THEIR 'GOOD BEHAVIOR'

RETURNING veterans are "on their good behavior" in the full meaning of the colloquialism, whether they know it or not. In other words, folks expect the worst of them and they will not be given a "clean bill of health" till they have proved themselves.

That is the unpleasant truth, whether the vets like it or not.

Somehow, the folks back home are expecting only the worst of the "boys." As in the case of the minister's son, they are being watched, their every mis-step being noted. They will be blamed wherever and whenever possible.

Not that the folks have anything against them. In fact, appreciation of those who served in the armed forces is as sincere and as high in this section as in any other part of the nation. But the folks have concluded that they've been taught to fight, been taught to hate, to be unconventional, permitted to drink; that they can't return to peaceful ways. Recent violations in this county do not prove these conclusions. Check them over and you will find civilians as deep in crime as the boys who have returned from the business of killing men in "defense of civilization."

That nine-year-old boy who beat to death a three-year-old baby in Pennsylvania wasn't a veteran.

True, the "boys" are doing their part of the drinking. So are the civilians. A certain percentage of those returned from war will be on the "outer fringe" and so will be a certain percentage of those who never shouldered a gun or wore a uniform.

So it would seem the better part of commonsense if we would try to treat the returned service man as a civilian who has done his duty and who deserves credit for so doing, but who now is just another civilian.

WE LIVE AND LEARN

THE TIMES admits to a bit of ignorance that we would prefer that you call by the more euphemistic word, "naive."

Until recently, in our blissful ignorance, we did not know that heads of the state colleges are dependent upon the party in power for continuance at work in their present capacities. In our new state of erudition we know that these, men, once their terms expire, may be suddenly ousted by their political "wrong" or if individuals more politically powerful want their jobs.

Howard Henderson, Courier-Journal editorial columnist, points out that State Superintendent John Fred Williams may, at his pleasure, oust either W. H. Vaughan, President of Morehead State Teachers College, or President W. F. O'Donnell at Eastern. He indicates that, whether Mr. Williams wants Mr. O'Donnell's place or not, a Republican may be named to succeed the present head of Eastern.

Then it is little wonder that Kentucky is forty-seventh among the states in education. Any system which permits politics to shunt aside an educator of proven ability merely to satisfy the ambitions of another, whether able or mediocre, cannot, even if given all the financial resources belonging to the state, lift itself higher than the muck of politics.

The field of education offers little ground for the Leacher or the administrator without a Democratic or a Republican administration having the final word in their professional destinies.

WHAT ABOUT THAT MISSING LINK

(Ashland Daily Independent)

ABOUT six weeks ago, on July 22 to be exact, the people of Ashland and the Big Sandy valley were cheered by a statement from the State Highway Department. It declared upon completion of the surfacing of the 10.8-mile section on U.S. Route 29, between Paintsville and Louisa on August 1, the Middle West Roads Company of Noblesville, Ind., would begin to apply a bituminous surface, class 1, high-grade blacktop. The statement said these contractors were expected to begin this surfacing within 15 days.

The grade and drain project was completed around August 1, as predicted. Since shortly after that, traffic has been attempting to move over the roadbed. But six weeks have passed and nothing has been done toward surfacing as yet. Dust is heavy and the roadbed is rough and dangerous to travel.

Protests over the failure to begin surfacing are heard daily. They come from organizations and individuals who believe the Highway Department's statement that a base of surfacing would be applied over the entire section before bad weather stopped work, permitting traffic in reasonable comfort over the road this winter.

Were these promises merely timed before the primary election to help the state administration and is there no intention now of keeping them?

The home city of Governor Willis and his own section of Eastern Kentucky are the sufferers through the long-continued absence of adequate highway connection caused by this almost impassable section of road. Its completion has been delayed so long and it has been made so often in the past a political football that there is no wonder that patience is worn out and protests contain a bitter note.

The members of the Big Sandy and Elkhorn Coal Operators Association have their own reasons to retain their principal offices in Ashland upon the promise of early completion of this road. Much of the commercial business of this section depends upon it as the principal artery of transportation. All have placed full reliance upon the pledge that this road would be completed in this year and completely finished before September 1, 1946.

We feel that the State Highway Department should take steps to have the contractors proceed at once with surfacing, in accordance with the promise of the Highway Department officials. We choose to believe that the promises were made in good faith, but if they are going to be kept, a definite start on the work of surfacing will have to come in the very near future. If they are not going to be kept, certainly a detailed explanation of the reasons is in order.

