Floyd County Times, Prestonsburg, Kentucky

Published Every Friday by Prestonsburg Publishing Company Incorporated

OFFICIAL ORGAN FOR FLOYD COUNTY, KENTUCKY $1.50 Per Year Payable In Advance

NORMAN ALLEN, Editor; JAMES B. GOBLE, Associate Editor

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

THE TIMES ENDORSES:

- 1. Floyd county for Floyd counties. 2. Immediate completion of the Left Beaver and Johns Creek road. 3. Completion of all Farm-to-Market roads by W. P. A. labor if possible, maintenance of these routes by the state rural road fund. 4. A trade-at-home policy followed by merchants and customers alike. 5. Full cooperation with all county and city officials insisting that law makers and enforcement officers themselves obey the law to the letter. 6. Continuance of the Floyd county health department and county agricultural agent work.

The Local Law-Enforcement Situation

The Times has, during recent weeks, been importuned to condemn editorially the activities of deputy constables in making an unprecedented number of arrests for drunkenness.

At times it has been sorely tempted to do so; yet, holding fast to the theory that condemnation of officers of the law is one of the last things any good citizen or any reputable medium of thought should do, this newspaper has withheld such expression.

At times it has been sorely tempted to do so; yet, holding fast to the theory that condemnation of officers of the law is one of the last things any good citizen or any reputable medium of thought should do, this newspaper has withheld such expression.

This newspaper would suggest, however, that one thing be done. The town of Prestonsburg should either dispense with its police force or the operations of deputy constables in the corporate limits should cease.

Why do not deputy constables function with the same energy and shall we say, promiscuity?—elsewhere in the county? Why should Prestonsburg be the web in which the big spider gets all the barflies? The fact that was stark elsewhere in the county and are unmolested, as long as they "attend to their business," then come to Prestonsburg and become unwilling guests of the county brings the town into ill-repute.

Nothing good has come of the whiskey business yet. Nothing will. Without it, no such predicament would embarrass Prestonsburg. Yet it is the law of the land that whiskey be manufactured and sold—and, of course, consumed.

Then it follows that the simplest way out of the whole mess is to get rid of the whiskey. Condemnation of any one officer or group of officers is not the right way to reach a satisfactory solution of the problem; it weakens the public morale.

The bickering and censure could be stopped in one way. That way might have its drawbacks—law violations would continue, license money, fine money would not be forthcoming. Yet it seems best.

That way is—local option. Let the people of Prestonsburg vote liquor outside its limits.

Credit Where Due

Promotion of ten teachers of small schools to faculty positions in larger schools, such advancement being based upon actual results obtained by the teacher, is a splendid idea, and County Superintendent Town Hall deserves credit for initiating such a merit system among the teachers.

This should be an inspiration to other small-school teachers of the county. It indicates that they may hope, if they "have the goods," to "go up" instead of remaining in one hopeless rut. It forms the basis for some wholesome competition which should work to the advantage of education in Floyd county.

The Times, The Council and the Audit

Contrary to a notion apparently entertained by some of those connected with the administration of Prestonsburg's fiscal affairs, the Times is after nobody's scalp. It is gunning for nobody, is receiving no encouragement in the matter other than a mere modicum of moral support from interested taxpayers in its repeated claims that an authoritative and exhaustive city audit should be published.

Surely the Times is given credit for enough reason to know that Prestonsburg's descent into the slough of financial despond is not the work of any one administration. It is a long, an old, old story. So old that some of it has been forgotten.

If the record had been set down annually all these years, showing the public in plain figures and terms what was being done, we would know all about the matter. But officials who should be the first to set the excellent example of abiding by the law violated the law in failing to make public their stewardship.

If the record had been made public each year, it's dollars to doughnuts that the town now would not occupy the lowly position of not being able to pay for the publication of an audit.

This is not a matter for bickering. It is not a matter full of ulterior motives. The Times wants to take the constructive attitude, hopes to see the present and every succeeding administration achieve something worthwhile to the town, invites the friendship and co-operation of officials and citizens alike.

In that spirit this newspaper contends that Prestonsburg, all other incorporated towns, the county school system and the county itself should obey the law and keep faith with the people in barring their records through a published audit.

