This Town--
That World

HARD SLEDGIN'
You know, it's getting to be quite a job to fill Page 1 of this newspaper with live local news. You couldn't save you scrape up a good fight these days, outside Washington.

AT LEAST GIVE 'EM WATER
Drinking water for folks who visit Prestonsburg has become scarce since the courthouse water cooler went out of commission. If the fiscal court won't have the cooler repaired, the city of Prestonsburg should. Some people hesitate to go into private homes or business places in town for a drink of water. It doesn't sound so important, but this is no small item in the "good neighbor policy" Prestonsburg and Floyd county should practice.

QUESTION
Two wrongs don't make a right, but why concatenate sins machines operated by Floyd county citizens only a few days after a carnival finishes wide-open operation of various gambling devices, most of which were untouched? Gambler's gambling, and it doesn't hurt anybody any worse to gamble and lose—on a home-operated slot machine than it does to lose to a "hot-chop" contraption.

"But what you want and what you can't" is a new slogan in the Victory foods program.

DOGPATCH STYLE
With apologies to Capp and to the now enlightened residents of Ashland, Ky.:

I'LL ABNER: Look, Mammy—wanna sit rich and tender as an grown man? Pappy's forty-second cousin, on mah granddaddy's side give me mah pick, forty cents of this healthy hand-picked potatoe bathin' pool, two feet across both ways (gulp) as any fool can plainly see.

MAMMY YOKUM: Mah child! Yo air a jood! An axcepta! Come on in and fill yo innards wit turp presaves and git ter bed. His' most nigh eight o'clock, from here it is taken to a refinery where it is rendered suitable for engine consumption.

'GAS' PLANT
AT DWALE
OPERATING

Daily Average of 5,000 Gallons of Gasoline, Expected Output

The gasoline plant constructed as an adjunct of the Dwale compressor station of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, now producing gasoline and may attain an average daily output of 5,000 gallons. Peter C. Van Gilt, Ashland, vice-president in charge of operations of the company, said Wednesday.

Construction work on the plant has been under way for the last eight months, and was completed at an estimated cost of $125,000.

While manufacturing gasoline the plant, by removing the liquid content of the natural gas passing through the Dwale compressor station, will increase transportation capacity of the company's main gas lines from seven to eight per cent, it was estimated.

OFFICERS TAKE SIX MACHINES

Allegedly Operated On Left Beaver Cr., As Gaming Devices

Six slot machines, the first to be confiscated in months in Floyd county, were seized Tuesday afternoon by S. S. Saltburg and Scott Compton on Left Beaver Creek Tuesday afternoon while the officers were on an inspection tour of the creek and one of the slot machine was given trial Wednesday, convicted and "executed"; its owner, Mrs. Spicy Wilson, of Wheelwright Junction, fined $25.

May Formally Files For Lieutenant-Governor

William H. May, Commissioner of Agriculture, last week formally filed his declaration for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. May's papers were signed by A. B. Meade and Edward P. Hill, County Court Clerk and County Judge, respectively, of Floyd county. Both Mr. Meade and Judge Hill have been traveling extensively throughout the state in behalf of Mr. May's candidacy.

Trains Belated, Result Of Axle Wreck

Trains on the Big Sandy division of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway ran late Saturday as a result of a derailment at Auxier. The locomotive of manifest freight No. 97 left the track at 6 o'clock Friday morning, drenching officials said, and wrecking crews from Shelby were called into service. George Wyant, of Russell, was engineer on the train, but neither he nor any of his crew was injured. Trunk damage was not extensive.

Two Floyd Soldiers Are Axis Prisoners

Two Floyd county soldiers are held prisoners of war, according to recent casualty lists released by the War Department. They are: Pfc. Mitchell D. Burke, son of Mrs. Ida Burke, Wheelwright, held by the Germans, and Pvt. Ralph DeBord, son of Mrs. Margaret DeBord, Betsy Layne, and prisoner of the Germans.

Mrs. Alma Stanley Hyden, 41 year old, wife of John Hyden, died at her home in West Prestonsburg Sunday of tuberculosis. She had been ill since March.

Mrs. Hyden was a daughter of the late Frank and Amanda Miller of West Prestonsburg. She was a devoted member of the Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her husband and one son, Howard, a daughter, Joan, three brothers and three sisters: Mrs. Marcus Elliott, West Prestonsburg; Mrs. Pearl Bailey, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Opal Blair, Hager Hill; Fair Stanley, Dunham, Ky.; Roosevelt and Adam Stanley, both of West Prestonsburg.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday from the graveside in West Prestonsburg cemetery, the Rev. Isaac Stratton officiating. Burial was under direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

Publication of County Budget Is Required

Frankfort, Ky., June 29—County budget commissioners are required to publish county budgets in newspapers of bona fide circulation in their respective counties for at least 10 days before final adoption by fiscal courts. The rule was made known by Guy H. Hardman, assistant attorney general, in answer to a question by R. A. Webster, owner and publisher of the Grants County News.

This ruling applies to every county in the state. Floyd county's 1943-44 budget has been adopted without publication.

Stores Here To Close

The following Prestonsburg stores will be closed all day Monday, July 5, for the celebration of Independence Day: R. D. Ball, Ben Franklin Store, Francis Cash Store, The Leader, Glady's, A. W. Cox Dept. Store, J. B. Dick & Co., The I. Richmond Co., Western Auto Associate Store, Scott's Department Store.

