Annual Bass Contest Is Announced Here

In all the 36 states where a Western Auto Supply Company Store is located, including Prestonsburg, where the company is represented by the Western Associate Store, the $4500 annual bass contest is being conducted this year.

For instance, Mr. Donahoe said, if you make the largest bass catch, you will receive fishing tackle with a list value of $40. Second prize, a tackle listed at $30; third prize, tackle listed at $25; fourth prize, 15 worth of tackle, and fifth prize, $12 in tackle.

The contest is now open and entry blanks are available at the Western Auto Associate Store here.

To eliminate any natural advantages one state would have over another in a nation-wide contest, Western Auto is giving a separate set of awards in each of the 36 states.

In this way the fish caught in any state are competing only with other fish caught in the same state. This gives all contestants an equal chance of winning one of the valuable prizes.

Last year's contest ended in a tie for the largest bass caught—14 pounds. This year, one having been caught in Florida, the one in Georgia, the smallest—but still a prize-winner in its state—was a two-pound bass caught in Vermont.

The lotus weight and prize-winning bass entered in the contest amounted to 1368 pounds; the average weight was seven pounds per fish.

The score on some of the better-known lures used in the 1941 contest was:

Heddy River Rust 13 winners
Jitterbug 10 winners
South Bend Bass Cren. 9 winners
Heddon Crazy Crawler 5 winners
Hawley Wiggler 5 winners

LAST OF EQUALIZATION FUND DISTRIBUTED TO COUNTIES

Frankfort, Ky., June 19—Final distribution of the $400,000 school equalization fund for 33 poor county school districts and six independent districts was agreed to and announced today by the state board of education.

The equalization fund, authorized by the 1942 General Assembly, provides money for any school district which cannot raise $30 for each child in average daily school membership from its maximum tax levies.

Thirty-six counties were in a position to obtain equalization funds, but Adams, Casey and Bull did not levy maximum taxes and thereby failed to qualify.

John W. Brooker, state superintendent of public instruction, said the $400,000 was pro-rated among the needy counties according to their inadequacies.

Other work done by the board: Re-elected M. R. Griffin president of the board of Kentucky Vocational School at Paducah for a one-year term beginning July 1.

Approved the budget and elected the faculty at Kentucky State College for Negroes at Frankfort. A department of business education was installed, first course of this type for negroes in Kentucky.

Selected J. Millard Taylor, former Benham high school principal, acting director for a one-year term at Mayo Vocational School, Paintsville.

Elected C. A. Robison, assistant superintendent of Louisville schools in charge of elementary education, and Earl Jones, Mayfield high school teacher and coach, to the state textbook commission.

Approved the budget and elected Joe Howard, Louisville, and A. D. Owens, Newport.

Newly counties and the equalization grants they will receive from the state include:

Breathitt, $28,859.97; Elliott, $11,867.34; Leslie, $18,974.46; Jackson, $18,904.41; Russell, $16,985.92; Clinton, $7,567.76; Whites, $22,678.72; Wayne, $14,472.56; Owsley, $7,796.14; Menifee, $4,946.47; Laurel, $17,171.27; Pulaski, $2,565.93; Clay, $17,379.18; Cumberland, $6,760.22; Letcher, $28,417.66; Edmonson, $7,719.42; Butler, $6,341.09; Magoffin, $11,644.26; Monroe, $5,094.47; Perry, $22,340.04; Knox, $13,262.72; Muhlenberg, $12,860.07; Rockcastle, $6,326.16; Meade, $6,139.48; McCreary, $7,794.34; Bell, $10,621.62; Boone, $5,906.75; Wolfe, $2,877.65; Harlan, $14,330.11; Carter, $4,441.45; Grayson, $2,336.56; Pike, $7,264.45; Johnson, $653.58.

Allotments to independent districts: Gallitiff, $1,976.71; Albany, $1,467.80; Beaver-Claan, $818.81; East Bernhardt, $345.85; Fairview, $686.94; Liberty, $170.85.

The distribution consumed $399,969.24 of the $400,000.

Board members attending today's session included Chairman Brooker; Chester Bryn, Mayfield; W. A. Broody, Cameron; Judge T. N. Roland, Richmond; Earl Llover, Louisville; Lambert Rappaport, Frankfort; W. H. Hammock, of near Louisa.

Fulwin and winter turf cuts did well in Breckridge county, with yields estimated up to 65 bushels to the acre.

If you're planning a TRAIN TRIP ... here are some hints that will help you—and also help your country's war effort

- Travel during mid-week, rather than on congested week-ends. Plan your trip in advance; purchase your railroad and Pullman tickets in advance. If your trip is postponed, immediate cancellation of your reservation will make room for someone else. When your customary Pullman space is not available, accept other accommodation or use coach service. Take your vacation either before or after the heavily traveled summer months. Travel "light"; there's no room on crowded trains for superfluous luggage. Buy round-trip tickets—save time for yourself and the ticket seller. Skip your convention. Special troop trains are more important than special convention trains. Avoid unnecessary travel—buy War Bonds instead.

Rail travel in wartime is definitely not "as usual." Like all railroads, Chesapeake and Ohio Lines are engaged in the biggest double-barrelled job in their history...

People in war industries are traveling more on necessary business. More folks are riding trains since war denied them new cars and tires. Troops are moving in greater and greater numbers. Increased war tempo demands increased essential travel. So, sometimes you won't find a railroad journey as simple and comfortable as it used to be... or as we should like it to be, as war needs come first. By following these suggestions, you'll be making travel easier for yourself... and, at the same time, you'll be serving your Uncle Sam.

FEDERAL INSPECTORS DETAIL FLOYD MINE CONDITIONS

Improvement of ventilation, correction of some dangerous practices in the use of explosives, more regular testing for gas, and better supervision of workers in order to protect health and safety in the Wheelwright mine of the Inland Steel company have been recommended by federal coal mine inspectors in a report submitted to Dr. R. R. Sayers, director of the Bureau of Mines.

located underground 75 to 100 feet from their respective mine entrances, a practice not approved by the Bureau of Mines. Although the report notes an apparent good supply of air present at all working places, the inspectors recommended removal of these four fans to the surface...

The inspectors also proposed the installation of signaling devices to warn of the slowing down or stopping of any fans. Two main fans, a nine-foot diameter centrifugal type and a six-foot diameter aerodynamic type, were housed outside the mine and were operated on an independent power circuit.

They also recommended removal of latches from ventilation doors inside the mine to prevent the doors from being left open and thereby short-circuiting the flow of air. A Bureau representative was later advised that all stoppings and doors where ventilation was weak were to be rebuilt in the mine.

