being revoked.

CO-OPERATION IS ADVOCATED HERE FOR MERCHANTS

Ruth Gilbert, Field Secretary of Ky. Ass'n, Addresses Merchants

"Business men in every community should be organized into a group," said Ruth Gilbert, field secretary of the Kentucky Merchants' Association, in her address made at a gathering of local merchants at a Kiwanis club meeting here recently. Mrs. Gilbert continued: "By so doing they serve self and community. In organized effort there is strength; so much more can be accomplished by a group than by individuals. "This is an age of organization and co-operation. We act more and more in groups and less and less as individuals. Some 20 years ago there was very little spirit of cooperation in the business world... today every progressive community contains several active organizations. "So often business men, especially competitors, are frankly hostile to each other. This, I think, is due to the old law—the survival of the fittest—that is fast becoming passé. "Mrs. Gilbert was secured as a speaker by K. W. Fife, of Anderson's Department Store, in the hope that her talk would do much toward the formation of a local association. Mr. Fife advocates a local association that will be affiliated with the Kentucky Merchants' Association, whose policy was defined by Mrs. Gilbert to be: "The promotion of state legislation for betterment of trade and commerce that all will be benefited." Those present at the Kiwanis meeting, were: Kiwanis president, Bill John W. Cagill, Mayor A. C. Carter, William Dingus, Walter Sell, Sally Dingus, Grace Ford, Mrs. Bertha Walls, Everett Sowards, J. C. Holliday, J. H. Nummery, S. L. Isbell, Ishmel Triplett, Dr. Marvin Randall, Rev. C. W. Redding, W. H. Fields, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Anderson, K. W. Fife, Dr. C. L. Huttsinger, Dr. M. J. Leete, A. J. D. B. STEPHENS, ALLEN, INJURED HERE BY TAXI

D. B. (Dock) Stephens, prominent hardware dealer, was severely injured here Thursday afternoon when struck by a taxi driven by Merlin Miller, an employe, it was said, of Denzil Whitten, of near Emma. The accident occurred on Second street. The taxi driver said the accident was unavoidable. Mr. Stephens was taken to the Beaver Valley hospital, where an x-ray examination was made. Injuries to his hip may cause confinement in the hospital for several days, but it is believed that he will fully recover, barring complications. Visitors Here Mrs. Fred Bowling and son, Horatio, of Anjean, W. Va., spent the week-end here, guests of relatives. Mrs. Harkins Recovers Mr. and Mrs. J. D. CHECKS TOTALING $30,000 ARE MAILED TO TEACHERS

Teachers, long accustomed to getting salaries haphazardly, received pay-checks from Superintendent Town Hall's office this week, totaling $30,000. They marked the first pay-day for the consolidated school teachers, whose month has just now been completed, and the second month for rural teachers. Superintendent Hall said that henceforth salaries would be paid promptly. He added, "I hardly think it will be necessary for teachers to discount their salaries any time this year."

