Repeated searches in the vicinity of Dwale and through nearby deserted coal workings have failed to reveal the slayer's whereabouts.

FEWER PISTOLS WOULD REDUCE MURDERS, GRAND JURY TOLD

"Reduce the carrying of pistols, and you reduce murder," Circuit Judge Henry Stephens, Jr., said Monday morning in instructing the grand jury on the first day of the April circuit court term.

The hidden peril of the concealed deadly weapon was particularly cited for the grand jury's attention.

"At the same time, he assailed the state's parole board, declaring, 'It seems that however hard the courts may work and regardless of what expenses are incurred in trial when convictions are had, the parole board at Frankfort, at the first opportunity, has these criminals turned loose to kill someone else or to break into some place of business and steal. As a result of the leniency of the parole board, a great many murders are committed by these free criminals.'"

The two other murder bills name Ollie Hall in the recent slaying of Charles Wright, World War veteran, at West Prestonsburg, and Joe Hall, who last Wednesday night shot Henry Hale to death at Dwale. Hall also is charged with shooting and wounding Hale's fiancée, Miss Minnie Porter.

Joe Hall has not been captured. Ollie Hall's bond was set at $10,000 and he was in jail Wednesday morning upon his failure to execute bail.

THE BIRTH OF A PLATFORM

For many years the Journal has felt no little pride—a pride which emanates in the belief that we have from time to time been joined with others in promoting worthwhile principles and projects, not the least of which is good government.

We have always believed and consistently maintained that it is the business of government to serve the governed in the greatest possible way. Government, as we see it, is obliged to do big things. The men, therefore, who run the government, whether local, state or national, must be big men—men with big ideas and big programs, sound ideas and constructive programs.

We have believed and insisted that the men who run the government of the State of Kentucky must be men big enough to think unselfishly, formulate big programs and do big things. And it seemed pretty evident to us that since December, 1935 our state had been unusually blessed with good government—that is it seemed so until very recently. Now, however, in view of certain developments, we wonder whether we were misled and mistaken.

Up-state at the seat of government in Frankfort a new idea has been born—a new program has been launched. The father of the idea and the chief promoter of the program is our good friend, that veteran of newspaperdom, The Courier-Journal's Frankfort correspondent, Howard Henderson, whose articles are read with considerable interest.

For about 15 years Mr. Henderson has been more or less a conspicuous figure in Frankfort. For about fifteen years he has been at the seat of government watching governors and legislatures come and go. For about fifteen years as a political observer and commentator he has tried to tell what was wrong with this or that governor or legislature which came and went every two years. Never, however, in all his years at Frankfort, until this very year of 1941, has he had a platform—a real platform with planks and everything. Through all the years he seemed ever bent upon evolving some kind of a platform; for fifteen long years he spent considerable time in ransacking every nook and corner looking for something big in the way of a platform, but he never seemed to find just what he wanted.

While other men were finding plenty of big, strong and constructive planks and fashioning them into sturdy platforms, Mr. Henderson never found the material he considered worthy of the great platform he proposed to build. While other men were trying to create better health programs and build hospitals to alleviate the suffering of thousands of unfortunate folk who, without adequate treatment for tuberculosis face certain death, Mr. Henderson still sought material for his platform.

While other men were tackling the ticklish job of putting the state government on a sound financial basis, and establishing a credit for Kentucky second to none in the Union, the state in a position to face the uncertain future with confidence and a sense of security, Mr. Henderson still sought material for his platform.

While other men were devising ways and means for rehabilitating the state's mental and charitable institutions, and working day and night to raise Kentucky from the low level to which she had sunk through years of neglect, thereby providing a chance for the mentally unfortunate to live, as near as human ingenuity and care can help them, happy, normal lives, Mr. Henderson still sought material for his platform.

While other men were building new penal institutions and providing ways and means to enable the criminal wards of the state to engage in health-producing work in sunshine and fresh air, Mr. Henderson still sought material for his platform.

While other men were building more and better roads in Kentucky, and for less money than has ever been known in the history of road building in the United States, thereby furnishing to hundreds of thousands of men, women and children of Kentucky the opportunities to reach markets, schools and churches twelve months in the year, Mr. Henderson still sought material for his platform.

