This Town-- That World

THE ACID TEST

Are you a good salesman? Do you think you have the old s.a. (sales appeal) so strong that you could sell second-hand ice cubes to an Eskimo? Well, just try peddling up Left Beaver Creek the hundred- and-some-pence piece of "literature" in which the State Highway Department tells the people of the state what it has done as the master of building Kentucky roads.

EMBARRASSING, EH, WHAT?

Isn't this rationing business embarrassing, sometimes, when you're caught without stamps? For instance, there was the case of the Prestonsburg man who received his last gasoline ration book. The meter loomed high and low. No find. Then along comes one of these pesky youngsters and he finds the lost treasure. Where does he find it? In a neighbor's chicken-coop!

GOOD FOR THEM!

Say, those New York shipyard workers had "something on the ball" when they protested the one-day shutdown during Monday's belated Memorial Day holiday. The workers, then carrying placards told the story: those placards read, "Our Fighting Men Have No Holidays," "What Happened in War or Fight," "Enforced Absenteeism," "Who is Stowing Up the Ships Now?" "This is Lost Time," "Hasn't A Holiday Today?"

Memorial Day, Sunday, regardless, any worker who couldn't get home Sunday to decorate his loved ones graves should not have been asked to forget his duty to country by taking another day off from the job of protecting the halcyon ground these loved ones in their last sleep occupy.

MORE ABOUT SLOGANS

Speaking of slogans and without denying that the United Front Workers have some right to portaling, the TIMES cannot pass by this opportunity to remind all and sundry that you just can't afford to pick up your marbles and go home in this war, simply because somebody isn't playing the game as you would like it played. Periodically. What about portaling-or-porthole?

NO CALL SENSE FOR FATHERS

Of County for Months If Men Now Eligible Remain Available

Early call of fathers to service in the armed forces is the chief problem in Floyd County, "barring complications." This is the word from both Selective Service Boards here. Although induction of fathers is held important in many parts of the country, this will not be done until Draft Director Hardesty issues a special order calling men of this class to service. "If our calls are on the average no more than those of May and June," said H. H. Hill, clerk of Selective Service Board No. 44, "and if the Agricultural War Board does not block us in the induction of eligible single men, we are interested after Pearl Harbor, the supply of selectees will be adequate without taking fathers until Jan. 1, next year." Robert A. Wallace, clerk of Selective Service Board 45 said his board's supply of eligibles under present conditions and bearing local calls, is sufficient for six months.

Draft Board 44 this week released names of 60 Floyd County registrants who have been notified to appear here Tuesday morning, June 15, to go to Huntington for final examination and possible induction into some branch of the armed services. Seventeen of the 60 are veterans.

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

Sometimes ago I announced as candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator from Floyd, Knott and Martin counties. Since that time I have not been able to call personally upon any of you people, due to the fact that I have been working every day getting the war by furnishing lumber to the War Department, the United States Army and the Navy.

I have a son who is now overseas serving his country in the United States Army and I am using all of my energy, effort, gasoline and rubber to help in the prosecution of the war by furnishing lumber to the War Department. I want you to know that if I do not get a chance to speak to you personally about my election, that I appreciate your support and that if I do not get around to see you, it will be because I do not have the time, gasoline or money to do so.

Court Appeals May To Make Settlement

At the court's second meeting of the week Friday, a resolution was adopted holding the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the State Highway Department "harmless" on account of any damages that might have been incurred by road construction to the two Delton graveyards on Middle Creek and the court assumed liability for any damage caused.

FDR REQUESTS WORK RETURN NEXT MONDAY

Coal Parleys Fail; Mines of Section Remain Idle

Thursday evening - Bulletin - President Roosevelt, late today (Thursday) called on all life miners to return to work Monday.

All was quiet - quiet - on the Home Front this week.

The miners marked time - fishing, gardening, pitching horseshoes or just plain loafing - while in Washington negotiators and Union representatives parleyed and bickered, while the War Labor Board did some bickering on their own accounts.