Joseph Click Dies
Near Emma Sunday
Of Complications

Joseph Cleveland Click, 56 years old, died Sunday at his home near Emma after an illness of two months of pneumonia and complications. A native of Frazer Creek, Mr. Click was son of the late John Wesley and Mrs. Augusta Watson. He was one of the county's best citizens. He had been a member of the Free Will Baptist Church for several years.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Dora Belle Woods Click, and eight children: Barton, Click, Evelyn Layne, Braxton, Trenton, Loretta, Johnny and William, all of Emma; Mrs. Laura Ellen Burchett, of Woodder; Mrs. Cora Stephens, Allen; Naomi Click, of the army; Fort Bliss, Texas; also one brother, James Click, of Ohio, and five sisters, Mrs. Minnie Hall, Banner, Mrs. Anna Hurd, Lenora, Mrs. Artie Blackburn, Emma, Mrs. Jennie Rice, Zaniesville, O., Mrs. Flossie Amburgey, Lutzcr, Ky.

Merchant Marine's 'Torpedo Pin' Worn by Prestonsburg Sailor

WOODROW SMITH SURVIVES SHIP-SINKING
BY GERMAN SUB OFF AFRICAN COAST;
SAYS VESSEL 'COURTEOUSLY' SUNK

The boys who go down to the sea in merchant ships, braving dangers of submarine and dive-bomber attack, often unscathed, lightly armored and lightly armed—few medals come their way.

Survivors of ship attacks do wear one mark of distinction. The seaman's union presents each with a "torpedo pin," a neatly got up thing bearing the pattern of a torpedo such as sent their ships to the bottom.

Woodrow Smith, 25-year-old son of Mrs. Tilden W. Smith, wore his torpedo pin while visiting his mother here this week.

His 12,000-ton Liberty ship was sunk off the southeast coast of Africa March 10 by a German submarine, which sent two torpedoes crashing into the vessel without warning, then finished off the job with shellfire.

Smith's firsthand acquaintance with the enemy came on the homeward trip from Suez where his ship had taken a cargo of planes and clothing. Of the 73 crew members and the gun crew of 34, only one man was lost in the sinking. After almost four days in lifeboats, they landed on the African coast, 15 miles north of Kwaibombombu Zululand. His ship was unscathed.

ROAD HOPES REVIVED

As Federal Fund May Be Available For Stephens Br.

Stephens Branch may get a road after all, it was said this week. H. B. Hudson, chief of the federal Access Roads section, indicated that $30,000 may be made available by his department, this sum to build and surface a portion of the 1 1/2-mile route.

Completion of the highway which serves the mining town of Mantion and farmers of Stephens Branch has been urged for months by A. H. Mandt, of the Stephens Electric Fuel Corp., and by county officials.

Federal aid on the project may be procured because the route would supply access to a coal-producing section. In winter, the present road, from Route 80, near Martin, to Mantion is high impassable to motor traffic.

BIBLE CLASS MEETS

Minnie Woman Dies
At Martin Hospital
Following Operation

Mrs. Roxie Collins, 28 years old, wife of Madison Collins, of Minnie died Tuesday at the Martin General Hospital following an operation for removal of a tumor.

A daughter of Gan and Polly Moore, she was a native of Knott county. Besides her husband and parents, she is survived by two children, Craida May and Craig Vinson, and the following brothers and sisters: Myrtle Alice, Azee Hiram Willard, Denver and John D. Moore.

Burial was made at Mtaine, the Rev. Paul H. Hume directing. Funeral rites were conducted by the Rev. Millie Collins.

MRS. CASTLE FOUND DEAD

In Garden of Home At Estill Tuesday; Is Heart Victim

Found dead in the garden of her home at Estill Tuesday morning, Mrs. Maude Castle, 54 years old, widow of Vernon Castle, was believed to have been the victim of a heart attack.

Her husband, a veteran Floyd county peace officer, was killed in a lecture county coal mine a year ago in March, 1941. She was a member of the late Granite and Sun Castle of Johnson county, and was one of the section's best workers. She had been a member of the Free Will Baptist Church for the last 30 years.

She is survived by three sons and three daughters, Capt. Edmund Castle, now in North Africa; Earl and Richard Castle, both of Estill; Mrs. Henry Tom of Estill; Mrs. Arthur Haywood and Mrs. Rebecca Haywood, both of Estill. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. John Dilla, and one brother, Frank Castle, both of Parisville.

The funeral was conducted today (Thursday) from the home at Estill, the Rev. Douglas Burnett officiating and burial was made under the direction of the Rev. Paul Hume.

Soldier, Overseas, Calls
To Ascertain Condition Of Mother, Back Home

Anxiety of a Floyd county soldier in overseas service over the condition of his mother, who is in poor health, was expressed Tuesday by Woodrow W. Burchett to receive his longest long-distance telephone call Wednesday night.

It was Sgt. Otis Jarrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Burchett, of Cox Creek, captain neighbor of the County Attorney. Where he was taking from was not revealed. He is in health, says County Attorney Woodrow W. Burchett to receive his longest long-distance telephone call Wednesday night.

Mr. Jarrell said the call was evening him $7.30 and with every cent of it he added.

His mother, a Prestonsburg physician, is "seriously but not critically ill."

Certificates Issued
14 Taking Course
In Water Safety

An instruction class in water safety and lifesaving was conducted Friday at the Wheelwright swimming pool. The class was instructed by M. P. Leplin, field representative of the American Red Cross. As a final examination, the class gave a public demonstration of swimming techniques, shore rescues and life-saving methods.

Water Pilot, Harold Holt, Dr. Robert Wurman, all of Wheelwright, and J. H. Kennon, of Prestonsburg, were awarded Water Safety instruction certificates. Edgar A. Baird, M. C. Atkins and Elmer B. Layne, of Wheelwright, received Senior Life-Saving certificates. Bill Hanger, Eckerly Panditz, Hubert Vickers and Rex Wilson, of Wheelwright, and Robert Caudill, West Prestonsburg, George Keaton and Hubbard Francis, Jr., of Prestonsburg, received Junior Life-Saving certificates.

