IF THERE has been a part of sport badly overdone, the prize goes to the length given to spring training in the major leagues.

This applies especially to the long list of exhibition games played along the route back home. If owners and managers don't know this, the ballplayers do. Few ballplayers facing a 154-game schedule can handle 35 extra games without going stale.

I've heard several club owners and managers admit this, but they feel they must string along with the others merely through alleged public relations.

Training at home through a short-term period isn't going to hurt the quality of play.

The Case of Ty Cobb I asked Ty Cobb one year why he had held out so long. "Money had nothing to do with it," he said. "I simply didn't want to wear myself out with too much spring training."

Each year he had to play 200 or more games. I was still fresh and feeling good through the last week, where some of the others had gone stale.

Cobb handled fewer training days than any other big-time ballplayer. This partly accounts for the fact that he was able to move at top speed for 24 years.

Cobb kept in condition by hunting most of the winter. His legs were always ready to give him the transportation he wanted.

Exceptions I'll admit, Cobb was an exception. So was Babe Ruth. One of the all-time sporting marvels is the way Babe Ruth carried his 200-pound system through 20 seasons on a brace of slender ankles.

Each year he had the feeling those thin ankle props were going to break up, considering the fact that Ruth also averaged at least 30 exhibition games each year.

The Babe weighed 235 pounds the year he collected his 40 home runs, from 15 to 20 pounds over his normal displacement.

"I had enough left that year to hit on Hill the next year," the Babe tells you. And he also feels certain he could have added a bunsy back called extra homers if he hadn't been called so for so much exhibition play.

It has always been my belief that major league seasons start too early and last too long.

The season should be condensed, adding the necessary doubleheaders to fill out.

Washington, D. C. DEMOCRACY STREAMLINING If the President and the country want to get a full realization of how democracy is streamlining for action they should think back to the summer of 1941, just one year ago, when, for what seemed like unending hours, the congress steeved over extension of the selective service act.

Senate and house isolationists were haranguing the galleries on the inequities of keeping the boys more than one year in camp; telling the public how the navy was already conveying ships; revealing in advance that Roosevelt had sent troops to Iceland.

Finally by the thin margin of one vote, 203 to 202, and thanks to the sage generalship of Speaker Sam Rayburn, the selective service act was extended. He it was that for that narrow victory, we should have had no army to rush to Australia, and the whole war effort would have received a tragic setback.

But last week, a war-geared house representatives passed the 18-19 year draft extension act in three days; and it should be passed by the senate and signed by the President in the next few days.

Politically and personally, nobody wanted the 18-19 year draft extension. It was the worst time to pass it, just before elections, and it was doing a much better job than most people realize for streamlining democracy.

ATROCITY PICTURES A strong debate is raging among propaganda buffs over the question of atrocity stories and pictures. The government has received a lot of such material from Allied sources, especially the Chinese and the British, including such horrible scenes as Japanese attacking Chinese women, and pouring oil on the lives before setting the torch to them.

Opponents of publication argue that the atrocity stories of the last few weeks were so graphic that when so exposed left the public disillusioned; thus the people might now react unfavorably and charge the government with pulling the same tricks.

Other officials argue, however, that the material is authentic, that it is not posters and rumors, but actual photographs, and the public should know what sort of enemies we are fighting.

It is apparently a part of the German psychological warfare to treat British and American news as a lack of humaneness in order to keep us lulled in a state of moderate war. The vast majority of the world are for the conquered nations and the Russians.

The Poles and Chinese are urging use of the material as a necessary means of fully arousing the American public to the menace.

Elmer Davis' Office of War Information is set to go, once the debate is settled.

DAIRY MANPOWER Fortnight Set. Benetley Bunker of Nevada had a long talk with the President the other day on the war manpower problem, in which he emphasized the need of swift action to meet the labor shortage on dairy farms.

"I'm from a farm area myself and I know what these dairy people are up against," said Bunker. "Unless we move fast we will have a serious shortage next year as thousands of young farmers are beginning to slaughter their dairy herds because they can't get help to tend them."

The President admitted the problem was serious, and assured Bunker that the War Manpower Commission was aware of it. He added, however, that he doubted any steps the government might take to relieve the farm labor shortage would be a complete answer.

RESOLUTIONS Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our circle our beloved sister, Julia Grace May, who was called from this life Sunday, Dec. 27, 1942 and whereas, she was for many years a member of Adah Chapter, an active member of the Baptist Church and looked a lively interest in several other organizations;

Be It Resolved: That this chapter has lost a consistent member, the community a kind and gracious citizen who was loved and admired for her noble character and friendly disposition wherever she went.