Today (Thursday) some word was leaked from the White House, perhaps a Presidential order for the military to begin to work. The War Labor Board Wednesday notified both miners and operators that any agreement reached while the shutdown continues will not be recognized.

Main bone of contention was the union's demands for portaling - payment. The union termed the lay-off simply a refusal to recognize an operator's property in the absence of a contract. Government spokesmen termed it a strike in disguise.

Special mines were threatened with a definite lay-off of production by week's end unless the flow of coal from mine to steel plant is re-ensured.

Searchlight on Congress the Smith-Connally bill to give a wartime strike as broad a scope of immunity as that of the House. Congressman A. J. May, Prestonsburg member of the House Military Affairs Committee, declared "the people of the country are demanding action."

QUOTA FLAG TO FLY HERE

County Wins Honor By Over-Subscribing 2nd War Loan Quota

In addition to a Quota Flag, an Honor Pennant will also fly from the top of the county building within five days, for the part played in exceeding quota during the recent Second War Loan drive. James Guy Hunt was preparing Thursday for the dedication.

"It is my special pleasure," wrote M. J. Fleming, chairman of the War Finance Committee, Fourth Federal Reserve District, to G. C. Spadoni, Prestonsburg, chairman of the Floyd county drive, to inform you that you will receive a special Honor Pennant to be flown just above your Quota Flag because of the magnificent achievement of going over 150 per cent of the non-binding quota secured your county. I know that you will be a matter of great satisfaction to you and your organization as well as to all the people of your county. The District Committee wishes to thank you and them, and to extend its congratulations."

With a quota of $465,000, Floyd county citizens and two banking institutions bought $948,000 worth of Bonds during the Second War Loan drive.

Byrnes Says 100,000th Airplane Produced Since Nation Began Arming for Battle

Spartanburg, S. C., May 31.—War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes disclosed tonight that the fleet of the fleet will reach the 100,000th airplane since the start of the country's production for this war on the warrent that the cost of victory will exceed the 238,184 casualties of World War I and that more "self-discipline" at home will be necessary.

Speaking at a home town rally climaxed a celebration of the part played by textiles in the war effort, he called the soil of American production achievements and declared that "many attacks on many fronts both in the European theater of war and in the Pacific."

The speech was a review of the production effort in which Byrnes drummed on the ascendancy of the Navy, which he called "the most effective and the most plain that the Allies are preparing to launch a gigantic naval offensive in the Pacific which will match in ferocity the aerial war against Germany and Italy."

Only last week Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt stated candidly that the majority of American strength already was concentrated in the Pacific and they made plain that the major subject of their conference was a Pacific offensive.

"The 100,000th airplane manufactured since we began our war production program came off the assembly line today," he said. "During this year, we will double the size of our fleet. That accomplishment is without parallel in history. It is the most rapid rate of production in the history of the world. In the first three months of 1943 100 fighting ships were completed—one every 36 hours."

"We are building merchant ships four times as fast as they are being sunk," he said. "In the 12-month period ended August 1942 more than a thousand ocean-going transport ships and almost 100 ocean-going tankers."

"Machine-gun production since June 1, 1940, total 2,225,000. Bombs manufactured in three years, total 44,832,000; anti-aircraft cannons 162,000."

"The submarine is still a deadly menace. The only attack against the submarine is even more deadly. We have lost fewer ships and destroyed more submarines than we ever lost before."

The speech, broadcast nationally was Byrnes' first major formal address since President Roosevelt named him director of the Office of War Mobilization and gave him top command and responsibility over the war effort on the home front.

tion of efforts among the civilians in government agencies that exists on the military front."

"Our government has no right to call upon you to work as a team if it is not going to demand of government officials that they work as a team," he said. "I admit that officials of the government have made mistakes. That is to be expected of human beings."

"But the people have a right to expect government officials to sacrifice all pride of opinion and to cooperate just as officers of the army and navy are required to co-operate."

"We must be just. There have been controversies in government. But that these controversies and their effect upon the war effort have been exaggerated, is clearly demonstrated by the statement that I have made of our progress."

