Clancy died and his wife decided to have him cremated, instead of regular burial. At crematory, attendant tried to sell her an urn for his ashes. "Nothing doing," she cried, "the little loafer never worked a day in his life—I'm going to put his ashes in a box of glass and he'll be doing something from now on!"

A husband's "walk" into the radio studio of John J. Anthony of the "Good Will Hour." He stated his case: "Mr. Anthony, I'm a very rich man. I am married to the most beautiful woman. I have yachts, polo ponies and mansions. We have five children and we're all in perfect health. I've said a distance of 92 feet; thence back to the beginning, being the same property conveyed by M. M. Fraits and Addie Eskew by deed bearing date, August 30, 1929, recorded in Deed Book 84, page 14, Floyd county court clerk's office.

A citizen was describing a political dinner he had attended: "Soon as I got into my place, my watch was stolen. I went to the manager of the affair and complained. He told me to sit tight and all would be O. K. In ten minutes he returned with my watch. "What did the crook say?" I asked. "So-and-so doesn't know I got it!" came the clincher."

Cassidy was walking through the streets of London, paying little attention to the law. Fifteen minutes later he was running down the Strand, waving a flag in his hand and yelling: "Let me get at Hitler's aviators—let me get at his aviators!" "What happened to you, Bobby?" "They just blew a balloon right out of me hand!" cried the furious Cassidy.

A panhandler accosted a citizen on Broadway: "Will you give me a dime for a cup of coffee, buddy?" "Listen, you," growled the growler. "I don't give money to people on the street!" "What should I do—open up an office?" retorted the touter.

Hitler ordered a captured general to be brought to Berchtesgaden—"I wish to humiliate him." Arriving the prisoner was told by Adolf: "I will show you that the Nazi mind is superior to your Russian intellect in the matter of propaganda. And we'll make bets." "I can't compete with you financially, Herr Hitler," said the visitor. "That's where the humiliation comes in," gleefully cried Adolf. "To every question I can't answer, I'll give you fifty dollars. To every one you can't answer, you give me twenty-five dollars—go ahead, ask the first question!" The Russian asked this one: "What goes up in the air with two legs, makes ten somersaults, whistles four times and then comes down with only one leg?" Adolf thought a minute and cried: "I don't know here's the fifty dollars!" "I don't know, either—here's twenty-five dollars back!" answered the Russian general.

Into the patent office rushed an inventor: "I want to patent this new cigarette lighter!" The clerk smiled: "Why bring another cigarette lighter—why there are already thousands on the market?" "But this one is different," insisted the inventor. "With this cigarette lighter, you push a button and an arrow comes out—and points to a man with a match!"

So supposed moron was brought to a madhouse. The doctor who did asked this question: "If I cut off your left ear, what would happen to you?" "I wouldn't be able to hear," "Fine—now, if I then cut off your right ear, what would happen to you?" "Then I wouldn't be able to see," The physician was now puzzled and he asked: "If I cut out both your ears, why wouldn't you be able to see?" "Because then my hat would fall over my eyes."

To help morose, a store advertiser, that it would give away a pack of cigarettes free between the hours of 7 a. m. and 8 a. m. Long line formed. Rushing toward the head of the queue, Maxie suddenly was hurled back by a big bruiser in front: "Get in line with the rest of us!" Maxie tried it a second time. The sign was pushed back. The third time he tried it the bruiser knocked Maxie down. Tip rushed a cup. "Did you see that?" Maxie asked Maxie. "and if he does it again I won't open the store!"

"YOU brought out an important point in connection with Carl Hubbell's unfortunate case. That I don't think you stressed most. This was about Hubbell after 20 years of pitching, 15 years as a big league pitcher and five as a manager. I always knew that Carl Hubbell was one of the smartest pitchers in baseball. It proves that he is even smarter than I thought he was. The freedom of the great majority, especially those who are above the average in skill, think they know most of it. They are no longer interested in learning something new and Carl Hubbell is a great human weakness. Too many think they know enough when no one knows much. Especially in these days no one knows nearly enough. We'll take the argument back to sport.

