CANNERS AND PACKERS

The St. Louis Democratic authority for the statement that the grave diggers of Memphis, Tenn., have organized, taking out membership cards with the CIO Cannery and Packers' Union.

ALL IS NOT AS IT SEEMS

Don't put too much stock, dear children, in appearances. Things are not always what they seem, and what folks say may mean something else.

For instance, there's the story told me this week about the young lady who had the sniffs but decided to attend a dinner party, just the same. She took with her two handkerchiefs, one of which she tucked in her bosom. As the dinner she began rummaging for the fresh handkerchief, first with her right hand, then with her left, then with both. Finally she paused to notice that the others around the table were watching her in silence. "Well," she observed in some confusion, "I KNOW I had two of them when I came."

FRIENDS NAMED

'UNCLE JEFF'

A few years ago, this column stated that all old men known as "Uncle Jeff" could get free copies of THE TIMES each week. If they would call for it. This was, at the moment, written as a compliment to "Uncle Jeff" Sizemore and "Uncle Jeff" Blackburn, and both were regular customers of ours. Now they are dead, and those papers we gave them, we thought they'd either use any more than the giving hurt us. Other "Uncle Jeffs" have the same cordial invitation.

ALL-OUT EFFORT

Earl Hays, vocational agriculture teacher at Betsy Layne, says even some of Charlie's "Crows" and White Chickens have become Food-for-Defense-minded. One cluck, he reports, laid an egg which measured nine by seven tenths and weighed exactly an ounce shy of half a pound.

EDITORS' PROMOTION

Thruward in his plans to attend the Kentucky-Tennessee football game in Lexington Saturday, Editor of THE TIMES has arranged to have a story which follows, approximately:

A certain newspaper editor, flying across Africa, made a forced landing, only to be rescued by a tribe of primitives. Hailed before the chief, the editor was promptly ordered prepared for the pot. "But, chief," protested the newspaperman, "you can't do this to me. Remember that I'm the managing editor of the Washington Star!" "Right!" grunted the hungry chieftain. "Then you be editor in chief!"

WAR VETERAN IS CLAIMED

DAVID C. COOLEY DIES WEDNESDAY AT HALL HOME

David C. Cooley, 46 years old World War veteran and member of a prominent Floyd county family, died Wednesday morning at 6:30 o'clock at the home of his sister, Mrs. Lee Hall, of Auxier.

Mr. Cooley had been in ill health for several years, having returned only a few months ago from Hazelwood Sanatorium, Louisville, where he underwent treatment. He also had spent several months at Owen N. C. in a veterans' hospital. Tuberculosis was given as the cause of death.

A native of the Right Beaver section of this county, Mr. Cooley was a son of the late David and Mrs. Columbia Goodwin Cooley. He and one time was engaged in the mercantile business at Wayland and had hundreds of friends and relatives in this section.

Surviving him are two brothers and two sisters: Harry Cooley, Norton; Frank Cooley, Garrett; Mrs. Lee Hall, Auxier; Mrs. Mary Turner, Northern. He was an uncle of Circuit Clerk W. W. Cooley.

The body was taken Tuesday to the home of Mrs. Turner at Northern, and funeral rites will be conducted there Friday morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev. J. B. Clark officiating. Burial will be made in the cemetery at the direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

300 WANTED FOR TRAINING IN SHOP HERE

FOUNDATION WORK ON SHOP BUILDING IS STARTED HERE

With the beginning of work Tuesday on the foundation of a machine shop here, County Judge E. P. Hill, Jr., announces that a minimum of 300 youths between the ages of 18 and 24 are wanted to begin the study of national defense work as soon as the building is completed and machinery is installed.

Youths of this age group who have at least two years' high school training should register immediately to the district employment office at Pikeville, he said.

The courses to be offered last on the average of six months and enable students to do skilled defense labor. While studying, the youths will be paid $2 a month, Judge Hill said.

The structure started Tuesday is expected to be ready for occupancy by December 15. Speedy construction is made possible, since the building will be of pre-fabricated steel.

The shop, 60 feet wide by 120 feet long, will be built by the National Youth Administration at a cost of approximately $20,000. It was said last week. Machinery to be used is valued at $40,000.

The lot 200 feet by 120 feet was acquired from the Richmond estate at the upper limits of Prestonburg. Plans were prepared by the county and County Attorney W. Claude Caudill, a few hours after the project was offered Floyd county as a site could be prepared. Purchase of the site and foundation work entail the county's total outlay.

BLACK CATS LOSE, 12-6

THANKSGIVING TILT WON BY PAINTSVILLE IN LAST QUARTER

After holding the highly-favored Paintsville Tigers scoreless through the first half, Prestonburg's Black Cats succumbed to their traditional foe in the last period to lose their annual Thanksgiving game, played last night at Paintsville, 12 to 6.

The last half was played in a rainstorm which made life miserable for the players as well as for several hundred fans from the two towns.

Loss of Senters, star tackle, who was banished early in the second quarter, severely crippled the Prestonburg team, both defensively and offensively. Both he and Senters of Paintsville were ejected for unsportsmanlike conduct in the last quarter for the same reason.

Heavy favorites, the Paintsville boys were fouled by a stambool through most of the afternoon. Prestonburg's line functioned better than at any time this season.

Paintsville drew first blood, mid-way the third quarter, when Brown slithered across on a line plunge. A few minutes later, Prestonburg's Butler was loose for a touchdown when he fell on the Tiger 20 with a clear field ahead. Early in the last quarter, however, the Cats launched an offensive that paid off when Butler drove across from the five. All attempts at conversions failed.

With the score knotted, Paintsville went back in the fourth to drive deep into Prestonburg territory, with Stapleton finally scoring.

Outstanding for the winners were Butler, Holme, Spradlin and Senters (as long as he was in the game), in the line.

Thursday was the last high school game for Butler, Clark, Merritt, Burke, Lester and Melton. The first four named are the only regulars lost from the team, and 1942 should see Prestonburg with one of the best teams in Eastern Kentucky.

FIRE DESTROYS THEATER BUILDING HERE WEDNESDAY

Editor's note: With this photograph, THE TIMES introduces to its readers its own engraving plant. The picture is from the first "home-made" cut in the history of Big Sandy journalism. THE TIMES acknowledges the assistance of Chas. A. Grote, editor of The Pike County News, in the preparation of the cut.