"They never leave us, these friends who have passed Through the shadow of death to the sunlight above. A thousand memories holding them fast To the place they have blessed with their presence and love."

Resolved: That we sympathize with the family our comradess sympathy and commend them in their sorrow to "Him, who doeth all things well." Be It Further Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this chapter, a copy be sent to the bereaved family and a copy be sent to The Floyd County Times for publication.

Uncle Sam's firm hand has again stretched out to protect his millions of acres and nephews.

Three new actions last week were designed to either halt price increases or assure the even distribution of a commodity.

Affected were shoes, butter and milk.

Shoes were suddenly placed under ration while the supply was still plentiful.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:
The Whites: One, fanning the Nazis can't find from the world is their families in ideas. The way they twisted President Roosevelt's address to the Congress, their people showed how poverty stricken Goebbels has become in lies. That's good news over here, because it lets us know that Berlin doesn't hope to fool the world any more—just its own groggy citizens.

The Magazines: The Japs were saps to give J. B. Powell his freedom. He will be a powerful witness against them when the payoff day comes. His account, in the Nation, of the brutalities to him and other prisoners will shock and enrage you.

Kentucky Farmers Face Biggest Job
"Farming in 1943, the biggest job Kentucky farmers ever faced," is the name of a leaflet published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

A GOOD WORD
—IN BAD COMPANY—
By the REV. W. B. GARRIOTT
Pastor, First Methodist Church

Let us take another look at the word "Zeal." It is the Greek derivation of that means "TO BOIL." We also know that when anything is heated to a boiling point, it is said to "boil over" and evaporation means to consume.

With this in mind let us turn to the third chapter of Revelation and to the 18th verse: "And I saw a woman which was drunken with the wine of her fornication." I love, I reprove and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent."

It is not enough to see what is desired, we must look at the results, which will be produced by our actions. "So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth."

The chief complaint against the church at Laodicea was that it was a self-satisfied church. If it was self-satisfied, it was satisfied with something. What was it? Some one named Barnabas, if he believed in sanctification, to which he replied that he did.

Listen to what the Spirit is saying: "Because thou sayest, I am rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked." Here is a picture of the Spirit trying to arouse a church as you would undertake to arouse an individual who was in danger because of neglect.

5 Gas Wells Reported Drilled in Recently In This Section

Five gas wells were reported completed in Eastern Kentucky this week with a combined open flow of 2,962,000 cubic feet daily.

The Inland Gas Corporation has completed well No. 229-M on the Knott-West Virginia Gas Company lease on Irishman Creek of Carr's Fork in Knott county at a total depth of 3,293 feet in white shale. The well has a daily open flow of 542,000 cubic feet of gas from time.

The same concern reports the completion of well No. 3458 on the Greenville Charles tract on Raccoon Creek, Pike county, at a total depth of 1,619 feet in maxon. The well has a daily open flow of 1,107,000 cubic feet of gas.

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company also completed well No. 708 on the J. A. Scott farm on Johns Creek in Pike county at a total depth of 3,425 cubic feet in shale. The well has an open flow of 682,000 cubic feet of gas per day after shot.

A large number of hogs are being fattened on meat in Leslie county. One man bought 60 head to feed on nuts.

Good average-quality products and high yields are the order for 1943. There will probably be little price premium for fancy quality, and the effort had better be used for greater output.

Careful planning of marketing and greater co-operation among neighbors and commercial truckers are to move into marketing channels without severe loss.

The leaflet gives practical information on soil productivity, crop varieties, use of machinery, work-stock and labor, and the raising of cattle, hogs, dairy cows, sheep and poultry.

OFFICIAL ORGAN FOR FLOYD COUNTY, KY. For Year $2.00

Published Every Thursday by PRESTONSBURG PUBLISHING CO.

NORMAN ALLEN, Editor Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the act of March 3, 1879.

TO BUY OR NOT TO BUY...

TO purchase or not to purchase the Prestonsburg Gas Company—that is the Shakespearean paraphrase of the City Council's dilemma as arguments are offered for and against the transaction.

The $50,000 price tag on the property sounds high, especially when contrasted with the $15,000 at which it sold two years ago.

The private buyer doubtless would be staking his financial future on such a venture. The town would be paying for it with bonds, with only the water system itself as security.

A study of the figures is necessary in making the decision the Council must reach. Moreover, the future of Prestonsburg must be considered.

WHY RATIONING?

Rationing is based upon a community plan idea to divide fairly the supplies available among all who need them, especially the more essential goods of every day necessity.