"What a fine thing it would be to have many more people adopting Carl Hubbell's method of still trying to learn after so many years at the top."

The Moppy Minority
This happens to be 100 per cent of the population. It is the argument back to sport.

They either lack the determination to keep going as they face, understand how much they might learn from others that would carry them out of the rut.

Many a door which happens to be rigged out with speed or skill or the winning knack take it for granted they are approaching the superman class and so stand up further instruction or improvement.

There never was a human being who knew it all, or anything even approached it. It is the argument back to sport.

You'll find that Cobb and Tilden were still experimenting, studying, working on new angles after more than twenty years of championship competition.

We could also name a number of others who stopped learning quickly and showed no particular improvement in later years.

They had nothing to learn from coaches or trainers. They are already had the answers.

Sarazen Speaks
"One of the big truths I've gotten out of golf," Gene Sarazen says, "is this: I've learned something every year I've played."

"I've found out that things I thought were important 20 years ago are not so important now. I've found other things I paid little attention to meant a lot."

"Hagen was always a great guy in this respect. He was always trying to learn something that might improve his game. After he had been a D. P. champion, I saw him one day taking a lesson, or at least trying to learn something from Harry Vardon on how to play a certain type of shot."

"It was only when I began to find out how little I really knew that I started winning again after a lapse. You get a lot of foolish and useless advice. But here and there you can pick up something that will help a lot."

Walter Camp and Pudge
Years ago Walter Camp told me an interesting experience he had had with Pudge Hefflinger, a football star who lasted over 30 years.

"Pudge was so good," Camp said, "that I was afraid he would be another Babe Ruth. In fact, I was afraid he kept coming to me for more advice on guard play. I showed him three new variations. Later on he came back and told me he had learned four new angles. One of these was the possibility of the running game. How many people know that Pudge Hefflinger had worked out and developed the correct method of the running guard around 1888 or 1890?"

All I know is that as late as 1921 or 1922 Hefflinger, then 53 years old, kept being called back to the 22, to speed up his start and give him a chance to lead that interstellar race. Ask Bo.

"The more you know, the easier any game is," an old-time trainer said recently. "You can save yourself so much and get so much long. You can often handle superior physical power and even greater natural skill by knowing more than your rival does. But this can't come from trying to learn every thing you can as you go along."

The hot dog is typical of America in many ways that one. A basket of hot dogs on the arm of an ambitious boy can grow into a lunch stand—or a string of restaurants.

That's the way America works. Highbrows call it "free enterprise." The freedom to use your own energy and ingenuity. Everybody benefits by it. It gives America the world's highest standard of living.

Wakefield Asks Citizens To Remember Wildlife At Christmastime
When the people of Kentucky are passing Christmas presents to each other on Dec. 25 they should not overlook presents for their wildlife friends of forest and field, S. A. Wakefield, director for the Division of Game and Fish, said last week.

Many birds and mammals require the help of humans to survive the rigors of winter," Wakefield pointed out. "Just corn, wheat, barley, sunflower heads, tepsedoes and sorghum seeds and other game foods should be made easily available to the wild animals."

Wakefield urged that every person, whether sportsman, student in school, landowner, farmer, or just a housewife, resolve to include in his or her Christmas list of presents a package of food for the wild birds and animals on Christmas day and the following week.

Eyes On the Land As War Ups Price Of Farm Products
War prices for farm products are attracting the attention of a number of citizens to a number of inquiries about buying land and farming, received at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Prof. L. C. Bradford has written a circular called "Farming as a Business."

"Money profits in farming are not large in normal times," warns Prof. Bradford. "Much of the value to be derived from farming may come from the direct consumption of things the city man can get only with cash. This pamphlet lays large emphasis on farming as a way of life. Such farming offers security that is usually not obtained through salaried jobs. Good farming offers the promise of a comfortable living and a wholesome life."