THEY'RE GRAVELING LEFT BEAVER

Yes, you can believe it or not, but they're graveling Left Beaver. They started at Clear Creek and have put down over one mile. Boy, this certainly will be a great help to people from McDowell down to Martin. We at least won't have to walk to and from work. But what about the people from below Gearheart up? They are in just as bad shape as ever—for even if the road is gravelled Beaver Creek is not feasible with a car from October until March. Why not build these people at least a temporary bridge where the highway crosses Left Beaver below Gearheart? A gravel road up there without a bridge at Gearheart is like the Irishman who didn't believe there was any heaven or hell—when he died he was all dressed up with nowhere to go. COOKING SCHOOL WILL BE HELD HERE AND AT MARTIN BY POWER CO. The Kentucky and West Virginia Power Company announces that it will sponsor a two-day cooking school in Prestonsburg, Ky., to be held in the "Kitchen" Episcopal Church, South, Thursday and Friday, October 14 and 15, from 2 to 4 p. m. The school will be conducted by Miss Louise Peters, the home economist of the Power Company. The session held last spring was enthusiastically attended by the women of Prestonsburg and it is extremely gratifying to see the popularity electric cookery has gained. Many different phases of modern cookery will be demonstrated. The Power Company advises that they will again pay ten cents per person up to 50 as an award to the organization having the largest attendance for the two-days session. Door prizes will be awarded to those holding the lucky attendance slips. A similar cooking school will also be sponsored by the company in the theatre at Martin, Ky., October 12, from 2 to 4 p. m. MRS. NANCY SLOANE, 67, SUCCEMBS AT HOSPITAL. Mrs. Nancy Sloane, 67 years old, of Grethel, succumbed Sept. 27 at the Stumbo Memorial hospital Lackey, a victim of cancer. She was a member of the Regular Baptist Church, and had many friends and relatives in the Mud Creek section of the county. Surviving her are one son, Ezra, of Grethel, and two brothers, Mit, and Harmon McKinney, both of Williamson, W. Va. The funeral was conducted Friday by the Rev. Tack Hall and burial was made in the McKenzie cemetery under the direction of the Ryan Funeral Home. ESCAPE AUTO WRECK Though their auto plunged approximately 100 feet from the bridge approach at Cliff into the Big Sandy river, and was consumed by flames, Chester Ferguson, Jack Compton and Joe Hutchinson, Louisa youths, escaped with minor injuries last week. CHAPTER XI—Continued

"I'll be glad when this is over and I can leave."

"So will I. This one night out of a week business is no help at all to me. I've been thinking that I'd get a job on the back elevator in your house and see you every day."

"Our present back elevator men are very nice. And they need their jobs more than you do."

"Aha, it is a social conscience! I was going to gyp any worthy comrade out of work. I would pay a bonus for the privilege of taking his place a week or so, that's all."

"Cut, you're crazy, but I hope you won't do anything as crazy as that."

"It's not crazy to want to see you every day."

"It would be—unsettling—to have you on the back elevator, Curt. And it might make difficulties—I don't know."

"I thought maybe you might need some more in a hurry. And I'd be there."

"That's your imagination running wild, isn't it? This job isn't dangerous."

"Lord, no, if it had been I'd never let you take it."

"Oh, rheoey! You wouldn't have let me take it, indeed!"

"I couldn't have bent you to my will. I know that proud as you are, I could have worked on Vinco and Terriss and—"

"How is Vinco?"

"Mourning your absence. You'll find welcome on the mat when you return, though he'll pretend to be sorry."

"I'll be very sweet and grateful to be back with them."

"It's not too sweet and grateful. Vinco's dealt with sweet young ladies before. He might give you a good time just to keep you disciplined."

"I talk about being back as though it was very near. I hope it is. I'm not getting it at all. The Caynes' much longer no matter whether the thief's discovered or not."

"But you're going to search the boy's room. You owe that to Terriss."

"Yes, I suppose I do. Yes, I'll search Holbrook's room. I hope I don't find anything."

"You're still thinking about his parents, but it's far better they should know the truth if he's a bad lot. Every time I go past the library there at Forty-second street I look at that motto: 'But above all things, truth breathes away the victory.' Truth may hurt, but it's curiously satisfactory."

"Warning a good book sometime and put that in, Mr. Elton," said Rachel flippantly; but she thought: "That's no, or no, or no, or no. If I hadn't gone to the Caynes' and seen and known my own mother, it would have ruined everything between Anne and me. Whereas now—" she went on aloud, "I've got to go back to the apartment and see what I can do with some letters. There's a fast boat sailing tomorrow and I want to send a letter to Terriss."

"At the door Curt said, 'You don't want me on the back elevator?' So?"

"It would be silly. After all, I'm not exactly helpless."

"Let me know as soon as you can whether you're coming on the boat, though. You might not need any help, but you might use some moral support, or spiritual sustenance, or whatnot."

"Coming in to see Pink? I might give you some moral support and spiritual sustenance for a moment."