Byrnes said the creation of the Office of War Mobilization is part of the President's "new and resolute action to unify and solidify our war efforts here on the home front."

He said that emphasis in naval construction this year was on "aircraft carriers to give air coverage to our convoys and to our attack submarines, and to destroy the enemy's submarines."

Announcing his 100,000th airplane figure as "a big record for the man," Byrnes said that "the 100,000th airplane" was built at the Ford Motor Co. plant in Dearborn, Mich. He said that the airplane was a B-24 Liberator bomber.

limistic picture of steps being taken to curb the German submarine menace, saying that within a year and a half the Navy would have more destroyer escorts — the new anti-submarine vessel — than any other single class of fighting ship in the fleet. New detection equipment, plus a stragg in airplane and escort vessel anti-submarine activity, he said, contributed to the splendid record in May when we lost fewer ships and destroyed more submarines than we dared hope for.

Byrnes warned repeatedly against overconfidence, recalling that in June, 1941, it was Hitler's overconfidence that "caused him to attack Russia and give us time to catch up on our preparations."

"Thus far," he said, "we are only on the outer fringes of this war so far as personal deprivation on the home front and the cost of blood on the battlefield are concerned. We have been in this war almost as long as we were in the last war, so far as our casualties are concerned, we have only 86,862. Our casualties in the last war totaled 233,184."

Looking down a long, hard road ahead," he said, "we have not yet a firm foothold anywhere on the continent of Europe, excluding Russia. Japan still holds her stolen empire rich in vital war resources — thousands of our boys are prisoners of the in the Philippines and the flag of the Japanese aggressor flies in place of Old Glory over Corregidor."

"As this country enters for the first time the truly 'critical period' of the war," he continued, "we must maintain production and even increase it at critical points, as well as assume a major part in the all-out military operations against the enemy."

Despite his words of caution, he spoke vigorously of our offensive aims. "We have caught up with the Axis in our preparations and are forging ahead. We are now giving ourselves a lead for a single attack on a single front, but for many attacks on many fronts both in the European theater of war and in the Pacific. These attacks will proceed when and where the enemy least expects them. And they will not cease until victory is won."

"At the featured speaker at a festive observance of the part the textile industry and its workers are playing in war production, Byrnes paid his address with high regard for the men and women in the industry."

After praising the labor movement generally for setting "that there is no interruption of war production," he said strikes actually were rare and that in 1942 only 1-20 of the men at the time of war workers were lost in strikes.

"The strike in war industry is almost as rare as the slacker in the army," he declared.

His name is Gordon Buck. Less than two years ago he was just another young boy at the Shore-norvik Golf club, located at South Norwalk, Connecticut.

Not quite "just another caddy" for he showed such prowess at locating wild slices and wider hooks, driven into wild land-overshootings, recalling that in June, 1941, it was Hitler's overconfidence that "caused him to attack Russia and give us time to catch up on our preparations."

Then war and the shadow of war came along. So Gazer, who was most worried by the fact that ever-caused from wood or iron.

Next Step
 First turned down by the air corps, they washed out as a pilot. Gazer Buck switched over to the navigators' school.

He gave this third shot everything he had. His club members at Shore-norvik had lost track of the eager, bustling, sweet and often dirty-faced kid who had left them to help his country.

Somewhat to their surprise, the Gazer suddenly arrived in New York from his training in Texas. But he was no longer the scraggly little caddy they had known.

He was now Lieutenant Gordon "Gazer" Buck, chief navigator of a four-motored bomber, on his way to one of the major fronts.

The Gazer had on his new uniform. He had the poise and coolness of a veteran. But he still had the same grin, and in many ways he was still the same young caddy his club members had known from a short while ago.

Should Plant Hybrid This Late in Season
 In many parts of Kentucky much corn planting will be delayed until early June or even later, and for such late planting the State College of Agriculture recommends seed of quick-maturing hybrids or varieties.