"The farm is recognized to be unsteady as a place to rear a family. It provides hundreds of satisfactions to those who like it. Farming is concerned with life as well as with things. The advantages and satisfactions can be had by those who approach farming with a good attitude and understanding and on a sound financial basis."

"Most farmers who have succeeded used this approach. Most of those who have failed approached farming on false assumptions. The discriminating family acts with good judgment in all things and particularly in choosing and buying a farm."

Among the subjects discussed by Prof. Bradford are cost of living on farms, learning how to farm, selecting a farm, the farm as an investment and as a place to live, farm houses and equipment, cash payments in buying a farm, building up run-down land, selecting crops, and farming plans.

College Reports Lessons Learned In Growing Hemp
Summing up experiences of Kentucky farmers growing seed hemp this season, the following comments were issued by the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics:
Hemp for seed may be planted as late as June 1, or even later. April 10 is about as early as it should be planted.
Much seed hemp was planted too close this year. On rich bottom land the hills probably should be 5 to 6 feet each way, and on upland 4 to 5 feet.
Seed hemp should be thinned to 2 to 3 plants on bottom land and 3 to 4 plants on upland. In many instances this season 10 to 15 plants were left. This season many plants were left. This season many plants were left.
Cutworms, grasshoppers and groundhogs eat hemp. Be prepared to scatter poisoned barn mash in the hemp field.
Male plants should be removed when they have turned yellow, or when they have shed their pollen. Some seed hemp was cut too early this year. If close examination shows that much of the seed is green, it may be best to delay harvest for a few days, even if seed is lost through shattering.
In many instances shocks were set too straight this year that they blew down and seed shattered out. Shock bases should be wide and plants slanted 45 degrees.
Begin beating out the hemp seed just as soon as it is dry enough, and rush the job. This would have saved much seed this year, and materially increased the yield.

Washington, D. C.
INSIDE: ON ALASKANS
The inside story can now be told of why the Japs were able to land in the Aleutian Islands and bomb the U. S. naval base at Dutch Harbor with so little opposition. As with most things in this war, the problem goes back to lack of foresight, and also, to some extent, lack of army-navy cooperation.
Not generally known is the fact that the navy in September, 1941, some two months before Pearl Harbor, refused to let the army build an air base on Unimak Island to guard the navy's Dutch Harbor base.
What happened was that Senator Brewster of Maine, a member of the Truman committee and of the naval affairs committee, flew to Alaska last September with Brig. Gen. Arthur Wilson to ascertain whether Alaska needed further fortifications. At Kodiak they met Brig. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, commander of the island, and although his father, a famous Civil War commander, once helped to pay Ulysses S. Grant's way home from West Point and later surrendered to Grant in Tennessee.
General Buckner wanted to go on from Kodiak to Dutch Harbor with Senator Brewster, but although the navy was willing to supply an amphibian plane to the senator, they balked at having General Buckner go along, referred to him as a "fitch-hiker."
Finally, however, the party, including General Buckner, went on to Dutch Harbor and located an excellent site for a flying field on Unimak Island. Immediately upon their return, Senator Brewster arranged for a private appropriation to build an air base at Unimak, while the war department prepared to proceed.
Navy Says No.
The war department also notified the navy of its move, since the army is charged with "the" shore establishments of the navy. A few weeks later, however, word came back from the navy that it did not want the army to build an air base on Unimak Island to protect Dutch Harbor.
When senators asked Vice Admiral Fredrick A. Horn, why he refused "The navy can protect Dutch Harbor."
The navy was in late September. Two months later, after Pearl Harbor, the navy frantically demanded an air base to protect Dutch Harbor, but it had been too late. The snow and ice of an Alaskan winter. Therefore the date of completion was July 1942.
Probably the Japs knew this date. They have had fishing vessels cruising through the Aleutians off and on for some time.
And when they bombed Dutch Harbor, the navy's flying patrol boats there were helpless. Heavy loads of money and position, but on the whole a charming, highly intelligent person.
Conclusion: This man is clearly of exceptional character. We would not hesitate to trust him anywhere.
TIME OUT!
It's bad enough to lose the key to my bed room, but worse is now having it with the wife and she has put it in her purse!
—Merrill Chicoite.
Do You Remember—
Away back when if the railroads were doing capacity business both to passengers and freight they could make money.
Impending Battle: When the WAAC who never forgets dead and has to salute the captain who once said she had no style sense.
We hear that every time our fleet commanders hear Alex Severisky on the air they check up to see if they still have any czechs left.
500,000 typewriters are wanted for the army and navy. We deplore this. The army and navy have enough troubles without having to master the job of changing a typewriter ribbon.
Add insult: As funny as a politician saying that politics be dropped for the duration.
Ima Dodo watched the recent total eclipse of the sun. It lasted an hour and a half. "Gosh," she exclaimed. "For a time I was afraid it wouldn't get out of it."
Secretary Stimson announces that the army will now take men 50 years of age. Bring your own, incomes, weak supporters, knee and frail!
Can You Remember—
A man had a woman's place was said to be in the home?
The question every girl with a sweetheart in the service asks when ever any other male of the same age is observed in civvies, "Why isn't he in uniform?"