The class, part of the first aid and safety and accident prevention program of the Red Cross and was sponsored by Floyd County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Wayland Mine
Idle; Others
Are Working

Despite enactment of the Congressional action by which anti-labor legislation was passed Friday over President Roosevelt's veto, the miners were back at work, with those slow to return to the face of the coal in the minority.

In the Elk Horn Coal Corporation, the maintenance work has been done as a result of dissatisfaction with the company's failure to pay in full the $50 vacation bonus which was promised. In approximately 600 miners are out at Wayland, 1,900 out at all three of the company's operations.

Other miners of the section ready to go back to work are the UMWAs. The UMWAs, however, had proposed to pay the miners $20 of the $50 due on the last pay-day in this month and to remit the remainder in installments. This the miners refused to accept, it was stated.

Few miners of the section had returned to work, the fact that their pay had not been paid, the UMWAs, however, had proposed to pay the miners $20 of the $50 due on the last pay-day in this month and to remit the remainder in installments. This the miners refused to accept, it was stated.

FLOYD NATIVE
DROWNS

Funeral rites for Angus Sexton, who was drowned in a Michigan lake, were conducted Tuesday at Hueysville and burial was made in the local cemetery there.

The victim, aged about 24 years, was a son of John Sexton and formerly resided at Hueysville. Details of his drowning were not available here other than that he drowned Thursday last week.

Besides his father, he is survived by three brothers: Raymond, in the army, Mason and Delbert Sexton, at home.

Fire Causes Damage In Burke Residence

Fire in the Burke Creek home of H. R. Abbott, Prestonsburg attorney, caused damage estimated at $100,000, it was reported today.

The blaze resulted when a kerosene can exploded as Mrs. Burke was kindling a fire in the kitchen stove. Though sprayed by kerosene, Mrs. Burke was unharmed.

Roberts Stresses Value of Alfalfa By GEORGE ROBERTS Kentucky Experiment Station

Farmers should plan now for production in 1944-45. Dairy products will be highly important throughout the war and following the war. Alfalfa will provide more effective forage per acre per unit of labor than any other crop. Alfalfa should give serious consideration to growing this crop. Well-drained soil is required and must contain plenty of lime, phosphate and potash. Alfalfa should be sown early in the spring and turned under in August and seeded to alfalfa.

Sowing alfalfa and bluegrass together is an excellent way to get a bluegrass sod. While harvesting the alfalfa for three or four years a good bluegrass sod usually develops. Give consideration to seeding alfalfa in the summer and in the spring. Detailed information on growing and handling the crop may be obtained from county agents or by addressing the Kentucky College of Agriculture at Lexington.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D. Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

TRAGEDIES AT FIDELITY

I AM so often asked whether there were any tragic happenings at Fidelity that I think I had better devote this article to things that impressed me deeply and, as a child, made me a bit too serious. Since my father was the local doctor, I naturally knew all the sad happenings; in fact, after I had left home and would go back on a visit, it seemed to me that everything was dated by some death or tragedy in the community. Though things happening so long ago have a tendency to grow hazy and mellow with distance, I can still feel very positively about events that added a very serious note to what was sometimes joyous.

When I was three years old, a summer day brought tragedy to many homes. People in those days liked to seine for the excellent fish in the Tennessee river, using a very long seine, which was carried along in the water by men and boys. On this occasion some nine men came by for Father to go with them on their fishing expedition. Fortunately, as it turned out, he had an urgent call just then and could not go. Late that afternoon the seven men who were in the river got into a whirlpool, and five of them drowned instantly, three of them neighbor men, the other two strangers who had lived in Fidelity neighborhood only a short time. Some of the bodies floated a long way down the river. Our neighborhood had no other interest for several weeks but this horrible tragedy. I grew up with its being told and re-told with all the gruesome details. Whenever I tried to learn to swim, I pictured the drowning so vividly that swimming had no appeal. That is the chief reason why my swimming is so poor today.

There were two unintentional slayings of a little girl by her mother. Both the mother and the child had chills. The mother, thinking she was dosing out quinine, gave a big capsule of morphine to the child and took one herself. Before Father and his uncle, the doctor up the creek, could get there, the child was dead. They worked all night trying to save the mother and succeeded only by desperate means. That event, and the fact that everybody kept remnants of poisonous medicines in the sixth Thomas clocks, made me fairly quiver when morphine was mentioned.

Later in the West Point at War

By Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby (Dept. of West Point Academy)

Being a newspaper columnist and reporter is a new experience for me. However, I feel that I can give you a Reporter's Report to the Nation from West Point, which should be of interest to every red-blooded American. I wish that everyone could visit West Point for just one day, and see what I see. You would get an inspiration that you could help but lack when you see the men of the Corps and what they are doing. They are not only fitting themselves for winning this war, but also for winning the peace, and presenting, if possible, the recurrence of such an other world condition as we are passing through today.

As you know, a cross-section of American youth is selected from all parts of the country to come to West Point. They are selected by the most democratic of methods, namely, that of their winning competitive examinations. Starting with these young men, we are to develop a thoroughly trained soldier-officer, a job which is greatly facilitated by the fact that the Cadets have been through military drill to make the most of the opportunity they have here. With the rapidly changing weapons and new methods of warfare, we must keep up to date and give the latest, most accurate information and training to the Cadets.