"But Curt went on his way and Rachel settled for her letters. It was the first time she had really been eager to write to Anne, the first time she had felt right toward her since she had been gone. But even now she could not tell her about being in the Cayne house; that story must be revealed only when it was sure she was having a long time. Then she would tell the whole thing, the start, the middle and the end. There was no time to tell at present. Perhaps she would wait until Anne came home, written words were so hard to get, but they changed between the hand of the writer and the eyes of the reader. Moreover, tonight she had no time to write a long letter, but she must tell Anne how dearly she loved her, how little she had appreciated her.

"Mother!" probably think, "I've gone fearfully sorry," she thought, "or else that I'm trying to get round in that I'm having a marvelous time. Lots of dates, lots of dancing and playing around. I'll give Curt a good haul too."

But when she began to write about Curt an odd shyness fell on her. Maybe she was beginning to depend too much on Curt, maybe she was beginning to mean more than she knew, more than she was sure she wanted. "I wonder if I am falling for him," she thought, "and if he's fallen as hard as he seems to be on me. On the back elevator! The idiot! But it's a rather pleasing sort of idiosyncrasy." She finished her letter with a flourish, put it in the envelope and whacked the stamp tight with her fist.

"Now I must get into my peasant costume," she said to Pink, "and tie me back to the mountain-top. Listen, Pink, what do you think about Curt Elton?"

Fink looked up from the page of copy she had been frowning over.

"I could go for him in a big way if I could ever get him to look at me. He's tops, that lad. Those carnations, for instance, do they suit you? What do you get from my suit? Nothing but perfectly obvious corages made up by the florist by the dozen and wholesaled to young men with no imagination of hair for the right thing. I'll bet Curt writes poetry."

"He's never mentioned it if he does."

"If he doesn't write it he reads it and that's all right so long as he doesn't read it aloud. I could murder people who read poetry aloud."

"The carnations? The quiver of emotion in the voice, the self-conscious elegance of the pronunciation—" cleaning. Towers would be glad to have her take that duty, the old chap wasn't very strict, he didn't see distinctly but hated to wear his glasses. Mrs. Cayne went to the beauty establishment on Friday for limbering and general massage, a facial, a shampoo and wave set, a manicure and a few extras, a pedicure or a change in the color on her nails, or an elbow-oil-bath.

Throughout the time and would give Rachel an opportunity provided no one could predict his vagaries, he liked to lie in bed until noon, with his radio going, or playing his phonograph. On other days he went out early and stayed late. His habits were regular only in irregularity.

The next morning, though he didn't go out yet, Holbrook did leave the apartment about eleven and told Towers that he wasn't coming in for lunch, whereupon Rachel, with Towers' permission, went into the room with a full array of cleaning implements and set to work. She pushed and pulled the door to guard against too sudden interruption and first searched the bed. Unless the springs she found the same sort of dust as behind the picture frames, but nothing more.

Nearly everything she found dumping out the contents of each drawer, putting everything back in order. Holbrook's underwear, in color and style, was something to marvel at. He favored lavender and pastel green, everything was his custom-made. Next she went at the desk.

This took longer, but not so long as she thought it would be. Little by little she found a great many things, but writing paper, many sorts, to be sure, with various styles of monograms and addresses, and books of notes, and a few scraps of letters and invitations and lists of art exhibitions. Rachel ran these things through her fingers. There was no account book, but behind a sheaf of first correspondence cards she found a list of names. She noted the shops, the date and amount of purchases and put these things in a small envelope.

"Before I begin on those bookshelves I'll go through his suits," thought Rachel and forthwith she took down the clothes from the wardrobe was nearly as comprehensive as his mother's. Rachel took out the suits one by one, feeling in every pocket. Handkerchiefs, cards, loose change, pencils, pens, keys, and a small tin of powder. She found a gold knife and gold pencil, a sample bottle of brilliantine, but nothing that looked like a pawn ticket or anything else of value. In the inner pocket of the fur-lined overcoat which he usually wore, she found a small piece of paper, which she lightly penciled an address on the lower left-hand corner by a list of dates. Rachel glanced at this and was putting it back when she realized that the date was the day the sapphire bracelet was given. She was about to take the scrap of paper to a better light and copy it when she heard a noise from the door. Down on her knees she went and when the door was finally opened she saw the maid wiping the baseboard of the closet.