PSYCHIATRY AND WAR
(Suggested by the proposal that, before being inducted, all men in the armed forces should undergo tests by psychiatrists.)
CASE 9463: Subject's name is Paul Revere. Very impulsive type. Admits he likes to ride horseback at night. Prefers to do so alone. As a child played with internets, reflecting toys. First words as an infant according to parents was "Gid-dap!" and "Gid-dap!" uttered around at night waking up neighbors.
Conclusion: Erratic, stubborn type with little emotional stability. We think he should be carefully watched, kept away from horse and not treated with any mission of importance.
CASE 9729: Subject's name is Israel Putnam. Admits he can't stand being left out of a fight. Will drop everything to get into one. Highly good natured as a surveyor. As a child he was left in his baby carriage a few minutes by a nurse. He promptly took hold of the wheels and rode it down steep steps. Seem proud of the incident when reminded of it now and says he would do it again if he had a chance. Very difficult to stop. Impatient of those who differ with him. Has sharp temper and is given to violent outbursts.
Conclusion: Clearly a mental case. Keep in a cool dry place and permit no initiative.
CASE 9728: Subject's name is George Washington. Exhibits many unusual traits and tendencies. As a young man he was a very good swimmer without being asked to do so. When father asked him if he did it he simply told the truth, in fact it was difficult to tell whether he was confessing or boasting. Liked to fight Indians although he could make good being an actor. Openly says kings are over-rated. Says he wouldn't be one if he could.
Conclusion: Schizophrenic or something. He is a very intelligent person.
CASE 9277: Name, U. S. Grant. Very unstable. Case history shows him indolent and disposed to let things slide. Careless about personal appearance. Difficult to draw into a discussion but very vehement when once aroused. Smoked cigars in grammar school. Drinks. When asked if he drank anything, he replied: "Anything!"
Conclusion: Unreliable, impetuous and a little touched by insanity. He is a very hard worker under careful watch.
CASE 9233: Benedict Arnold. Subject has a mind to exasperate tests. He met them all with ease and patience. Very intelligent. Has remarkable self-confidence. Expresses self lucidly and seems well informed on everything. Is somewhat vain, a bit impetuous and rather fond of money and position, but on the whole a charming, highly intelligent person.
Conclusion: This man is clearly of exceptional character. We would not hesitate to trust him anywhere.
Finds Farms Able To Solve Labor Problems
Farmers in Kentucky who realize that the labor shortage is their problem to solve are finding ways to do so. Such is the conclusion of Dr. Roy E. Frazier, of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics after a personal investigation of conditions on farms in 28 counties having an acute labor shortage. Here are some examples of the way farmers are making full use of labor and machinery.
On the P. O. Baker farm in Hopkins county a tenant, unable to get help in the field, hired a housekeeper to care for three small children, then his wife drove the tractor.
The stamps cost the same as the old plates. Machinery which formerly manufactured the plates, is now being used in war work.
The new stamp is two inches by four inches, and is orange with black numerals. It is to be affixed at the lower right (opposite the driver) inside curtain of the windshield. Owners of automobiles have been requested to remove the old plates from the front of their cars and save them for future use.
The stamps do not cost as much to manufacture as the plates, but the cost to the motorist will be just the same.
$300 REWARD NOTICE
The undersigned will pay a reward of $300 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set fire to our garage early in July and who on two other occasions have provided about our premises leaving gasoline in close proximity to our residence. This also is to notify all persons not to come about our premises after nightfall without first making their identity known, since we must take steps to protect our home and property.