If planting can be completed during the first week to 10 days of June, the earlier hybrids widely grown in Kentucky may be safely used. These are the two yellow hybrids, U. S. 13 and Ky. 203, and the white hybrids, 69, 72, and 72B. Where later planting is necessary, the safe plan will be to purchase seed of hybrids or open-pollinated varieties in the more northern parts of the Corn Belt states—Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio. The earliest of these should mature in Kentucky if planted by July 1.

A GOOD WORD

By the REV. W. B. GARRIOTT, Pastor, Prestonsburg Methodist Church

In the times gone by it was a common thing to hear of crusades and these followed on a quarter of a century ago. It is in order that the sepulcher of Jesus might be won from the Saracens, Peter the Hermit cried: "God will it," and hundreds of thousands of men marched on the first crusade. Fifty years later, a million and a quarter of men set out for Jerusalem, not one of whom saw the Holy Land, but these crusades went on from time to time.

Perhaps the saddest of these was the Children's Crusade which took place in 1212. An army of thirty thousand French children, unarmored, led by a boy called Stephen, set out for the Holy Land by way of the Alps and came to the Mediterranean. They thought the sea would divide for them and they would pass over to the Holy Land in safety. Most of them perished on the march, or were lost at sea, or were sold into slavery.

The time has now come for a crusade for the children. A challenge upon the hearts of the church of this age. The church must come forth with a message of certainty and truth and prevent the terrible calamity which came to these children the last age.

Children are teachable and they are going to be influenced by the example which we set for them. The responsibility must rest on some person's shoulders. This of all things is no time to say to the children: "Do not do as I do but as I follow Christ." The leaders of youth cannot afford to say anything less for the youth of this country is one of the most susceptible.

It has been said: "A man may be a teacher, but the terms of his teaching may consume them or be consumed by them." We often see men who are earnestly who are the subjects of malpractice in their youth and because of the ignorance or indifference of some one they will walk the path of life to the grave and every step will be in pain. The functions of life instead of being joy have become agony.

This is a sad picture to be given of the physical condition of a child, but the state of the child is worse still. What has been said of the physical may be said of the mental and the spiritual. There are many children who have been led innocently into wrong-doing and sorrow because they knew not where to turn. The force they have been held which held them fast.

A teacher who does not know English cannot teach. English is not only not acquainted with the branch he or she is teaching. If this be true with the teacher in the public schools, then the same must be true with the church, and the church cannot teach its people unless it can teach to a better life unless the church both knows and practices.

The church is made up of individuals known as members and the influence of the church is no greater than the practice of those members. If the children see the parents do the least of one or two things is true that you are not a very good Christian or that religion does not amount to very much. If the people of the church permit every kind of vice to be carried on before them, they are going to conclude that vice is what you gave them and that is all you care for them.

We may have our own way of doing things in life and even go so far as to say what we think but we must do it on the basis of what we think or what will suit our convenience. He put it on the basis of right and wrong and finally to say: "Inasmuch as you did it and I am the least of these you did it unto me." You will remember the matter which he has just been discussing was a matter which was close to his heart. The people who were hungry, thirsty, naked, sick and in prison.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Washington, D. C. PRESIDENT LISTENS

The President did the listening, instead of the talking, when he conferred on farm manpower and food with three prominent farm leaders—Albert Gross, master of the National Grange, H. E. Babcock, vice president of the National Council of Farmers, and Ezra T. Nelson, its executive secretary.

The farm spokesmen spent about 90 minutes of the 91-minute conference expounding their views on what caused the food shortage now facing the country and what has to be done to remedy it.

Local Draft Problem. "If you want my views, I'll give them to you, Mr. President," spoke up Ezra Nelson. "Two things have to be done and done immediately. First of all, someone in authority here in Washington must tell these local draft boards where to head in. They must be told that they have almost as much responsibility to see to it that they have sufficient manpower to produce food for the fighting forces. Food is just as important as munitions in my opinion. We can't fight the war without it, and we can't let our civilians starve."

The fact of these local draft boards still feel that they must fill their "induction quotas," Nelson continued. The boards have been advised quotas but they don't have to meet them, at least not in sections where there is a crying farm labor shortage. "You see men, some of these boards do not want to remain on the farm while a war is going on."