While other men saw the great need of assistance for the state's aged needy men and women, and had the courage to put a tax on luxuries to provide money for paying these old people a monthly pension, Mr. Henderson still sought material for his platform.

But now, however, after all these years, Mr. Henderson seemingly has reached his goal. He has blossomed forth with a platform. He has at long last built himself a platform, and through The Courier-Journal he has announced that whoever will may come and stand on it with him.

And what a brain-child it is! What a father Mr. Henderson has turned out to be! He readily professes to believe that he has something unique, something never before seen in Kentucky. He has a streamlined platform—a one-plank platform. His whole being has gone into one child, one magnificent son. He wants every candidate for the forthcoming legislature to declare himself upon one proposition and one proposition only—the proposition of not accepting, if elected, a job for himself, nor for any of his kindred.

Yes, sir, dear reader; this is Mr. Henderson's work of his lifetime—his long-sought-for one-plank platform. As he sees it, there is only one all-important issue facing the people of Kentucky in the legislative canvass this year. They must elect men who will go to Frankfort upon the sole proposition of not having their kindred put on the state payroll. Other matters are of no concern. At least, Mr. Henderson has no others in his platform. He says the candidates for the next legislature must be elected or defeated upon the sole proposition of whether they will or won't accept jobs of some kind for their kindred—not even a job for a forty-second cousin.

It took Mr. Henderson to produce the one big proposition of the Commonwealth's history. He alone was big enough to produce the one all-important proposition—a proposition which, in his opinion, and in the opinion of the distinguished editor of The Courier-Journal, for he has endorsed it, overshadows everything else.

The whole thing is a bit disconcerting to us. We had made up our mind that other things were all-important in this year's legislative canvass. We thought the continuation of good government—the kind of government now in operation under Governor Johnson—was the major issue. Indeed, we were firmly of the opinion that the next legislature should be elected upon the proposition of not only maintaining the advances made since 1935, but of broadening and extending the program already in vogue. We had thought that we would ask our readers to elect decent representatives who would go to Frankfort to help a decent Governor do a decent job for the people of Kentucky. We had thought that we would ask the people to vote for those candidates who would pledge themselves to legislate for good health, continued good credit, further rehabilitation of Kentucky's penal, mental and charitable institutions, better schools, more and better main and rural roads, and many other things which seemed important to us.

But, alas, our mind seems to have been taken up with little things. Indeed, it seems that in promoting these things we have been wasting our time. We didn't know until a few days ago how wasteful we had been—not until Mr. Henderson dropped his one-plank platform late one winter, got the editorial endorsement of The Courier-Journal, and then started broadcasting in monotonous from Frankfort.

Now we are in a great dilemma. Whether to lay aside our previous plans—plans which involved so many things we thought of the greatest importance—and give our all to helping Mr. Henderson elect a one-issue legislature; that is the question which perplexes us. It is a question which must be carefully and considerably dealt with. Other things must wait while we determine our future course and satisfy ourselves that we are making no mistake.

Maybe Mr. Henderson has something. Maybe his long period of research has produced a proposition which transcends all others. Maybe it is from us to will fully or inadvertently become a party to killing his life; or by refusing to even so much as consider it before making up our mind upon a program for the future welfare of the state. Who knows? Perhaps it may prove the better course to devote our editorial columns to helping Mr. Henderson keep Cousin Sam off the state payroll, rather than to promoting good health, good credit, good schools, better prisons and asylums, more and better improved roads and old-age pensions.

Yes, sir, who knows? Mr. Henderson may be right.—Somerset Journal.

ODDS, TOO GREAT

With Judge Stephens' recent suggestion that the number of defense challenges of jurors should be reduced from fifteen to ten THE TIMES is in slight disagreement.

The number of challenges should be cut to five—exactly the number of challenges enjoyed by the prosecution.

Why in the law to presume that a murderer, rapist or any other felon is innocent until proved guilty is enough on the side of the defense. After that, there should be no weakening of the law as it shoulders the burden of "making a case." Odds of three to one on jury challenges provide the "last straw" in many cases.