READING and WRITING
NO BOOKS can be of greater immediate interest to us than those which tell the story of our own men at war. Among the best of these is "Queen of the Flat-Tops" by Stephen Johnson, one of the best of our time. One thing he doesn't tell in his book. He himself earned commendation by going into the smoke-filled, lightless tunnels and caverns of the doomed ship and helping to rescue some sixty burned or wounded men. That probably slipped his mind.
Captain replied slowly: "I was just thinking I wouldn't I look silly if I left this ship and then the stars went out?"
Stephen Johnson, author of "Queen of the Flat-Tops," is a Chicago Tribune correspondent, and the only newspaperman aboard the ship at the time. One thing he doesn't tell in his book. He himself earned commendation by going into the smoke-filled, lightless tunnels and caverns of the doomed ship and helping to rescue some sixty burned or wounded men. That probably slipped his mind.
The January Book-of-the-Month Club selection will be "Headhunting in the Solomon Islands" by Caroline Mytinger. It's not about headhunting in the accepted meaning of the term, nor is it about what our Marines are doing to the Japs. Miss Mytinger is an artist and does her headhunting with a brush; her book tells of her experiences painting portraits of natives and colonialists in the South Seas.
In "The Last Man Comes Home" Stephen Longstreet tells of a boat trip he made down the Yellowstone and Missouri Rivers in a white oak boat, accompanied by a full-blooded Indian who was the grandson of Sitting Bull. During one stage of this voyage, the Indian started singing in a low monotone, and the author cocked an ear, hoping to get the words and rhythm of some old Sioux tribal chant. The noise of the river drowned out most of the chant, but finally Longstreet caught the words.
"Old McDonald had a farm, the Indian was singing, "Ee-ye-ye-ye-oo..."

SERIOUSLY SPEAKING

By E. F. EPLING
"We are doing this and we are doing that. We are winning now. It is quite proper to use the first person plural pronoun if 'United we stand, divided we fall' is in all seriousness, being adhered to."
Twenty-two million Americans are investing a portion of their wages in bonds, while most of them are also in industries vital to defense. They're truly in this "we" class for they are behind the men behind the guns.

Just because a man is making money is no sign of patriotism. It is what he does with it, after he's earned it, and how. That will place him in the "we" class or make him ashamed in the presence of the returning Defenders of Democracy.

A dog, he said, is man's best friend. That's so, you are a friend to the dog. There's many a hungry child that would be man's best friend if they were being fed the pork chops many dogs are getting.

SHIKE'S POKES

(The views expressed herein are those of the writer and not necessarily those of this newspaper.—Editor.)

B.B.'s theme song seems to be "I Called and Called but Nobody Answered Me." It's a good thing his "better half" finally heard him—as he would have had to sleep on the floor with his leg caught foul in the banisters.

Hedge took a little trip Saturday and was conveyed home—but was torpedoes by "Chilly Bump" right at his porch. All's well that ends well.

That little song, "Yes, We Have No Bananas," seems to have been written about 20 years ago.

The perfume makers announce a new scent to spray on yourself, named it "Courage." Give me the name of old days when we took the stuff internally.

Vance Porter from Dwaite is back at work as the Bumbo mine. Being used to loading "bug dust," he must have got that engine too hot. He got "cut off," but Ben Hale set he was cut off in a boxcar on a sidetrack.