"This isn't the fault of the draft boards," he said. "The young men themselves are so glib that they do not want to remain on the farm while a war is going on."

"The second thing that has to be done is for the government to step in and stop the widespread selling of dairy cows and other stock and farm equipment by farmers who are unable to continue in business at present farm price levels," Nelson continued.

"I'm as much opposed to inflation as you are, Mr. President," he added, "but we have got to make it possible for farmers to operate at a fair profit if we are to let this threatened food shortage. They are being paid for their crops in order to pay wages that will keep their help from migrating to jobs in industry."

The cooperative official contended that farms had lost two-thirds of their manpower to war industries because of low farm wages. The President said that he, too, was deeply concerned about this factor, suggested in his callers that they get together with Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and map out a program embracing their recommendations. "Then come back and see me again," urged the President. "I want to continue these discussions."

CAPITAL CHAFF The super-cabinet's careful consideration of how the armed forces should be was actually a sham battle. FDR has the "old duchy" over the size of the armed forces and wouldn't take anybody's say-so on this point, except the army's own plan, conceived way back in 1938. The army in 1938 had no idea whether we would have the ships in 1943 to transport troops abroad, but is sticking to its original plan just the same. And FDR is 100 per cent behind it. C John McClinck, assistant co-ordinator of inter-American affairs, is off to the Amazon, to inspect food and health programs for rubber tappers. C When General Marshall turned down the rank of "Field Marshal" he also knocked over a carefully laid plan whereby Admiral King would become "Admiral of the Fleet".... To date only three men have won the title "Admiral of the Fleet"—Farragut, Dewey, and Percival. Tipoff on the proposal to make King Admiral of the Fleet was so he could outrank Admiral Leahy.

Announces Formation Of Marine Corps Reserve Branch

The United States Marine Corps announced the formation of a Washington Reserve branch of the Marine Corps. This is not to be confused with an Auxiliary and is to be known by an individual name for the corps of women members of the branch is exactly the same as that of the men and there is an expansion plan that this will be equal in part of the tradition of the Corps.

The branch for enlistment applicant must be between the ages of 20 and 30, have had a high school education or better, and be subject to a rigid investigation as to character and moral fitness. There will be a civilian recruiter appointed for Prestonsburg, but until this appointment is made any woman interested may write Sgt. THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"How do you feel about this idea of stopping 'em from selling liquor anywhere near army camps, Judge?" "I was just talking about that with Will down at the barber shop about ten minutes ago. Tell you what I told him, Ned. I say it's up to the Army to decide. Why should we walk in and tell the Army how to do its job

...any more than I should tell you how to go about putting out a fire? And here's something that strikes me funny. All this worrying seems to be about the boys' conduct around the camps here in this country. You never hear a word of worrying about them drinking when they go abroad. Kind of queer, isn't it, Ned?"

SERIOUSLY SPEAKING

By E. F. EPLING
Closing of the Prestonsburg grade school at a little sad, yet a relief to teachers and students who have worked hard, we know, for a very fine school year.
And the little school recently closed - we miss seeing those boys exclaiming army drills.
Speakers of schools: thousands of boys and girls will not be in school next year, or will it be this year? Who but the old teachers can fill in the pages? They could, if given a chance.
Schools and churches certainly give Hitler and Tojo a very bad headache. If it wasn't for a few teens in the arm, some Americans, from Senators on down, give them, they'd soon learn over.
I bet Chandler felt big when he bustled up to the big boy, but small later on.
The show some people make is certainly embarrassing even to us here folks.
Why can't these big-know-it-all Congressmen and Senators "send to their chancellors"
Congress, like our fine schools, has a few unruly boys who simply make one blush.
Aren't you glad the big boy from England and F. D. R. are such good friends?
The Red Cross here in Prestonsburg is making an appeal to girls and women to come in, even one evening a week, and help roll bandages. "A bandage you roll can save a service man's life."
"Red or yellow, black or white, Jesus loves the little children everywhere." That's fine in Sunday School, in West Prestonsburg or elsewhere, and if it is remembered and appreciated and taught, the community will draw in favor with God.
The young American would not have to go through a horrible war 20 years from now if children the world over were taught something about God, instead of sinful folk-sinners.
God looks down with an eye of pity on our boys in horrible combat, but His wrath will fall on those who are sticking daggers in their back here in the beloved country they're dying for.

