A BIG MAN FOR A FRIEND
Boys of their age may have a hero to worship, and I am glad my two sons found one such as they did for the guy interests me.

He appealed to them because he is connected with the aviation industry. I found him interesting as a study, alongside another man, in human values.
It was at Lunken airport, Cincinnati, where the boy met this man. It was near the end of a hard day for young "muddy" whose feet had grown a sudden size of trying to keep up with the youngsters. They were on tiptoe with interest as plane landed, took off - C-47s, Piper Cubs, Mitchell biplanes and others, they said they were - I didn't know. As long as I could remain in a sitting position I was content to watch 'em take off and see 'em land. I wasn't attracting any attention because of buoyant enthusiasm.

Then I saw that the youngsters had struck up something more than a speaking acquaintance with two gentlemen who had arrived by plane from the South. I usually discourage such meetings on the part of the boys; they might get a skeleton or so out of the closet. But they and the two men were so obviously enjoying the conversation, and I was so tired, that I kept my peace.

Besides, why not accept the help even of strangers if they could help keep these two Gimmur Haags still? The strangers were in civilian dress, but they were boys, no airs, no condescension. They were having as much fun as the kids were. One asked the boys their names and addresses, promised them some pictures.

Finally, I contrived to reach the perpendicular (approximately) and suddenly entered the conversation myself. While I talked with the man who had the boys all agog an army major built along the lines of Baithe snatched by the conversation. He addressed me and had announced that so-and-so plane was leaving at Gate 2. Then the major was paged. "Your plane leaves from Gate 2," he was warned. Still he pronounced. And not till the third and final warning, "Plane leaves in one minute," did the officer turn and mechanically make his way to the plane in some of a step exit.

"Some folks feel their importance," they smiled our new acquaintance.

This is what I remember this man by most vividly—that statement gently ridiculing the conversation "importance" of little people.
The boys—they remember him as Mr. John McBride, of the Bell Aircraft Corporation. He was in Buffalo when the plane leaving for Buffalo was announced. Mr. John McBride and his companion unobtrusively walked to it. He was important enough to have priority on the airplane, but I would have never known it, had not his friend told me. Incidentally, he had been at Bell's Atlanta (Ga.) plant where, I later learned, the B-29, America's new giant bomber, was built.

Last week, the boys were thrilled all over again when Mr. McBride kept his word. He remembered them with several photographs of planes and addressed the younger one how to handle his "big brother."

It turns out, as the boys suspect, that John McBride is a test pilot—well, what sort of sedative would you suggest and do you think they should take it, or should I and let 'em rip?

Prestonsburg Licks Harold Again, 7-2, In Loose Contest

In a game marred by loose fielding Prestonsburg's unformless baseball team Sunday defeated the fourth Harold, this time winning behind the 18-year-old Brannham's steady twirling, 7-2. Klid, 15-year pitcher, hurled effectively but succumbed from errors at critical junctures.

Prestonsburg got off in the first inning with a run when Chamlin slammed out a double, advanced to third on some loose handling of the ball and scored on Shepherd's fly. Both teams came back in the last half of the fourth to count runs on Miller's single and theft of second, followed by Williams' error on Miller's grounder and a Kidd mistake of pitching O. Miller's arm with an errant pitch, filling the bases. Blackburn then singled sharply to left to score both Shepherd and Williams.

In the seventh Harold scored his only earned run of the game when Williams led off with a single, stole second and scored on Tipton's single. Prestonsburg came back to blow the lid in the eighth, Shepherd scoring with his second run in the afternoon and was ruled safe on Miller's grounder to Williams. Followed a lengthy argument and a change of umpires. Will error on Meade's grounder filled the bases, then singles by O. Miller and Blackburn scored three runs.

Next Sunday, Tipton plays Prestonsburg. (See Story No. 3, Page 8)

Floyd Countian Who Rode Glider On D-Day Will Never Rue Weight

One Floyd Countian who will probably never regret that he did not reduce and try to keep that schoolboy figure is Pvt. Ova Johnson, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Johnson, of Byrro.

