SHIKE'S POKES

Views expressed in this column are those of the writer and not necessarily those of The Times.

Walk Castle says he was in a bad fix—the "shut-down" in effect and the itch a most getting him. We haven't heard of him borrowing any meal yet, though.

It must be the heat—Fred Hickman stopping at a "pop stand" to buy gasoline.

No one on Beaver Creek pays any attention to Ford, Lindbergh etc. We all know that you can tell a man's head by the "spoke" out of his mouth—and in the Lindbergh case it's d—small. Seems as though just a few short years ago I remember when Lindy left these shores with the remark that the U. S. wasn't a safe place in which to raise children and when the first gun was fired he caught the first pass—this is a free country and there are not enough dumb Congressmen to pass such a bill.

I think that some of the fellows have some birds to turn loose in this neighborhood—but I don't

When picking "Folk Salat" you better look close and not pick a bunch with someone else's check on it. Maybe a fellow had been there before you and, finding a bunch too small to pick, just hung his "check" on it.

We heard a fellow the other day naming his new baby "Window" because it kept him out of the draft.

According to the news commentators, Fascist Italy is now in its twilight. That sort makes it Duce a Roman in the gloamin'.

Henry Skeens has about figured out how much ground he will have to rent for a turnip patch. He has a gallon of turnip seed and wants to plant them a foot apart.

One of the dumbest hills ever introduced by supposedly smart men is the anti-strike bill now up in Congress. Anyone even faintly hating such a bill is a pro-Hitler person. After all, aren't we trying to win this war for liberty and democracy? That bill will never pass—this is a free country and there are not enough dumb Congressmen to pass such a bill.

One thing about this shut-down—it has enabled me to see old friends including G. C. Baisden, Bob Hicks, McKinley P. Jack Caldwell, Lyss Cox, etc.

know how they will fare, for about every foot of land has been burned over within the past few weeks. Around Seabury it looked like a battlefield with fires rimming the hills all around. Thousands of dollars lost to landowners and an unaccountable loss to the sportsmen.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good. The mine shut-down sure has helped the gardening.

A certain party called on a school official at Prestonsburg, recently for the express purpose of informing the school heads that he had been operating all his school days under a delusion. Quoth he: "Reading my books, I had been under the impression that Cock Robin was a bird. But since I've been down here around court, I've found out it's a penitentiary offense."

Boy, I was mighty glad that the "Contract" was signed pretty quick for my garden was getting awfully weedy.

Variety may be the spice of life but it's mononony that brings home the groceries.

Bart Bloomer must be expecting a flood. He lives above the highway on the hill and he keeps a boat on his front porch. Safety first.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

POPGUNS

TODAY as I walked across the campus with a freshman, we passed a dogwood tree covered with bright red berries. I asked him what they suggested, but he did not know. Could it be that the present generation does not know about popguns? If that is true this article is to tell them of another institution that they have missed, incidentally, as always, it is to remind the oldersters of what they missed by growing up.

Popguns were of two types: those made of elder stalks and those made of a joint of cane. Both kinds are good, and both kinds make a loud pop when fired and, like a duck pop, you can use a wad of the pulp into a joint of elder, remove the pit, and then trim a stick that fits snugly as a ramrod. Since an elder stick is pretty large, it is usually necessary to use paper wads for ammunition. Before there were any germs, we chewed up paper of any description and stuffed a wad of the pulp into our guns. Carefully push this wad along until it is near the end. Then insert another one, slowly pushing it down part of the way. Then give a sudden plunge, usually by hitting the end of the ramrod against something fixed and hard, like a duck pop or the side of the schoolhouse. The result is a loud pop, which with a little imagination sounds like the report of a gun. You can use the second wad in the gun, so that you can get into action more quickly.

Now dogwood berries were made primarily for the other type of popgun. The pulp around the seed is cut to fit the gun as you push the berry down with your finger or the ramrod of your gun. The technique of firing is the same, but you can usually give enough force to the cane popgun by jamming the ramrod with the palm of your hand. I have seen some palms as sore from this as the thumbs were sore from shooting apples in our guns or marbles. Dogwood berries are considerably more sanitary than paper wads and probably should be the kind of ammunition used by those whose mothers have learned about germs.