Livestock Slaughter Limits Lifted; More Meat in Sight

Washington, Sept. 8—All limits on the slaughter of livestock ended today with the return in animals going to market.

This action by the OPA permits slaughteries to kill as much livestock as they like.

It means more meat for civilians, and while a fully authoritative official makes such a prediction for quotation, it may be a step preliminary to early rationing, also. That depends largely on how much the kill increases.

Now that the period of acute scarcity has been passed and with increased numbers of livestock being sold, we want to be sure there are no obstacles to prevent the slaughter of every animal that is marketed. Price Administrator Chester Bowles said in a statement announcing the action.

"Now that the period of acute scarcity has been passed and with increased numbers of livestock being sold, we want to be sure there are no obstacles to prevent the slaughter of every animal that is marketed." Price Administrator Chester Bowles said in a statement announcing the action.

The new slaughter-control program in effect since last April, was designed to route more of the limited livestock supply into federally inspected plants, less to non-inspected plants. The idea behind it was to make more meat available for the armed

Collins a Member Of Famed Battalion

WITH THE 71ST TANK BATTALION, LUZON, Aug. 23—Little publicized during the operations of the Philippine campaign, the record of the 71st tank battalion can now be revealed. 1/3 Elijah J. Collins is a member of the battalion and is proud of that record. His mother, Mrs. Mala Collins, resides at Wayland, Ky. Supporting the doughboys in assault landings on Luzon, Panay, Negros, Cebu, Jolo, Zamboanga Peninsula and on Mindanao, the tank men met and defeated the best the Japs had. J's Collins relates: "Our tanks have fought every kind of warfare in the books. We engaged the tanks of the Nipponese 2nd armored division on the roads and on the spreading rice paddies on Luzon. We took part in the street fighting at Manila and as a part of tank-infantry teams we cleared the son of heaven from the jungles of Mindanao. We had been continuously in combat from the 9th of January until the termination of the Philippine campaign, moving from operation to operation so fast that often after firing the last shot at the resting Nips at noon, we would find ourselves loading on LST's that evening, off for another Jap-held island."

Reviewing the remarkable record of his outfit, Sgt. Collins added, "In six months of going battles our battalion has killed more than 3,000 Nips, destroyed over 600 pillboxes and much of the armor that the Japanese army used in the defense of the islands. It's no wonder infantry divisions that operated in the Philippines regard the 71st 'Wolf-Pack' so highly."

The Eighth Victory Loan starts in October—let's be ready to buy Bonds.

Parolee Stabs Brother Fatally in Magoffin
Salersville, Ky., Sept. 5—Two brothers who married sisters fought and one was killed today.

County Attorney Walter Prater announced the death of Frank Patrick, 32, in a Paintsville hospital several hours after he was stabbed at his home at Forker, five miles west of here, last night.

Sheriff Oliver Patrick, a distant relative of the brothers, said that his deputies were seeking Jasper Patrick, identified by Prater as a paroled convict.

Prater, himself, had defended Jasper Patrick, who was accused of the slaying of Golden Byer some five years ago. Sentenced to 21 years in prison, Patrick was paroled two years ago.

Prater said that the reason for the flight was obscure. He quoted witnesses as saying the parolee drove up his brother's home, and that after a short while the fight broke out inside.

(Continued from Page One) Hall Columbia for trying to besmirch our fair name by swallowing the recurring lie in print, that story about a man named Denks from Roman county who got as far away as California and didn't know there was a war on. Has anybody ever inquired how the Denks ever talked to anybody, ever heard a radio or traveled across the country without knowing we were at war? And wonder if anybody asked how he knew to go to California to work in a war plant if he didn't know there was a war on? Or how he knew how to work, if he was that dumb? Day by day I grow more firmly convinced that our genus should be termed homo sapiens rather than homo sapiens.

James Cecil Mellon, navy aviation cadet, left Wednesday for California after spending a leave with his wife here. He has been in school in Minnesota for some time. Mrs. C. L. Hutsiniller was in Huntington the first of the week on business.