For he is alive today because he weighs 185 pounds. At that, he is a patient in the McGuire General hospital, Richmond, Va., recovering from a wound received in the invasion. On D-Day Johnson was a member of an airborne outfit selected to land behind the enemy lines in France. The last minute his commanding officer switched him from seat No. 8 in the glider to one further in the rear to get as much poundage as possible in the fall. The man in seat No. 8 was killed along with others when the glider landed in a shell hole in a Normandy wood pasture. But Pvt. Johnson is surprised that Providence saved him this time. He had several close brushes with death before this one. In fact, he

Bank Credit for Every Competent Man, Goal of American Bankers Association

Special to The Times
New York, Aug. 4.—Every competent man, firm and corporation that needs bank credit for some constructive purpose will get it. And for adequate amounts and for sufficient length of time to do the job. This is the dynamic credit policy adopted by the Post-War Small Business Credit Commission of the American Bankers Association in mobilizing the nation's 13,000 banks behind a new and forward-looking program that will assure adequate bank credit to meet the needs of small business in the reconstruction and post-war periods, it was revealed Friday by Robert M. Hanes, chairman of the commission and former president of the American Bankers Association.

"Every competent individual, firm or corporation in the United States that needs bank credit will get it if the money is to be used for some constructive purpose that will serve the private enterprise economy of this country," declared Mr. Hanes. "If the individual bankers cannot grant the credit, we as bankers pledge ourselves to stay with him and see that he gets the money from some other bank or group of banks. American banking will see that small business lives and is given the opportunity to grow and prosper."

"It should be clearly understood, however," continued Mr. Hanes, "that this does not mean that banking is embarking upon a program of making reckless loans. Such loans are of no benefit to the borrower, the bank or the community. Nor is production to revitalize the many segments of small business adversely affected by wartime restrictions, and to provide the financial encouragement and strength to business, industry, agriculture and the professions that will create maximum post-war employment, particularly for returning war veterans.

"In doing this," he added, "the entire machinery of the American banking system will be utilized to the fullest extent and a local bank cannot extend either part or all of the credit needed, it will be encouraged to make use of its long-standing reciprocal relationships with other banks to see that the money is made available or an earnest attempt is made to make the application suitable for bank consideration. Small business will be the chief beneficiary of the experience, skill, facilities and resources that have been developed over a long period of years by this cooperation between banks."

While most of the post-war credit demands will be met by individual banks either directly or through the regional bank credit groups, the Commission recognizes that there may be instances where banks, because of limited resources, unwillingness of the type of credit desired, or barred by legal lending limits or the terms and conditions requested, may be unable to provide the credit needed. It therefore considered various plans for meeting such situations and determined that the voluntary participation regional bank credit group was the most feasible type of organization that could be utilized to perform this function. Such groups will be strictly voluntary in character, regional in operation and management. They will be started when and where local banks feel the need for an auxiliary or supplementary source of credit.

The term loan principle will be adapted to the needs of small business, according to the Commission's plans. This effective lending mechanism whereby loans are made for a term of a year or more under agreed conditions was developed extensively by banking during the past 10 years. At the close of 1940, some 3,000 commercial banks held an estimated two billion one hundred sixty-two million dollars in term loans.

Many banks throughout the country, according to Mr. Hanes, are already establishing small business loan departments or units under some similar name. The creation of such special departments or committees indicates, he declared, the growing volume of small business loans being made by banks and banking's desire to see that the varied needs of this type of enterprise receive specialized and expert attention.

The Commission itself is undertaking immediate research into the problems of small business under the guidance of its newly-appointed staff director, William Shepherdson, former chief of the Small Business Unit of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, U. S. Department of Commerce. Plans are being made for a series of regional meetings throughout the country, the first of which will be held in New England and the Midwest in September to acquaint bankers with the technical aspects of the Commission's program.

"Nobody knows better than I, Judge, what an important contribution to our effort that has been."