Comments From The Capitol

Statements made by word of mouth look entirely different when they blare forth in the public prints, although they are printed exactly as said. It seems that Governor Chandler had an occasion to call the White House in Washington last week. He talked to James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President. During the course of the conversation, the Governor in a burst of enthusiasm, declared that if he ran for the Senate against Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky's senior senator and majority floor leader in the upper house, he, not Barkley, would be the next man to represent the state in that branch of the government. That phrase that "I, Alben Barkley, would be the next senator," was the key line to a good story. Any reporter would have taken it for his lead sentence, and they all did. So full was that paragraph line that all news writers failed to mention the remainder of the story. For instance, "Why did Chandler call the White House?"—Certainly he was not effervescing with so much enthusiasm as he just called on the President to say that if he decided to run for the Senate that he would win. Governor Chandler called Washington for an entirely different reason, and that expression was incidental to the other conversation, yet it was a high point and a top news-lead. And when it was made the lead, and the other portion of the conversation omitted, it made the governor appear a little bit "cocky."

The death last week of Federal Circuit Judge Charles M. Morrison of Louisville, aged 62, comes as a surprise at a high rate. A new judge must be named to replace him. Dame Rumor, making a quick observation, was just as quick to make a deduction that Senator Mills M. Logan would be the beneficiary of the judgeship in order to make way for a senate seat for the governor. That would ease the tension considerably, but there are numerous angles to be considered. First of all, if such should be the idea, then Senator Logan must be consulted and he must agree. If he does not agree, then the whole thing can be called off and the President can name whom he pleases. Regardless of what happens Governor Chandler cannot take Mills Logan's senate seat until Logan has been consulted and so far as can be found out at this time, the subject of his stepping down has never been broached to him.

The current session of Legislature, which, with a single exception, has moved in perfect rhythm, will adjourn sine die on March 1. This marks the majority of the legislators have promised Governor Chandler. The governor is very anxious that such be done because he wants to call immediately afterward a special session to do something to help the county government in the state. Many of the counties are head over heels in debt and can see no way of either paying off their obligations or even reducing them. The governor has some of his best legislators working on plans to reorganize the county governments and making them live within their budgets. Before the general assembly sings its official swan song it must and will do something about liquor control. That piece of legislation was included in virtually every platform of every candidate for the house and senate last fall. The administration wants to put a check on the alcohol situation. The first alcohol bill was introduced in the Senate early in the session but was recommitted when it was found that a certain amount of revenue would be derived from the bill. All bills which revenue might be made must originate in the House. In order to get the measure along as rapidly as possible, three night sessions were held, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. All sessions are public and the "fires" and "raginets" were heard. Monday night's session was given over to hearing the Anti-Saloon League, the ministerial group, rail and motor transportation interests. Tuesday was given over to the brewers, including the brewers, distillers, rectifiers, wholesalers, packing dealers, hotels, clubs, and restaurants. The Wednesday night session was taken by the Kentucky Repeal and Regulation League and advertising interests and persons not otherwise classified. The one general idea in the two branches of the government is to, in manner pleasing to dispose of these wayside whiskey dispensaries, those which operate on the side on the side of the highway where police protection is nil.

Whiskey, both in its manufacture and its consumption, pays a great part of Kentucky's bills. The revenue from the production of this merry mead has been great in the past, but now that the stillhouses have a about caught up with their work and the warehouses are virtually filled with the juice, the production tax revenue is going into a tailspin. The tax on production tax revenue is going into a tailspin. The tax on production tax revenue is going into a tailspin. The tax on production tax revenue is going into a tailspin.

RANDOM SHOTS: Senate Bill No. 123, offered by H. Wain, Hiram, Carter county, is noted with interest. It would give the next and all succeeding Governors of the state a raise in salary. The measure provides for a $10,000 a year salary for the state's chief executive. The Governor is now a $6,500 a year man. The bill, if passed, would be effective after Chandler's term expires. Kentucky governors are among the poorest paid in the United States. It does seem that a man at the head of a $25,000,000 business should draw more than $6,500 a year. Pete Johnson, Lawrenceburg, was named executive secretary of the Young Democratic Clubs of Kentucky last week by President Charles Epperson. At the same time Epperson named chairmen of other committees. William Atkinson, Louisville, head of the Constitution and By-Laws Committee; Malcolm Black, Glasgow, publicity; Governor A. B. Chandler, chairman of the advisory committee; Frank Roby, Franklin, chairman of subscription committee, with Mrs. George Grasty, Henderson, assistant chairman; Thomas Holland, Pikeville, editor for Kentucky of the National Young Democratic Club publication. A new bill to make all state highway patrolmen peace officers has been introduced in the legislative halls. Heretofore these lads have been merely highway patrolmen. It looks like "Bank Night" at your local moon pitcher emporium might become a legal affair. A bill to make