Besides creating a pop there are other uses of popguns. With dogwood berries as bullets they make fine guns in a fight. There is small danger of serious injury, but a dogwood berry properly fired can make a sting that lasts a part of recess time. When you go into the schoolhouse, you had better put the popgun in a safe place away from temptation. It might be a good idea to entrust it to the teacher, because she sometimes gets it anyway. I refer to the tender memories, to the unfortunate habit the small boy has of taking out his popgun during books and getting it ready for next playtime. By a species of cruel fate nearly always when this happens, the popgun goes off accidentally, and the real guns so often do. There is no bloodshed, but the popgun is declared contraband, much to the amusement of the other boys, who either did not play with their popguns or did not get caught. Sometimes the cruel teacher would not return the gun at recess time, and it became necessary to make a whole new one, meantime missing most of the fun of scaring little girls' hair to death and raising a few welts on one's best boy friends.

Some one has divided the seasons according to what boys are playing: kite, marble, baseball, football, basketball. Middle autumn at Fidelity was popgun season, and everybody was avid in celebrating it properly.

U.K. Radio Equipment In Listening Centers To Be Rehabilitated

A complete rehabilitation of the equipment in the University of Kentucky's 40 listening centers in the southeastern Kentucky planned for the near future because of a gift of 38 new battery and two electric radio sets to the University. The gift, made by radio station WHAS, Louisville, as a part of its policy in furthering the University's work in equalizing listening opportunities for those portions of Kentucky remote from radio stations will enable the University of Kentucky to replace very old radio sets now in use by new ones of the most modern design.

While the number of centers at the present time is slightly less than 40, new centers will be established so as to bring the figure up to that number. Counties containing the centers are Floyd, Letcher, Leslie, Harlan, Knott, Breathitt, Morgan, Magoffin, Estill and Martin. The new sets will be installed by the University of Kentucky as soon as they are received by station WHAS, which will probably be around the middle of May.

The center which will probably get the new equipment in Floyd county is located at Bonanza.

merous examples of Indian blanket weaving samples, baskets, pottery, and silver and turquoise work, as well as pictured reproductions of masks, paintings and ceremonial costumes.

DEFENSE BONDS ON SALE HERE

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR COMMUNITY TO DO PART

United States Defense Savings Bonds and Postal Savings Stamps were placed on sale in the post-office here Thursday, May 1, as part of the national effort to make America impregnable.
Mrs. Bess S. May, postmaster, announced this week that plans have been completed for this community along with thousands of others from coast to coast to do its full part in the opening of the savings program.
Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, in a letter to postmasters throughout the country, said that the help of local postmasters would be a real service to the country. He transmitted the choice of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau for the help that local postmasters had already given in the sale of United States securities, and also Mr. Morgenthau's thanks in advance "for co-operation which he knows you will give to this new effort."
The new Defense Savings Bond is similar to the familiar "Baby Bond" of which more than $5,000,000,000 worth have been bought by more than two and a half million Americans since 1935.
A defense bond may be purchased May 1 or thereafter, for $1.75. In 10 years this bond will be worth $23. This is an increase of 12 1/2 per cent. Equal to an annual interest return of 2.9 per cent, compounded semi-annually. Any time after 60 days from the date of purchase, the bond may be redeemed for cash in accordance with a table of redemption figures printed on the face of the bond.
To spread investments widely among all the people of America, a limit of $1,000 has been set on the amount of defense bonds to be bought by any one person in one year. The bonds are in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000. All of these are sold for 75 per cent of their maturity value and all of which mature in 10 years.
For larger investors who can afford to purchase up to $50,000 worth of bonds a year, the Treasury Department has issued two additional kinds of Defense Savings Bonds, but these will be sold only through banks and by direct mail from Washington, D. C. They are intended for associations, trustees and corporations as well as to individual purchasers.
For the smaller investor who wants to buy a government bond on an easy payment plan the post-office will have a series of Postal Savings Stamps, at 10c, 20c, 50c, $1 and $5. Each purchaser of any savings stamp higher than 10c will be given, free of charge, an attractive album in which to paste his stamps until he has enough to buy a $25 bond or more of higher denomination. Thirty million of these albums are now being prepared.
Secretary Morgenthau said that even a boy or girl who saved 10c to buy a savings stamp would help the country. He added that "you can safeguard your own money and your own future, while helping the national defense by buying United States Savings Bonds now."