BREAK GROUND FOR BUILDING

PROGRAM STRESSES MOUNTAIN CULTURE IN SONG AND STORY

The temporal site of the proposed home-workshop of the Plainsoon Chanters of Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James was not stressed Sunday as ground was broken for the foundation of a cabin on the C. P. Stephenson lot, at the corner of Friend and Highland here.

Following that brief ceremony at the site of what Mrs. James and her sister, Mrs. Winnie P. Johns, have visions of becoming a craft shop wherein the Chanters may earn a living, the cultural side of mountain music and folklore, together with a display of the crafts which the Chanters may ply, was presented.

MYSTERY FIRE IS BLAMED FOR LOSS

DAMAGE OF $30,000 BELIEVED CAUSED BY FLAMES

The Broadway Theater building here, with all its equipment, was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon at an estimated loss of $30,000.

The blaze appeared while a small machine crowd was enjoying the film offering and the theater-goers had no more than cleared the building when its interior was immersed in smoke and flame.

W. B. Boyd, manager of the theater, which he had leased from Town Hall County Superintendent Schools, and Beome Hall, principal of the Wayland consolidated school, who owned the building and equipment, said the fire was of mysterious origin.

Theater-goers said they first discovered the fire in the vicinity of the stage, some saying that they first saw the flames in the stage curtain. J. C. Sprulin, whose insurance office occupied a wing of the building, said that, by the time he could telephone the fire department and leave his office, flames were breaking from the front of the structure.

By the fire department could be notified, the flames were beyond control. An unnamed youth, said to be a resident of Bull Creek section, tore loose two stoves in the front of the theater, losing a flow of gas into the building, and it was theorized that this may have caused the rapid spread of fire over the building.

White smoke billowed from the theater and as hundreds watched practical efforts of the fire department to control the blaze, a vain attempt at dynamiting the roof was made.

The nearby home of J. A. Jody's Spradlin was saved, though threatened by walls that might topple later.

The theater was built in 1939 and was operated by J. A. Jody for a few months. It was built by M. G. Elliott, a part-owner in the building. The structure was 100 feet long by 46 feet in width and had a seating capacity of 500. It was of brick-and-iron construction and housed modern theater equipment.

Construction building could not be reached Thursday for exact figures on the cost of the building. It

Washington, D. C.

BRITISH AND U. S. POLICY U. S. diplomats are not shouting it from the housetops, but there have been two important occasions when the British put a very restraining hand on American foreign policy, and checked major moves in the South Atlantic and the Pacific.

Once more was last May when it became emphatically apparent that the Viceroy government was the tool of Hitler, and when many U. S. strategists favored the taking of Martinique and the Azores, and perhaps even a landing force at Dakar in French West Africa.

But the Churchill government protested that this would take U. S. ships away from transporting supplies to the British Isles and focus American attention upon another part of the world. So Roosevelt cabinet took a different line.

The second move was about two weeks ago when Mr. Churchill telephoned the President to advise against any showdown with Japan.

Churchill urged that the battle in Europe was the main show and the United States should not get absorbed with side-shows.

Regarding this Churchill advice, there continues to be a wide rift inside the Roosevelt administration.

And incidentally, there is not complete unity on this point inside the British government. Australian sentiment leans toward a cleaning up of the Pacific situation, after which all parts of the British Empire, plus perhaps the United States, could concentrate on Europe.

Rift in Administration. Inside the Roosevelt administration, the men who urge a go-slow policy toward Japan are the Chief of Staff, chief of naval operations, and the state department.

On the other hand, many of the other admirals, including Admiral Ernest King, commander of the Atlantic fleet, say they can get along in the Atlantic merely by a present contingent of destroyers and light cruisers, which are all that are needed for convoying.

The first big point of the "strong policy" admirals is that every day delay weakens the Russians, and the Russians are the big potential allies of the United States against Japan.

With Russian bombing planes operating from Vladivostok against the paper and bamboo houses of Tokyo and Yokohama, the first one to die, and it hopes returns the Seventeenth Derby anniversary, three years further on, into the greatest pageant of them all.

It has been some time since Colonel Bradley won one of these Bluegrass features, so he is equally active in having another three-year-old ready, one with a chance to win. His Birmehel just missed out.

Colonel Winn has an idea at this moment that Alab may be the greatest Derby winner of all time. As great as Alab is, there is a wide gap between a two-year-old and a three-year-old, considering all the deadly incidents that can happen in a thoroughbred, including housemaid's knee and the pip.

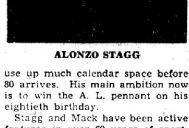

AMONG the real wild kids of sport I'd like to nominate at least four rookies. They are Alamo Stag, 79, Connie Mack, 78, Matt Winn, 81, and E. R. Bradley, 82. Their average age is around 80 and they are just beginning to get up steam.

There must be something hooked to sport that blocks off the attacking years. Slugg, one of Walter Camp's All-America veterans in 1889, which happens to be 52 years ago, is still one of the hardest-weather football coaches in the trade.

Slugg, one of Walter Camp's All-America veterans in 1889, which happens to be 52 years ago, is still one of the hardest-weather football coaches in the trade. Slugg uses running spikes in place of crutches. They fell out at the College of the Pacific he is all over the field like a runaway coyote—and Slugg isn't more than a short chip shot away from 80.

Along the same line Connie Mack is all set for his next spring training trip. Using this time to lift his Athletics up around the bottom of the first division, Connie, also, won't

Slugg and Mack have been active features in over 60 years of sport, and neither is looking for a sunset port.

Colonel Winn has seen all the Kentucky Derbies ever run since the first one in 1875, and he hopes returns the Seventeenth Derby anniversary, three years further on, into the greatest pageant of them all.

The Two Races. Although spring practice is three months away, American league managers—plus owners—plus ball players—are still brooding over the promised strength of the Yankees.

In the meanwhile, another all-sampler scramble among Dodgers, Cardinals, Reds and possibly Pirates or someone else. "The Red Sox with Johnny Vander Meer and Eban Riddle on hand to help out their pitching veterans will get a better club next spring if Bill Denehy can plug one or two gaps. Bill is lucky these gaps are not in his pitching department, the toughest canyon to fill up in the Sox.