There is no need for any individual to fear that equalization of jury challenges would deprive the defendant of the right of a "fair" trial. There always is the change of venue to be demanded and gained in cases where it can be proved that an impartial trial cannot be had.

The fact is it's not a "fair and impartial" trial that most defendants want. They prefer partiality—in their favor.

Why, in the first place, was the law enacted giving the defense fifteen jury challenges to the Commonwealth's five? It's a deep, dark mystery to us—unless, perhaps, some very criminal lawyer had a hand in writing the statute.

Is there something about the tone of your telephone voice—your way of greeting, your manners, the ease with which you are understood—which gives the person you are talking with a glimpse of a friendly face; of an alert, attractive personality? Your voice and speech together make up your telephone personality. It's obvious that a pleasant, courteous telephone manner creates a good impression at the other end of the line. Then, too, such little things as answering promptly, speaking directly into the mouthpiece, and replacing the receiver gently when you have finished talking—all do their part in moulding someone's mental image of you. So why not make the most of every opportunity to look your best by telephone?

WHILE THERMOPYLAE IS FOUGHT . . .

While a hundred Thermopylae are being fought by the heroic descendants of the ancient Spartans assailing hostile Capital and Labor in this country engage in a war on their own that may not only lose the war for those whom we are pledged to aid but also lose for workers and employers alike all they have gained.

THE TIMES has no idea of arguing Labor's case or Capital's case. Already there is too much arguing. Neither has an immaculate record, but both could redeem themselves this month, this year, by forgetting old grievances and turning to the task to which the resources of this country have been dedicated, to making America the arsenal of democracy and to supplying those embattled democracies the materials with which to win their death-struggle with the dictators.

At this hour America parallels France before its subjugation in the discussion among its people. When France went to war for the second time against Germany, there was little unity; the quarrel between classes was deeper, more bitter, than was the average Frenchman's hatred of the enemy across the Rhine. From all this bitterness, however, there has emerged one example of good common-sense. That example was set in the defeat of the proposed strike in the mills of the U. S. Steel Corporation. There, instead of a strike, picketing, rioting, charges and counter-charges, a "breathing spell" of a week is being taken while company officials and union representatives are trying to reason the thing through to a satisfactory conclusion. All that may spell nothing—but, like Americans with democratic principles, they at least are trying in a human and humane way.

If this preparedness program and this aid to Britain and Greece and Yugo-Slavia are worth seven billions of American dollars in the year 1941, we and they should get value received. This is no pink-toe affair; so this country may as well get hard. This government should decide that both Capital and Labor shall work, and should make definite arrangements, without further ado, that both shall be treated impartially.

The Living Jesus

By the REV. CAMPBELL JEFFRIES
"Take him down easy," we hear the guard say as they lower Jesus Christ from the cross. He is dead, was the sad note from all who had believed in Him.

This was about 4 p. m. on Friday, in the year 29 A. D., but there is a different story on the first day of the week when Mary Magdalene came to the tomb to worship. She found it empty. Then, in the stillness of the early morning, she saw the angel to Mary, and her heart leaped for joy, as she realized He is risen.

Luke, in writing the Acts, mentions these many infallible proofs that Jesus lives; but my purpose today is not to prove these resurrection—just merely to proclaim it. He is risen from the dead, and is living now at the right hand of God.

The meaning of this truth is obvious as no man could find God without experiencing the living Christ. It means that as our Saviour was able to live after death, so we through Him have hope of immortality. It further means that He is ruling over the world from the spiritual side of man, and is working out his kingdom for all mankind. Jesus Christ will reign until every enemy has been conquered and the last enemy is death. He also will overcome the devil, who has had control of the world from the beginning, but who will be bound at the end of time and cast into the lake of fire. This plainly is the triumph of good over evil, and it is revealed by the victory of Christ over Satan.

As we worship the living Saviour during the season of the Lent, I would call your attention to the second coming of Christ to this world. He came the first time as the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world, but he will come the second time to bring judgment to the world. The world is doomed and will be destroyed. It will not abide forever, and therefore, Jesus did not seek to make great reform movements in this world. He says, "I will make new heavens and a new earth," and blessing on the person who is a part of the Christian order. The world will be destroyed by the event. Two will be working in a field, one will be taken, the other left; two will be grinding at a mill, one will be taken, the other left; two will be sleeping in a bed, one will be taken, the other left. We too to those who are left. I do not wish to be alive on the earth when this event takes place, as I have too many friends who will be left.