FISH AND GAME

By WILLIAM ADAMS, JR.

Protect the Coon and Quail Now that the coons have been turned loose, it is the duty of the citizens to protect them. At this time of year the coon may be found in the heads of small hollows along the creek, searching for insects. The coon is not particular about his diet; if he cannot find small animals to eat, he will turn to plant life for his food. It takes a little time for "Burr" Coon to establish himself in a new home. Give him a chance to do so and I am sure he will not bother you or your property. All he needs is a chance to become established.

Penn-Ken

A jury of Floyd county men promptly held the claimants title void. Had the claims of Penn-Ken and its affiliate, the Duke-Whitney Gas & Oil Company, been upheld, validity of titles held by hundreds of Eastern Kentuckians would have been affected. Included in the vast tract, stretching through Floyd, Knott, Pike and Boone counties, is the entire city of Pikeville. The suit upon which testimony was heard was brought by the Commonwealth of Kentucky through Commonwealth's Attorney Allen. It is Penn-Ken, incorporated under the laws of the state of Delaware but with headquarters in Chillicothe, and the defendant is the World Natural Gas Company of Charleston, W. Va. In this action, Penn-Ken seeks damages, totaling $70,000,000 for alleged infringement upon 130,400 acres. Although Kentucky became a state in 1792, five years before the Haskell patent was granted, it later made a compact with Virginia recognizing various patents given by the latter's Governor.

Play, Written, Enacted By Martin Students, Is Presented

Martin, Ky., May 6 (Sp.)—The opera, "Magic Under Southern Skies" was presented in the Martin high school auditorium last Thursday, matinee and evening. The music is that of the "High School" composed of William Tuck, Marie Ratcliff, Jewell Smith, and Alma Ruth Salisbury, wrote the opera. It was presented by the class and other high school students under the direction of Mrs. Oval Buchanan Hall, music instructor. The drama was supervised by Miss Jewell Smith. The high school orchestra, composed of Mrs. Hall, Mr. Elliott, Bobby Marshall, Lake (Buddy) Ratcliff, John Coleman, Jr., Jerema Francis, Joy Francis, and Palmer Diggs provided the music. This is the first time anything of this kind has been attempted in Martin and much deserved praise and credit go to the members of the music class and their instructor for their rare ability. Outside of the Stephen Foster songs used and "Alice Blue Gown" all of the words and music were composed by the girls. The costumes and scenic effects were beautiful.

Cross Murder

divum. The work of embalming a july began Wednesday morning and was not completed till shortly before noon Thursday. Of the Commonwealth testimony elicited only that of Judge Stephens. Stephens said that the shot was fired over his shoulder as he stood talking with Oles and that when he turned he saw Ratliff standing in the doorway. He said that he saw Oles, W. J. Wright and others occupied in an adjoining room, testified that when he opened the door to his room he saw Ratliff leaving the vicinity of Cross' room, while Dougherty stated he heard the shot while he was in Byron Nunner's room, across the hall, and saw Ratliff. No witness told of seeing the shot fired; the murder weapon was never found. The defendant himself stated that he was in a room with Dave Burchett at the end of the hallway when the shot was fired, and Burchett confirmed this statement. Nunner's testimony attacked that of Dougherty in that he claimed the machinery salesman was not in his room when the shot was fired. Alys, Edward L. Allen and B. M. James represented the defendant. Commonwealth's Attorney John Aiken was assisted by Forrest D. Short and C. P. Stephens.

the woods. According to the report, a number of fires on areas protected by the Division of Forestry were much smaller and did less damage than the fires on timbered areas which were unprotected. There was also a like percentage of game destroyed on the protected areas and on the unprotected areas. The sum total of these figures simply means that if the people of Kentucky really want to conserve and protect the fish, game and forests, they must have and are really desirous of securing for themselves even better hunting and fishing in the future, they must back the wildlife conservation and re-stocking program of the Division of Game and Fish and help the Division of Forestry in its efforts to secure statewide forest fire protection on all timbered land.