FLU GERM ISOLATED AND PICTURE TAKEN; DISCOVERY MAY LEAD TO NEW VACCINES

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—An incredibly small and deadly bullet-shaped molecule, only four-millionths of an inch thick, has been branded as the cause of one of the mysteries of mankind, human influenza.

Its isolation, and its picture taken, was by a new electron microscope. We described today in the American Philosophical Society.

Magnified 25,000 diameters until it shows up as a very tiny grey dot on a photograph, the picture is of a dead specimen taken from the flu infection which killed a person here three years ago.

Carl Ferguson, Sunday School superintendent, presented Rev. and Mrs. Hahn and family a staid shower of fruit from Maytown friends.

Practically all kinds of available fruits were included, most of it having been utilized in the elaborate decorations. One centerpiece on the altar rail being a fruit bowl made from a 75-pound pumpkin. Baskets of nuts and popcorn were tucked among the decorations, and the climax was a huge wheelbarrow, attractively decorated, and wheeled in by E. R. May, Jr. This contained a bushel or more each of apples, oranges and grapefruit, nuts filling the crevices. A staid shower of fruit was also presented by Mrs. Thomas Patrick, substitute teacher of the adult class, was chairman of the shower. Rev. Hahn graciously accepted, and then made an inspiring talk on Thanksgiving.

Seventh grade students won the dollar offered in the Sunday School attendance contest, award New blackboards were put up in the Sunday School rooms Sunday, and Sunday School buttons offered all pupils who can recite the Apostles Creed. Corrupt Practice Act Violation Alleged In Pike County

Violation of the Corrupt Practice Act is charged in five election contest suits, filed Monday night at the office of W. Taubee Smith.

Election of H. Pauley as county judge, D. T. Kay as sheriff, John Scott as jailer and J. Lee Newsum and Quay Potter as magistrates in Districts 2 and 3 respectively, is disputed in the suits, all filed by defeated candidates in the various races.

The contestants, all Democrats, are: Abner May, Moser Keese, Lawrence Branham, W. J. Tackett and J. A. Bartley.

Generally speaking, the petitions filed set forth the same charges. They alleged that the contestants expended more than the legal limit in their campaigns, and that they purchased votes at the polls.

It was announced that Mr. Smith's office that no action had been taken today (Wednesday) by Circuit Judge R. Monroe Fields.

The petitions ask that certificates of election which were given the contestants be cancelled, and that new certificates be given the contestants for the various offices. They claimed in their petitions that they polled the majority of the legal votes cast in the election.

All the petitions further asked that in the event the court should be of the opinion that by reason of fraud, bribery, intimidation or other illegal voting, that it cannot be fairly determined who received the majority of all the votes that the elections in the various cases be adjudged null and void.

One of the contestants, Moser Keese, previously had started a recount action, but counting of the votes was halted at his motion after only twenty-one precincts had been tallied.—Pike County News.

Creation of New Ward Declared To Be Illegal

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 22.—Creation by the present city council of a new ward in Paintsville, which it was declared would give the mayor a majority in the incumbent council, was declared illegal by Assistant Attorney General Guy H. Herdman Monday.

F. Daniel, of Paintsville, county Democratic election commissioner, wrote that after the November election resulted in the Mayor losing control of council, the present council added a new ward and appointed two new members to represent it. There are two members from each of the four old wards, and the change assured the Mayor of a majority in the new body, Daniel explained.

Under the statutes, said Herdman, new wards may be created in which their representatives will be chosen. He also said there was no legal authority for council to appoint members to represent wards in such cases.

NOTED MYSTIC TO DRIVE CAR, BLINDFOLDED, THROUGH MARTIN, NEXT TUESDAY AT 4 P.M.

No less spectacular will be Kirma's demonstration of hypnosis in Dermont's Store at Martin next Thursday noon when a young lady will concentrate upon a young lady who will listen to the magic words of suggestion which serve to cast her into a seven-hour trance.

Kirma will take up his microphone and speak a few words of suggestion in English and utter cryptic sounds in an unknown tongue and the young lady will listen to swoon under his magnetic spell. He then will cast his subject into a state of rigidity and sound sleep.

Lawrence Keathley, of the Martin Theater, who is responsible for Kirma's advance representative points out that he should not be mistaken to lead the visible thread of the experiment to be broken.

Kirma has successfully negotiated these blindfold drives in American cities and European continents. The blindfold drive will make an important epic in the annals of local theatricals in Martin.

At Kirma's spook party on Saturday night of next week he will display the most terrific spirits. He'll cause them to float about and do this and that then he'll expose them, as he'll tell how the spirits were conjured.

Yes, Martin is in for a week of mysticism. It will be an enjoyable peek into the realm of the never-never land for most and a brilliantly interesting week for those who like to delve into the mysterious.

Farmers Use Food Produced At Home

In a survey made in Henderson and Union counties, the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics found the average value of home-used products in farms to be $240 last year. This was calculated at farm prices, and would have been doubled had retail prices been used.

The average value of home-produced products used on 82 farms were: milk and milk products, $62; pork, $54; poultry, $25; other meat, $2; eggs, $18; fruits and vegetables, $70, and house rent, $197.

The value of food alone furnished the family amounted to $238. Quantities included 630 gallons of milk, 200 pounds of pork, 138 pounds of poultry, 24 pounds of beef and mutton, and 126 dozens eggs.

YOUTH POINTS A WAY

PUBLISHED recently in THE TIMES was the account of the Johns Creek 4-H Club's activities in the Food-Defense program, and therein may lie a simple solution to many problems which may face those whose task it is to organize farmers to higher production of foodstuffs.

When told by County Agent Isbell of the efforts to be made soon to procure from farmers of the county greater production of butter fat, milk, pork, beef, poultry and eggs, nine boys of the club promptly volunteered to raise a pig, next year, not for home consumption but for the market. The boys will by their pigs in February and market them in November.

That is lessening the job for adult farmers of the community by almost a ton of pork. This cooperation of the 4-H boys is reducing the task of those assigned to seeing that Johns Creek farms produce more foodstuffs.