THE WEEK IN WPB

Good news for many housewives is the announcement that production of 12.75 electric ranges has been authorized by the War Production Board to three manufacturers who are able to make ranges without interfering with military production. These manufacturers are the first ones authorized to participate in the production of 80,000 electric ranges in 1944. About 24 per cent of the ranges will be three-burner, apartment house models, and will be equipped with thermostats.

Two of the three manufacturers have been producing three-burner electric ranges for FHA and military purposes for some months. Since their production lines are already set up, their production will proceed without delay. Production of standard four-burner models, which have not been produced for two years, cannot be started until production lines have been established and materials and components are available. Production of these models will not be available for retail sale until late in the year.

Housewives will be interested, too, in the announcement that production of parts for domestic laundry equipment and domestic sewing machines for repair and replacement purposes is expected to be increased as a result of the relaxation of limitations on manufacturers' inventories of such parts vacuum cleaners and other household appliances. Parts placed under the same inventory regulations but their production is expected to remain at about the present level.

About 25 per cent more spring-driven war alarm clocks were produced in the first quarter of 1944 than in the first quarter of 1943. About 1,250,000 spring-driven alarm clocks were produced during April, May and June for military and other purposes as compared with 1,000,000 during the first three months of 1944. An extremely small quantity of electric alarm clocks, which has been out of production since June 1942, were made in the second three-month period.

A new textile order, designed to channel approximately 200,000,000 yards of cotton fabrics annually into the production of military-jetted and low-price leisure of essential civilian clothing, has been issued by WPB. Cotton textile yardage to be set aside in accordance with the order will be delivered to apparel manufacturers and made up into garments for sale during coming fall and winter seasons. Garments to be produced include cotton dresses and slips, misses' and girls' blouses, women's misses, children's and infants' pajamas, women's children's and infants' nightgowns, girls' pants, dress shield, men's and women's handkerchiefs, men's and boys' shirts and shorts, boys' pants, men's rompers and crawlers, infants' gaiters and kimonos, children's play suits, overalls and coveralls and boys' wash suits. It is expected the list will be expanded from time to time.

The third WPB regulation in the series of four steps to provide a basis for eventual re-conversion of industry and to permit limited civilian goods production without interfering with the war effort has been issued by WPB. Companies desiring to get ready for post-war civilian goods production may place unratified purchase orders for 15 specific types of machine tools, manufacturing machinery and similar equipment.

Not in all lines, however, is the immediate production outlook so encouraging. A sharp reduction will be made in quantity of heavy truck and bus tires available for essential civilian transportation during the next two months in order to avert a shortage of heavy-duty military tires. Even though the reduction involves serious risks in absolutely essential civilian transportation, the army's requirements for heavy tires must be met. Meantime, every move possible is being made to increase production of heavy-duty truck and bus tires.

The urgent need for accelerated collection and salvage of used tin cans by the nation's users to meet increased military requirements and vital civilian needs for tin is being stressed by the War Production Board. Householders are asked to cooperate by properly preparing used tin cans and making them available for collection in accordance with instructions of local salvage committees.

Status of Deferred Farmers May Change

Information furnished to the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics says that "farmers and farm workers now deferred from military service because of occupation, whose agricultural activity does not conform to national aims" may be called upon in the near future to increase their production goals sharply or face cancellation of their deferments."

Farmers or farm workers have been deferred in accordance to a war unit production plan, 16 units being used as a basis for agricultural classification, with some persons deferred for as little as eight units.

"In the 1945 agricultural season, 15 war units may come to be merely a guide and may become the minimum of individual activity," the Selective Service statement said.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS . . .

"Good morning, Doc. Your good wife tells me you're working night and day now that so many of the younger doctors are in the army."

"That's right, Judge, and I'm glad I'm still able to do it. Had a long letter from Harry, that bright young fellow I was bringing in to take over my practice. He said the boys in the service are getting the best medical care of any armed force in our history. They really should with all these brilliant doctors and plenty of supplies to work with."

"Speaking of supplies, Doc, not many people realize that a large part of the alcohol required to make the medical supplies that are being used right this minute to alleviate pain, combat infection and save human lives is produced by the beverage distilling industry. For nearly two years this entire industry has been working night and day producing nothing but alcohol for the government's program."