It was only Towers. "Come on and eat your lunch," he said; and when she had finished he gave her a turning out. I appreciate this, Rachel. I'll do something for you sometime."

"That's all right," said Rachel. "I'll be along to lunch as soon as my furniture straight."

"He's in now," said Towers. He's got that friend of his named Buchman in the library and he wants me to mix 'em up a cocktail. I told him his pa had the key to the liquor closet."

"I'd better hurry," said Rachel. "They might come in here. But aren't they going to have lunch?"

"Oh no, they just wanted cocktails! And he's going to put on his fur-lined coat, he ain't warm enough in the camel's hair! I want he was mine, I'd warm him with the business end of a hickory rod."

It was too late to put the slip of paper back in the overcoat pocket. Holbrook and Roy were outside in the hall. She slipped through the other door that opened into Mr. Cayne's room as they came in. Mr. Cayne could see her. She was troubled, uneasy. Perhaps Holbrook wouldn't miss the paper, perhaps it meant nothing anyway. But at least she would show it to Terriss, it was the only thing she had found that seemed to have the least connection with the theft.

CHAPTER XII

Terriss and Rachel sat in the office of Peter Cayne, facing him as he stood. He was like an oak tree, Rachel thought, that had been unturned at the root and she could scarcely endure to look at him. He held himself straight with an effort, but his eyes were again and again he'd better clear it up, for even if he could prove it was legitimate, headquarters was just aching to get something on him and this might lead to an investigation and then where would he be? So she gave me a list of names. Fine—antique gold buckles with rose diamonds, star ruby pendant, gold wrist watch, turquoise and silver ring, silver cigarette box with silver ashtrays to match, seed pearl and pink topaz earrings, jade and diamond brooch, diamond bracelet, a set of six rose-cut diamond buttons, three dozen antique silver spoons and the sapphire bracelet. He had your son's name and address, he described him to me—"

"Oh, for God's sake!" cried out Cayne in torture. "shut up. Let me think."

"You don't suppose I enjoy doing this, do you?" asked Terriss. "Don't take it so hard, Mr. Cayne, the boy didn't know how serious it was, he didn't know he was in a place like yours with so much fancy goods lying around loose why he shouldn't be so careless. That wasn't needed and wasn't used when he wanted an extra piece of change. Lots of kids get in that way. You'd be surprised. They just haven't learned the difference between right and wrong."

"But he had a big allowance. I then gave him extra when he asked for it and I thought he ought to have it. And his mother gave him money sometimes. I shut my eyes to that. But to steal her trinkets and things from his own home and sell them! And how did he get in touch with this man Edw. Wells, how did he find him? That's what I'd like to know."

"These crooks are always feeling around for suckers," said Terriss. "Well, Mr. Cayne, this case is closed as far as I'm concerned. You know where your stuff has gone. You can get the bracelet back if you'll pay Edwells $250, it's not been touched."

Wild Turkey Has Abandoned Michigan; No Suitable Cover Is Left for Them

During the early 80's there existed certain sections in the lower peninsula of Michigan that were considered the best hunting grounds for wild turkeys. This was particularly true of the hardwood ridges and swamp areas adjacent to the larger water courses. The turkey disappeared from Michigan in the 90's due to lumbering and the destruction of the necessary type of cover for its protection and propagation.

Since that time, says a writer in the Detroit News, a little attempt have been made by game and shooting reserve owners to re-establish the turkey in Michigan. The birds disappeared within a few years from the habitats over which they were released, and the individuals and sportsmen's organizations have been endeavoring in the last few years to influence the state conservation administrators to attempt to propagate and re-establish the wild turkey over its former range, but it is doubtful if it can be done.

In commenting on this suggestion William E. Merriam, a well-known old turkey hunter and recognized authority on this bird and the passenger pigeon, says: "It is all nonsense to talk of bringing back the wild turkey to Michigan. There is no suitable cover left in southern Michigan for them. Naturally they never ranged north of the Kawikaw river, near Saginaw. You cannot raise them in a little patch of woods. They want a bit of swampy land for winter cover, ridges of Decid. to scratch for beechnuts; maybe a nearby plot of buckwheat would attract them for their morning's feed. They are great wanderers and I do not know of a single place where conditions would permit them to exist in the wild state in Michigan."