Although the Food-for-Defense program naturally cannot be thrown altogether on the shoulders of the boys and girls of 4-H and Junior Farmer organizations, this one bit of initiative points the way to a short-cut to getting things started in any community.

At the same time, while the boys and girls are growing a pig or a calf, they will be growing in stature as they willingly assume a responsibility on their own behalf and on that of their country. To encourage such endeavor, some of us, older, our banking institutions and business firms, should cooperate with the youngsters if they need help in buying such livestock.

FULL COLLABORATION NEXT?

RELIABLE ADVICES from Vichy indicate that France may enter unreservedly into Adolf Hitler's "new order" in Europe. If true, this signals the military and political defeat for the democracies. This is so, even though Vichy already is more than cool to Britain and her allies, and already is collaborating extensively with the Axis.

Full French affiliation with Hitler would put the French fleet, air force, and all military resources of the French Empire at the disposal of Hitler. French economy would be geared completely to that of the Axis. Police and military administrations would be shaken up to enforce the new collaboration ruthlessly.

Of greater importance, perhaps, would be a new resolution upon the part of the French people. With France committed wholly to an Axis victory and a British defeat, the French people, now bolstered by their hope of a British triumph, may feel that the die has been cast, that they must accept their destiny as a part of the "new order." At any rate, the opportunities for sabotage and revolt will be lessened if Germany assumes full control of the country.

Another effect of France's entry into the "new order" would be the virtually automatic break in diplomatic relations between Vichy and the United States. The only important diplomatic relations which remain, such as relations with Vichy. This would deprive Hitler's enemies of a valuable listening post, and remove a factor which has been important in keeping an anti-Nazi spirit alive in France.

MORALE-LOW? YOU CAN BOOST IT!

HOW MUCH truth there may be in stories of low morale in army camps we don't know. General Marshall says morale is all right until people started debating about whether service should have been extended; then it fell. Naturally. Be all that as it may have been, these things are obviously true.

- 1. If we are going to have any army at all, its morale must be up-top. 2. If it isn't up-top, nothing is gained by wringing hands and moaning how bad it is. 3. General Lear is right when he says that any tendency in the army merely reflects low morale back home.

4. The way to improve morale is to improve morale. The army is doing its share. The young men in the army are the best in the world. They are OUR young men, Americans, and there are no better. Now how about your share? 5. Review in your mind exactly what you have done to help keep the boys' spirits up. If you haven't done one solitary thing, isn't it about time? Now, starting from that basis, let us call attention to one thing that is being done. In Cleveland there is being promoted a "Bandits from Home" movement. On a given day, people from all over the Cleveland area are going together to gather bundles for boys in the service whom they know, or even whom they don't know. They're going to mail them all at once; one or more camps of Ohio soldiers are going to get a sudden deluge of presents and remembrances from home that will show them that they aren't forgotten, that they and their service are appreciated.

A box of candy—a carton of cigarettes—an article of clothing—a book of stamps—a package of razor blades—there are a thousand little remembrances that can be sent, either personally to a relative or friend, or impersonally to all the troops in general, and they're all welcome. They will tend to show the boys that they have not been cut off from America, that at home, as well as they at camp, are all striving out cause—the cause of the country we love.

We have a hunch that this movement will spread. It's a game anybody can play; it doesn't take much money.

Morale low at camp? Don't blame the boys. Don't blame the army. Don't blame the harsh world in general. Accept your share of the blame—and do something!—Cyril Times-Tribune.

FOUR THOUSAND YEARS OF CULTURE

AMERICANS, shouts Dr. Robert Ley, Hitler's labor taskmaster, should establish 4,000 years of culture before calling Germans and Italians barbarians.

Thanks, afraid we can't wait. A culture is best estimated, it seems to the crude American mind, by its fruits. The fruits of the culture so revered by Dr. Ley is now on exhibition throughout all that part of Europe now covered by the "new order," and its rotten fruit.

The United States sought to glory in the fact that it hasn't got 4,000 years of such "culture" behind it. Mark Twain laughed at once and for all the European appeal to the authenticity of age. A caustic Frenchman, thinking to put upstart United States culture in its place, sneered that in that raw country so little attention was paid to antecedents that scarcely anyone knew who his own grandfather was. Twain admitted the soft impeachment, and added that in France a man was lucky to know who his own father was.

Of immediate antecedents of the learned Dr. Ley, we know nothing, and can only trust that he is himself better informed than the host of a 4,000-year cultural tradition which bears no better fruit as its culminating glory than Nazism, let us be quite clear that it is a delight to be no part of any such a continuity.

The important thing about a cultural inheritance is not what was by its big, but what you do with it? To be actively in the midst of the creation of a new culture which we have reason to hope may some day be truly civilized, is far better than to be at the far end of a cultural tradition, one honorable, but betrayed and traduced by its present representative.

Behind the roaring of Dr. Ley there is a rustling murmur. It comes from all the great figures of the past, who created the 4,000-year-old cultural tradition of which Dr. Ley dares to brag, the artists, the writers, the musicians, the statesmen and philosophers. They gaze with blank horror down the corridors of time at the grisly reversion to barbarism being engineered by Dr. Ley and his cohorts. The rustling grows louder. They are turning over in their graves!—Ashland Daily Independent.

BUILDING ANYTHING, MISTER? SPAB has ruled that no new public or private building may be started unless it is essential to the health and safety of the country. Pop. there goes that idea of a new two-car garage!

The government must save all "critical material" for the war. Critical material is almost everything from the blueprint to the architect's bill.

The man who has just dug a cellar for anything may find he is just the custodian of a hole for the duration of the war.

Director Donald M. Nelson says that if you have a building partly finished he will try to take you out of your position in mid-air, but it is more than likely that the man with a house only 50 per cent finished will just put a sign "Open By Order" on the door project.

This is an all-out war and it appears to be leaving the building all out of most everything from cellar door hinges to jousting rods.

Is the construction directly necessary for national defense, or for the health and safety of the civilian population? This is the test question Washington asks. How are you going to make a new country home fit into that?

In fact, how are you going to make a garage fit?

Almost everything is necessary to defense, including those bronze dog-knockers and the bathtub faucets.

"The House that Jack Built" is becoming the Bungalow that Nelson Stopped.

Mr. Nelson says the restrictions will not "pork barrel" projects. The answer to that is "Wanna bet?"