It is noted that bills refused a first reading after receiving adverse committee reports in the House, would have raised the maximum weight limit of trucks from 18,000 to 23,000; repealed the section of Old Age Assistance Law giving the state lien on property of pension recipients and giving cities the right to appeal from adverse court rulings on tax assessments.

Advice on choosing a wife?

Don't take it! Choosing a wife is one thing every man should do for himself. It's the same with a brewmaster in choosing hops. No laboratory rule-of-thumb can guide him. Only skill and experience can distinguish between the mere fragrance of ordinary hops and the medley of exquisite and elusive aromas that exudes from truly fine blossoms. The costly imported Saazer hops used in brewing BUDWEISER are chosen only after three separate and distinct judgments. Hence the sprightly bouquet that hovers over each glass of BUDWEISER... and the distinctive taste that sets BUDWEISER so vividly apart.

MAKE THIS TEST! DRINK Budweiser FOR FIVE DAYS. ON THE SIXTH DAY TRY TO DRINK A SWEET BEER - YOU WILL WANT Budweiser's FLAVOR THEREAFTER.

NOTE FOR HOUSEWIVES: A glass of cold BUDWEISER is always a thoughtful compliment to a husband—especially in the evening. Has he ever expected it when there was none in the icebox? Check up on your supply. Keep a carton on hand—and several bottles or cans of BUDWEISER chilled and ready for instant serving... as unexpected as well as regular occasions. ANHEUSER-BUSCH • ST. ANNUAL LIBRARY TEA SET FOR VALENTINE

The third annual Library Tea will be served at the local high school Monday at 2:30 p. m., at which time a musical program under the direction of Mrs. Chalmers Frazier will be presented. Miss Virginia Murrill, sponsor of the Library Club, announced this week. The Valentine motif will be carried throughout. The musical program will feature an "Old Fashioned Album," a selection of songs by the girls' glee club, directed by Mrs. Frazier. It was also announced that plans were being made for the possible presentation of a puppet show, "Hans and Gretchen," to be staged by Mrs. E. R. Burke, area recreational W. P. A. supervisor.

Both the student body and public are urged to attend. Proceeds to come from a silver offering, will benefit the library.

ONE MAY DIE RESULT OF BATTLE

went to Melvin Wednesday morning to investigate the shooting. In effect, Constable, Willie Johnson's frank follows:
"Frank Hatfield and I were driving to the home of Andy Little, who is ill, taking some groceries to him when, a short distance above Melvin, Mrs. Elizabeth Collins flagged our car. We stopped and Frank went over to the porch where she was. Jesse Collins appeared on the porch of the home of Endore Harris, next door, before the two could begin their conversation and fired two shots into Frank's back, knocking him onto his hands and knees.

"I jumped from the car on the side away from the houses and fired one shot at Collins, who ran inside the house. At the same time, Frank recovered his balance. Two of the glasses in our car were shot out by Collins' shots.

"Collins ran out the rear of the house as I followed through the house, and met Frank. At point-blank range he fired again, at Frank, who bent forward enough to permit the full charge to graze his middle, instead of hitting him squarely. At the same time, Frank fired."

Here Wednesday Deputy Constable Hatfield exhibited his shot-torn clothing, buttons from his vest gone, a hole torn in his clothing next to his abdomen which was lacerated, his face and the back of his head punctured by small shot.

He said that the only motive Collins could have had for the shooting was that he and Constable Johnson had arrested Collins earlier in the day Tuesday and had taken from him a small quantity of "moonshine" whisky. Hatfield added, however, that he himself had signed Collins' bond of $100 which Constable Johnson had accepted, permitting Collins to remain at home.

According to Constable Johnson, 125 shotgun pellets were picked from Deputy Constable Hatfield's back.