It is not a new idea, particularly since it was an early one to pool their goods and clothing when they became scarce and apportion them out to every one on an equal basis.

They rationed and sacrificed when necessary, but as near as humanly possible, sacrificed together, to strengthen their country's weakness and to maintain, as near as possible, a balanced economy.

Goods have become scarce for many reasons because of this war. The enemy has cut our supplies in many items to which we have been accustomed, either by invasion of those countries from which they came, or by sinking ships carrying supplies to this country in the usual course of sea trade.

ENCOURAGING TALK

The recent statement from United Mine Workers' headquarters to the effect that a union-operators wage dispute should not necessarily mean a strike is encouraging.

The union says it is willing to continue work, even though an agreement is reached—if the operators will agree for the wage scale ultimately agreed upon to be retroactive to April 1 when the present contract expires.

That proposal seems perfectly fair and representative of the true spirit of the American miner while his country is in danger. This would permit work to go ahead while the dispute was being submitted to mediation.

Yet one more point remains to be cleared before the anxiety of the nation in war production is completely allayed.

That is—will the decision of the mediators be unequivocally accepted and immediately complied with, no matter who loses the argument?

Points By Other Editors

GIVE RUSSIA CLOTHES AS WELL AS PRAISE

AMERICANS have been lavish and sincere in their praise of the incomparable gallantry of the Russian people, who have braved cold, hunger, hardship and death in their determination to drive back the invader.

Schoolchildren, the unions, retail merchants and many other volunteers are participating in Louisville's campaign to raise its share of the state quota of 500,000 garments for homeless Russian men, women and children.

These are some of the vexing things that will trouble conscientious Councilmen and city officials as they try to do their best in this matter for their community.

TOTE, CARRY, AND PACK

THIS week I address a woman's club in another state and thus I into a former student of mine, whose family have long been friends of my family and distantly related, it is said, in talking about old times, we stumbled upon the three words in the title, tote, carry and pack.

Though the educated, sophisticated world has meanings or these words and can find them in dictionaries, our Fidelity people had their own opinions and used them, too, here as elsewhere. I am sure that many of you who read this will recall my very meanings for these words, for I am aware that Fidelity talked dialectical Scotch-Irish, just as many millions of people elsewhere in America did and do.

"Tote" as a word was usually frowned upon by the nicer people. It was regarded as a "rigger word." Negroes toled in stowwood, toled packs of clothes on their backs or heads, toled their pickaninnies astride their hips. It was permissible, however, in good society to describe a he-man-nish act as "toting a load." Imagine my surprise a few years ago when I discovered that "tote" is not wholly a Southern dialectical form but is used in New England to describe the transportation of canoes around a waterfall.

"Carry" has a good many meanings in the dictionary, all of them worthy of use by the most hair-splitting users of language, but our Fidelity meaning is marked as dialectical. Carry meant "accompany" or "take," as carrying your girl to a party or carrying the old family to feed her sister's bean, one of my colleagues. A negro could tote his load, but we packed ours. There was, so far as I can now remember, no suggestion of stuffing something into a container, like packing a suitcase or a box, in the word as we used it. It just meant "pack," and that was that.

Dialectical differences are likely to be ironed out by the radio and the public school, but sometimes it is hard for us who have taught ourselves better to refrain from thinking, if not saying, the words that we knew before we became standardized.

MONEY TALKS

By FREDERICK W. STAMM Economist and Director of Adult Education University of Louisville

A GREAT DEAL of confusion still exists in the minds of thousands of Americans regarding the present federal income tax law. This misunderstanding, it seems, grows out of the fact that so many plans have been proposed and still are being proposed to alter the present law that some people believe they do not have to file an income tax return. This is not true. You must file a tax return by March 15, 1943, covering your income for 1942.

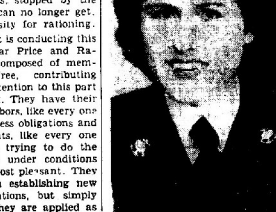

The much-discussed Ruml plan which would have cancelled the 1942 tax and put all of us on a "pay-as-you-go" plan for 1943 did not become a law and therefore should be disregarded. The new proposal of Senator Capper of Kansas which would alter our present tax law does not apply to the 1942 income.

The Victory Tax which provides for a 5 per cent payroll reduction on all salaries over $12 per week is not a substitute for the regular income tax but an additional tax so do not confuse this new tax with the regular income tax due and payable March 15.