Although the mine is classified as non-gassy by the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, the inspectors pointed out the possibility that methane gas may be liberated suddenly and also pointed out that the dust from the high volatile coal in the Wheelwright mine could readily propagate an explosion if one should be started by the ignition of an accumulation of gas or otherwise.

Several tests by the inspectors failed to uncover any accumulations of methane gas, but they did find some traces of this gas. Regular tests for presence of gas should be made before every working shift during the operations, the report said. The inspectors found a shortage of flame safety lamps for sealing gas in the mine but were informed the company had ordered additional lamps and would require all assistant foremen and company mine inspectors to carry the lamps and make periodic tests for gas in working places. The Kentucky law, it was pointed out, requires daily inspections of each working place by the mine foreman or his assistant.

The report praised the company for using permissible explosives and blasting methods, but criticized a practice of stemming shot-holes with coal dust, noted in several cases at the time of the federal inspection. The report also urged discontinuance of a practice whereby shot-holes were loaded and left unattended while men were engaged in removing coal cuttings.

No Blanket Increases On Tax Assessment Planned by State

Frankfort, Ky. June 23—The state Revenue Department will make no blanket increases in property assessments next year, but will leave assessments entirely up to counties.

Revenue Commissioner H. Clyde Reeves made that announcement Monday at a meeting of county tax commissioners here and added: "That puts some of you in an awful spot. If you don't do a better job your counties are going broke. Explaining the new policy which he said would be in effect at least next year, Reeves declared, 'too many tax commissioners' are 'merely copies of lists—lists of last year's returns,' and that while some of them complained they pay was too low, that the counties themselves have been 'overpaid' for the work they did."

Reeves explained the blanket percentage increases on various types of property put an "unfair burden" on taxpayers whose property was returned at a fair value, and that he believed the counties themselves should adjust assessments and tax rates to raise enough revenue and be fair to all property owners. "If an assessment is shown to be absolutely impossible" when it comes here, he added, "the assessment for the county can be done over again. But there'll be no blanket increases. Under a 1917 law the Revenue Department for years has been increasing assessments on various classes of property every county reports were received. Each year dozens of county delegations have come to protest and in many cases the department had to cancel the increases or eliminated them."

Reeves explained the blanket percentage increases on various types of property put an "unfair burden" on taxpayers whose property was returned at a fair value, and that he believed the counties themselves should adjust assessments and tax rates to raise enough revenue and be fair to all property owners.

A revision of the mine's safety rules and safety talks on the public address system was reported to have been made by the company on the basis of recommendations offered by the inspectors. The inspection was made by Kenneth C. Lee and Joseph W. Fifth, federal mine inspectors.

OLD-FASHIONED DANCES PLANNED AT U. OF KY.

A summer series of "drop-in" evenings of country and square dancing has been planned for the summer term now in session at the University of Kentucky. The dances will continue throughout the summer quarter, and will be held each Thursday evening at 7:45 o'clock in the women's gym for students, townspeople and others interested.

DRYS WIN CONTEST SUIT IN HARLAN LOCAL OPTION

Harlan, Ky. June 19—Harlan county dry forces won their contest suit today and the next move, if any, is up to the wets.

Special Judge Robert Friend, Trial Court, threw out votes in four contested precincts and automatically gave the drys a majority of 1,300 votes in the March 23 local option election.

On the basis of unofficial returns immediately after the election, the drys won with a 670-vote majority. The drys immediately charged fraud and illegal voting and the Harlan county election commission refused to certify the ballots.

The wets took the election into court, and the Court of Appeals ruled the election commission had not authority to certify the ballots—thus giving the wets a victory. The drys then filed a contest suit. The Court of Appeals designated Judge Friend as special judge to hear the case.

The drys paraded witness after witness through the court and persuaded the election commission that they had not voted March 28 although their names appeared on election book stubs. In addition, the drys charged, regular election places were switched and the voters notified and unauthorized persons acted as election officials.

Upholding the drys Judge Friend held that voting in some precincts was conducted at "unauthorized places and by unauthorized officials." Discussing the election, Judge Friend held that "it was fraud of the grossest sort. It was as bold and as crude and as clumsy an attempt as I have ever seen. It did not even justify the virtue of originality." In the four precincts—Baxter, High Split, Verda 7 and Cloverton in which the votes were thrown out, the wets had a total of 2,051 votes to 2 for the drys. Leaders of the wet forces did not indicate immediately what further action they contemplate.

Limited by WPB Farm Building

The Department of Agriculture at Washington has made the following statement about farm construction: "No new agricultural construction may be started without permission if the cost is $1,000 or more for the building or project involved. This in effect exempts all farm construction costing under $1,000, which will cover a large percentage of farm building. No agricultural construction in excess of the $1,000 limit will be eligible until individual applications are approved by the WPB. USDA War Board will certify applications locally. "Second, farm houses are affected by a provision under which the exemption is limited to an estimated cost of $500 unless the purpose of construction is to rebuild or restore construction damaged or destroyed under specified conditions."

AN OPEN LETTER

To the State Highway Commission: Neither this county nor its newspaper has any quarrel with you for awarding contracts on June 11 providing for the expenditure of more than half a million dollars on Kentucky road improvement.

Nor have we anything recriminatory to say about that contract of $146,811.13 you awarded for improvement of the Pikeville-Jenkins highway.

It is quite possible every road benefiting from this letting of contracts needs improving.

But we do have a quarrel with you when we compare the needs of roads and the aid some get and the little or nothing others get, and consider the "paper contracts" you have made.

If highway money is as scarce as you claim it is, don't you think it should be spent where it is urgently needed, and where it may be needed?

If contracts are awarded where they are written on, don't you think they should really mean something to both contracting parties?

That Pikeville-Jenkins route, it is admitted, is a "trunk" route. It should be maintained. But unless money fails us, there is no one mile of it, not to mention the other 13.8 miles awarded to contract, that approaches the sad state of disrepair and neglect of the Left Beaver Creek highway in this county from Gearheart to Wheelwright and Weaksburg.

If you doubt this, howl along at the legal speed of 40 miles an hour from Jenkins to Pikeville and then hit that Left Beaver Creek road at the same speed. We'll leave the description of the results up to you.

The Left Beaver Creek road—but it's a heavy feeder. And the residents of that section, one of the richest and most densely populated in Eastern Kentucky, deserve the same treatment—don't you think?—that any section of the state deserves with the degree of state aid depending upon the need.