Hatfield said each was valued at $2,000 and before County Judge E. P. Hill.

also several members bought the book for their own libraries. After Mrs. Combs told of the exciting contest she is sponsoring throughout the entire state, the club agreed to sponsor the contest in the local high school and aid in furnishing a prize. Also at a later date an evergreen tree is to be planted by the club to commemorate this Sesquicentennial celebration.

Mrs. Katherine Langley, governor of the Seventh district, K. F. W. C., gave a report of the high lights of the January board meeting of K. F. W. C., which she and Mrs. Combs attended. Mrs. Langley also gave an inspiring address, pointing out the lasting values of the club woman's influence in the community.

Harrison Elliott, local talented musician and composer, outlined his plan for "A Little Theatre" for Prestonsburg in which local persons would have the opportunity to develop and portray their talents in art and drama. Mrs. Mary May, local supervisor of "Household Aid," a W. P. A. project, told of this new work in which local women will be taught household arts and then given employment in homes where such duties are required.

Mrs. May solicited aid in furnishing the center with equipment suitable for teaching household arts in a simple manner. Many contributions were promised by members. Mrs. J. D. Mayo, welfare chairman of the club, told briefly of the Standard License Law governing motorists which is being approved by the K. F. W. C., and recommended to replace the present license law in Kentucky. The club passed a motion in favor of the standard license law and instructed Mrs. Mayo to express the same to our state senators and representatives.

New members approved by the club are:
Mrs. Gomer C. Sturgill and Mrs. Sallie Humphreys.

Guests of the club were: Mrs. Katherine Langley and Miss Ophelia Francis, of Pikeville; Mrs. Mary May, Miss Virginia Murrill and Mrs. Harrison Elliott.

Delicious refreshments carrying out the Valentine motif were served. Members present: Mrs. E. P. Arnold, Mrs. W. P. Mayo, Mrs. A. C. Harlowe, Mrs. Emery Clark, Mrs. Jo Davidson, Mrs. B. F. Combs, Mrs. B. Combs, Mrs. J. D. Mayo, Mrs. Ruth Sowards, Mrs. Bascom Clarke, Mrs. J. D. Thomas, Mrs. Sam Spradlin, Mrs. Ralph Davis, Mrs. Calmar Frazier, Mrs. S. C. Ballinger, Mrs. Pearl Allen, Mrs. Burt Sparlock, Mrs. Bertha Walls, Mrs. Martin Isaacs, Mrs. C. L. Huttsipiller, Miss Virgie McCombs, Miss Ella Noel White, and the hostesses.

TACKETT ASSAILS ANEL-LYNCH BILL

The resolution contended that the anti-lynching bill is subversive to the constitution of the United States in that it is an unwarranted encroachment upon the police powers of the states. It protests the proposed subjection of state police officers to heavy penalties to prevent lynchings, "which in most cases they are powerless to do."

Senator Tackett charged that the crime of rape is more prevalent in the United States than the crime of lynching, "both of which are hereby denounced."

The resolution also recited the "senior Senator has frequently voted against the measure now pending." Copies of the resolution, if adopted, would be sent to Senators Alben

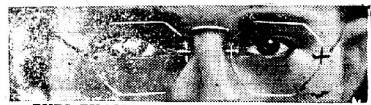

W. Barkley and M. M. Logan. The Senate passed three bills, two of them relating to bank and trust companies. The third would require burial associations to pay off in cash instead of permitting settlement of claims in merchandise.

The House of Representatives defeated, 61 to 22, a bill offered by Representative Rodes K. Myers, (D) of Bowling Green, to provide that five years' confinement of either party by court order in a state mental institution would be a ground for divorce for husband or wife.

It passed a half dozen primary road projects bills and measures to require county clerks to provide for elections five per cent more ballots than there are registered voters in a county, to require the county to pay the salary of the coroner in counties having a city of the first or second class, to increase the annual dues of members of the State Bar Association from $2 to $3, to permit circuit judges to extend terms of grand juries six days in counties having a population of 40,000 or more and to permit the creation of city and regional planning boards and zoning commissions in third, fourth, fifth and sixth class cities. All now go to the Senate.

A bill offered by Representative Harry Ward, (D) Paducah, to make it illegal to employ paid election workers on election days was defeated, 65 to 28.

The House adopted resolutions urging Congress to take action to halt declining tobacco prices and enabling the state department of health to cooperate with the federal government in handling money for child and maternal aid.