THE HEALTH OF YOUR LIVESTOCK

By BECHER L. SCUTCHFIELD Licensed Veterinarian

FEEDS AND FEEDING

It would be impossible for me to try to cover feeds and feeding with much satisfaction in such short space. An attempt is made only to mention some outstanding facts about feeding. However, it must be considered a great factor in keeping your livestock healthy. Feeds are necessary for growth, health and production of energy in all animals. Therefore all the products that man obtains from animals are secondary to actual life functions of the animal. Of course we feed animals to produce milk, eggs, wool, hides and many other products, but it is not the animal's original intention to produce them for us. As mentioned in previous work the nutrition elements necessary to sustain animal life include proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and various supplementary food factors. Where these nutrition factors are present in feed in a necessary percentage and are balanced to keep the animal growing, we refer to the foods as a balanced ration. A balanced ration for one species of animals is different from that of another species and also different for animals of the same species. A working horse would require a different ration and a larger amount of feed than one allowed to remain in the stall. More and more we have come to realize the value in a complete feed containing calcium, phosphorus, iodine, vitamins and trace elements. If you wish to really go into scientific feeding of animals, recommend some good book on feeds and feeding or consult your county agricultural agent or Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. The 1939 Yearbook of Agriculture on "Food and Life" which can be obtained for $1.50 from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C., is a very valuable book on feeding. Perhaps commercial prepared feeds may not meet every requirement.

Legislative Council at Work Prepping for Fighting Session

The Legislative Council, of which Rep. Jerry Ponce Howell, of Wheelwright, is chairman, met in Frankfort Monday to pave the way for what promises to be the fighting session of Kentucky's General Assembly in many years. Most everybody who gets state money wants more of it. Only state departments submitted goals totaling $45,000,000 to the Governor's Tax Revision Commission as their hopes for future appropriations, compared to this year's $32,000,000 budget. Divergent views on the council's procedure already have appeared. Republican Lieutenant-Governor Kenneth Tuggle said a question was whether or not it was expedient to start hearing next week or wait until after the November election because many of the council members, appointed in 1944, will not return to the Legislature which meets next January. Democrat Harry Lee Waterfield, Speaker of the House, declared he favored the council meeting the maximum 60 days authorized by law. He explained he wanted to do most of the hearing in the department heads, that he desired that people all over the state who had given a chance to bring them here. Tuggle, chairman, and Waterfield, vice-chairman of the council, each stressed he was presenting only his own views and that the council would determine what to do. Democrats are in the majority in the council, as they were in the 1944 Legislature. The coming legislative session may be further still complicated by the fact that the Republicans are fighting a hard fight to win control of the Senate. Democrats, fighting to hold the line there, have expressed belief they will have a better grip on the House than in 1944. But regardless of the outcome, all controversies are expected to be affected by a powerful undercurrent—efforts of the politically minded council members to discredit the opposing party and thus gain some strength for the 1946 Congressional and the 1947 gubernatorial elections. When the General Assembly convenes there is bound to be a revival of the fight to open Kentucky's highways to bigger truck loads, with railroads vigorously opposing the move. Whether the Legislative Council will go into this under its power to look into matters affecting the state's general welfare remains to be seen. But taxes and appropriations are its regular bill of fare in preparing to make recommendations to the coming General Assembly. Hearings before Governor Simeon Willis Tax Revision Commission and his Postwar Advisory Planning Commission have indicated moves are in sight to revise the state's tax structure. Advocates say they want to do it in such a way as to encourage industry. In general I would recommend commercial prepared foods as feed for your livestock along with forage crops. In general commercial prepared feeds will fit the specific purpose indicated as well as any one could formulate. Recommended feed formulas will work out satisfactorily where the livestock owner grows and mixes his own feeds and feed supplements. However, for a person with a few animals the commercial prepared feeds will meet the requirements. Actually most commercial feed concerns spend millions of dollars in research in preparing formulated feeds. Some persons say that their animals will not eat certain commercial feeds. Generally this problem has a cause. Specifically, some dog owners have called my attention to the fact that their dog will not eat commercial dog foods. A history of the dogs generally yield the fact that they are feeding the dogs kitchen scraps or garbage. Once a dog has developed a taste for garbage, they will refuse a balanced food. Sometimes cooked beef scraps, milk, eggs or leftover vegetables may be mixed with commercial prepared dog foods to make it palatable and as a variety. I do not recommend garbage feeding of animals as it is an unbalanced ration, and in the majority of cases will produce a malnutrition problem. An animal will eat most of the commercial feeds when they are starved to the extent that they will eat it. Improper feeding habits account for high percentage of losses in livestock. The main improper feeding habits include overfeeding, sudden change in type of food and underfeeding. Overfeeding produces the POISON IVY, mosquitoes, ants, sunburn, rain - Roughing it on a camping trip is great stuff. For a week or so. Then you begin to long for the comforts of home. A good light to read by... a hot shower... your electric razor... an electric range... and, of course, your radio. It's surprising the number of every-day conveniences made possible by electricity. You take them for granted - until you have to get along without 'em. The big reason why you forget 'em is because electric service is so good and so cheap. Electricity is still available at low pre-war prices. There have been no shortages. And you can be sure there will be plenty of power for the post-war electric era - thanks to the practical experience and sound business management of America's light and power companies. Turner No. 7 mine, Edgewood Fuel Company, near Drift; 75 employees; daily production about 500 tons. Inspected by T. H. Harrison and W. R. Park in 13 months since the opening of the mine in June 1944, an outstanding safety record was established with the production of 52,346 tons of coal with only one fatality accident. Improvements since the December, 1944 examination: bonding of one coal mine to the transmission case of the mining machine and guarding of gears and sprockets of machines, safeguards for traveling between surface buildings, and erection of barriers near belt line.