He will have his work cut out for him trying to convince a congressman that the new power dam at Wheeling Valley is essential to the safety of the country and that the de luxe post office in Cribbage Hollow isn't vital to the health of every politician involved.

Some questions and answers issued by the SPAB to explain the situation include: Q.—If I were building a 10-story building and had four stories up could I get material to finish it? A.—Very likely, yes. Q.—If only an excavation existed? A.—It would be a tussle.

And the builder would be "He who gets tossed."

AS MA GOOSE MIGHT PUT IT This is the house that Jack built. This is the architect that planned the house that Jack built.

This is the owner who said is he? Who got word from S.P.A.B. He couldn't get stuff needed for the cellar and the second floor.

LINES ON LONGEVITY (An average life span of 550 years is attainable if conditions of the body at the age of 10 years are retained, according to a professor in the Columbia university school of medicine.—News Item.) Consider, please, the child of ten. Whose bodily condition? A miracle to learned men, Profound and mysterious. Who say that if we could retain This stamina and vigor, Five hundred years we might remain. And somewhat more, they figure, But I have watched a child at play, From morning until night time, And wearily I now must say, That three-score ten is quite time.—Richard Armour.

There is a 5 per cent tax on all railroad plane and boat tickets now, and one hesitate to think what this must mean to Mrs. Roosevelt. Commuters are exempted. This is the first instance in history where a commuter got any consideration whatever.

Roach powders are now hit by priorities. An ingredient is needed by munitions. Well, if the insecticide man goes after Hitler we'll take care of the situation around our own kitchen sink.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander: From James W. Barrett's book on Great Britain, the great case of pebbliness: "Journalist in JP's (Pulitzer) conception, is a statesman as well as a writer. The basis of it was something that had persisted than persistent curiosity about people and things. JP, of course, was the most incorrigible busy-body of his day and age. His habit of asking questions about everything under the sun and demanding accurate as well as immediate answers was an amusing and often annoying trait, but it was only a mechanical habit when an eager, sensitive mind was kept supplied with working material. He had an objective which he refused to put aside. As long as he lived, he wanted to inform and mold public opinion—not just for the sake of profit, but for the sake of progress in the direction where he thought America ought to be heading."

Our Incorrigible Busybody Dep't.: Doesn't American Intelligence think that Great Britain, after a severe case of pebbliness poisoning? Aren't the members of the Supreme Court now all pulling one way—at each other's hair? Did you know that the President changed the nickname for Morgenthau to "Six Per Cent Hairy"? What has happened? Aren't we suffering from make-up poisoning? (Their friends make up the stories, and they do the poisoning.) What invention can drop a sandbag down a chimney at 20,000 feet? And what Sec'y of War would like to do it to what Washington columnist?

Why do the Supreme Court Justices call their edifice "the Mausoleum" when it isn't that? Why? Hasn't photography helped the British? Did you know that the Holts would? Wouldn't this be an aid to Britain? To mail the photostats to your friends and let His Majesty's Government know? Don't you know that Canadian official, who believes the war can be won by lowering wages, will shortly be elevated by a kick in the tail light?

What size tank is giving the Generals a bigger headache than the Privates who steer them? What Ambassador turned in an honest report on our economy? For what Cabinet post are there more volunteers than for the Marine Corps? And which Sec'y of State is vastly more popular than the original? Jones, loan his brother $1,500? Why, isn't Jesse wearing his brother's suit? Why is the Sec'y of State called Sec'y of State's secretary said good morning to him? Who defines a liberal as a guy who will forgive anything but a contribution to his campaign? Did Fleet officers of the Pacific Fleet split squately on the question of whether it will take three weeks or a month to "save" the Jap navy? Who are the prominent Britishers have the jitters since the Gov't's inquiry into foreign-owned bonds. The only thing in which Noel Coward was small fry. And isn't it true that the so-called Americans brag about their ancestors landing on Plymouth Rock—and act as though they had just crawled from under it?

SCHOOL-KEEPING AND TEACHING-SCHOOL

By B. D. JUDD, Ph.D. Morehead State Teachers' College

THE WRITER recalls to mind, as a school boy around 1910, two teachers who taught in his home county. Let us begin by telling you about the educational philosophy of Mr. A. He thought that his proper and special function was to communicate his ideas to the minds of his pupils. He regarded the child's mind as a sort of "tabula rasa" or a blank wax tablet upon which he was to etch indelibly his own patterns of thought. His pupils were only recipients. It was his mission to tell them not only what to think, but how to think. Mr. A. had so little faith in the ability of his pupils that he continually put out the data and drew off the conclusions and handed them pre-digested right across the desk to his pupils. Little did Mr. A. realize that he was thereby robbing Mary, Peter, and Paul of their intellectual birthrights. And so he continued in his little way, month in and month out, to temporize with the truths of life.

But what about Mr. B? In the first place he set out with a different regard for the personalities of his children. He held the notion that even little children are competent to weigh and analyze facts, and to make valid conclusions, if the problems were on their level. Mr. B. made it an inviolable rule of his life never to tell a child anything which he could find out for himself. Again, Mr. B. did not get "hot and bothered" over the occasional errors of youth. He seemed to realize that blunders are the common experiences of adults, so why should he not be patient and sympathetic with children in their mistakes? We need particularly no further here about the teaching qualities of Mr. B., except by way of comparison. Thus, we have A. and B. briefly contrasted, the former concentrated on the rod, memorization, and indoctrination, but the latter held to the idea that the child was always the center of gravity in the school-room.

The writer started out to tell a little story with a human interest side. May we get back to our original purpose if for only a brief conclusion? Perhaps the reader would like to know the whereabouts of Mr. A. and Mr. B. Well, Mr. B. has been moved three times, elementary school, high school, and college, each time more salary and into a greater sphere of usefulness. But what became of Mr. A? He became a fixture in the little red schoolhouse, and it seems that only the "grim reaper" will be able to move him—and perhaps then, not upward.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

UNDERSTATEMENT

A FEW DAYS AGO I attended a church service in which the preacher called those who differed from him in doctrinal points larks. That crudity made me hark back over my early life to see whether such could have existed in our crude times. Rather oddly, I cannot remember ever having heard even the most ardent revivalist engage in such rough language, although, of course, he said the same thing by implication quite often. When a heated evangelist used some unprintable words about whiskey, though our community was dry and still is, all the people felt shocked that a dignified man would thus stoop to ugly words. Of course the lark often used words as hard as cannonballs, but they were not supposed to be cultured or respected above the average. Contrary to what many of our contemporaries think, primitive people do not necessarily use harsh and uncompromising language. Understatement is quite likely to be heard.