Favorite Recipe of the Week

Mixed Mustard Pickles Use two quarts each of beans, cauliflower, tiny cucumbers and silver-skinned onions. Cut the beans and break the cauliflower into flowerets. The cucumbers may be sliced lengthwise if desirable. Shred five large peppers and put all on to form a gallon of vinegar. When boiling take up the vegetables and return the vinegar to the kettle. Mix one ounce turmeric, one-half pound mustard, three cups brown sugar, two cups flour, one-half cup salt and enough cold vinegar to form a paste. Add this paste to the hot vinegar and stir until well blended. Then add the vegetables and heat until scalding hot again. Seal at once.

Continuously rolled far beyond the head of the St. X. safety man. In the words of Earl Ruby, sports editor of the Courier-Journal, Mayo "ran like a wild steer" when returning kicks and "quarterbacked his team unusually well."

In addition to keeping the Tigers in check most of the night with his kicks, Dick talked Prestonsburg's way down on a 26-yard dash in the fourth quarter. Previously he had returned a kick a distance of approximately 70 yards in a broken field dash. A touchdown was averted when trying to dodge a safety man, he was tackled from the rear.

Prestonsburg's only tally was scored in the first quarter when Dawson blocked and recovered a St. X. punt on their 10-yard line. Craft scored the touchdown and Mayo converted.

In the second quarter Xavier's fresh team scored 14 points against the tiring Cats and a touchdown in each of the following quarters.

for the Society since its organization. Mrs. Heller is now making an organization tour of the 120 counties of Kentucky as a part of the educational program to enlighten the lay public on the subject of cancer.

In response to this national honor which is to be bestowed upon her by the National Society for the Control of Cancer, Mrs. Heeler said:

"It is Kentucky that is being honored, and I am merely the instrument through which the state is being recognized for its educational work throughout last year. It is too great a job for individual effort or honor, but the medal comes to me through the concerted efforts of my vice commanders straight through the private ranks of the army against cancer. I am proud that Kentucky, along with Maine and Wyoming, is to receive the award."

The local Women's Club, although sponsoring the program, has not limited attendance to this program. Any woman interested in hearing Mrs. Heller talk is invited to attend the dinner meeting, provided her reservation is made early.

HEY, PROF!
When remembering instructions given us by journalism professors in college, we oftentimes become a bit amused. In college our favorite "prof." claimed that a country weekly newspaper had three "big" stories: births, deaths and marriages. And if a murder ever happened in a small town community, "Why, that's worth a top-page streamer." We agree that the prof. is right for most communities, but if he'd ever lived here, where we continuously have murder stories to write, we wonder what he'd say.

—jbg—

WE'RE OFF! AGAIN

In our more satirical moments, when we grow tired of writing our weekly murder story, we wonder what everyone would think, if we merely ran a brief column headed "MURDERS," each week and in it barely mention our ANNUAL crime wave in the following manner: "John Doe, who never completed the third grade at school, late last night shot and killed Harry Q. Doe, who never attended school at all."

—jbg—

'AUD-IT' BE PRINTED!

Ever since we printed an item in this column a few weeks ago anent the negligence of a few county and city officials in publishing an annual audit, we've received criticism galore. Many have thanked us. Others claim we're merely after the printing business. We claim that the publishing of such audits is due every taxpayer, and as it is legally required, why shouldn't we have it, if we can thereby enlighten the taxpayers in outlying regions? After all, we weren't the ones to get the law passed. We'd like to hazard a guess that present office holders will find their opponents making an issue of this in the November election campaign.

'IT CAN HAPPEN HERE'

With only a little effort on the part of her citizens, Prestonsburg could have a public library, a park and playground, an annual "Oldest Town on the River" celebration, a merchants' association, or a chamber of commerce.