Forestry Division Reports on Fires Of Last Year

Frankfort, Ky., May 7.—The annual report of the Kentucky Division of Forestry for 1940 reveals that there were 518 fires on a total protected area of 1,078,000 acres. The total burned area for 1940 was 17,822 acres as compared with a total burned area of 30,441 acres in 1939. This represents a loss of 16 acres per thousand of protected land for 1940 as compared with 30 acres per thousand for 1939.

The current state appropriation of $14,000 per year for all Division of Forestry activities, according to K. B. McConnell, director, is much too small to expand the protected area. There are about 8,000,000 acres of stand and private forest land in Kentucky without any sort of protection. A careful estimate of this unprotected area indicates a burn of 503,000 acres during 1940. This is a loss of 63 acres per thousand on unprotected land, as compared to 16 acres per thousand for protected forest land.

No definite estimate of the disastrous effect and damage these forest fires will have on the wildlife of the state was made. Wherever the fires burn the woods, homes of wild animals and birds are destroyed; also eggs of birds, young animals and birds; the adult game; food for wildlife; running of good fishing waters; also paying the way for mud and silt to fill up those streams due to the fact that the fires have destroyed the protective cover for the soil and the rain can now start the erosion process, also killing of countless thousands of fish during the burning of

Grazing Chief Enemy of Farm Woodlands

GRAZING shouldn't be permitted in the farm woods for the sake of the trees, and for the sake of the livestock, too, says W. E. Jackson, Jr., the extension forester for the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Foresters, from long experience and observation, know that horses, cattle and sheep browse on tender tree leaves and twigs; they trample and pull seedlings; they ride down young trees, and damage roots of large trees. What happens when livestock has the run of the farm woods is shown in the accompanying picture. Note the absence of grass and forest cover, the lack of reproduction. This ideal, protected woods is shown in the top picture. The woods has trees of various sizes, some ready for harvesting, others ready to take their place when they are cut for profit or for use on the farm. The group is protected with forest litter, which conserves moisture, prevents erosion, and adds organic matter to the soil.

Livestock, foresters say, can destroy woods within a few years.

The surroundings have an equally good reason for keeping livestock out of the woods. They say the farm woods make a mighty poor pasture. Studies showed that the average production in farm woods is insufficient to maintain animal weights over a six-month period even when as much as six acres are available per animal unit.

A stock-tight fence is the only sure way to protect the woods. Sometimes, by proper conservation planning, it's wiser to fence the stock in the pastures, than it is to fence them out of the woods.

Wheat Competes for Market

As indicated by the chart above, wheat this year is competing strongly for the world's market. Principal producing countries such as Argentina, Australia, Canada, and the United States have more than a billion bushels for sale, but the total world market is expected to be less than half a billion bushels. U. S. farmers are being urged to continue planting in accordance with AAA Program wheat acreage allotments, to help balance American wheat supply with expected demand.

CO-OPERATION IN AGRICULTURE BEST DEFENSE AGAINST NAZI ECONOMIC WAR IN AMERICAS

United States co-operation in developing Latin-American agriculture is the best way to prepare the Americas against economic penetration, and to construct a basis for sound inter-American trade, says Dr. Earl N. Bressman, assistant director of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations.

"With balanced agricultural resources," he says, "a nation or a hemisphere can exist alone. Without them, no nation can be strong." He points out also that "The United States today is spending billions of dollars to prepare against military penetration. But there is also danger of economic penetration of the Western Hemisphere, against which tanks and guns are ineffective."

The need for markets in which to sell surplus goods, and new sources of deficit products is becoming more and more pressing, Bressman observes. "This means that our agricultural economy must be developed and changed to permit a greater exchange of products between American markets," according to the Bressman inter-American agricultural cooperation must be developed to the advantage of all and to the disadvantage of none."

He suggests three means of approach in the strengthening of our relations with Latin-America. First, we should lend assistance to improve the domestic economy of each country. Second, there should be commodity cooperation in regard to agricultural products of which there is a hemispherical surplus (cotton, sugar, cotton and wheat). Third, there should be full development of complementary agricultural products in Latin-America.

In describing complementary products, Bressman cites personal impressions gained while traveling in most of the Latin-American countries, and describes the enormous possibilities for commercial production of rubber, insecticides, oils, fibers, fruits and waxes.