I saw a large U. S. bomber flying low over Hunter's Branch, but some of the fellows said that was just an overzealous looking for George F. and "Leatherhead."

It's getting late time for Bill Burchett and D. M. Parsons, of Betsy Layne, to start giving the Drift citizens lessons on doing the "Buzard Loze."

Well, that new boy of Ed Halber's must be "some fellow." The youngster is now two weeks old and Ed hasn't worked a shift since he arrived.

I've been getting some reports from "Curt the Workman" is now a preacher—or at least he's baptizing. Isn't that right, Cain?

The Washburn Commando basketball team was going great until they were torpedoes by the Martin second team.

I'm of the opinion that Bob Shay and Mack Lewis are nesting.

Six-Day Mine Week Planned To Begin After January 1

Bituminous coal mining will be stepped up to a six-day week about the first of the year and prices will rise an average of 20 to 25 cents a ton.

A producer said, "The matter has been fully agreed on" with government agencies on the price and wage questions.

The War Labor Board, it was learned, has decided that payment of a time and a half rate for the sixth day under the wage agreement with the miners does not constitute a wage increase, even though the premium rate begins after the 35th hour. The miners now work a seven-hour day and a five-day week.

The producer who declined direct quotation said the increased labor cost would amount to about 12 to 15 cents a ton. The operators have asked an additional eight cents to cover increased cost of materials and other items.

NOTICE to 'A' GAS CARD HOLDERS YOU CAN GET RE-CAPS IF NEEDED!

The O.P.A. State Office and Rationing Boards have been getting thousands of calls from "A" gas card holders who want to know if they are eligible for tires or re-caps. In order to help clarify this situation we are giving the simple rules governing eligibility in the four principal classifications.

- "A" BOOK (240 miles or less)—Entitled to Re-caps if tires need re-capping. If present tires are not fit to be re-capped, owner is entitled to: (1) Used Government tires or (2) Grade 3 new war tires.
- "A2" "B" BOOK (560 miles or less)—Entitled to Re-caps if needed, or, if present tires are not fit to be re-capped, owner is entitled to Grade 3 new war tires, if present tires cannot be re-capped.
- "C" BOOK (561 to 1,000 miles)—Entitled to (1) Re-caps if needed or (2) Grade 2 new tires, if re-capping impossible or (3) Grade 3 new tires.
- "C" BOOK (1,000 miles and over)—Entitled to Re-caps if re-cappable if tires are not fit for re-capping, are entitled to (1) Grade 1 new tires, (2) Grade 2 new tires, (3) Grade 3 new tires.

PLEASE NOTE: No one is entitled to a new tire of any grade if their present tires are not fit to be re-capped.

After Jan. 1, automobile operators will not be eligible to gasoline rations unless tire repairs or replacements suggested by tire inspectors have been made. Tire inspectors, the O.P.A. has ruled, shall not sign inspection slips until such repairs or replacements have actually been completed.

ON THE NORTHERN CONVOY ROUTE

AT SEA—Two members of a U. S. Navy gun crew are shown at their stations, returned against the icy blasts that sweep down from the Arctic across the Northern convoy route to Russia. At left is David Riley, of Ludlow, Mass., and at right, James McPerrin, of Birmingham, Alabama.

...ner of the wood got out of all this mess. You fellows who think being a "highway patrol" or constable, or such like career is good for "coffee money" a place to work, what do you think of that 1940 law that provided $200 for the alleged culprit and $100 for the man who nabbed them? Here's the law, as then written: "An Act provided for appointment of patrols for such patrols along the Ohio river. Such patrols finding a slave of his master's harbor without a permit are authorized to administer the slave with any number of lashes not exceeding 10; and then take the slave before a Justice of the Peace who may adjudge said slave to have, altogether, not exceeding 39 stripes. As an afterthought apparently, the august legislators decreed that, after the whoppin' was all over, the "patrol" should be paid $25 per slave caught, jailed or returned if captured outside the county; the "patrol" should be paid $50. It also seemed to the august townpeople over in West Liberty had to have some help from the 1840 General Assembly after having made the civil matter of holding the town's first election of trustees only a month late. West Liberty was made a corporate town on Jan. 1, 1840, and it was stipulated that the town should elect its trustees on the first Saturday in May. But, alas, "the boys" waited till the first Saturday in June. And so, after some of the "opposition" evidently had raised the question, the Legislature hauled off and set it down there, for all to see, 101 years later, that whenever those trustees elected a month late did was, here, here, etc. O.K. by the Legislature, which seems to have left the opposition without a leg to stand on, even if it did have a limb to be out on.