WALTER WINCHELL is on a tour of duty outside Continental U. S. During his absence, continuous will substitute.

The Cadets learned and were doing everything a thoroughly trained enlisted man ought to be able to do, and before the summer was over, they looked like veterans. Summer maneuvers don't end the story of tough training at West Point. Summer maneuvers are just a phase of the year-round program which is built to train fighting leaders. Every minute of the 16-hour day (6 a. m. to 10 p. m.) is filled by a tight schedule of instruction in all types of army operation, and each Cadet is familiarized with the use of every weapon from the pistol to the atomic bomb.

So one can see the West Pointer is TOUGH—physically and mentally. He is TOUGH—physically and mentally.

At the close of the Summer, the Cadets came back into the classrooms for what we call academics. During the past months emphasis is placed upon academic instruction while the schedule in tactical training is somewhat reduced. A reporter probably would say that we have a highly mathematical and stiff engineering course. Perhaps that is right, but the West Point curriculum aims at teaching a man to think, to reason, and to draw sound conclusions expressed clearly by some of the leading scientists of the sciences provide this training of the mind which we believe is so essential in order to produce the finest military leaders.

I am happy to announce that this week the West Point instruction is being given a first-hand inspection by some of the leading officers of our country. I have invited Doctor Compton, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Doctor Hopkins, President of Dartmouth, along with the principal military experts on training in our Army today, Major General Bull of the Replacement Training Center of the Ground Forces, Brigadier Huebner of the Training Division of the Services Supply, Brigadier General Edwards of the Training Division of the War Department General Staff, and Colonel Schmitt of the Flying Training Command of the Army Air Forces, to meet, confer and review our plans for the next 3-year course in the Military Academy. With this course we propose to produce the finest education and training it is possible to afford in the world available. By constantly keeping abreast of the latest developments, we are meeting the challenge of the times. In the days of Robert E. Lee and U. S. Grant, West Point produced men to meet the challenge of their era. John J. Pershing fulfilled his task in the days of the Kaiser.

During the past Summer over 2,000 West Pointers went through the most rigorous field maneuvers that have been held in the history of the Academy. Every phase of combat training was given the Cadets. They worked, they sweated, they maneuvered over the hills and across the rivers of northwest New York State, as well as here at West Point. They had a good taste of how modern campaigns are fought. It was that they were made, trial after trial came on, but to this day it has never been proved who the murderer was. Needless to say, all the places connected with these and other tragic or mysterious happenings made a journey through the neighborhood ground with sadness. I can recall how spooky seemed the graves of the drowned men and how glad it was that I did not have to go at night by the tobacco barn where the merchant was found dead one Sunday morning. We had life at Fidelity, with all of its manifestations: joy, grief, sorrow, triumph.

Censors Find Strange Souvenirs In Parcels Mailed by Soldiers

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 27—A human skull rolled out on the table. That was the most unusual memento found by base censors here whose job is to search for contraband among the thousand packages a day which American soldier-loving soldiers are mailing back to the home folk.

We find everything in them from hand grenades to airplane parts, said Lieut. Myron Sternberg, of Isperfling, Mich., who thinks his civilian talents as a forger ranger are somewhat oddly employed as a parcel inspector in the military censorship branch. The skull which some G. I. Joe wanted to mail back to the United States for an obscure reason known only to himself was turned over by analysis to Capt. George G. Simpson, curator of fossil mammals at the American Museum of Natural History.

"It isn't old enough to be prehistoric and it isn't young enough to be mixed up in a 'missing person case,'" was the verdict of the red-bearded little anthropologist. "It could be anything from 100 to 1,000 years old or more, perhaps a Roman relic."

The skull was wrapped back up and sent on its way—passed by the censor. Generally the task of the base censors is to see that no packagings en route to the States contain military maps, American army equipment or captured enemy documents which might be of interest to the intelligence branch.

"We get a lot of German helmets, bayonets, Mauser rifles and Lager," under the articles of war, this material belongs to the government, not to the individual soldier. "We usually pass such things as insignia from German uniforms and medals which a lot of our boys get from prisoners in exchange for cigarettes."

"If everything they mailed went through there'd be enough German equipment back in the United States to equip half of Hitler's army," said Lieut. John R. Kibler, of Altoona, Pa., another package censor. "We found everything but a jeep and an 88 millimeter gun."

"One guy did try to send through a light German machine gun," said Sternberg. "I don't know what he planned to use it for after the war."

The largest single article mailed back was a bicycle shipped home by some thoughtful soldier who had heard of the gasoline rationing. One officer, a little irked by a letter from his wife complaining about the food and coffee rationing program, sent home a can of "C" rations and a small tin of coffee along with a note to this effect:

"I know you are suffering at home and I've saved out this to help you. I don't want you to have to sacrifice too much."

"That was just the old needle," laughed Sternberg. "But the boys aren't kidding when they mail oranges and lemons and even packages of a half-dozen eggs to England. They've really had to tighten their belts there."

Most of the packages, however, merely contain tourist type souvenirs—sandals, leather goods, postcards, Arab blankets and cheap native jewelry. About one-third of those examined contain violations but in most cases the sender has no conscious intention of evading regulations.

The soldier for whom the censors have nothing but ill will is the one who sticks in meretricious, pounds of ammunition, hand grenades and anti-personal mines. These little "souvenirs" usually have their powder charge removed but most still contain fuses and in many cases are hardly material to be put in a child's hand where they would constitute a great fire hazard.

"So far we've had no casualties from this type of material," said Sternberg. "But if it looks at all doubtful to us we call in a demolition expert."