Book III Applications, Improperly Filled, To Cause Delays

Louisville, Ky., May 27—Trouble is piling up on the distribution center for War Ration Book III in the OPA office here, which is responsible for mailing more than 2,500,000 of these books to Kentuckians, beginning June 1.
Even before the plans and arrangements were perfected for the distribution center, hundreds of applications a day have been pouring in, a large percentage of which have been filled out improperly.
Those responsible for the War Book III program say that at least a third of the applications received contain no signatures. Many of them have the names of the applicant printed and some signatures are even typewritten. OPA officials pointed out that when these applications are processed the ones filled out incorrectly will be set aside and that the books will not be issued until notification is received from the local board in the applicant's district.
When a family or an individual has not received a blank, he should go to the nearest postoffice and obtain one, OPA officials said. One application blank is sufficient for a family or household of 12 persons. Where there are more than 12 persons in a family, a separate application may be filled out, they said.
In all cases, to avoid delay in receiving the new ration book, applicant should write plainly and sign his name at the bottom in his own handwriting, affix a stamp and drop it in the postoffice.

ELMER TWITCHELL AND THE VICTORY GARDEN. Elmer Twitchell issued a communique today announcing that he has launched his spring Victory Garden drive again.

"I can't give you much time," he told reporters. "I'm going over the whole situation to check up on gains and losses in my campaign so far, and out where I am, consolidate my forces and decide on my 1943 tactics."

"What's your tactical position?" a reporter asked. "I'm not positive," he replied. "This is only my second summer in the field. I've not had much of a chance to get my feet under me."

"Are you more confident of victory this season?" he was asked. "I'm stronger than I was a year ago. Five trained hard all winter. I've got some new weapons and I have a few more tricks up my sleeve."

"I found out last summer that you can't get along with a Victory Garden on the defensive. Those damned bugs love it if you stay on the defensive. That's right up their alley."

"Don't forget," Elmer reminded, "that all those garden pests and blights were in a much better position than I was when the fight started. They had been doing nothing but waiting for the right day for years. I was green in it."

"Was it the element of surprise that bothered you?" he was asked. "Not so much surprise as the power and determination of the enemy," he replied. "And of course their reserves are inexhaustible. I'd lick 'em and think I had wiped out the last bug, and up would come another battalion of 'em. That sort of thing gets pretty discouraging."

"Who do you think was your toughest foe?" a reporter asked. "I thought General Aphid was tough early in the season but later the plague. For a while he was harder to beat. His armored attack on bean veins is terrific. Then came the green pest and his hop-like tanks and it was strictly a suicide fight."

Elmer seemed depressed just as he finished his last year's garden campaign. He threw them all back up to midsummer, but then General Cutworm attacked in force, using blitz methods. He was supported by waves of corn borers, potato bugs and snails."

"How about your technical warfare?" he was asked. "Oh, I gave 'em all I had, but they had too many fresh crops to brook in. But do you know what really broke down my morale last season?"

"No." "The neighbors' chickens," confessed Elmer. "That was what got me. I thought they were neutral. They were Fifth Columnists!"

The Congressional Jobs: It was reported that House legislative leaders intend to pick a nimble-witted Congressional sharpshooter, who would be in constant attendance during sessions to make clay-pigeons of those who try to spread rumors across the Capitol.

It's about time, they say, their rapier-vets will help enlighten proceedings. Congressional history is crowded with swift repartees—like some petty humans today, a small-time politics was once trying to make a name for himself by picking on an important American who happened to be a Senator.