"Nobody knows better than I, Judge, what an important contribution to our effort that has been."

OFFICIAL ORGAN FOR FLOYD COUNTY, KY.

Published Every Thursday by PRESTONSBURG PUBLISHING CO.

MORMAN ALLEN Editor
For Year $2.00

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Corn Suffers by Comparison

THE Floyd county farmer's devotion to the corn crop has made of farming a bitter experience and has contributed heavily to the unproductiveness of the soil. Now, with a ruinous drought emphasizing the folly of trusting overmuch to this one crop, many farmers of the area are beginning to look to some other source of farm income.

They know that the county has never produced its corn needs, even in the best of seasons. They know that no crop tilled here demands more time and labor. They are beginning to realize that the soil is eroding, planted in corn, have suffered from the soil which has sent the best of our crops with the rains and floods to other valleys.

Last week in this newspaper, County Agent Isbell pointed to alfalfa as one crop farmers should not overlook. He told of one farmer during this drought year harvesting five tons of alfalfa from a single acre of land; of that alfalfa being worth $50 a ton, or $250 worth of valuable feed per acre.

The average corn production for an acre of bottom land is placed at 40 bushels. Let us say it is 50 bushels. Corn on the ear is now selling for around $1.50 a bushel. That adds up to $75 worth of corn per acre. And that is not looking at the darker side of the corn production picture which is to be found on our hillsides.

As a feed for cattle corn does not approach the value of alfalfa. As for hogs, the Floyd county farmer who can grow enough corn for sizeable pork production at a profit must own a huge acreage and procure labor at depression wages; so that phase of farming activity for this section does not merit much attention.

Alfalfa, of course, is not the only other crop the Floyd county farmer can turn to; there are others, and this is mentioned only as an example of what could be done. It is not suggested that the farmer should give up his corn crop; our idea is, it should not be the only crop, there should be a diversity of agriculture.

Engineers Play 'Mine Host' To Troops of Liberation

HEADQUARTERS, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS—Used to doing all sorts of odd jobs, the army engineers had a brand new role in the assault on Europe.

They provided "hotel services" for the thousands of aerial troops massed in the marshalling areas before the take-off.

Up a gently curving drive bordered by flowering rhododendrons, the officers and enlisted men of the Base Section Headquarters are catching their breath. In their Nissen huts, clad in the white cottons of what was formerly a country square, they are glowing over the fact that the engineers have done it again.

"We claim to be versatile," said Col. Carl R. Shaw, base section engineer for us.

In their powerful ground retreat, the headquarters personnel seem to be very far from war. But they were furiously busy for weeks making all it was later that the engineers

... interviews hot off the bus make homepun entertainment for WHIAS radio listeners

TED GRIZZARD... the casual conversationalist you hear at four-thirty every afternoon... the big Irishman claims people as his hobby and vocation... and, unlike Sinatra, his fans fall in all age groups. Rated high on listener charts by Hooper and Crossley, he has built up huge followings on southern air, ribbing public and sponsors alike.

Giving out over a Lexington station for seven years on what is known as a "dead air" program... (one not pulling mail), the other suddenly went critical on Ted when he dropped a hint at his last broadcast that he was washing on... probably to California, did not have a sponsor, and that only radio recommendations carried any weight when applying for a job on western stations.

A big, red-haired Irishman with merry blue eyes, Ted takes his stand in the limo terminal at the same hour daily, approaching program nimble leading everywhere, engages them in conversation, and within a few moments brings up some item of interest to listeners. Significant example: the interview with a woman whose conversation failed to sparkle until he asked what unusual dishes she had cooked. "I once baked a cat," she answered, "when I was a child."

In demand by Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis, Exchange Club and the American Legion, Ted ad libos his way through unscripted programs nimble leading his audience in a merry chase, at once exciting and informal.

Giggle with Ted Grizzard as he "lays 'em in the aisle" of buses... just for fun.