A mathematical mind would have been puzzled and irked at this habit of understatement. If you stopped to ask how far it was to a certain town or house, you would be told it was "purty far" or "a right smart piece." Measure that on a tape-line. Once I started to visit my cousin, some 15 miles away in Henry county, Tennessee. I drove until I had come to the end of my usual knowledge of the road and then stopped to ask a farmer plowing in the fields how far I still had to go. He told me that four more miles would be enough. I drove at least four and a half and was still lost; another farmer told me that seven more would get me there. About eight miles would have been correct, about seven miles driving. Probably neither one had been to the village I was seeking, and, besides, miles meant nothing then, before the days of automobiles. Long after cars came into use, that is, after I got my T-model, I had distances named to me that varied as much as 200 per cent. It has been only some dozen years, anyway, that we have had state highway markers and much less time than these have shown distances.

Understatement was somewhat provoking to me when some one came for the doctor, my father. To father's queries as to the symptoms the answers were so indefinite that I wondered how father could ever judge what was wrong and wondered even more why a doctor should have been sought when there was nothing worse than the matter. "How long has your wife been sick?" "Oh, four or five days." "What does she complain of?" "See says she kinder gits tired when she is cookin'?" (She got up at 3 in the morning and cooked breakfast for all ten of the family.) "Where does she hurt?" "Purt' nigh all over, she says." After all those may be pretty good symptoms.

In school direct accusation was common, but when the teacher pinned us down, it was hard for us to tell a direct thing. When I attended the Magistrate court, the same indifference prevailed. People were jailed or fined, however, on these half-hearted accusations. Probably the august Magistrate knew what allowances to make for the understatements made by the witnesses and the culprit himself. All of you know the story of the young boy who was a witness in a case where a rock was thrown by the culprit. "How big was this rock?" asked the Judge. "Why, about as big, uh, uh, as a lump of coal." This would not sound especially funny in many of the communities where I have been.

Dread of telling a falsehood probably lay behind this habit of making things less than they are. In older times people were dreadfully afraid of an untruth, and sometimes they were literal-minded enough to split hairs over the most innocent fact.

SCHOOL-KEEPING AND TEACHING-SCHOOL

By B. D. JUDD, Ph.D. Morehead State Teachers' College

THE WRITER recalls to mind, as a school boy around 1910, two teachers who taught in his home county. Let us begin by telling you about the educational philosophy of Mr. A. He thought that his proper and special function was to communicate his ideas to the minds of his pupils. He regarded the child's mind as a sort of "tabula rasa" or a blank wax tablet upon which he was to etch indelibly his own patterns of thought. His pupils were only recipients. It was his mission to tell them not only what to think, but how to think. Mr. A. had so little faith in the ability of his pupils that he continually put out the data and drew off the conclusions and handed them pre-digested right across the desk to his pupils. Little did Mr. A. realize that he was thereby robbing Mary, Peter, and Paul of their intellectual birthrights. And so he continued in his little way, month in and month out, to temporize with the truths of life.

But what about Mr. B? In the first place he set out with a different regard for the personalities of his children. He held the notion that even little children are competent to weigh and analyze facts, and to make valid conclusions, if the problems were on their level. Mr. B. made it an inviolable rule of his life never to tell a child anything which he could find out for himself. Again, Mr. B. did not get "hot and bothered" over the occasional errors of youth. He seemed to realize that blunders are the common experiences of adults, so why should he not be patient and sympathetic with children in their mistakes? We need particularly no further here about the teaching qualities of Mr. B., except by way of comparison. Thus, we have A. and B. briefly contrasted, the former concentrated on the rod, memorization, and indoctrination, but the latter held to the idea that the child was always the center of gravity in the school-room.

The writer started out to tell a little story with a human interest side. May we get back to our original purpose if for only a brief conclusion? Perhaps the reader would like to know the whereabouts of Mr. A. and Mr. B. Well, Mr. B. has been moved three times, elementary school, high school, and college, each time more salary and into a greater sphere of usefulness. But what became of Mr. A? He became a fixture in the little red schoolhouse, and it seems that only the "grim reaper" will be able to move him—and perhaps then, not upward.

Historic Cumberland Gap First Shrine of Kentucky

(This is one of a series of articles sponsored by the Kentucky Press Association which in 1941 would tell Kentuckians as Kentucky should tell the world in 1942—Sequel-Centennial Year.)

AS KENTUCKIANS prepare to celebrate the sequel-centennial of the state's admission to the Union in 1792, Cumberland Gap is one historic shrine of preeminent importance. It was through this historic gateway, on the western range of the Appalachians, that the hunters and founders of Kentucky passed in the conquest of "The Dark and Bloody Ground." This Wilderness Trail, crisscrossing the Kentucky land as the pass and following the general route of the age-old Warriors Path of the Indians, became the life-line which fed the young commonwealth from 1775 to 1825.

Cumberland Gap, framed by the portals of Piney Mountain and three States Peak, witnessed the most amazing migration in the annals of American history, and most of present-day Kentuckians, as well as many residents of the states of the Northwest, cherish with pride the memory of their heroic ancestors who trod the Wilderness Trail and the other pioneers through the old gateway and along the dangerous trail in the dark wilderness before the valleys of the Blue Grass were reached.

Nationally known for its influence upon the course of American history, Cumberland Gap and the surrounding scenic region is now scheduled for development as a National Historical Park, through the cooperation of Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia. Prominent in pioneer history, a strategic point in the Civil War struggle, and the focal point of a spectacular industrial development in 1870, the pass has been the scene of tremendous episodes typical of the growth of the nation.

Historic Cumberland Gap, the long blue wall of the Cumberland, set in twin at the Gap, the tumbling streams and intersecting caverns, through the mountain, the Mountain at the Narrows where the Cumberland River breaks out of its mountain imprisonment, the famous Cumberland Ford over which the pilgrims crossed, and the sylvan-locked Lanes Cove in Pine Mountain State Park where the famous Kentuckians come each year to exclaim in admiration the magnificent beauty of the mountains, and the scenic spots.