The human mollusk annoyed the Senator for months, who finally slipped him into oblivion with this story: "A skunk once challenged a lion to a fight. The lion declined. When the skunk brought it up, he was afraid, the lion said: 'Very much so. For you would only gain fame by having the honor to fight with a lion who would not meet you for a month would know that I had been in company with a skunk!'"

A lawmaker with a senescent one told this about himself. He sent a consultant a Cong. Record with one sentence and the other: "I'm a scoundrel and I'll stay that way." He also advised that they were also the same way."

They Long was called a derogative when he concluded a verbal filibuster. Horry formed at the word, during his critic to define the word. "Which his critic did. He said that the word was a man who can rock the boat himself and persuade everybody that there's a storm storm at sea."

There are some of the facts of life about Congress every citizen should know. Before they get too serious for this level, a group of legislators organized a "Demagogues' Club," which held daily in the House chambers. After a Representative made a particularly demagogic speech for home consumption, the club members would check the speech he would like to have made. Then he was asked to report the club's verdict. "Vote for all appropriations and against all taxes," and subjected no full membership. The hedge was a safety pin, worn on the breastbone. "Some fan club?"

Them there's the one about the Congressman's wife who woke up in the middle of the night. "Jim," she said, "there's a robber in the house." Her sleep-deprived hubby replied, "That's impossible. In the Senate, yes, but in the House, never."

This is one of the Congressional favorites. House Speaker Tom Reed had a barred-wire tongue. One day one of the biggest horses in Congress got up, drooled out a lengthy diatribe and concluded by stating: "Mr. Speaker, I am like Henry Clay. I would rather be right than be President!"

Reed merely intoned: "Don't worry—you will never be either."

Rep. "Uncle Joe" Cannon loved to tell tall tales about his fishing. He once told a friend about a fish he caught. Trying to beat him to the punch, the other asked: "About the size of a whale, wasn't it?" But the Congressman wasn't stopped. "Hark, no," he replied. "It was better 'n' whales."

In 1914 the House of Representatives was evenly divided between both parties. The vote for House Speaker resulted in a tie. One independent Progressive could cast the deciding vote. That man was Gog Thomas B. Scholl, who was blind. He felt handicapped in not being able to judge rival candidates by seeing their faces. So he asked a newspaper man who had "a honest voice" for counsel. The reporter suggested that with a war going on in the House Speaker should belong to the same party as the President. The blind Congressman took his counsel to heart. The latter explained he was the chaplain of the House. "Does he pray for the members of the child asked with logical reasoning."

The father informed: "No, my son. When he sees the members sitting there—he prays for the country!"

Contrary to popular belief, most Congressmen don't like to have the power giving political jobs. Through bitter experience, congressional maxims has evolved: "Every political appointment means one ingrate and a dissenting member."

No column of legislative anecdotes would be complete without the classic about the to who visited the House of Representatives with his father. The youngster pointed to a man standing on the dais and asked who he was. "The father explained he was the chaplain of the House."

"Does he pray for the members of the child asked with logical reasoning." The father informed: "No, my son. When he sees the members sitting there—he prays for the country!"

THE NEED FOR VITAMINS

Dr. Arnett Qualified To Serve the District In the State Senate.

By COUNTY AGENT S. L. ISBELL. How shall I identify and select food to insure an adequate vitamin supply?

Man cannot live on calories alone. It is possible for a person to starve to death even though he has plenty to eat. One might get all the calories or necessities for energy from white rice, white flour, land macaroni or white crackers and still die of starvation. Land sugar and starch have been fed to rats in many experiments, and invariably they died. What was the cause of death?

Vitamins are the mysterious substances necessary to life. We call them mysterious because they are hard to identify and because they seem to have magic properties. Vitamin capsules or pills are no longer a novelty, and a tendency to use commercially prepared vitamins has increased to such an extent that many have overlooked the fact that "home grown" vitamins are just as good.

Many people have been frightened with such statements as "Lack of Vitamin A results in night blindness," "Lack of B results in beriberi," and so on.