And those "paper contracts" to which we refer—those are the work of the Rural Highway Administration. What are they but "scraps of paper"? They tell Floyd county, for instance, that there are twenty-two thousand dollars available for the county's rural highways during a certain year. The law has arrogantly decreed that, if the fiscal court of a county cannot agree with the Rural Highway Administration on the designation of roads to receive the aid, the matter is left to the administration; so, the fiscal court has always agreed on a "blanket order" for aid to Floyd county's "county" roads.

That agreed upon, a contract is entered into. The county understands that $22,000, sometimes slightly less, sometimes more, will be spent in a twelve-month period on these roads.

But what accrues such a contract to the county? What but a "scrap of paper" is the agreement?

The Rural Highway Administration has machinery, good machinery, bought with Floyd county rural highway funds. But who knows where that machinery will be used?

The Rural Highway Administration sometimes uses this machinery on Floyd county roads. But who can tell, without ocular aid, where it was used?

Why, we ask, make contracts? Why promise? Why not, if Floyd county is due $22,000 worth of work on its rural roads, let Floyd county spend it. Then we all will know it is not spent on other counties, we will know who spent it, where and how—and, maybe, why.

As we said at the outset of this "letter," we have no quarrel with you about what you are doing for other sections. Help all you can. But don't forget that you are yet regarded as representing the people of Floyd county as well as those of other counties.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR WHY DISCONTINUE THE TRAFFIC LIGHTS? Why has the red light in the lower end of town been discontinued? Has a light which was so necessary to public safety, a year or so ago, that the city pleaded with the citizens for money to purchase the light, or that they had been so unimportant the city cannot afford the few cents per month that the electricity would cost to keep it in operation? Before the light was put in there were several wrecks at that corner and cars made a speed of 50 or 60 miles per hour in the crossing. The Trail were in very great danger of being hit. Are our councilmen doing what they know is the proper thing to do for the benefit of the general public, or are they being hoodwinked to be a party in petty politics or personal feuds? There is a very real need for the lower red light. Let's either have it turned back on or give the public some good reason for cutting it off. COUNCIL OF WAR

PRIME MINISTER Winston Churchill would not have made a third trip to North America with all the hazards it entails, interrupting his gigantic job at home, if there were not vital decisions to be made at once. Anglo-American economic collaboration is now a settled fact, its details thoroughly in the hands of the three-cornered negotiations among America, Britain and Russia are already concluded. Therefore the British Prime Minister's errand can only relate to the prosecution of the war itself, and doubtless to the global strategy of the war in coming months.

At the moment, the war is going badly. China is in a precarious position. Axis armies in Libya have scored new successes. The Russians have been thrown back on the defensive on the vital fronts. Temporarily, the British aerial offensive in Western Europe has lost its stride. To meet each of these dangers, and at the same time take the initiative in support of the Soviet Union, is a gigantic task. This calls for momentous decisions as to where the English-speaking powers shall thrust their available strength.

Because air power, especially bombardment aviation, bulks so large in the armory of the United States, it is possible to put this striking power into almost any area of the world on brief notice. We have a freedom of action unparalleled in military history, in respect to our air power, and to a considerable degree also in respect to our naval power. This makes it the more essential that wise decisions be made by the American and British governments.

In final analysis, however, Mr. Churchill's visit cannot be separated from the commitment given by London and Washington alike a fortnight ago—to establish a second front in Western Europe. This is the task with the highest priority rating. This is the task which may easily bring a definite turning point in the fight against the Axis, and perhaps this year. In the absence of full information, we can properly assume that the conversations at the White House foreshadow an Anglo-American offensive against Germany—when that becomes possible.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SECOND FRONT IS OUT AS TOBRUK FALLS

AS the war in Russia enters its second year today, Adolf Hitler is presented with a long-deferred victory. It is not a military capture of Sevastopol as was expected. That beleaguered naval base and Black Sea fortress holds out in the face of wave after wave of all assaults. It is the much-contested Libyan harbor of Tobruk, where gallant British and Australians underwent an eight months siege, but it is equivalent to a victory on the Russian front.

The capture of Tobruk—the German claim is accepted as fact in both Cairo and London—centers Allied attention on the vital necessity of defending Egypt and the Suez Canal. By embarking on a second front in Africa, Hitler has positioned a second front in Europe. By assumption of this strategy, he has prevented a diversion of his forces to the west to relieve the pressure on the Red Army. Even the capture of Sevastopol would not have furthered his cause more than the occupation of the Libyan harbor town.

The importance of the German victory can hardly be exaggerated. A threat to the flank and rear of the Axis forces is thus removed. Tobruk was an important factor in turning Gen. Erwin Rommel's early drive into Egypt into an almost catastrophic retreat. With Crete only 200 miles away the Luftwaffe may attempt to block off the middle Mediterranean, isolating Malta and opening the way to a steady stream of supplies from Italy to Libya's second largest port, thus obviating the long desert supply line from Tripoli—another cause of Rommel's earlier failure. The capture of men and material, according to Berlin some 25,000 troops and vast quantities of supplies, perhaps most of the equipment and stores brought in by the convoys which last week braved the hazardous passage through the Mediterranean, is no small item. The defense of Egypt is thus weakened and the danger to the Suez Canal increased, and that danger is real.

But Rommel is hardly the military genius he is now acclaimed. He is more protuberant from his earlier mistakes. In his first drive he by-passed Tobruk when he could not take it. He now corrects that error. His tanks were smashed by the hard-hitting British artillery so he brings up 88 millimeter anti-tank guns which put out of commission heavier British tanks and he uses them in the defense of General Timoshenko who in the defense of Maccov turned his long range guns point blank at the German columns.

Without heavy anti-tank guns, without adequate armor, the defenders of Egypt face their most critical hour. Suez is menaced. Axis control of the Mediterranean and all of North Africa is a possibility. A drive through Iraq and Iran to the Caucasus is the sequel to the possible fall of Suez. The Libyan front is in effect the southern sector of a Russian front and the German front in Europe is definitely out. The immediate concern of all the United Nations is now the defense of Egypt and the Suez Canal.—The Courier-Journal.

A WAR MOTHER WRITES TO HER SOLDIER-SON

A few months ago, a young Floyd County man was leaving home for service in the army. His mother bravely held back the tears, but she could not trust herself to undertake talking to him and telling him what was in her heart. So she wrote him a letter. The letter follows:

Well, son, your number is up. You are going to the army. There is a job of serious, unrelieved business to be taken care of—and you, my son, have been assigned a part in it.

This task is unpleasant and, I feel, repulsive to you—knowing you as I do. This assignment is different to anything that you had planned for yourself in life. Yet it is a privilege as well as a responsibility. For only Americans—the pick of our nation's manhood—are eligible to march with Uncle Sam's armed citizenry and participate in this grim game of war.