The life of humanity which once flowed through the area is burning again to take shape of conquest, to enjoy its beauty and to visualize again the glories of the past.

IF AMUNDSEN REALLY IS LOST IN ARCTIC WASTES-MAYBE HE'S SATISFIED THERE

By HENRY WILENSKY (In The Clarion-Journal)

OUT of the Far North comes a strange story. An American fur trader employed by the Alaska Trading Corporation is reported to have found a white man living among the Eskimos on the edge of the North Baffin Sea. The trader struck by the man's resemblance to Roald Amundsen, world-famous Norwegian explorer who was lost in the Arctic in 1928 while going to the rescue of the Reza Hanzen.

The American questioned the man and his suspicion was confirmed. The man admitted that he was Amundsen, and explained that he had escaped unhurt when his plane crashed. "The strangest part of the story was that the man who said he was Amundsen didn't want to be rescued. He declared any desire to return to civilization."

Home Butchering Equipment Plans

The College of Agriculture and Home Economics of the University of Kentucky is distributing plans for building home butchering equipment on the farm which will make butchering easier and more efficient. The equipment is not elaborate or expensive and can be made of common materials probably to be found right on the farm. The equipment is designed for butchering small animals such as chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese, and rabbits. The plans can be had from the county agent or written to the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Lexington.

Rockcastle County Tobacco Does Well

The grading demonstrations in Rockcastle county, farmers saw tobacco that yields an average of 1,000 stalks on an acre and a tenth it stripped nearly a pound to the stalk. According to County Agent R. E. Spence, a heavy stand of burley was turned out, and 30 tons of raw mature, 1,000 pounds of superphosphate and 400 pounds of 4-8-6 fertilizer applied. Mr. Bullock has been offered 30 cents a pound for the crop.

WAYLAND HOT-SHOTS

(The views expressed herein are those of the writer and not necessarily those of The Times.)

It seems that some one needs to pinch-hit for the Shikpoke, who I believe, failed to make a safe return from Salt River.

I see in The Times that John S. Hampton seems to think that the miners who laid their tools down and quit were on strike in violation of the district contract. Sorry, John, old pal, we just needed a few days rest and there was nothing to keep you from working your mines if you could get enough men to operate. Too many people think that, as soon as a coal miner stops work, the miners are on strike. Public opinion is always against labor. It seems to me the whole thing in this "capture" of mine strike went back to Eugene Grace, Tom Girdler, J. P. Morgan, the millionaires who control Wall Street.

John L. Lewis controls the miners—that is true, we admit. But he could be put behind prison bars and still control 90 per cent of the coal mines. I am a coal miner and used to work what they called the 8-hour day. But it was, not the 8-hour day—it was 8 hours before dinner and 8 hours after dinner. Day labor then was $1.92 a day, 28¢ a ton loading rate. Today it is $7.00 to $9.00; loading rate, $1.75 per ton. So why should a coal miner defy John L. Lewis? Yes, I could hug and kiss him, truly as he is.

Noble Hobbs is working at Clear Creek. Too bad for him that the men over 27 years old were exempted—he wanted so bad to get in Uncle Sam's army.

Joe Hicks has moved back to Wayland and joined the staff of the supervisor force of the Elk Horn Coal Corporation. The men who work for Joe say that he is a pretty good "scoother." Stay right in there, pal—you may be general manager some day.

Henry Campbell was over here Saturday. Don't know but what he may want to come back here. This water is good, Henry—get you a jugful, next time.

Freddie Franklin's grandpa had a big crib full of corn and the squirrels took to it and were about to eat it all up. The squirrels were dining in an old tree out from the corn crib. So the old man went out one day and all the squirrels were in the crib. In order to get rid of them, he decided to cut the tree down. So down it falls and here come the squirrels—and they were running so fast that when they fell they they ran 90 feet up in the air before they found that the tree wasn't there.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

There is a German smuggler operating in the Caribbean off the coast of Mexico.

This was the inside reason for the President's sudden transfer of the entire coast guard to the navy—the coast guard's ships and planes are needed to track down the Nazi intruder.

Sensational feature about the smuggler is that he is a former U. S. vessel—the 800-ton Diesel-engineered yacht that once belonged to A. Altvater Kent, Philadelphia radio magnate.

The one-time pleasure ship now is being operated under the Panamanian flag out of Vera Cruz, Mexico, by Nazi agents in that city, and is being used to transport high test gasoline and mercury to the Caribbean islands where Japanese ships collect the smuggled strategic supplies.

The yacht recently unloaded 1,000 flasks of mercury at an island which for military reasons must be nameless.

The former luxury craft came into possession of the Nazis by a circuitous route, with intelligence experts uncovered only a few weeks ago. The purchase was made by a shipping company whose main office is in Vera Cruz and has a branch office in New Orleans, where transfer of title took place. The price was $100,000.

Fortunately for intelligence the payment was made in U. S. bills of $1,000 denomination. From the serial numbers, the bills were traced back to a Vera Cruz bank. There it was learned the money had been withdrawn from the account of one leading Nazi business house in Mexico, and turned over to the shipping company that bought the yacht.

Subsequent investigation revealed that all the stockholders of this company were Germans; also that the two top officers were Spaniards, one a naturalized Mexican and the other a naturalized American citizen.

Now, even the movement of the yacht is watched, but there is nothing in the United States can do about the ship unless she enters American waters. So far the vessel has been very careful to stay within Mexican territorial waters.

LEND-LEASE MILK EXPERT

The most novel type of lend-lease operation thus far has been the leasing of a man named Adolph Eichhorn to help the British against tuberculosis.

The British are suffering from insufficient production of milk, because of diseased cattle, and Eichhorn is the man who will help the cow curers. He is director of the animal disease station under the department of agriculture.

Three principal diseases afflict British cattle: tuberculosis, which makes the cattle lean; Bang's disease, which results in the loss of the calf; and mastitis.

Eichhorn was obliged to tell the British that tuberculosis, which afflicts 35 per cent of British cattle, cannot be cured during the course of the war, unless the war lasts for five generations. It took the United States 22 years to get the disease under control.