How Floyd County Soldier Found Friends Is Told by Italian Girl

A hint of romance, certain proof of devotion to an American soldier, was found in the letter received by Mrs. Cassie Turner, of Clarksville, recently from an Italian girl whose name has been translated in English as Maxine. The letter, written May 1, in Italian, was translated for Mrs. Turner by Nick Zamponio, of Wayne, and in quaint style tells of Mr. Turner's son, Cpl. Paul Turner, how he endeared himself to an Italian family which mourns his departure from their village.

The Italian girl's letter follows, as translated:
 "Dear Missis:
 "Excuse me for taking the liberty for writing. I am one Italian girl. I met your son Paul in my store, in my town. He came with some of his friends and they had a drink. It was the first time I met him and I love him like a brother.
 "He needed to be treated so because he is a good boy. So all the rest of my family are the same way. "He never passes by but what he stops to see us, because we have always treated him right."
 "Dear Missis, my daddy has been in a camp in Africa for seven years and has been absent from our family for seven years. We are seven children in the family and eight with my mother, and I'm the biggest. I am 25 years old.
 "I go to Naples every day. I go to buy supplies for my home. A many and many a time Paul has went to Naples with me to buy supplies for our store.
 "Dear Missis, I can't explain what happened the 16th of December, 1943, when Paul fell from a bridge.

That day I didn't die, I walked to Naples. I saw Paul under the bridge and I got to him as fast as I could. I couldn't do anything but cry. It wasn't nothing except the grace of God that saved him.
 "I dressed and doctored his wound. After a few minutes they took him to a hospital in Naples. Missis, I never was absent ten days of what I went to see Paul while he was in the hospital. He needed to be visited because he was just like a brother to us. I think God is here so well, he came back to our town to visit us and he stayed here for nine months.
 "Dear Missis, yesterday your son left for a new destination and I don't think I could ever tell of the tears that was shedded when your son left. All of his company left and when they left all the people cried.
 "As for me and my family we are still crying that Paul left here. Excuse me for writing like this, but when we love one of our friends it is just like one in the family. We don't have no brother, there is seven girls in our family.
 "I pray every day for him to come back to us, and for him to come back to you, so you can kiss him and hug him, because he would talk about home and you.
 "Mrs., answer me back and tell me of the good news because I can't write him. The reason is that is the law here. Civilians can't write to soldiers in the service. I promise you that as he is in Italy and I can find out where he is I will go to see him.
 "Please write me and tell me how Paul is getting along.
 "I hope you will see your son soon and we all send our best wishes to you."

See County Agent About Use of Farm Fertilizer

The Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics has placed in the hands of every county agent throughout the state special information about the grades of mixed fertilizers approved by the War Food Administration and their use for crops grown in Kentucky. Of interest just at this time is the application of fertilizers for small grains and pasture and meadow crops.
 In seeding grain on tobacco land that was heavily fertilized for that crop the college says it is probable that no fertilizers will be needed. Other lands may need fertilizer, depending on their deficiency in nitrogen, phosphate and potash. Most county agents are equipped to test soils, or representative samples may be sent to the Experiment Station at Lexington.
 For alfalfa, most Kentucky soils need liming. They also should be tested for potash deficiency.
 The use of fertilizer is recommended in making new pastures, seedings, and for many old established pastures. In fact, most pastures and meadows would benefit from applications of fertilizers.
 Concerning the fertilizer situation, the college says:
 "Fertilizer supplies of phosphate and potash will be larger than in 1943-44. Supplies of nitrogen may be as large. Fertilizer demand, however, may exceed the supply. Greater assurance of obtaining the fertilizer wanted in 1944 will be provided by placing orders fairly early and taking delivery when the fertilizer is available. Most fertilizers, particularly mixed fertilizers, when stored in a dry place will remain in good mechanical condition until used later in the year."
 Supplies of straight phosphorus and potassium fertilizers should be larger in 1944-45. Ammonium nitrate may continue to be an important nitrogen fertilizer.