Three Floyd County Mines Are Reinspected Safety conditions recently observed at three Floyd county coal mines are described by federal coal mine inspectors. Separate Bureau of Mines re-inspection reports made public this week. Some progress toward safer operations was reported at each mine, but inspectors also called attention to the need for additional safeguards to protect life and property. Improvements effected since previous inspections were attributed to company initiative, employee cooperation, compliance with orders of state inspectors, and adoption of Bureau recommendations. Following are summaries of the re-inspection reports: Diamond Elkhorn mine, Diamond Elkhorn Coal Company, at Garrett, 31 employees; daily production, about 350 tons. Reinspected by John E. Bradburn. Recommendations: More extensive timbering under a systematic plan. Frequent re-inspection of the air current and more effective air coursing devices, examination of the mine for explosive gas after an overnight interruption in ventilation, daily gas tests when driving vertical coal shafts, regular mine examinations for explosive gas at least once weekly, better control of coal dust, safer transportation of blasting supplies, precautions in transporting men on conveyor belts, grounds and other safeguards for electrical equipment, prohibition of smoking underground, wider use of safety-toe footwear, and establishment of a broader safety program. The inspection commended the above-average daily safety record during five months of 1945 when 11,887 tons of coal were produced for each disabling injury. Betterments since the October, 1944, inspection: safer surface and underground storage of blasting supplies, construction of a new tipple station, control of coal dust at belt discharge heads, safer handling of railroad cars, improved mine maps, and maintenance of adequate first-aid supplies.

Liberty No. 2 mine, Floyd Elkhorn Coal Company at Sampson; 45 employees; daily production about 450 tons. Reinspected by Russell Shaw. No lost-time accidents occurred at the mine in development work since July, 1944, and only three injuries have been reported since the start of coal production, the mine yielding an above-average 15,355 tons for each injury. Improvements since the December, 1944 inspection: more safety devices for the main ventilating fan, use of permissible lights in main haulage, floor insulation at all starting switches, insulators for electric light and surface power wires, adequate fire protection at electrical installations, and posting of safety bulletins. Recommendations: Closer adherence to timbering standards, precautions in using shot electric detonators, a ban on smoking underground, some additional ventilating facilities, additional control of coal dust, more haulage safeguards, safety devices for all electrical equipment, and establishment of a safety program embodying monthly safety meetings, first-aid training, and mine-rescue instruction.

INFORMATION FOR VETERANS

Compiled by L. O. Hinkle, Local Veterans' Employment Representative, U. S. Employment Service, Prestonsburg, Ky.

Question: What is the "G. I. Bill of Rights?" Answer: The "G. I. Bill of Rights" is an act of Congress providing federal government aid for the readjustment in civilian life of returning World War II veterans. This bill provides for such programs as the following: hospitalization, education and other training; loans; federal unemployment insurance; special employment consideration in counseling; expediting of benefit claims and, in general, special legislation for the benefit of returning personnel of the armed forces engaged in World War II.

Question: What is the Serviceman's Readjustment Act of 1947? Answer: This is the same as the so-called "G. I. Bill of Rights." Question: What is Public Law 366? Answer: The "G. I. Bill of Rights" is also known as Public Law 366, 78th Congress. Question: Where may a veteran obtain information in regard to filing a claim for pension? Answer: By contacting the nearest Veterans' Facility, which in this area is at Lexington, Ky. Question: Who should a veteran contact if he is interested in a new career? Answer: Your local United States Employment Service office. This office, which is located at the Federal land building, Prestonsburg, Ky., serves Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Mason counties.