TOWN-WORLD

Legislature handled such important matters. For instance: "Be it enacted . . . That the place of voting in the election precinct on the Left Hand Fork of Left Beaver Creek shall be changed from the house of John Moore to the house of Frank Stambaugh."

"Be it enacted . . . That the place of voting in the election precinct at the house of John Hatcher be changed to the house of James C. Hatcher."

"Be it enacted . . . That Jesse Murphy, of Muhlenburg county, be, and he is hereby, authorized to build a dam and fish trap on Pond River, at the same place where his old fish trap stood . . ."

"Stealing coal is a major offense, these days, but they didn't worry about such a matter, back then. They took steps, instead, to stop this onerous business of stealing wood. In this fashion: . . ."

"Be it enacted . . . That, if the commander of any steamboat shall, hereafter, take wood from any woodyard . . . without the consent of the owner of said wood . . . and without making compensation for the same . . . and with fraudulent intent . . . he shall . . . pay the sum of $100, to be recovered by indictment of a grand jury—one-half for the use of the informer and the other for the use of the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

The record is not clear what the er was in France's Argonne Forest with the first American expeditionary force, is doing his part toward hastening the armistice that will end World War II for the United Nations want it ended.

Mr. Gortell's story follows: "United States army heavy bombers rained more than 100,000 pounds of big bombs on the Naples harbor area today and returned to their base without a scratch."

"Lieut. William E. Sutton, Langley, Ky., was lead bombardier in the first element of the mission. The bombers scored direct hits and damaging near misses on half a dozen Italian battleships, cruisers and destroyers and left tremendous columns of smoke rising from shattered power houses, ammunition and supply dumps and other targets."

"I watched a bomb hit an Italian battleship dead center, and saw a big column of black smoke billow 2,000 feet above it. Two big fires burst out in other parts of the ship, and from one of them shot hundreds of incendiary bombs, making like an eruption of nearby Vesuvius."

"It was a brilliantly executed duck attack by Army B-24D Consolidated bombers which dropped bombs capable of flattening areas of hundreds of square yards in opening the Allied offensive against Italy and North Africa, striking at the biggest Axis replacement base in Italy."

"The Italians can put part of the blame for the raid on their fleet. Its ships were jammed in the harbor. They had not emerged from the cubby holes for weeks, and the American planes went in after them, which well over 300 anti-aircraft guns attacked the harbor, including those on the warships, the Italians were certainly in a position to defend themselves, but not one of our bombers was even hit."

"It reminded me of the day when I watched an Italian fleet bearing down on a British fleet last June, and the Consolidated bombers, making their debut in the Mediterranean, near, sent the Italians back with a battleship in sinking condition. A big cruiser in sinking condition."

"Over Naples today I saw a handful of the B-24s, only a small part of the force which made the raid, drop thousands of pounds of bombs to score a hit with every one of them in the Mole area."

"In this area, about 700 yards square, were the battleships and other craft bottled up. It is already available show that the raid overshadowed any mission so far by American heavy bombers based on Italy with the possible exception of two raids on Tripoli, in one of which 90 per cent of the bombs dropped hit ships or harbor installations. The army has pictures to prove it."

"I was in the first element in the Naples mission and I didn't see a single ripple in the water from one of our bombs. They all hit. The bombardiers pin-pointed the targets and socked them from an altitude of several miles."