Bang's disease is more readily cured. By vaccination, a calf can be immunized so that its adult life will not be afflicted with the disease.

Meantime, the British are importing great quantities of dry and powdered milk from the United States. Fresh milk is worth a king's ransom.

RETIRED FAVOR

When Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts was elected Democratic floor leader of the House, one of his strongest and most unexpected supporters was Georgia's fiery New Deal-bating Gene Cox.

Though the two men were poles apart on economic views, Cox nevertheless backed McCormack and did yeoman work for him.

"There's one condition, however, Gene," he grinned. "You'll have to refrain from those hot one-minute speeches on the floor. I don't want my stand-in taking swigs at the administration. It would look bad."

McCormack wanted the Georgian luck and left the chamber. Hardly had he departed when Cox jumped up and asked permission to address the House for one minute.

WAYLAND

ELECT OFFICERS

At its regular monthly meeting the Woman's Society for Christian Service of the Wayland Methodist Church elected the following officers for the year 1941-42: Mrs. Dan Harman, president; Mrs. John E. Bold, vice-president; Mrs. Fred Fraley, recording secretary and treasurer; Mrs. F. E. Harmon, corresponding secretary.

An interesting program was arranged by Mrs. Field, of the program committee, and a gift was presented to Mrs. E. P. Wolfe, who is moving to West Virginia. Hostesses, Mrs. E. P. Wolfe and Mrs. Earl H. Quick, served delightful refreshments to 21 members and one visitor.

Misses Vivian Harman, Marguerite Webb and Martha Helen Stotter spent the Thanksgiving holidays with Misses Marjorie Harman and Elizabeth Eileen Webb, who are attending the West Virginia Wesleyan College at Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Brooke entertained the following guests at Thanksgiving dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Cooley, of Garrett, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Crittenden Willis and daughter Toby, of Wayland.

Mrs. Elizabeth Parentt, of Lexington, Va., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Cleveland.

Miss Louise Cleveland has returned to Bowling Green Business University where she is studying for secretarial work.

Col. and Mrs. Thomas S. Haymond of Fleming, and their son, Alfred, of Fairmont, W. Va., spent Thanksgiving day with the family of J. A. C. Haymond at Wayland.

Miss Winn Belle Harris, of Paintsville, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Carl H. Martin, of Wayland.

Mrs. Hattie D. Williams, telephone operator here, has been very ill at her home for the past several days.

Inconvenience of the week-end weather kept Dan Harman's speed boat, "Swanee Thru", off the Ohio river and probably saved Mr. Harman's neck for another week.

HAROLD LAYNESVILLE

By BUSTER MOORE The Harold Rattlesnake Basketball team played the Betsy Layne eighth grade last Friday, and was defeated 4 to 2. Wayne Layne made the highest score in the last quarter. This was the Rattlesnakes' first game this year.

All the teachers of the Harold Laynesville school enjoyed the Thanksgiving dinner at the school luncheon, to raise money for the Christmas decorations.

The Rev. Henry Parsons, of Betsy Layne, preached at the Church of Christ on Sunday night. A large crowd attended.

Fields Announces Plans To Assist Ex-Soldiers

Announcing plans to find jobs for men released from military service, R. P. Fields, manager of the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission's employment offices, to register immediately at their local office.

"Some of these men are skilled workers and can take their places at once on the production lines they left when they entered the Army," the manager said. "They still have these skills and they are in good physical condition."

"Employers needing men can get full information on this new source of labor supply by calling the Louisville office of the Employment Service. Full military and occupational histories are available on each man, as well as detailed records of their training and experience."

Announcement of the new plan to aid selectees was made by the Commission's Acting Director, Robert S. Hensley, when he said that the entire resources of the Unemployment Compensation Commission are at the disposal of agencies seeking the return of army men to places in civilian employment.

While many men will return to their former jobs, Hensley said, some positions will no longer be open, and to help these men, employment personnel have been appointed to handle the problems of displaced trainees.

First Ton-Litter Produced in Boyd

Eleven pigs that weighed 2,670 pounds when 165 days old is said to be the first ton-litter produced in Boyd county, Ky. The owner is M. L. Cory. He sold the pigs for $11 a hundred pounds, and his profit was $191, above feed, pasture and labor. The pigs weighed an average of 41 pounds each when eight weeks old.

The ration included corn, ship-stuff, tankage, skim-milk, mineral mixture and rape pasture. Rape is increasing in favor among Kentucky hog raisers, according to Grady Selby, of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics. It helps to cheapen hog production.

According to County Agent Robert Wigginton, hog raising is on the increase in Eastern Kentucky.

Knox county farmers have called for 18,000 pounds of swine, far in excess of the immediately available supply.

SHIKE'S POKES

(Views expressed in this column are those of the writer and not necessarily those of The Times)

We all thought D. M. had moved. Drift—until the Secretary of War came over and showed him the way to Betsy Layne.

Bob Buttlr and Beefhead would have made it home Sunday if it hadn't been for the Town of Pikeville. They were traveling along fine until they hit the town.

We don't know how true it is, but we have some reports that Horne's car has started acting like Club's Pontiac—getting out and not getting back.

Anyone could tell by the number of misdemeanor arrests over the week-end that the election is over.

These poor dumb japs — they should know that Hitler's promise that the Pacific is just like his promising "Ole Muss" the Mediterranean—and it's getting so tough there that Italian sailors are returning to man boats, and furthermore, what the H— could they do with the U. S. Navy?

You know, everyone in this section is patriotic enough to give their all in defense of our way of life. But I've heard some of the boys say that they don't mind fighting but they sure hate to have to protect such yellow dogs as Wheeler, Lindbergh, etc.

From all sections of the country come reports that Uncle Sam's market basket is a symbol of prosperity on the farm.

Mr. Spurlin said his damage was slight. The restaurant operated by Harry Wells in the opposite wing of the building was damaged, but most of the stock and equipment was saved. It was said, Mr. Boyd said his only loss was that of a stove and a table, his interest in the theater being merely that of a spectator.

Morning after the theater fire, a small building erected at West Prestonsburg by Haley, Chisols & Morris, contractors on the Middle Creek railroad, and a number of power line poles were burned.