There is now but one thing to do—make the most of it. Be a soldier in every sense of the word. As you go with millions of other sons from millions of American homes, I pray you may put your own name into the business of soldiering. It matters not whether you ever wear hats or stars—if you are man enough to be a soldier.

And being a good soldier means more than drilling and marching and fighting and dying. It means living in a man's world—as a man should live. There is an inclination on the part of too many men, once in the army and away from the influences of home and family, to cut loose, so to speak, and "go the gait." There is in the army, as in civilian life, every type of man. But every man is on his own; the choice is yours.

Men, like water, ultimately seek their level in the army as elsewhere. Don't ever lower your standards, son. In the matter of soldiering the fellow who has difficulty is the one who refuses to adjust himself to the rigid discipline, stern and stern discipline that is as necessary as are guns and tanks and planes.

The army is bigger than any man in it. Failure to become a working part of it is the worst mistake a soldier can make. A mental feeling of resentment can only make it more difficult. This is true of any station in life. So I pray, Bob, that you will be able to accept your lot in this business with a cheerful and unflinching attitude. You will endeavor to get out of it something worthwhile that will help you in the years ahead.

You can always find that something if you search for it. Never cease searching, my son. I say this to you, not because you are different to the millions of other young men who have gone and are still going by the millions into this world conflict, but because you are an own flesh and blood; because, man though you are, you will always be to me a little boy.

The uniform you will shortly wear stands for the high and noble principles upon which our nation was founded and has since existed—principles that to much of the rest of the world are unknown. It stands for humanity, education and Christianity. It has never gone far except in defense of the principles for which it stands. It has never gone on a rampage of conquest or oppression. That uniform, Bob, is the hope of "Old Glory" and 130 millions of Americans. It is the hope of civilization. Wear it with pride.

There is something I want to give you, son. A Bible. Please don't feel that to take it is to take a day. This Book will be a comfort. The knowledge that it has stood the test of all time and of other wars will all your homesickness. Make the most of the army and come back a better man even than when you left. There is, you know, a personal as well as a national victory to be won. May God give you both, my boy. The Bible has ever been our hope of eternal glory. Learn to use your gun, Bob, but rely finally on the Bible.

May our old Lord watch over you and those who go with you as the guardians of America's freedom until the day—and may He speed the day!—when we shall thank God for peace and a safe homecoming.

Goodbye, until we meet again. Lovingly and trustfully, MOTHER

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D. Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

YOUNG ANTIQUES

MANY of the changes that have taken place since our youth have been merely changes, leaving things no better and no worse than they were. Some things that have happened, though, are decidedly to the advantage of the human race. One that I greatly appreciate is that children in our time are encouraged to be children and not old folks. Revolutionary War children were stuffy little prigs that apparently should have been strangled in their cradles. The very idea of encouraging a child to learn to read when it is only three or four years old! I would like to sit on a jury to try the foolish parents of such monstrosities. But some of our early American children had a reading knowledge of English, Hebrew, Greek, and Latin by the time they should normally have been in the fourth grade. The society that expected such precocity is now dead, but it should have been hastened in its demise. Even in our time, though, it was bad enough, for brats were exhibited with brains far too well developed for their ages. Fond teachers and fonder parents stuffed the little dears' heads until they were bulging with unnecessary and unwanted knowledge. I recall with a combination sneer and laugh the elaborate philosophical poetry that a teacher had her seven-year-old little pupil recite for me along about the time of the World War. I told a white lie, of course, to make it appear that I approved, but I fairly ran back to my classroom to warn the students who have more sense than that. Great poetry should be the experience of everybody, but there is no earthly reason to teach an innocent little child abstruse things to gratify a grown-up's vanity.

It was not merely knowledge that these old-fashioned serious children were expected to have; they were supposed to act like grown-ups when they ought to have been very young and carefree in turning, handspinning, or doing of a springboard. The very maxim that "Children should be seen and not heard" was made, no doubt, by some fuzzy-brained intellectual who had ideas about child-rearing. He probably had never been a normal child himself and thus took vengeance on the race for his unhappy life; it is more than doubtful whether any such philosopher ever was a father, or he might have learned a few things about children.

It may be that we can never see the back of the World War, but I do not believe it. It has been years since I heard some devout old codger proclaiming that his children are living for him and not for themselves. Our modern homes are built around the child, as is proper; what are parents worth per se, anyway, except as they re-appear in the strength and vigor and originality of their children?

It does me good to know that fewer problem children come from the average normal homes of our time than come from the rigidly-restrained homes of a previous generation. If there is one quality evident in my students now that I formerly rarely found, it is poise, an ability to face life calmly and trustfully. Most of the problem children whom I

TERROR VISITS A TOWN

(Drawing by Edmund Druy)

IMAGINE reading the following government announcement in THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES:

"All men of the town of Allen, in this county, have been shot. The women have been deported to a concentration camp and children sent to appropriate centers of education. All buildings of the village were leveled to the ground and the name of the village was immediately abolished.

These are the words of an official Nazi statement issued a few days ago except that the town was named Lidice—a quiet little community of Czechoslovakia near Prague.

In Lidice (pronounced Leed-est-ay) men and women lived where their ancestors had lived for more than 600 years. A Lidice son brought his bride to his parents' home; his children were born in the same room where his grandfather first saw light. Above the roofs of the town rose the spires of St. Margaret's Church, a symbol of community faith since the church's building in 1736.

In Lidice, a farmer with earth sticking to his boots greeted the coal-dusty miner who as a boy sat beside him in school. On a warm day the tapping of the shoe repairman sounded through an open door like a faint echo of the blacksmith's hammering. A storekeeper going to the tailor shop paused on Wilson Street—named for the American President—to gossip with a man carving wood before his front door. Children laughed and played or were drawn to kitchens by the sweet scents of the cakes their mothers baked.

Life was not so easy after the German conquerors came. They had to do what the rulers ordered. Limits were set on worship in the church and on schooling for children. The women didn't have such good things or so much to fix for meals. But the people lived on, they worked, they loved, they dreamed—oppression had been upon them in the past but "Wilson" Street seemed a reminder that to a people of unconquered spirit, freedom at last turns.

Then two men fatally wounded Reinhard Heydrich who, as Nazi "protector" of Czecho-Slovakia, earned the title of "Hangman." The Lidice people told the Nazi secret police that they didn't know anything about the two men.

But the Gestapo agents learned that Lidice folk still dreamed of freedom. They claimed they found a radio, forbidden by German conquerors, arms and ammunition. Several of the Lidice young men had escaped to join United Nations forces fighting the Germans, and the Nazis follow their policy of bloody vengeance—a policy which has meant the murder, in retaliation for the death of Heydrich, of more than 700 innocent men and women.