READING and WRITING

CHARLES B. DRISCOLL is head of a large newspaper syndicate and author of the widely known "New York Day by Day." He is urbane, witty and a wonderful storyteller. You'd never think on meeting him that he had once been a Kansas farmer, spending his days hoeing potatoes—when his father was watching him—and climbing trees—when his father wasn't watching him.

"Kansas Irish" is Mr. Driscoll's story of his childhood on this farm. It tells of tornadoes, cyclones, floods and minor catastrophes that befell the author, such as tumbling into the pipe and being attacked by an angry gander. Life wasn't easy for the Driscoll youngsters, but it certainly wasn't dull either.

The dominant person of this story is Big Flurry, the father, whose unpredictable outbursts of temper kept the children and their gentle mother in a constant state of uncertainty. Big Flurry had come from sojourning folk in Ireland, and he was all his life to feel a stranger among the placid farmers of Kansas. He took out his loneliness in violent and unreasonable rages.

His character is illustrated by his treatment of the two poverty-stricken Ozarkians who attempted to steal his precious mainline, which he kept in his wheat stacks. He cursed the Ozarkians, cover his wheat stacks, and he clouted them. But then he yelled at his wife: "Ellen, have you got a bite to eat for these hungry flops-ye-guys, I don't know." And after they had ravenously finished a steaming pot of coffee, a loaf of bread, a hunk of ham and a pot of boiled salt pork, and after he had fed by to their lean horses, he refused to call in the Sheriff. He administered a few more clouts and kicks, shouted after them: "Get along with ye now, and good luck to ye!"

The Book-of-the-Month Club announces for July a dual selection: "Western Star," by the late Stephen Vincent Benet, a long narrative poem about his plenary which was completed just before the author's death, and "U.S. Foreign Policy: Shield of the Republic."

MacKinley Kantor, author of "Happy Land," received a raft of mail about his story from parents of boys at the fighting fronts. A previous book of Kantor's, "Long Remember," a tale of the Civil War, found its way into the hands of a sergeant on Guadalcanal. In the thick of battle, when the Japs were throwing everything they had in the vain endeavor to oust the Americans, the sergeant continued to read the book while huddled in his fox hole. An officer remarked drily: "That must be quite a story." "Yes," sighed the sergeant, "they sure had a tough time back in those Civil War days."

THE GARDEN

By JOHN S. GARDNER

Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. For many gardeners growing late cabbage is a last art, and the reason often given is that "the seasons are changing." But, there are at least three causes for the difficulty in growing late cabbage. All of them are remediable, and as food will be at a premium next winter, even the not-so-venturesome gardeners may wish to try.

There is, of course, the dry weather during July and August, often lasting to frost. Nothing can be done about the weather, but gardeners may take a leaf from the book of the late potato growers, who take extra pains to conserve the early moisture, and sometimes have made a crop when no rain fell after the potatoes were planted. Their method is to break in late April, turning under a magnificent growth of cover crop. Then, whenever weeds start, they are immediately disked in and the land finished with a drag. This may be repeated sometimes four or five times before late potatoes are planted.

Many home gardeners, on the other hand, attempt to have late cabbage follow some early crop, in land that has been almost entirely sapped of its moisture. Worse, many have their cabbage follow mustard or early kale or radishes, to run the risk of diseases that these put into the soil. Another cause for late cabbage not thriving is the horde of cabbage worms that have been multiplying all summer on the green leaves on plants from which heads have been cut, or on the early mustard, the remnants of Seven Top turnip and on radishes, gone to seed. If this is to be saved, spraying or dusting should be done to keep down the worms, and the entire cabbage plant should be lifted, so that the soil is free of the attractive to the yellow butterflies!

that lay eggs from which hatch the green cabbage worms.

Another cause may be the yellow disease, "cabbage wilt." In many gardens, there is no doubt as to the presence of this disease in the soil. Now is the time for a fashion rain, late cabbage, striving in a season that is dry, may fail, or do poorly. Many gardeners have used Wisconsin All Seasons, a yellow-resistant sort (and there are many others), to grow excellent late cabbage. Now is the time for a fashion rain, and to escape the hazard of dry transpiring, pairs or threes of seed may be sown where the heads are to mature, the seedlings thinned to one at a place. Approximately 500 acres of soybeans for hay will be grown in Henry county, five times that of a year ago.

To the Voters of Floyd County and the 29th Senatorial District:

This statement is made purely as an expression of my own convictions and sentiments as regards the coming election in which Doug Hays, of McDowell, is seeking the Democratic nomination for State Senator from this district.

What we say here is not to be taken as presumptuous on our part or as an indication that we think or should or can lead the voters of Floyd county or any other county to vote otherwise than as their conscience dictates. Freedom and justice are the things that good Americans and Floyd county boys are, this very instant, dying for. We make this statement of our conviction to what we have said in the following paragraphs, so that you voters may know we are not trying to dictate, even if we are not trying to exercise the free American's ballot that is yours and none other's.

To state the matter more briefly, we are "for" Doug Hays for Senator. We are "for" him so much that we are willing to make this statement in a newspaper or any other medium disseminating information to the public. And of course, you as voters want to know why we support him.

We are "voting for" Doug Hays, because he is, in our estimation, the best Democrat that Floyd county or this Senatorial district has ever produced. By the term, "best Democrat," we mean, Doug is the sort who has been treated badly by his party in the past, kicked from pillar to post, so to speak, in primary elections and yet has always come back in November a strong, courageous leader, aware that he has been given a "cold shoulder" by his fellow-Democrats, yet "jumping at" the chance to support his party in the future.