As a matter of fact few people suffer from these diseases. The danger lies in seemingly smaller disturbances due to lack of vitamins. These smaller disturbances might be frequent colds, nervous disturbances, poor appetite, general weakness, rashes of dermatitis, poor teeth, faulty bone formation. These minor ailments may be directly a result of poor vitamin diet. Check your diet—check the vitamins. Buy your vitamins at the grocery store, or better still, grow most of them in the Victory garden. All vitamins except Vitamin D in cold cod liver oil and similar products may be found in vegetables or fruits purchased or grown. The Vitamin D, however, can be acquired which will keep you in your Victory garden. Let's review the vitamins, their sources and their uses. At the same time, check the food you eat daily to see if you are getting the most vitamins for your money. How many of these vegetables have you planted in your Victory garden?

The following gives, in brief, the diseases caused by vitamin deficiency and the foods richest in the several vitamins.

Vitamin A—Deficiency causes night blindness, dry eye and low night resistance. Good sources: Green leafy and yellow vegetables, all dairy products, liver, dried apricots, prunes, and fish liver oil.

Vitamin B1—Deficiency causes lack of appetite, general weakness, beriberi, heart disease of heart. Good sources: Whole grain and enriched bread, cereals, oranges, bananas, fruits, milk, liver, pork, peas and beans.

Vitamin C—Deficiency causes pyorrhea, gum infections, dental cavities, scurvy, anemia. Good sources: Fruits, especially citrus, tomatoes, most vegetables.

Vitamin D—Deficiency causes impaired formation and maintenance of teeth, bone, rickets. Good sources: Fish liver oils, Vitamin D milk, butter and fortified margarine, eggs, fish, sunshine.

Vitamin E—Deficiency causes skin eruptions in areas of mouth, burning chest, mild greasy dermatitis. Good sources: Wheat germ and yeast, milk, fish, liver, yellow and green vegetables, some fruits, especially dried prunes and apricots.

Nicotinic Acid—Deficiency causes pellagra, indigestion, diarrhea, insomnia, depression. Good sources: Wheat germ, yeast, milk, liver, beer, red, yellow, green vegetables, dried apricots, prunes, eggs, lean beef, brewers' yeast, rice polishing.

HOGS EATING MAST TREBLE IN VALUE—Hogs troughed in yams during the fall, winter and spring on a staple diet of mast is related by Fred Cook, of Leslie county, Ky. He thought to head for $800 last fall, turned them out in the woods and forgot about them until this spring. Rounded up, the herd sold for $1,900.

I believe I can be of real service in the State Senate to the people of this district, otherwise I would not be seeking the Democratic nomination.

I have the education, qualifications and I say this without arrogance to support hopefully, moreover, I have a wide experience in affairs of the Commonwealth, not only in Eastern Kentucky but over the state. My father, the late Charles D. Arnett, was formerly Secretary of State and also a State Senator. He was author of the law relating to the Civil Service.

I am far from ideal to an observer—Labor, Capital, Agriculture, etc.—with justice to all, not to only one to the exclusion of the rest, so their interests and work build a greater Kentucky. (Pol. adv.)

Day Coach Travel Rate Coast Tied

Frankfort, Ky., May 29.—An increase in railroad passenger fares in Kentucky was decided by the State Railroad Commission late today.

The rate which the roads usually would have fixed on a 100-mile trip from 165 cents a mile to 22 cents a mile and round-trip tickets from $48 to $75 a 100-mile run. This makes a 40 percent increase in the rates. The Commission also set the same rate for one-way and round-trip tickets for day coaches. The state commission authorized them to make a 10 percent increase in 30-day round-trip tickets used in sleeping and parlor cars, but to charge to 25 cents a mile—the same price as now charged for such tickets when used for three months.

The commission said that increases in 30-day round-trip tickets used in parlor and sleeping cars were expected to result in a net gain of more than in the 3.3 cents a mile charge for one-way tickets used in such first class accommodations.

It added that the denial of the proposed 33-1/3 cent increase in one-way and round-trip day coach fares affected 2,134 railroad miles in the state.