TRAVEL BULLETIN TODAY'S ROADS

Prepared by Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club

NIGHT DRIVING

It's just as true as can be that when people get up at night anything they're apt to begin to get careless about it, and that's what we have to look out for when driving our cars. For instance, we've recently had a group of engineers discussing night driving, and one thing they kept talking about was "over-driving our headlights."

What they mean is that the distance we can see clearly by headlights is, of course, limited, and that we are apt to let our car speed get beyond the point where we could easily stop within that limited distance. It's true that we naturally tend to go a little slower at night. But if we aren't careful we gradually get going faster than we realize, and that may get us into trouble, because, you see, stopping isn't the one simple action we always thought it was. The truth is, we are told, that there are really three things we have to do to stop. First, we have to think of stopping. Next, we have to move one foot over on the break pedal. And then we have to push down the brake pedal.

Now we might not believe it, but those first two steps take time. Less than a second, perhaps, but even that instant momentum is carrying us on. In fact, at only 20 miles an hour the average driver goes 22 feet before he can even start to use the brakes. Then after he does get the brakes to working, it takes him another 21 feet or more to stop completely, even with brakes in good condition and with good tires under favorable conditions.

The Golden Rule applies to you. As much as to the others: So, do your bit to help protect. Your neck and your brother's.

Patton, Mound Star As Prestonsburg Defeats Allen

With Patton, big righthander, holding Allen to a lone ground single, the Prestonsburg baseball team broke into the Big Sandy League win column Sunday, winning a seven-inning argument at Allen, 7-0.

Excellent pitching of Castle and Kidd for Allen was nullified by poor defensive work behind the plate, the local base-runners swiping nine sacks on Maynard, Allen receiver, swiped three bases each.

Prestonsburg made only five hits. Though issuing four free tickets to first and hitting one batter, Patton struck out 10 men and was never in danger. The lone bingle off his delivery was achieved by Maynard in the fourth.

The contest was seven innings by agreement, the two teams waiting until Martin had defeated Stephens Branch in the Class B division of the league before starting their game.

With two hits, one of which was a double, Crum led the Prestonsburg attack. He and Vanhooze were the only hitters to reach base.

2,000 Floyd Farmers Plan to Participate in 1941 Program

Farm plans have been filed in the 1941 AAA program by 2,000 Floyd county farmers, James Stephens, chairman of the county Agricultural Conservation Association, announced this week in a final report on farms in the 1941 program. The final date for signing 1941 farm plans was April 15.

The number filed is 100 per cent of the farms in the county eligible to take part in the 1941 program. There are 600 more plans filed this year than were completed in the 1940 program.

"These 2,000 farmers are co-operating with farmers throughout the state and nation to control surpluses and to conserve the soil," Stephens stated. "Through the national program," he said, "farmers are contributing to the welfare of all by doing what they are best prepared to do in the nation's defense."

Through the farm plans are filed in connection with the Agricultural Conservation program. Stephens pointed out that many farmers in the county also aided in maintenance of the nation's ever-normal granary during the past year by taking part in the crop loan program for corn and wheat and the crop insurance program for wheat.

When five hundred million potatoes are ready to roll to market they want a lot of service—with gentle handling. Please—and they get it on Chesapeake and Ohio! Big seasonal movements are all in the day's work to this railroad—we're geared to handle any shipment, routine or rush, with the same care and speed that have won thousands of shippers to C. and O.

The great-grandpappy of the modern locomotive headlight was a bonfire on wheels! Strange as it may seem, one railroad during the early 1800's covered the bottom of a small flat car with sand and kept a fire burning on it—this was pushed ahead of the engine to light the track at night! Candles, whale oil, crude oil, kerosene and gas were also used in later years before the advent of electricity!

Here's an economy tip for the next time you send a package or a box to someone in another city—send it Chesapeake and Ohio "package freight" and take advantage of free pick-up and delivery truck service!

Imagine a bridge longer than the distance from New York City to London, England! You'd have one if all of the 191,779 railroad bridges in the United States were placed end to end! They reach 3,860 mi. in length!

The familiar initials, "C. O. D." meaning "collect on delivery" are 100 years old! This term originated in New England in 1841 when a shipper asked an express agency to collect a payment at the time of delivery. Today, some 5,000,000 shipments by Railway Express and large numbers of less than carload freight shipments are forwarded annually C. O. D.