How many of us could have undergone such treatment and refused to stay down or resisted the temptation to stray from the party? Doug Hays is not only a good Democrat—he is a good American, a devoted father, a good citizen. He himself was a volunteer in Spanish-American War; his son, Capt. Stanley Hays, is now in overseas service. There simply is nothing of the slacker or deserter about Doug, when either his party or his country needs him or his.

Were Doug not grown old and now making what may be his last years, he would be a repeated disappointment, and had he not faced past political defeats with such good cheer and such loyalty to his party, we might not be of one allegiance, we might not be constrained to speak thus publicly in his behalf. But he has been all we have said he was and is.

To be good Floyd county and good Democrats we feel that we must at this late date—better now than never—lend our support to the candidate who has been so long and so hard to get along with in the past. We have attempted along the same lines to help him in the past.

Doyle's Fight

The recent death of Jack Doyle, Broadway's famous betting commissioner, cleared up one of the mysteries connected with one of the most famous ring battles ever fought.

This was the first meeting between Jack Doyle and Jim Corbett, won by Corbett with a knockout in the 23rd round. In most of the remembered versions of that fight when Doyle was Corbett put on the most sensational Grand Prix comeback of all time.

Doyle's Story. But Jack Doyle had another story to tell. "George Siler refereed this fight," Jack said once, "and for a long time I tried to get him to tell me what his decision would have been if the fight had been only a 20-round contest. For a long time Siler wouldn't say a word, but one day he told me confidentially, asking me not to repeat his words, that at the end of 20 rounds he would have given the fight to Corbett."

"I'll tell you why," Siler said. "Jeffries was the champion. Jeffries was the aggressor. And Jeffries landed the only damaging punch. It was true enough that Corbett landed many more blows. But none of these bothered Jeffries in the slightest. He landed a few times solidly, but when he did I could see that he had hurt Corbett considerably. In fact, once or twice he was in serious trouble. For that reason at the end of 20 rounds I would have left the title with Jeffries, the defender."

Corbett's Angle. Before his death, I talked to Corbett about this Jeffries fight on many occasions.

Corbett felt dead sure that he had lost the championship by being overconfident in the 23rd round.

He had added Jeffries at least 10 times to his list of "I don't think anyone could hurt Jeffries when he was in shape, as he was in the latter part of his career, both hands on his jaw in their second fight. But I was watching him all through the fight. I was far in front of the crowd, and I was coming off the ropes."

I asked Corbett if Jeff had hurt him. "Twice," Corbett said. "Both body punches, and each time I thought he had hurt me in two. The Jeffries that fought Jack Johnson wasn't even a ghost of the old Jeff. He was a fat, half-bald fellow, far out of shape. But the Jeffries I met the second time was the greatest fighter I ever saw. He was a real knockout puncher, and he had also become a high-class boxer, with few real weaknesses. He had to retire because there was no one else even close. In his prime I don't think that Jack Dempsey or any one else could have beaten him. He would have worn down and beaten them all."

Doyle's Fabrice Story. Jack Doyle's favorite story concerns Jimmy Austin, at that time the Yankee third baseman.

Jack Doyle was watching for the White Sox. "Austin was hitting around .200," Jack said. "He hadn't gotten a hit for three days. Walsh was at his post. The fellow was moving them down with his bat and his splitter. On that day I happened to be sitting next a bunch of gamblers who found it hard to get down a bet. They were panicking Austin as he came to bat. Sitting next those gamblers there was a drunk about half asleep. He suddenly lurches over and said he would like to bet $100 to $200 that Austin would get a triple. This was too good to be true, especially after he had shown his roll. Five or six of Walsh's pals had $500 to $2,500, and I held the stakes. On the first pitch Austin hit one against the top of the fence for three bases.

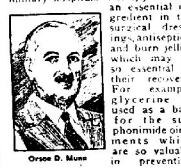

"The funny part is, that was the last bet I could get out of a drunk. He cranked his winning $2,500 into his pocket and went back to sleep. But my remark was: 'I must make out his game, and then I wait for a sure thing that can't miss.'"

No Wild Odds. Doyle's prices were closer than most. He never drew him laying 7 to 1 that Georgia would beat Auburn, Boston College would beat Holy Cross, or that Chicago Bears would beat the Redskins.

Jack, who came up in football from the days of Frank Hinesky and The Bloody Corsairs, had seen the best of the odds, especially in traditional games. The 1942 season was more than an evidence of the truth of his beliefs.

Science In The News

Home soap-making is an indirect blow at our armies in the field. For they are utterly dependent upon the steady flow of glycerine which, in turn, depends upon the production of fats. Remember, too, that not only the men in the front lines would suffer from a shortage of fats, but also the wounded and the sick in our military hospitals.

Orville D. Mann

Few persons realize that a shortage of fats might well be as disastrous to our war effort as a series of major defeats. However, our manufacture of armaments, our water, all-time records of war production we achieve—all will be useless, unless we have enough fats to make the munitions for our weapons. Fats are the source of most glycerine and glycerine is a basic essential in the manufacture of munitions.

For glycerine is an essential ingredient in the manufacture of explosives, antiseptics and burn jellies which may be so essential to their recovery. For example, glycerine is used as a base for the sulphurphosphoric compounds which are so valuable in preventing infection.

There is some soap which is inexcusable and generally excellent in quality. Home-made soap is made from lard, which contains free lye, highly damaging to skin and to the hair. It is really far from being an economical product. The apparent initial saving of lard is offset by the damage done to bodies and to clothing. It is also to be avoided in the bath, for its use causes skin irritation. No woman who values good looking hands should subject them to the usage of home-made soap.

12 of 600 Students Receiving Degrees At U.-K., from Floyd

Approximately 600 students, representing a cross-section of Kentucky and many other states, were graduated from the University of Kentucky Friday evening, June 4, at the institution's 76th annual June commencement exercises.