So when you read or hear the name of Lidice imagine what it would mean if the beautiful town of Allen were crushed to the earth, its name scratched from all records, the bodies of its men dumped into a common grave, their widows imprisoned, and the doubly-orphaned children in the hands of vengeful and merciless foreigners.

19 Ministers Join In All-Day Meet

Nineteen ministers from this state, Virginia and North Carolina participated in the all-day memorial services conducted at West Prestonsburg cemetery Sunday.

Attending was the largest crowd in the history of the service, which is an annual event.

Ministers taking part were G. R. Fannin, West Prestonsburg; Clyde Church, Searcy Creek, Ky.; Robert Halsey, Mize, Ky.; Howard Church, Prestonsburg; Al Lucas, Carter county; Will Woods, Prestonsburg; Steve Whitaker, Bob McClure, Grassy Creek, Ky.; Bob Burke, West Prestonsburg; Chas. Vaden, of North Carolina; Sam Sexton, of Church, Searcy Creek, Ky.; Robert Sessa, G. C. Baisten, Drift; Mrs. Cora Fannin, West Prestonsburg; Tom Hughes, the Reverends Price and Hays, of Beaver Creek.

Have known were suppressed and repressed according to some age-old method of rearing children. I used to hear a lot about "conquering" children. Now wasn't that a pretty word? Imagine trying to break the divinest thing in any of us, a spirit of get-up-and-git that may bring new things to the world. When I read today about old Samuel Pepps beating his children for an hour or so and then, the old reaper, going up to his room and recording it in his diary, I cringe for the poor children who needed a friend. Some of the other items in his voluminous diary make it highly apparent that he needed pretty badly a bit of his own medicine. Children needed discipline and still do, but it does not seem necessary for them to be treated like young mules.

Miss Greene, Mr. Crisp Wed at Salyersville

Announcement was made this week of the wedding of Miss Ory Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Greene, West Prestonsburg, to Mr. Jake Crisp, of Martin, Ky. The nuptial ceremony was performed by the Rev. James H. Walters, pastor of the Salyersville Baptist Church, on Saturday, June 13, with Miss Cassie Patrick, West Prestonsburg, as Ruth Power and J. A. Walters, Jr., Salyersville, as attendants.

The bride was graduated from Prestonsburg high school with the class of '42. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crisp, of Martin, and was graduated from Martin high school with the class of '41. He has been employed by the Warfield Natural Gas Company for the last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Crisp will reside in Prestonsburg.

Girls' Auxiliary Meets Tuesday Evening

The Girls' Auxiliary of the Baptist Church met on Tuesday evening, June 23, in the home of Miss Claire Cohen, with 12 members and two visitors present.

The meeting was opened by the singing of the Auxiliary theme song, "We've a Story To Tell the Nation." Mrs. Roark, sponsor, presided over the business session and led the program, in the absence of Carolyn Hill. Mary Martha Williams, Barbara Spradlin and Claire Cohen served as the program.

A social hour was spent in the dining room, during which Mrs. Cohen and Miss Anna Martin served refreshments in red, white and blue with miniature silk flags and nautical hair bows as favors.

The Auxiliary adjourned, to meet next at the home of Myrtle Grace Hatcher.

The following members and guests were present: Misses Vivian Combs, Abigail Allen, Sue Bond, Dorothy Hughes, George and Peggy Roark, Virginia Rogers, Barbara Spradlin, Mary Martha Williams, Mary Catherine Butts, Myrtle Grace Hatcher, Toby Jo Spradlin, Anna Martin and Miss Roark.

FISH AND GAME CLUB TO HAVE WORLD-FAMOUS TOPPERWEINS AS FISH FRY ATTRACTIONS

Mr. and Mrs. "Ad" Topperwein, famous shooting team to appear at fish fry.

By E. R. BURKE District Conservation Officer

The Floyd County Fish and Game Club's annual fish fry Sunday, Aug. 2. The place is the beautiful grounds of the Beaver Valley Golf Course at Alleysville.

Again this year, we have with us the world-famous Mr. and Mrs. "Ad" Topperwein representing the Winchester Repeating Arms Company.

Seeing the the Topperwein shooting exhibition is like going to a circus, a rapid succession of thrills and exciting feats, each more unbelievable than the one before, presented to you by this marvelous pair of shooters with rifle, pistol and shotgun.

The coming of the Topperweins, as a rule, means a veritable holiday in most towns. If it is during the school season, schools are closed in order to give young America an opportunity to turn out and witness these marvelous shooting stunts.

These gun wizards put on a program full of variety from the opening gun until the last shot is fired. They shoot at all kinds of objects from every imaginable position, with rifle, pistol and shotgun. Clay pigeons, wooden blocks, composition balls, metal discs, marbles, even apples, oranges, real hen eggs—all are shattered with different types of guns. Sometimes two, three, four or even five targets or objects are in the air at the same time, only to be broken before they fall back to mother earth.

It has always been a debatable question as to which of the Topperweins is the better shot. Mr. or Mrs. While both do the most remarkable shooting stunts, each has a few tough ones which the other hesitates to try, so it's up to you to come and figure this out yourself.

Ad Topperwein has been shooting for many years and continues to improve as he leaves the years behind him. With 14 world records to his credit, the most famous and that which stands out above all others in the history of shooting is the one he shot for 10 consecutive days, eight hours a day, at 2 1/2-inch wood blocks which were tossed into the air by an assistant. During this remarkable test of shooting skill and endurance, Topperwein shot at a total of 72,000 wood blocks and missed but nine. Out of his first 50,000 targets, he missed but four. This record included several long runs, the longest being 14,500 without a miss, the longest run in the history of shooting, a world record both in number of targets shot at and targets broken in a single day.

One of the most spectacular features is the shooting of various pictures or cartoons. Shooting a number of rapid fire shots at a sheet of tin or paper set out in front of him on a neasel, Topperwein draws the outline of Indian cowboys, Uncle Sam, or any of the familiar cartoon characters, firing rapidly with his Winchester. He uses no penciled outlines or drawings, just a lot of holes in the target and quickly draws with bullets a striking likeness of the character he has in mind. This feature, as well as many others in his program, is original. He was the first shooter to conceive the idea of drawing cartoons with bullets.

Mrs. Topperwein embarked on her shooting career shortly after her marriage. Today, she is recognized as the greatest all-around woman shooter in the world. She is also one of the few shooters who has mastered all kinds of firearms, shooting rifle, pistol or shotgun equally well.