Man don't put your life in the things of the world, as you will be destroyed with your possessions; but put your faith in the living Christ who brings success and happiness in the world, and peace in the world to come. Be on fire for Christ now, rather than waiting till He comes to be kind.

Seniors To Present 'Antics of Andrew'

The "Antics of Andrew," the story of a philandering husband, will be the stage offering to be presented Friday, matinee and evening, at the graded school auditorium by the senior class of Prestonsburg high school.

The cast is, if anything, unusual as Big Bid Bailey, all-conference football tackle, plays the part of Herb Salisbury's long-suffering wife, and Freddie Cottrell, another gradster, the part of the mother-in-law. Meanwhile, Her-shell Tackett, as the timid professor, and Billy Conley (Uncle Isaac to you) try to win the love of the outraged "little woman" (the aforesaid Bid Bailey). Myra Hill, an old maid teacher, finds the young folks' chatter very annoying, while Vivian Caudill, Madeline Boyd and Sarah Clay Stephens are cute college girls who do nothing but litter up the stage and act dumb (Editor's note: The foregoing is the statement of the school's publicity department and does not express the views of THE TIMES). Ernestine Brown, piano, will play the music which nullifies the valet, Carl Tufts, to roam the cast (with or without benefit of reason) out.

Ever heard the history of the locomotive cowcatcher? Locomotives belonging to an sixty railroad suffered so much damage from collisions with trespassing cows that something had to be done about it. A young employee soon invented a small truck supporting two iron spears and varied it to the front of the engine. This was effective but very hard on cows! To avoid lawsuits from irate farmers a crosswise bar was substituted, and from this evolved the present V-shaped cowcatcher.

Petition Is Amended In Arnett-Stumbo Court Action

Petition of Boone Arnett seeking an opinion from the Floyd circuit court as to the eligibility of Dr. W. L. The amended petition cites the offense for which Dr. Stumbo was convicted in a federal court and the length of his sentence. It contends that he should be excluded from office under Section 150 of the Kentucky Constitution and claims that his ineligibility to office as provided in that section has not been removed by pardon by the Governor of the state. The amended petition was filed by Charles S. Francis, J. D. Bond and Oscar P. Bond, Prestonsburg attorneys.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

CHILLS AND FEVERS. IT WAS malaria, but we did not know it. Everybody of our acquaintance had fever every summer, and we expected this to happen, just like birth and matrimony and death. It is true that we took quinine in huge quantities, but I doubt whether any of us seriously believed that it could cure us. Nobody knew anything about germs; chills were caught by breathing night air. Miasmatic vapors, the learned once said, came in through open windows, whether we were in swamps. The pesky mosquito was not even suspected of harboring germs. And we just had our chills and fever and accepted life as we found it. Quinine was in every home, just as was turpentine for skin abrasions. The hardy quinine could take their quinine straight, as I was forced to do once when I was teaching school in a very malarial area. Capsules have come in not long before my time and were to be found everywhere. You took a big dose if you filled both "cups" and "sule" quinine, but otherwise we were sensible to fill only the "sule." Some made quinine pills by mixing the drug with sorghum molasses. This got the quinine down them, but the latter taste, which was lacking when capsules were used.