With the lowering of exemptions to $500 and $1,200 for single and married persons respectively, thousands of citizens who never before paid a federal income tax will have to do so this year. If there is any doubt in your mind as to whether you should file a return or not, the safe thing to do is to secure a blank, fill it in completely and file it with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in your district.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Save now to buy later, after the War. That's good common sense because if you spend now, you help to drive prices up for everything you buy. Durable goods are scarce to invest in War Bonds today and do that whose remodeling when Victory is won.

If you have not done so, join a Payroll Savings Plan at your office or factory. If you are not investing at least ten percent in War Bonds, increase your regular deductions on your Payroll Savings Plan. Let's "Top that ten percent."

READING and WRITING

WHAT should our attitude be toward the German people? Should we consider them all as 100 per cent enemies, or should we take into consideration that there are many among them who hate war and Hitler and who might be won over to our side?

Dorothy Thompson has some interesting thoughts on this controversial subject in her new book, "Listen, Hans." Miss Thompson, one of the best known women in America today, was a correspondent in Vienna and Berlin from 1920 to 1924. In 1934, Hitler barred her from the Reich for her writings. Last March, she started broadcasting over short wave to the German people, in German. She addressed these broadcasts to a German named Hans—a real person whom she had known when she was there. Here was a man she believed to be typical of many middleclass Germans, misguided and still under the influence of Nazi ideology, but a reasoning human being, capable of being convinced. It does take a deal of reasonableness, though, to be objective about Germany's crimes against millions of defenseless and enslaved peoples.

Approximately half of "Listen, Hans," is the English translation of these broadcasts. The first part, titled, "The Invasion of the German Mind," is an analysis of Germany and the German character.

Miss Thompson warns against any attempt to sell our society to Germany as a sort of earthly paradise. Germany's view of the U.S.A., Miss Thompson reminds us has been "largely influenced by the Hollywood films . . . and by descriptions of Dr. Goebbels." One of the more popular American books there, was Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath."

"The average German knows that we are very rich," she writes, "but he also knows that, until we began active war production, we had a long period of dreadful unemployment. . . . The German worker fears unemployment more than anything on earth." At all times, she stresses, "we should be the advocates of peace for there is one thing in which the German mind is not divided. . . . The German people want peace."

In addition to "Guadeloupe Diary" by the war correspondent, Richard Tregaskis, the Book-of-the-Month Club will distribute Norman Angell's "Let the People Know" for February. This is a forceful exposition of the reasons the United States is now engaged in a global war. "Guadeloupe Diary," by the way, has made a time-record for itself in the publishing world. On November 1, Tregaskis' New York office received a letter from him saying "he had a book, what should he do with it? They called back to send it on, and it arrived, via clipper, on November 10. Three days later, it was accepted for publication. And three days after that, the Book-of-the-Month Club judges made it a selection.

Even Wall Street is feeling the effects of rationing, according to a publisher who received the following request from a well-known banking magazine: "We believe our readers will be interested in your recent publication, 'What Do We Eat Now?'" This book, authored by three women, is a wartime housekeeping cook book. When we told this story to a broker friend of ours, he said, "What do you mean, even Wall Street? I've been on short rations since 1921!"

PRIVATE PURELY SYMPATHIES WITH THE HOME FRONT

Dear Mom.—Well I heard on the radio a broadcast of news from the United States and it made me all-most as much worried about you and dad as you are about me. About the only big difference between me and you now is that you can talk back. But you got to listen to just as many orders as me I guess.

Remember away back mom, when you was just worried that I would not have enough comforts in the army and when you was always so afraid I would not be able to keep warm? Gee I never thought I would be worried over you for the same reasons, mom.

I guess them rules about jalopies is making it hard for you, although I know you ain't the kind to squawk. I hear you can't use the fiver for nothing now except in case of sickness, but I bet the rules make you sick enough to have a good nibble if he decides to take a ride. I seen one rule which says it is okay to drive a sick dog to a dog hospital and on account of I know what a little fresh air means to you, mom, I wish you would pick up a dog what did not look too healthy and take you out for a little ride once a week.

It looks to me like between reading automobile rules, checking tire numbers, popping out new ranshaling systems, trying to keep warm and keeping track of new rulings on what you can eat, mom, you ain't having no picnic. But cheer up, mom. Your troubles make me sorer at life than ever and I will fight harder to break up this war now.

I am well and strong if a little muddy. I wood feel better if I knew who was on the level over here and who was not. Some Frenchman is double-crossing some other Frenchman or vice versa every few minutes and I guess General Eisenhower is having a time straightening out the line-up. Every day somebody else is arrested for trying to run the wrong way with the ball.