Gasoline for Harvest Is Being Rationed In This Section

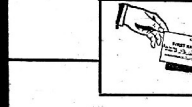

Gasoline rationing, to complete the harvest and to carry on other essential non-highway activities are now being issued in this area by the rationing of E-2 and E-2 coupons. J. R. Hunt, chairman of the War Price and Rationing Board here, said last week.
 This makes three types of E and R coupons that will be circulating in this area in the next few months—the ones E-2 and R-2, the E-2s and R-1s which most farmers are now using, a few of the old-type E's and R's without serial numbers which have not been used here since February.
 All the R coupons are worth five gallons of gasoline each, and all E coupons are worth one gallon each. They are issued to farmers and other non-highway users of gasoline such as mining and logging camps and construction projects for gasoline to be used in tractors, sawmills, staves, and all types of gas-burning equipment.

YIPPEE FROM IPSY

B-24 bombers are rolling off the assembly line at the rate of 100 a week—thanks to the hillbillies who came here to work and aid the war effort rather than engage in labor troubles.
 Citizens here have little respect for the dead, having desecrated one of its oldest cemeteries of more than 100 graves. After bowling over the gravestones, they erected a brick schoolhouse, with playground. In one corner of the lot was erected a marble slab some 300 feet, or which the names of these early settlers are listed. The first burial, this marker shows, was in 1831 and the last in 1915. Such names as Padon, Martin, Wilson, Allen and Williams are listed as this section's first settlers, most of whom were born in the 17th century.
 Uncle Sam discovered a red-head choline here recently who had 16 husbands, four of whom were servicemen and from whom she was receiving allotments. She received two to five years in which to forget them and to hunt a new stock of admirers.
 Ford Motor Company is giving 10 week free courses in refrigeration, radio, as well as aeronautics. Consensus of opinion is that the big plant will make refrigerators, radios and airplanes after the war.
 On trial now in this state are 17 present and past state legislators, or graft charges. Some have confessed and it looks like some others might as well. What surprised a lot of us folks was to learn that Michigan pays its lawmakers the enormous salary of $3 a day. Well, what kind of men could they expect to secure for this lousy salary? Three bucks a day wouldn't lift Cousin John's feet from the first brass rail at Frankfort.
 For sheer nonsense, this proposed dote legislation for war workers, of which I am one, takes the blue ribbon. What this nation needs is more lessons in Scotch and Irish Communism. Most all war workers have lived well, paid their debts and saved some money. Those who have blown their wages at race tracks, road houses and gambling joints are not worthy of help at the expense of farmers and business men.
 In my opinion any Congressman who favors such legislation, or workers who accept such, if passed, should be deported to the Fiji Islands where coconuts and palm leaves are all that is necessary for their maintenance.
 Peace rumors are driving war workers away in droves. Reckon they think the transportation companies will close business after the war ends.

INSTALL RUNNING WATER Electrically

A COW requires about 25 gallons of water a day for health and milk productivity. That makes 1,400 pounds a week. The daily need of poultry is 2½ gallons for each 100 chickens, and hogs quench their thirst with approximately 2 gallons a day each... and so on down the line of farm animals.
 Electrically pumped water is a "Must" on the farm today as never before... man-shortage dwarfs the peacetime advantages of economy and ease, adding to the need.
 Good news, too, is that the government has now made increased quantities of electric water systems available for the farmer.

Telephone Lines to the Front

As battles roll on to victory and vast new areas are conquered, the need for tremendous amounts of telephone equipment becomes more and more urgent.

Since the start of the war the huge telephone manufacturing plants of the Bell System have been concentrating on the manufacture of telephone equipment for war use exclusively, to insure that there shall be no shortages of telephone equipment on the war fronts.

Just before war started, the Southern Bell Company completed a large program of expansion of central office and outside plant facilities. This enabled us to continue installing telephones after the manufacture of telephone equipment for civilian use had stopped.

Now, however, the normal reserves of switchboards, wire, cables and instruments has been used up, and we have many people on our waiting lists for service. But our needs must come first, so for some time we at home shall continue to make the most and the best use of what we now have.