There were "warmer" remedies, probably not so scientific, but dear old lady told me that she broke chills and fever for her young daughter by gathering nine kinds of weeds from the garden and tying them into a bundle. This bundle was hung up in the chimney, and forthwith the chills fled, just as asthma had previously fled when some old lady had cut off a lock of hair from the same child and put it into an eagle hole bored in a tree level with the child's head. Quinine made one's ears ring and caused one to be in a daze. Hence some medical men advised chill tonic. I succeeded up and much easier on the nerves. Then quinine itself, somewhat into the background. One took his chill tonic much he had once taken his burdock tincture. A famous inventor of chill tonic got so wealthy with his invention that his name is perpetuated today in the name so far from Fidelity as the name of the county seat high school. Outdoors lose no opportunity to ride the hills, and to do so, they are taken on a bicycle. It is said that many a person who is now to be seen in the hills, the strange experience of having a chill and a fever. I suppose that all chills were about the same. I have had all kinds. You begin to get cold, pitifully cold, you begin to shiver, and you know that they will break themselves; you sometimes get painfully nauseated. No amount of cover seems to warm you up until you have chattered the required amount. Then starts the fever, and you burn as badly as you were freezing before. Fevers are attended, and you know you are in the rest of the day between wakefulness and sleep. The next day you feel better and manage to resume your acquaintance with food, only to repeat this disgusting process the next day after. Prolong this as you please, and you have chills and fever. Quinine and other remedies may break some gaps in this painful monotony, but some of our summers seem to represent a series of chills followed by off days when we were getting ready for the next ones. Thanks to medical men, this story is now not so familiar as formerly, and we also should thank the doctors for making us know the quinine mosquito for its diabolical work in malaria in its real evil in forming the seed-bed of weakness and debility for tuberculosis.

Pike county poultry raisers reporting profits include W. G. Bevins, whose 270 hens returned a profit of $140 in one month. Mrs. Minnie Weddington, who made $30 from 67 hens last month, and Mrs. W. W. Cuberton, whose flock of 175 hens returned a profit of $83 over all expenses, in January. Grayson county farmers, who have been increasing their livestock operations for several years, recently purchased 70 registered cows and 14 purebred bulls. Many of them were for 4-H club members who were starting herds. C. A. Turner of Barren county grew three tobacco crops on one acre; that is, the yield of 242 pounds was about three times the average yield. The land had been in alfalfa four years and he added large quantities of manure and 400 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate.

Eggs Plentiful; Eat Them Freely

With hens, April and May are busy months. So is June. During those three months the hens lay about as many eggs as they do all the other nine months of the year. "With this springtime spurt in egg production just starting, now is a good time to check up on eggs in the family diet," says Miss Florence Inlay, nutrition specialist for the Kentucky College of Agriculture. "The most important fact about an egg is that it is a package full of food values you want to get into the family diet. Eggs are a good body builders because of the efficient protein in their yolks and whites. The yolks are especially rich in iron, the mineral needed for red blood cells. They are an important source of calcium, a rich source of phosphorus, and a good source of riboflavin (vitamin B2) and vitamins A and D are present in varying amounts. "For all these reasons an egg a day for everyone in the family is a good rule to follow. But if you can't manage that, try to get at least four or five eggs a week into the diet of every child in the family. And see that adults get at least three or four a week."

Isaac Hurd Dies At Lancer Home, Cancer Victim

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at Lancer for Isaac Hurd, 61, who died at his home Friday, a victim of cancer after an illness of several months. At the age of three years Mr. Hurd was brought to Floyd county by his parents, the late A. A. Hurd, and the present Mrs. William Rice, of Banner, from Scott county, Va., where he was born on June 10, 1888. From boyhood he has been employed by Prestonsburg business firms. In addition to his mother the survivors are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Susan Shepherd and Mrs. Mary Meadows; five sons, Orin, Frank, Rudolph, Spencer and Speed Hurd, and eight grandchildren, all of Lancer. Two brothers, John Hurd, Lancer, and Oscar Hurd, Banner; one sister, Mrs. Liza Hall Honaker, also survive. Rev. Isaac Stratton officiated at the funeral conducted from the Hurd residence, following which burial was made in the family cemetery at Banner under the direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

SHIKE'S POKES

(Views expressed in this column are those of the writer and not necessarily those of The Times.)

We mentioned in this column several months ago about Walter Messinger's remark to the effect that "since they" had gone to making heat from coal, the men would be leading by the pair instead of the ton. Well it seems that Walter's words have come home to roost. He was visiting his brother-in-law Saturday night and, thinking that he saw Walter here for the first time, said "Walter, this mine shut-down must be hitting you pretty hard—you haven't on any sock." But when Walter hauled up his pants leg—he had on his wife's nylon—said he had to have something to put his "heavies" down in.