The Hon. Joseph C. Greer, former U. S. senator, and Dr. Robert Whitfield Miles, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Lexington, delivered the inauguration address Thursday afternoon, June 3.

The group of around 600 graduates represented those students who had completed their work leading to degrees in August, 1942, and in February, April and June of this year, this having been the only commencement at the University of Kentucky since last June.

- Among those receiving degrees from Floyd county are: Holte Cusley, Bachelor of Arts; Garrett, Durward Eugene Salisbury, Bachelor of Science in Agriculture; Hunter, Hazel Irene Hill, Bachelor of Science in Home Economics; Prestonsburg, Walter Clay Guinn, Bachelor of Arts in Education; Emma, Dorothy Turner Martin, Bachelor of Arts in Education; Dritz, Alta Marie Osborne and Rita Lee Osborne, Bachelor of Arts in Education; Osborn, Eula Nummer; Brock, Bachelor of Arts in Education; Prestonsburg, Grady Gray Finney, Bachelor of Arts in Education; Martin, Victoria Murray Sprague, Bachelor of Arts in Education; Prestonsburg, James Robert Evans, Bachelor of Science; Commerce, Martin; and Curtis Owens, Master of Arts in Education; Garrett.

court. One of the men, charged with making threats of violence, was put under a $2,000 peace bond.

A responsible and long-established newspaper, the Mobile Press-Register, criticized this disposition of the case, saying it was "a toss-up between conviction and acquittal."

The judge in the case cited Mr. Chandler for contempt of court, pronounced him guilty and sentenced him to serve six hours in jail and pay a fine of $10.

The judge contended that in saying his action was "a toss-up between conviction and acquittal," the newspaper had said something which was "absolutely untrue" and that "when a newspaper becomes reckless with the truth, then that is contempt."

The judge's remarks, however, do not make sense. The editorial contention was that the men were either innocent or guilty and those who were innocent should have been released and those who were guilty should have been found guilty.

But a larger question than the logic of a specific utterance is propounded by the case of this judge. He is setting up his court, and his judicial actions are inflexible. Neither his little court nor any other, not even the Supreme Court of the United States, is immune from, or beyond the reach of, criticism.

There is, of course, such an offense as contempt of court. But the Supreme Court itself has defined the offense in simple words. Contempt of court is words or acts which bring "clear and present danger of interfering with the administration of justice."

The press is the only spokesman available for the public in matters of litigation and justice. Neither the judges nor the courts are sacrosanct, and in the complex civilization of today there is no way of checking the willfulness or the venality of those who may constitute the courts except through the news and comment provided by the press.

No newspaper, responsible to the conscience of its editor and sensible of its duty to its community, desires to destroy the usefulness of any court or bring it into unjust contempt. But the obstruction or impediment of justice must be unmistakable and, as the Supreme Court has said, "the substantive evil extremely serious" before judgment be found against a newspaper speaking its mind in behalf of its public and what it believes to be for the good of the community, the state and the nation.

Arnett Asks Louisville To Lend This Section Aid Toward Hospital

Upon his return to this county from Louisville last week, Dr. Earl T. Arnett, Democratic candidate for State Senator, said hopes of procuring for this section a tuberculosis hospital are brighter than ever.

Dr. Arnett said he discussed this need with Louisville business men and citizens who are interested in humanitarian work and that he received from them very definite encouragement.

Dr. Arnett presents himself to the people as a servant, not as a political boss or as a mere hireling to be sent to Frankfort to stay a term of the Legislature out and do nothing. He wants to do something for this section. WON'T YOU ACCEPT SUCH SERVICE?

ON THE OFFENSIVE AMERICA!

Ways are won by attacking, not by being hit. And today America is taking the offensive against the Axis with hard-fighting, non-stopable men and material. We're taking the offensive, too, against the Axis with hard-fighting, non-stopable men and material.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Torpedo Junction

"Awwah ahship!" "Sparky" the radio operator, has sent his final message from another U-boat victim. The lifeboats are pulling away from the doomed vessel as millions of dollars' worth of food, supplies and munitions settle to the ocean bottom in another allied catastrophe in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Millions of dollars' worth of material that was paid for by the dollars we saved and invested in War Bonds, thousands of man hours have been lost. We can have but one answer: work harder, save more and invest more frequently in War Bonds.

MUST KEEP A FEW
Kendall Martin "blew" in from Martins the morning of this week to announce he wanted to sell seven of his hands. Said he had to keep the other six.

A WEIGHTY MATTER
Loss of a purse containing $60 and some ration books caused a lot of trouble at a Wheelwright and here in Prestonsburg last week. First a 10-year-old negro boy was held as the person who originally gained possession of the purse. He was released after telling authorities that he gave the money to "Mummy Do." "Mummy Do," Lucy May Robinson, disclaimed knowledge of the purse. She finally executed bond. Then the trouble of getting her out of jail began. For "Mummy Do" admits to weighing 315 pounds and there are those who would swear she'll beat that by several stone.

It is estimated that more brooder houses have been built in Scott county this year than during the past 10 years.