Well, I see there's a ruling you can not send me no more packages unless I ask for them and get the brassheads to okay it which makes me sore. It makes me feel silly making out a list of things I wood like 'em reading it to a officer like I was 'sking Santa Claus for some presents.

The brasshat I wood have to ask for a soursup. He wood not okay nothing for me so I am going to tell him I want a player-piano, a barrel of beer, catcher's mitt and a polo pony from my folks. I got nothing to lose.

Love, Oscar.

TIP TO SQUAWKERS

"Five sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan of Waterloo, Iowa, were here on the cruiser Juneau." News item.

"Kiekin' about your rations? 'Squawkin' about the bans? 'Fussin' about the gas meter? . . . Think of the Sullivans!"

Blue on account of edicts? Yellin' of more ahead? What of that Western home where Five of the group are dead?

Beefin' of sacrifices? Yawpin' about the costs? Think of the home where parents mourn for their five boys lost!

"The used-car dealers, admitting that many autoists had called about selling their autos, said that they wanted fortunes for them." News item.

In the mind of a used-car dealer this means that a man trying to sell a 1941 sedan probably wants something a little above $100.

An OPA official announces that baloney will soon be a memory. Well, we just don't believe it. You can deprive us of a lot of things, but you will have the united opposition of the entire congress when you try to limit baloney.

"Meat of some kind and an unspecified amount of substitute, including soybeans," will be used as one OPA man. Well, we don't know much about the soybean. But someone as smart as you feel the same about a soybean hot dog as we would about a turnip-hamburger.

Hitler seems to be ignoring the slogan about never changing generals in mid-dream.

Elmer Twitchell says a soldier in this war has to be between 18 and 29 in order to stand all the changes of climate.

Well, the ban on automobile certainly gives the last laugh to the fellow who always said the auto hadn't come to stay.

The WPA has decreed a cut of 50 per cent in the nationwide production of ice cream.

Another blow at the war effort. It means less work on "sandwiches."

Southern Bell Telephone AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

But—Sacrificing Non-Essential Calls Helps Clear Lines for VITAL War Calls

You bet it's pleasant to talk with friends over the telephone, just as it was pleasant to take those long Sunday afternoon rides when we had plenty of tires and gasoline.

But social calls must be handled over the same local telephone facilities as war calls. There is a definite limit to the number of calls these facilities can handle at the same time, and when more calls are made, some must wait.

With telephone equipment already burdened with war calls, non-essential calls may delay necessary calls, so we are requesting your voluntary cooperation to reduce unnecessary calling.

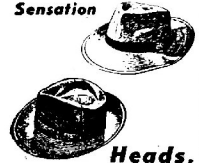

Under normal conditions we would expand our facilities to care for the increased volume of calls, but we cannot do that now because the needed materials are going into war weapons.

So won't you help by making fewer local calls? And when you must make a call, won't you please try to make it as short as possible?

claim that the tax law amendment failed to set up a standard by which the Revenue Department could determine the need for reassessments. The appellate opinion said the requisite standard included the non-compliance and "public interest" provisions.
The opinion added that if a Revenue Department order for reassessment was capricious or unwarranted, the courts could enjoin it, and that a taxpayer had the same right to appeal reassessments as he did the original assessments.
Under the old law, the Revenue Department could make blanket increases of assessments of various classes of property in counties, but its order pointed out the amendment authorized a multiple reassessment in a county and that the department may withhold enough of the county tax commissioner's usual fees to pay for the work being done over.

Martin Woman's Letter Tells What Bankers Life Company Is Doing For Her and Daughter

The following letter is one of hundreds to the Bankers Life Company, from grateful beneficiaries:

Martin, Kentucky
August 18, 1942

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In July of 1940, my husband, while performing his duties as Electrician for the Utilities Elkhorn Coal Company, of Martin, Kentucky, met death unexpectedly. Of course, it was very sad for my little daughter and me to think that her father and my husband would be taken out of our lives so suddenly.

Since he was taken from us Bankers Life Company has assumed my husband's financial responsibilities. Two years prior to my husband's death he had bought from Bankers Life Company a $5,000.00 Family Protection Policy. Immediately upon his death, without question or investigation, Bankers Life Company paid me a clean-up fund of $500.00, and pays me a monthly income of $50.00 which will continue for EIGHTEEN (18) YEARS, and then I will also receive the face value of the policy.

If my husband were living today, I know that he would want me to tell others how his family has been protected by just one policy with Bankers Life Company. So, you see what Bankers Life is doing for me. It will do the same for you, if you will just deposit with Bankers Life Company a small sum each month out of your earnings.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) MRS. MAUDE JONES BROCK