A certain fellow left Martin about six weeks ago to get a job on one of the government building projects up east. He returned Saturday night and advised his listeners that he had a job up in New Jersey—painting. Some of the more inquisitive listeners asked—"painting what?" To which he replied—"men and women." Some of the listeners laughed, but the boy was right—he was painting "women" and "men" on "little house" doors.

I notice from a newspaper dispatch—"A bird's nest recently found in Kansas City was built out of pieces of tin wire."—It probably belongs to the Dove of Peace, which was last reported growing a set of spurs.

Il Duce proudly boasts that the Italian trains run on time, but he fails to mention that his scidiers are running ahead of time.

Two bachelor girls of somewhat advanced age were discussing the approaching holiday season. "Sister Molly," said the younger, would a long stocking hold all you want for Christmas?" "No, Evira," said the older girl wistfully, "but a pair of sock would."

Preacher Oatle seems to be rushing the season—he was reported on picking "wild flowers" over the week-end.

The Ohio and Kentucky Unemployment Compensation laws have exactly the same clause pertaining to payment of unemployment compensation in labor disputes—but the state of Ohio's Supreme Court decided that the 1939 shutdown was not a strike—while Kentucky's Court of Appeals decided it was a strike. There is a lot of difference in which side of the "polluted Ohio River" you live on.

Headlines in the Louisville Times—"Italians Rage While Germans Run Country." Seems that the Italians are doing the running in Albania and Africa.

I believe that every right-minded person in the U. S. A., while not liking strikes, are in favor of the FORD strike. Henry Ford is getting just what he has been gunning for the past eight years. Seems odd that he would call on the government for help when every day that his plant operates, he violates the federal law. Men have a right to bargain collectively—the bargainers to be of their own choosing—yet Ford is denying them that right. Then he has the nerve to call FDR a dictator. Ford is the one with "dictator" demands, would rather see Hitler win world domination than see FDR right. When calling all the "isms" anti-American—don't leave out Ford.

We have a report from a reliable source that Billy will get his rib back just as soon as the contract is signed.

With the shudners during the past week the following poem hits the spot: I've got an itch to go fishin', The crickets are tickle there be; And the old-gurd thing's a-spradin' To the heart and soul of me.

And, sudden like, 'twill be over; Gene is the itch and the wishin' And a ter'in' like Heaven's descendin' 'Tis that—you've jist bin a-fishin'.

"Yep—wee—am hungry." I had an argument with a fellow who argued that the Allis-Chalmers strike in Milwaukee was deliberate sabotage by the union. The fellow didn't know what he was talking about. I think that everyone is aware that, over a month ago, the OPM submitted a plan for resumption of work. The union accepted it, but the company pulled it down. This was Mr. Knudsen's plan—just why did the Allis-

Chalmers Company turn it down? The company is headed by an officer in the "American First" outfit. Every local union on Big Sandy, I believe, has received a bunch of tommyrot from the Amerria First Committee. The local union is against aid to Great Britain and is doing everything in its power to slow up this aid. In some of their pamphlets they beg and implore you to do anything to prevent aid getting to the English. The head of the Allis-Chalmers Company being an "American firster," could be doing everything in his power to sabotage aid for England. After reading their literature, I am of the opinion that a man who believes all their tommyrot hasn't got sense enough to head a corporation like Allis-Chalmers. The government should take over the plant until the defense order is finished.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE We are authorized to announce EDW. P. HILL as a candidate for COUNTY JUDGE subject to the action of the Democratic party at the August, 1941 primary.

I have this day become a candidate for the office of County Judge of Floyd County on the Republican ticket. If elected, I will build a poor home for the poor people, old men and women who are thrown out on the mercy of the people and not able to maintain a home and for the little children that are kicked about from pillar to post without a chance in life. Think of the crippled and blind that are mistreated. I pledge my support to extend roads to the isolated and forgotten districts of the county. For results, vote for.

DIAL SALISBURY, For County Judge. To the Democrats of Floyd County: I hereby announce my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for County Judge. I have grown old in the service of the party. Elect me and I will make you a County Judge serving all the people. If you do not elect me, I will still be the same Doug Hays, serving our party as every good Democrat should.