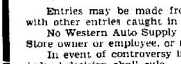

Mrs. Topperwein was the first woman in the United States to qualify as a national marksman with the military rifle. She was the first woman in the world to break 100 straight targets at trapshooting with a shotgun. This she has accomplished nearly 200 different times. She

HERE IS A RESUME OF IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OPA halts price rises. Henderson warns consumers. War hits perambulators. Landlord registration too slow. Ration boards being reorganized. May postpone county state fairs. Adult bikes will be rationed. Sugar stamps extended. War hits perambulators. Military can get shaving tubes. "John Barleycorn" enlists. WPB patches hole in pants' order. Report awakening in auto graveyards.

This week the nation's brief but intensive drive to collect and send to reclaiming plants every available fragment of scrap rubber is now in full swing. It will be over June 30. Popular response to the President's recent appeal on rubber salvage is reported excellent. In millions of homes in some of the larger centers, the housewives are stepping on the tin cans so that they may be collected for the recovery of tin for bushings which reduce friction in the engines of our military aircraft and for other vital military purposes.

OPA is getting down to cases with price and rent control in effect. Cost of living no longer goes up. Thus the "in the belt" tightening of national economy so that nothing useful in war may be wasted on non-essentials or by inflation.

Bureau of Labor statistics reports that the increase in living costs, which mounted 7 1/2 per cent between the beginning of the war in Europe in 1939 and price control was stepped in its tracks during the May 16 to June 2 period, and actually declined 1 per cent on the average for 21 cities surveyed. In some cities where a net increase was found higher prices on items not under rationing were given as the reason.

Commodities Price Administrator Lewis Henderson said: "The battle against inflation can be won. But the battle is not yet won. If future reports are to be as good as they have been the uncertainty of the war in Europe is the greatest enemy of everyone. To hold living costs stable is the people's battle. The people must be on guard and I may say they are not yet sufficiently on guard."

month of general price regulation has shown us all too clearly that there are still a few people who do not believe in keeping the cost of living down as part of the war job or who would like to see controls applied only to the other fellow. These are the people who would like to see the administration of this program ham strung or crippled. I feel sure that public opinion will support the efforts of these groups but the public must be vigilant."

Interviewing newspaper men in Cleveland, David Gombour, OPA general counsel, said that retail dealers were generally complying with the price regulation but that a larger proportion of them were not observing the provision for proper posting of retail prices and keeping records. This situation, he said, calls for "additional educational work rather than big 'stick enforcement'."

Landlords are slow to fill their reports on great detail. OPA reports. Rowland B. Schnell, regional executive for Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, said in a statement that "the reports landlords file are as promptly as possible. The deadline for filing is midnight, July 1."

OPA in the Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky area is aiming as July 1 as the date when the reorganization of the local War Price and Rationing Boards must be completed. Kentucky and West Virginia are among the states making good progress. State OPA directors by nomination of local Defense Councils name the boards, and designate the chairman. Paid clerical staffs are selected by the local War Price and Rationing Boards but will have adult bicycles as one of their rationing jobs.

Passenger transportation, like freight, is becoming more and more of a problem. Shortage may hit that of the local War Price and Rationing Office of Defense Transportation Director Robert B. Eastman in seeking for the postponement of fairs this year and in a statement requests deferment for the duration of all meetings, conventions and group tours not closely connected with the war effort. Staggering of vacations and terminating them on week days rather on the customary week-end is suggested. Said Mr. Eastman: "If the American people will voluntarily impose certain restrictions upon their travel, there is good reason to hope that no drastic control over travel will be necessary."

OPA has made a count of all the new bicycles for grownups in the country. Not quite complete, the inventory adds up to 149,686. These bikes will be rationed soon.

OPA announces that stamps Nos. 5 and 6 in the sugar rationing book will be valid for four weeks instead of two. Stamp No. 4 is good till midnight, Saturday, after which stamp No. 5 becomes good for two pounds of sugar for a period extending until midnight, July 25. Stamp No. 6 also good for two pounds may be used from July 26 to August 22. Stamps Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are no longer good, and OPA asks housewives to tear them out of their books and destroy them.

Families whose members registered for sugar rationing but were not issued war ration books because they had excess amounts of sugar supplies will be permitted to obtain books on application to the local war price and rationing board. Their excess sugar has been denied.

WPB is permitting continued manufacture of baby carriages, but they must contain none of the scarcer metals and a minimum of iron and steel. The answer, probably, is wood.

Retailers may sell stocks of gift toilet kits without requiring that used tins be turned in—if the boxes are not directly attached to the kit. Retailers, or coast guardsmen.

The billion-dollar distillery industry is in limbo during the week agreed to cease manufacture of whiskey after Nov. 1, or sooner if possible. To meet the War Production Board's goal of 249,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol for 1942 and 1943, their plants will be converted.

THE GARDEN

By JOHN S. GARDNER Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

VEGETABLE SEED SAVING AT HOME RADISH AND LETTUCE seed present in great quantities to save. Both bolt readily to seed, late standing where they are. Those gardeners who wish great effort procured this year a start of Bibb lettuce may now continue keeping it as long as they wish, but it is best to let no other lettuce make so close. Fifty feet would likely serve as a practical "barrier" as most lettuce's pollen is wind-borne, not carried by bees. To reduce loss by shattering, the lettuce seed plants should be loosely wrapped in cheesecloth. To clean lettuce seed and in fact any other small seed, the heads should be rubbed through a fine screen or through fine flyscreen. Any fine chaff that goes through may be blown out easily. Or, it does no harm to leave it.

TURNIP SEED may be saved from left over plants of the spring planting, but the fruit with summer insects is troublesome, and the viability of the seed so uncertain, because of having formed in weather unseasonable for turnips, that it is better to save seed from the late crop, in this wise. The same method also applies to beets and carrots.

Select plump, shapely roots and top them, but leave an inch of the top. Then bury them in the soil after the manner of "planting" white potatoes. In the spring, set them in rows 3 feet away from other vegetables and 2 feet between them. Soon, a seed-stalk arises, blooms set and finally seed pods are ready. Rub through a screen as for radishes and the chaff blown out. For beets especially it may be to advantage to wrap the seed plants in cheesecloth, or to harvest them when there appears to be a maximum of ripe seed, or piecemeal as seed matures.

PARSNIP AND SALSIFY, too, are biennials, but they need not be attended, unless they are in the way, but live through winter. These are in the row they grew. Salsify begins shattering early and the cheesecloth procedure may be used with profit. Most of the root vegetables "milk" to any great extent, except perhaps carrots, but usually all these are of one variety.