ANNUAL G. A. PICNIC
Members of the Baptist Girls' Auxiliary liked to the Mayo farm, Monday for their annual picnic. Monday following the program, which was conducted by Virginia Rogers, swimming was enjoyed. Visiting members present were Vivian Combs, Dotie Ann Clarke, Betty Archer, Virginia Rogers, Virginia Dorton, Claire Cohen, Abigail about John L. Lewis, or is the making nasty cracks about Lindbergh? Since we are at war, Lindbergh is right with us. John L. Lewis has done more than all the saboteurs combined. I'm a former member of the U. M. W. A. I was a member until the time I enlisted. I'm for the miners. Many are my friends, and they deserve my help. I won't believe that any I know are slandering and that alone would hardly justify walk-out on the government, a walk-out on their sons and friends at the fighting fronts, a slow-up in production that if allowed to continue may prove disastrous to a reversal of a situation that is well in hand. I don't know if the miners are out in Floyd county. I hope I never hear of news like that from my own county. I can't believe that any one in home could walk out at a time like this. This is a job for everyone. Production and our ability to get it where it is needed is essential. Get it there—the more we get, the more we can dish out. They can be sure that the army and navy won't sit down as long as there is work to do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A SAILOR WRITES
Editor, The Times:
By the time you receive this letter it will be a year since I last saw you. During this past year much has happened. I was hospitalized about four months after leaving the States. I was assigned to my present ship after about three weeks. I have been getting along fine, although I haven't seen a woman in over four months. Sometimes I get a couple of beers, once or twice a week when I'm in port or when we have "dropped the hook" in some harbor.

Sometimes I receive the Floyd County Times. When I'm lucky, I get a late copy along with some three or four months old, but I like them just the same. I don't get much news but we do get the more important news. I wonder if the miners are out in Floyd county. What has Shikepoke to say about John L. Lewis, or is the making nasty cracks about Lindbergh? Since we are at war, Lindbergh is right with us. John L. Lewis has done more than all the saboteurs combined. I'm a former member of the U. M. W. A. I was a member until the time I enlisted. I'm for the miners. Many are my friends, and they deserve my help. I won't believe that any I know are slandering and that alone would hardly justify walk-out on the government, a walk-out on their sons and friends at the fighting fronts, a slow-up in production that if allowed to continue may prove disastrous to a reversal of a situation that is well in hand. I don't know if the miners are out in Floyd county. I hope I never hear of news like that from my own county. I can't believe that any one in home could walk out at a time like this. This is a job for everyone. Production and our ability to get it where it is needed is essential. Get it there—the more we get, the more we can dish out. They can be sure that the army and navy won't sit down as long as there is work to do.

THE PHYSICAL FITNESS PROGRAM
Editor, The Times:
About a year ago I wrote an article for your paper on physical fitness. I said and thought then that the physical training program meant a lot to the army and also to the civilians. I notice in reading the newspapers that in the past week the government created a national Physical Fitness Committee to develop and promote a body-building program aimed at improving the quality of the human material available to the armed forces. This 14-man committee will rely on state and community organizations as well as on schools and colleges to carry out the suggested programs. Meanwhile, President Roosevelt was reported planning to appoint a three-man committee (one civilian, one army man, and one navy representative) to study the value of organized sports as an instrument of making America physically conscious.

In my opinion, this is important, very much so. I have been working in the physical fitness program at Long Beach army air field for the past 14 months and have found that physical fitness means everything to the soldier. It means life, it means shape, no matter what job you are doing, you are a slacker and not doing your job nearly as well as you could if you are out of shape of yourself and used the right conditioning exercises.

Ask the man on the battlefield. It is the difference between life and death for him. A soldier not in good physical condition is an asset to the enemy. He slows his commander down and the reason men who are being released by Uncle Sam. This also applies to civilians—they are doing their part, and a wonderful job—until they could do more by taking care of their bodies.

I am now going through a tough N. G. O. physical training school at Miami Beach, Fla. There are 500 in my class, made up solely of athletes and coaches—all-American basketball and football stars, but league baseball players and coaches from high schools and colleges. This is an eight-weeks course. We have two more weeks to go before graduating. The lower class take the students and has six more weeks to go. We are taught the best methods to condition the trainee for the purposes of Uncle Sam and later life, so he will be a better soldier and able to take care of himself.

I find in training the soldier who has recently been inducted that his condition is very poor, compared to the inductee of a year ago. Most of them are very young and have no coordination of body and are very weak. This, I think, is the reason why this suggested program is being high schools and colleges.

I'd like to talk to you or a committee made up of coaches and men interested in sports in Floyd county. I hope to get a furlough when I complete my course here and would appreciate it if you'd help me arrange this meeting. Maybe it could put my points over much better and contribute a few ideas for the organization of a physical training program in Floyd county.

Army Deserter Held In Kinsman's Death In Magoffin County

Noble Wisecup, a deserter from the United States army, Saturday night shot and killed his step-father, John Kiburn, at the Kiburn home near Forker on Board Tree Fork of the Middle Fork. Wisecup was brought to Salersville Sunday morning and turned over to Sheriff Oliver Patrick, who had him placed in jail to await extradition trial on the murder charge. Sheriff Patrick also identified Wisecup as a deserter for whom he had warrants, and has notified military authorities that he is in custody. A preliminary trial was scheduled for Friday before County Judge F. C. Layday.

Wisecup, who is described by acquaintances as being "a little off," is said to have tried to force entrance to the Kiburn home at about 3 a.m. Sunday morning. When Kiburn refused him admittance he is alleged to have fired two shots through the door one of which was fatal to Kiburn.—Salersville Independent.

More than 85 per cent of the farmers in Robertson county are planting hybrid corn this year.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Battle Wagons

When Japan attacked at Pearl Harbor we had 17 battleships in service and 15 building. We were making preparations but the war did not wait. These 32 battle wagons cost American taxpayers three billion dollars for a two ocean navy. The war seemed far away then.

Now fifty million Americans have a personal stake in this war. It has been brought home to them. That's why everyone is increasing purchases of War Bonds.
