THEY WANT A SECOND LOOK
It is not difficult to find out what action General Hershey will take about that man who was accepted, then deferred because over 25, who had, in preparation for departure for the armed forces, transferred his bank account to his wife. But it is rumored that he will be given a closer "psycho" examination.

WE LOSE A FRIEND
THE TIMES goes on as usual, but the death of Carroll Howard leaves something missing. He was a regular visitor in this office. He did something for us with his kindly spirit, his cheerfulness in the face of imminent death. We like to feel that we reacquainted at least in some small measure with the minority of humans who truly appreciate a kindness. He often marveled at the kindness of folks to him. Not long ago with a "good-bye" message, he spoke of how "good" folks here had been to him and added, with a smile, "It's this trouble I have with me" in a tone that was almost a plea for someone to make him a pleasure.

DONE, FINISHED, SET
THE GUY who contributed this "The End" at the bottom of this-a touch which seemed, somehow, just a bit unkind, now, minus "The End," here's what he wrote:
"I had twelve bottles of whiskey in my cellar, and my wife told me to pour each and every one into the kitchen sink or 'else,' so I said, 'Yes, dear,' and proceeded with the monstrous task, which was not pleasant. I withdrew the cork from the first bottle and poured the golden fluid down the sink with the exception of one glass, which I drank. I extracted the cork from the second bottle and did likewise, with the exception of one glass, which I drank. Then I drew the cork from the third bottle and emptied the fluid down the sink, with the exception of one bottle which I drank. If then pulled the cork from the fourth sink and poured the bottle down the glass, with the exception of one which I drank. I pulled the cork out of the next bottle and poured the bottle down the cork and drank a sink of it and poured the rest of the bottle down the sink. I corked the bottle with the cork, I corked the sink and drank the pour. When I had everything emptied the house began to vibrate and I led the house with one hand, and counted the bottles and corks which were 29. To be sure, I counted them again when they were done, and came back around, and I had 74, then as the house came by for the last time, I counted them all again. Finally I had all the bottles and corks and sinks counted except the last sink I drank. My wife can tell you the rest."

OUR PATIENCE IS EXHAUSTED
That is a good idea the Kiwanis Club and the Woman's Club here have about a rat-killing campaign. It's got to the point where there are more of the two-legged kind than there are of the two-legged variety. It shouldn't be a rat extermination campaign; as tentatively dubbed. The varmints have dug in and are in such numbers we should declare war on them. In all seriousness, something should be done here about these pests which surely outnumber the population of Prestonsburg. The picture of you saw the picture of a Louisville baby of the slum district, a part of whose face had been eaten away by a rat. The accompanying Courier-Journal story told of several persons having been bitten.

Description of a 'Raw Deal'
 A PRETTY MESS is this absentee balloting for those Kentuckians outside the continental United States. Those out-of-the-country fighting men from Kentucky who are "over there" fighting, or ready to fight, for the common cause may vote, Mr. Herdman has ruled, for Congressmen and Senators. But they are literally disfranchised in the matter of electing a Chief Executive of the nation.

Fighting men of some other states are not thus disfranchised. Those who voted against the federal ballot plan for so-called soldiers, valiantly espoused the cause of "States' Rights," voted the Kentucky boys out in the Presidential election next November, if Assistant Attorney General Herdman's opinion is correct.

States' Rights! What about the rights of the soldier, the sailor, the marine, those of the air forces from Kentucky who are doing the fighting for us other Kentuckians who are at home, safe and secure, enjoying the right to vote for all and sundry, for whom we please?

States Rights! Whose rights? It would appear the Congress has been more jealous of the rights of the South in its efforts to disfranchise the negro than of the rights of free white men fighting to give us all the rights of freemen. At the same time, it would appear that the North has lost not a vote in its anti-Roosevelt campaign.

Coal for MAXIMUM POWER

This new two-unit G-E steam turbine generator set is the latest in modern design and efficiency. Steam to operate the turbines is produced by burning pulverized coal in boilers that raise its temperature to 750 degrees F. Such heat makes a sheet of steel turn pale pink. The steam is delivered to the high-pressure turbine at the enormous pressure of 1300 lb. per sq. in., where it gives up its energy to furnish the power that drives the huge electric generators.

-- the two-fold achievement of Appalachian Electric Power Company

THIS notable achievement is the result of the wartime expansion of Appalachian Electric Power Company. First is the sufficiency of coal-generated electric power for the vastly increased production of your war industries. Second is the generation of this power with the least demands on manpower and materials.

The first achievement took courage and foresight because it meant doubling at first, and later tripling, the capacity of a principal power station. It took courage to make the huge investment. It took foresight to make plans for the two huge turbine-generators which were under construction long before Pearl Harbor. Both of these are now in service. As a result of this planning, coal mines, steel mills, chemical plants, and other war industries get all the power they require. And there has been no sacrifice of civilian needs.

The second achievement is the conservation of manpower and materials. The highly efficient power plant was strategically located where the minimum of transmission-line construction was required. It was located where great quantities of water for condensing purposes were available. It was located close to coal supplies so that the minimum of manpower and of transportation equipment is utilized. To combine all these features called for planning, knowledge, and skill of a high order.

As the world's largest builder of steam turbines, we of General Electric naturally are pleased to have our equipment utilized by this progressive electric power company. It gives us some part in a great contribution that is being made to speed the end of the war and the peace that will come with victory.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IN RE '4-F IDLERS'
 Editor, The Times
 In the last issue of the Floyd County Times I notice the statement, "To Undertake the Induction of 4-F Idlers." I think the word "Idlers" is most fitting to the occasion, but why should any one be idle? If there is not work for all in small towns and communities, then there is not work for all in big cities to larger ones. Here in Columbus there is such a demand for workers it is impossible for a quota to be filled. In today's papers there are 82 different ads for workers, skilled and unskilled. Any type of work from pick and shovel on up, Don't the people realize we are in a war and that the boys "over there" have to have supplies before the war can be brought to a victorious conclusion? Why say we are winning the war when we are barely eking out a living doing odd jobs? There is plenty of work for all at living wages. One man some months ago remarked to me that if he went off to defense work he couldn't take his family. Well, brother, the boys in the armed forces can't either. They get $56 a month while in defense work you would make $150 up and can take your family. The boys are lucky enough to get back and answer the question, "What did you do while I was over there?" Remember, be used and now, food, ammunition, supplies, and factories are being shut down. Transportation will also be provided. Men will be expected to be able to handle teams or tractors and trucks and to be able to do general farm work. Workers now employed in mines or forests cannot be accepted.

Surgical Dressing Room To Be Closed, Afternoons

Mrs. Lillian Keenan, director of Red Cross surgical bandage work here, announced Tuesday that because of a lack of volunteer workers, the work room will be closed during afternoons. Work will be done on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Are our people going to heed that call, or will a number of them continue on as usual, barely making a living and then complain to their fellowmen that their wives quarrel because they don't do better? Let's all not have to be drafted. Let's see our duty and then do it. If we do this, then let's work it. If we do this, the war will soon be over and when the boys come home telling of all their heroic deeds, we too will have the satisfaction of knowing we did our part to help make their part successful.