Middle Creek Soldier Studies Plane Mechanics

Keesler Field, Miss., June 22 (Sp.)—Pvt. Jarvis Allen, son of Mrs. Ellie J. Allen, Pyramid, Ky., was enrolled as a student this week in the country's greatest Air Corps Technical School at Keesler Field, and has started an intensive 19-week course to qualify him as an airplane mechanic.

Private Allen, who came here from the Ft. Thomas, Ky. reception center, already has completed his basic training which includes marching, target practice, gas mask and bayonet drills, and orientation lectures. At the completion of the air mechanics course here, he will be prepared for assignment to active line duty with some fighting unit of the army air force.

PRIVATE FURKEY IN LOVE AND WAR

Dear Oscar—This will have to be just a short note, my dear. I am sorry to hear that you are in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps and I got crushed in the rush. My right arm was so twisted I can hardly write. I cannot bear to think of you in the service of your country without feeling that I should also be in my bit in some way. It won't be fine if I am assigned to duty somewhere near enough to see you often, as I miss you every day.

More later. All my love, Harriet. Dear Harriet—Gee but I am surprised about you and the WAAC and I don't know if I like it or not. It is a fine thing to do, and you do to do it. I guess but I sort of makes me to go to a complete confidence in me to win this war. I mean all your letters to this time and you were so satisfied with the part I was doing and not that you thought you should get to make sure everything went okay.

And another thing, Harriet, in this. We are having trouble in the army and it would be twice as confusing if we were to have to go on like and the globe. It is bad enough when you ain't sure where I am but it would be worse if you didn't know where I was neither and vice versa.

Now, Harriet, if you have made up your mind to go, I'm not arguing but all I hope is that you have thought it all over carefully first. I read in the paper that the woman's army is to go on like and be trained a good deal like any army and I am awfully worried about your feet, remember you never walk on a long walk and I cannot bear the idea of you being out in the hot sun all day with your feet burning.

I warn you that army life is a tough tough on you. It is bad for you and it is longer than a girl's doge anything and I do not think girl's feet is meant for such work. I warn you also to ask about guard duty and k.p. detail, Harriet. Find out if you got to do these things in a woman's army. And if you have I am sure you would want no part of it. Guard duty means you got to go out with your gun at long walks and sometimes all night and you won't see nobody. You will hear the darndest noises and it is two weeks of that for two years—remember you are a little jumpy in the dark even when I am with you and I know you would feel all alone, Harriet?

Now k.p. duty is going around picking up all the papers, buttons, etc., all over the camp and seeing vegetables and it is no job for a girl who is not used to it and I remember your mother always said you hated to help in the kitchen at all and did not exactly like house cleaning either. Of course I have not got the load on the woman's army and do not know what you would half to do but I am just warning you.

Sergeant Mooney says you would have to do all that a man does in a army except to fight. But I read in a paper that you would be detailed most to light duties which I hope is true on country for any girl, especially one who is as nervous as you. I remember you are a little jumpy in the dark even when I am with you and I know you would feel all alone, Harriet?

All stores for war bonds and stamps and nothing else for 15 minutes on July 1. And there will, of course, be the shopper who will have to go to a soldier, cash and ask that they be sent.

Another victim is the actor who now has to sign up at so much per week and his name in the extinguished lights. Private Furkey's old man when related the other day for overeating explained: "I'm developing my second front."

Typical Case

In the matter of college play we can take Minnesota as a typical case along the upper plateau. In the late George Gopher football, the sage of Gopher football, writes, "I am afraid Minnesota's national championship days are over for good. The Gopher will do pretty well in Big Ten competition. "Six regulars are gone from the game of the last two years—Fitch and Ringler, eds; Odson, tackle; Levy and Pakema, guards;

Flick, center, and of course, Bruce Smith and Bob Sweigler from the backfield. Gone also is Bernie Bierman and three of his coaching staff."

But it might be mentioned here that the strength of the different service teams is still a summer guess, but we've all got our schedules they will have something more than tackling dummies on guard.

It might be noted here that football is only a part of these cadet training centers. Football will be but one or two parts of the program, 10 or 12-hour conditioning drills, at which boxing, wrestling, hurdling, etc., will keep them spinning like human tops from dawn to dark.

The added rivalry between college and service teams will add to the general interest of the game, despite the fact that 60,000 or 80,000 crowds might not be on hand when the whistle blows.

Pro Football There are now 148 National League football players in active service, with others on their way soon. Twenty-two of these players hold commissions. Eighty-three joined up with the army, 58 with the navy, and nine with the marines.

Each year the great teams, plus a few from the draft list fall. But as Steve Owen of the Giants puts it, "While we've all got good men and key men, we'll have enough left to carry the game along until more men come back. It's a matter of a closer race—a better race."

"We won't have those Chicago Bears of last season to look at," says Owen. "Hales has lost his share of stars, and he had more stars to lose. At this spot I can't see any standpoint but I'm sure we'll have an interesting season with enough material left to go around."

All of which, with the colleges, the army, and the American landscape and atmosphere packed with more flying footballs than any past season ever knew.

MINES, RAILROADS MUST USE LESS ABLE-BODIED WORKERS, HARLAN OPERATORS TOLD

Harlan, Ky., June 18—Coal mines and railroads must obtain their employees from the less able-bodied men in order to permit the ablest forces of the nation to have the best man-power, Maj. Carl D. Norman of State Selective Service headquarters at Louisville told mine operators and railroad officials at a meeting here.

Major Norman, sent here to explain to business and industrial leaders the attitude of the Selective Service toward the mines and railroads, also heard criticism against the mine and railroad operators who claimed the federal agency was draining manpower from the mines and railroads for defense jobs in other areas.

Commenting on drafting of mine and railroad workers, Major Norman told the business leaders, "You must depend on the man who may have just one eye, missing fingers or other physical handicaps. The able-bodied men are needed in the armed forces."

Major Norman, manager of the Harlan office of the Employment Service, admitted several hundred men had been sent from the county to jobs in shipyards and on other defense projects, but pointed out his office was obligated to seek an employee who visited his office if he was willing to change jobs.

B. B. Ewell, superintendent of the Lynch mines of the U. S. Coal & Coke Company which employ more than 4,000 men during normal operations, said his company needed 1,000 workers.

Your best investment—United States War Savings Bonds and Stamps.

Now On War Jobs Two more Floyd county youths are at work on war jobs in Connecticut and New Jersey through the National Youth Administration work experience and interstate transfer plan.

The two, trained in N.Y.A. War Production shops at Tins Grove and Prestonsburg, are: Ruebuck McCoy, Fred, and Glenn H. Hall, Wayland. McCoy works for the Hresco Corporation, Newark, N. J. Hall is employed by the Glenn L. Martin Bomber Company, Baltimore, Md.

