THE VACATION BLUES: OR, LIFE IN THE CITY AIN'T WHAT SHE'S CRACKED UP TO BE. Came yesterday and I got off on a V-cation. I was tired; I felt the need of a change of scenery. I got it. And now I am back in my office and I am so relaxed my fingers won't stay still on the keyboard while I try to think of what next to say.

"Try it some time, you Doubting Thomases; take two weeks with you. Never mind the mileage you make; just hold a stop-watch on yourself and count the seconds you get to sit and relax.

But I'm not blaming it all on the boys. There's something wrong with you. Never mind the mileage you make; just hold a stop-watch on yourself and count the seconds you get to sit and relax. But I'm not blaming it all on the boys. There's something wrong with you. Never mind the mileage you make; just hold a stop-watch on yourself and count the seconds you get to sit and relax.

WIDE-AWAKE: Franklin Moore extended himself last week in telling the people of this and adjoining counties through THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES, the world as a whole—that they were invited to the new Sandy Valley Tire Service opening last Saturday in New Covington.

"I can't often that this column discusses local business firms while they compete with other firms locally. But we will be glad to give our exercise of the privilege to lay a wide-awake business and our admiration extends beyond his own cash register.

"INDENTMENT": Haruki-kari—Japanese belly landings resulting from a big take-off; a great national pastime and increasingly popular sport these days in Japan.

TRAIL-BLAZING: We wouldn't recommend the new road, Prestonsburg to Salversville, to the speed demon who thinks he's picking dashes if he's driving at a rate of less than sixty. But the motorist who would like to get acquainted with some of the more picturesque spots in Floyd and Magoffin counties and to save some gasline on his or her return to the main highway—well, that's my recommended route.

Let's cross these rivers before we come to 'em!

River development and flood control rank high on the list of America's post-war plans. Many of these projects call for dams which also produce electric power.

This involves issues that should be discussed and settled now—rivers to cross in advance.

Many of us in the power business have had a long experience with riverside plants, in the production of both steam-generated and hydro-electric power. In fairness to all taxpayers and in the interest of the many million users of electricity, we should outline our convictions and suggestions on river development and flood control.

- 1 When a dam is proposed, all of its purposes should be clearly defined in the legislation—flood control, navigation, irrigation or power. And just as clearly, the benefit to the people affected should justify the cost.
- 2 If power is produced at government-built dams, it should be sold to existing power systems, without special privilege or discrimination. This will save the expensive duplication of transmission facilities, help to co-ordinate the entire power supply of each region, and assure its widest possible use at the lowest practical rates.
- 3 Any savings made possible by this plan should be passed along to the users of electricity, under regulation by State Commissions or other properly constituted regulatory bodies. This will assure all the benefits of river development and hydro-power without the added expense of government going into business and competing with its own citizens.
- 4 Government in any business endangers all business. Government in business escapes many normal business obligations, enjoys free mail, pays no federal taxes, and few, if any, other taxes, little or no interest. If government can sell electricity on this basis, it can sell shoes, groceries, automobiles, or anything else the same way. Government may properly regulate business in the public interest but should not operate business. It should not play in the game for which it makes the rules. In other words, government should not try to be umpire and pitcher at the same time!

Nieman Fellows at Harvard

Ed Edstrom 1944

Cary Robertson 1945

Paul Hughes 1943

FOR three consecutive years a staff member of our papers has been awarded the Nieman Fellowship at Harvard University.

The Lucius Nieman Fellowships were established in 1939 by Mrs. Agnes Wald Nieman in memory of her husband, former publisher of The Milwaukee Journal. The Fellowships are offered working journalists of at least three years' experience.

The whole field of instruction at Harvard is open to Nieman Fellows. They are permitted to take courses in any department or school of the University. No technical courses designated as courses in journalism are offered, nor are special courses of study established for Fellows. The purpose of the Fellowships is not to give technical training in journalism but rather to enable the Fellows to increase their competence in subjects with which they have to deal as writers or editors.

About twelve Fellowships are awarded annually. Competition each year has been of such an order as to insure a representative selection.

In 1943 Paul Hughes, city editor of The Louisville Times, was the first Louisvillian and second Kentuckian to receive this award. Hughes specialized in post-war problems. On assignment as war correspondent in the Pacific, his personalized reports of fighting men from this area will soon appear daily in The Times and Sunday Courier-Journal. He will also record wide interviews for radio station WLSR.

In 1944 Ed Edstrom, assistant Sunday editor of The Courier-Journal, won a Fellowship which he used to study economics and municipal government. Edstrom writes for The Passing Show and The Roto-Magazines. His most recent articles have been on city planning for post-war Louisville.

Cary Robertson, Sunday editor of The Courier-Journal, is one of ten American journalists awarded the Nieman Fellowship this year. Robertson, who edits the Roto-Magazine, The Passing Show and supervises other Sunday sections, said he intended to study history, economics and public opinion with the idea of working on some of the causes of the rise and fall of newspapers. It will be on a leave of absence from the newspaper from September until June, 1946.

To have had three of our staff men selected for Fellowships out of a total number less than 10 for the three years is an honor which these newspapers appreciate. It is, too, we think, a recognition of the high quality of the work which they and other members of our staff put into these papers.