REWARD

I hereby offer a reward of $25 for each arrest and conviction of any person of persons giving or selling whiskey, wine, beer or gin to my son, Edgar Stephens, on credit or otherwise. It is a severe penalty to give or sell liquor to another, who has been convicted for drunkenness more than three times. Liquor sold on credit, the account is illegal and cannot be collected.

If you have had so much trouble along this line, I will appreciate the help of anyone. I think, if we women and others who are interested in doing an overhauling good for our country and children, would go to work and circulate a petition and get the required number of legal voters to sign it, and submit the liquor question to the people of this county, we could vote this county dry, if the election was not stolen as has been done in certain counties. The elimination of intoxicants would to a large extent eliminate roadhouses and save the life of many a boy and prevent ruining the character of many a poor girl and thereby save her from disgrace and shame. It would also prevent and stop a lot of cheap constables and deputies from holding up and robbing people of a few dollars and also be a great saving to the county in jail fees which the taxpayers are compelled to pay. This would save thousands of dollars to the county alone, not counting the losses in preventing laborers from their work, and furnishing things in their homes, which they need.

I will take the time and secure the number of petitioners and we will submit this question to the people of this county, if I can get the co-operation and consent of the citizens and different organizations of our county interested in this move. I hope I may have an encouraging word from anyone who is interested in the disgraceful calamity now existing in our county and state. This letter and request is written by a heartbroken mother, brought about by the liquor business.

I am yours for a better, healthier, Floyd county and state.

BETSY LAYNE

By JAMES BLEVINS
I wish to correct something. The men who went to Morgantown, Ky. to seek employment in the defense work there all returned soon after they went. They went, received employment, worked several hours and were fired. But now the racket which was allegedly begun there has been cleaned up and the men are planning to return.

It has been raining here several days now and the farmers are suffering a great loss of their river and creek bank crops of corn. The river has been rising and falling for about a week. Monday it was rising rapidly. Being here fear another wash-out.

Well, it looks as if we here at Betsy Layne will have to drink pure, clean water instead of soft drinks. The latter are as scarce as frogs' teeth.

Earl Hays, Betsy Layne high school agriculture teacher, will leave soon for Uncle Sam's army. His friend, Mr. Hayward, is already there.

Little Miss Dolores Jean Smith celebrated her birthday on Friday, June 19, with a birthday party, to which many of her friends were invited to join in the games and refreshments, at her home.

Services of the Free Will Baptist Church were held Sunday on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Ferrell Williamson, in honor of Mr. Williamson, who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Blevins and family motored to Paintsville and Rockcastle on Sunday to visit relatives and friends.

Clyde Layne, of Justell, is ill with rheumatism.

Kentucky 4-H Girl Wins National Honor

IRIS SHANNON

To Miss Iris Shannon, 17, LeOrange, Ky. falls the honor of being The Country Gentleman's outstanding 4-H club girl in America. This national farm magazine selected her after a canvass of the accomplished 4-H girls throughout the country. Miss Shannon has been active in 4-H club work for seven years, in which time she won many high prizes, including the state championship in clothing last year. She received a blue ribbon in a national style show in Chicago last November. The Country Gentleman will give her a week's trip to New York and a complete wardrobe selected from an exclusive store in Macy City.

Ten per cent of your income in War Bonds will help to build the planes and tanks that will insure defeat of Hitler and his Axis partners.

Congressman May

Joe B. Bates, Eighth, faced by William O'Connor, of Jackson, in the Democratic primary, but no Republican opposition so far.

Jack E. Fisher, Owensboro Democrat, so far has a clear field for railroad commissioner in the First district. He was appointed a commissioner last fall when Robert Wood was named to accept a federal post. The district is strongly Democratic.

There will be three special elections to fill vacancies in the office of Commonwealth's Attorney. In the 24th Judicial District, J. L. Harrington, Paintsville Republican, is the only candidate so far in the 28th, John Roland, Richmond Democrat, is the only aspirant. In the 29th, a race for the Republican nomination has developed between James C. Carter, Tompkinsville, and M. Rey Yarberry, Columbia. No Democrat has offered himself in this Republican district.

COMMITTEE HEADED BY MAY ASSAILS 'WASTE' OF MONEY

Washington, June 24—A sharply split House Military Committee was put on record by its chairman today as determined to continue an investigation which it reported already had revealed "a sordid picture" of extravagant waste in War Department contracts.

Whether the investigation would continue to be conducted by three sub-committees remained to be seen, but Chairman May (D-Ky.) intimated he was considering consolidating the inquiry into a single unit.

His intimations followed disclosure that a minority report would be filed soon by Representative Thompson (D-Tex.) chairman of one of the sub-committees.

The minority report, members who planned to sign it said, would not disagree so much with the committee's findings as made public in a report filed yesterday, as with the manner by which it was considered.

Approved at a session marked by sharp clashes between May and Thompson, the majority report made these recommendations:

That war agencies eliminate "top-heavy organization" and "endless expense tags"; that the War Department tighten its supervision over accounting and auditing, strengthen its contract policies, enforce prohibitions against the payment of excessive commissions on cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contracts; readjust management fees, and require employees of contractors retained in conjunction with the procurement of contracts to file monthly expense and compensation statements.

"Citizens of this country cannot be expected to be faced intermittently with indifference in spending on the part of the officials of their government after the period of initial necessity has passed and continue buying bonds with enthusiasm, overlooking the extension of bureaucratic domination and government expenditures with a complacent attitude," the report said.

"The report cited instances of what is called 'stragglers' waste" of public money and a "tragic waste of copper" and asserted that George Remus, whom it described as a "once notorious figure in underworld activities during the prohibition era," was the moving spirit of a firm that received a $618,000 war contract although it had "few

Answering another question, Herdman said proceedings under the state anti-gambling laws could not be taken against the person who rented the lot to the show unless it could be proved he knew that gambling would be carried on.

Herdman quoted statutes to show that any peace officer accepting private employment "as guard or watchman or similar service" is subject to removal and upon conviction may be fined $500 to $5,000 or given a maximum one-year jail term or both.

The 8,000 tons of steel which used to go into anvils and anvils would make 16,000 20-caliber machine guns.

Constables Hiring Out To Protect Carnivals Are Open to Fines

Constables or other peace officers hiring themselves out to "protect" carnivals are subject to removal from office and to fines and jail terms, Assistant Attorney General Guy H. Herdman declared last week.

He gave the opinion to Justice of the Peace Carter Wilder of Lily, Laurel county, who wrote that a traveling carnival had operated gambling devices there and charged that a constable had received pay as a guard and had "permitted them to run these games."
