OFFICIAL ORGAN FOR FLOYD COUNTY, KY.

MORRIS ALLEN Editor

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky. under the act of March 3, 1879.

Now—Stand Up and Be Counted!

THE TIMES has long withheld any editorial comment on the proposed canalization of the two forks of the Big Sandy River.

Now, it definitely takes a stand. It is convinced that such waterway improvement is not only feasible but just and due to a section which, of all sections of the country, needs improvement.

This newspaper would bitterly oppose such an undertaking, were it conceived that lock-and-damming of the waterway would impoverish the Chesapeake & Ohio railway serving this section and contributing heavily in the tax-uptake of the section's local governments and schools.

But the history of river improvement offers proof that it does not provide ruinous competition to existing railroads. Moreover, a Chesapeake & Ohio official not long ago was quoted as stating at a meeting in Ashland that water transportation on the Big Sandy would not adversely affect his company.

If any authority on the subject can convince this newspaper that such improvement would handicap the miners and farmers, or the business men, of the section affected, THE TIMES will promptly reverse its stand.

While the railroad companies cannot be held wholly responsible for all the irresponsible statements being made as arguments against canalization, such actions—some would term them canards—against the parts of Kentucky and West Virginia at question—do their cause no good. Let us glance at two of these.

Writing in The Wheeling Intelligencer under a Washington dateline, Calvert L. Estill stated on Sept. 12: "As practical men, they (the Congress) may fully realize the idiocy of wasting that much of the people's money to make a canal out of tortuous and crooked rivers that you can wade across most places without getting your ankles wet, and can spit across anywhere..."

Certainly this Mr. Estill is not representative of those opposing river improvement in Eastern Kentucky. Wade across most places without getting your ankles wet... spit across anywhere!—shades of Baron Munchausen, of Ananias and Sapphira!

Quoting from the same "all wet" source of information on waterway improvements, comes up this:

"One of the unique features about this 'vast inland waterway' which William W. Va., and Pikeville, Ky., will be made supports, is the plan to pump water over the hills from the Ohio, or the lower part of the Big Sandy, back into the country beyond Williams son and Pikeville, to try to fill the canal it is proposed to dig so that boats can move in it."

Please, gentlemen—let's be reasonable about this matter. "Over the hills from the Ohio"! Geography is a subject that should be studied by some who pose mythical engineering problems.

Mr. Estill, in his learned article from the national capital, declares this whole matter poses a $65,000,000 question. He declares that if this thing he terms the "Big Sandy asinity" comes to pass the taxpayers of this country will be "out" a cool $65,000,000.

That is the figure we last saw, Mr. Estill. But we would remind all sundry that that amount will be paid by the taxpayers of this country for some sort of rivers and harbors improvement, or some other type of public improvement, somewhere, whether in the Big Sandy or in some spot a thousand miles away. And we would inquire, since federal funds running into the billions will be spent within the next few years, how would sixty-five millions spent in the Big Sandy affect us who may taxes—and who doesn't?—any more than the same amount spent elsewhere?

The highways that have penetrated this section and which have been accepted as an integral part of modern-day life—are not their competitors of the railroads? The landing fields of the next few years, to be built at least in part by federal funds in every part of the United States—may tell us, will not these cost us "dear taxpayers" and will they not supply a bit of competition to the railroads?

This Big Sandy section has, outside the mining industry it had before the war began, been almost wholly bypassed by all new work growing out of the conflict just ended. Its needs for the future are great. Whatever will help it should not be begrudged it by any business or civic organization or by any civic-minded citizen.

Action in Washington on all this is a matter of only a few weeks. Action on opponents here at home of canalization is a flurry. Those who are for which to act, now is the time to stand up and be counted!

THANKS, FRIENDS!

Bedeledly, my friends I now desire to convey to each and every person who voted for me in the recent primary of said or did anything in my behalf, my deep feeling of undying gratitude. It was a real source of consolation to realize that I had enough good loyal friends to support me in my campaign...

It wasn't for filthy lucre that you fought for me, but it was your faith and confidence in my honesty and ability to make for the people a good official. Had I won, I would have been under no obligation to any one or any set of people to do any office act unbecoming a good public official.

On the other side of this scrambled political picture, I realize that I have stood in your "Temple of Justice" four square for "Law and Order" in our land. Under any investigation by our Grand Jurors of Criminal Violations of the law in connection with this primary, or any other election, my consistency would have been clear. I would not have feared the answers of any witness but would have been free to do my full duty as your servant.

Allen Official's Son, Glider Infantryman. George W. Snodgrass, of Allen, and his son, Robert E., who recently returned from the European theater, were visitors here Saturday, December, 1944. He was member of the 13th airborne division as a glider pilot and saw action in France and Germany. He escaped without a wound.

WOUNDED YET HERE. Home from the European theater of war where he spent six months and was wounded, Bill Francis, Jr., of Garrett, and his father were visitors here Saturday, December, 1944. He was member of the 13th airborne division as a glider pilot and saw action in France and Germany. He escaped without a wound.

In conclusion, I want to again express my highest respect and most profound gratitude to every voter who, without money, supported me or my opponent. My moral influence on future elections is an asset to organized society. Your quality as good citizens will serve as a guide for our younger generation who tomorrow will be treading in your footsteps of today.

COOLEY FOR CIRCUIT CLERK

For the last six years I have served you as your Circuit Court Clerk and it has been my aim to serve you efficiently and to be friendly at all times with all persons. At the recent primary I had no opposition from my own party for which I am naturally grateful. Now, with opposition in the final election, I have nothing to say against my opponent. I merely ask the good people of Floyd county to consider my record as an official and as a citizen, my friendship for people of all classes, and my earnest desire to render you all the right kind of service.

W. R. (Chock) Kendrick returned recently to Prestonsburg after three years' army service and 23 months in the China-India-Burma theater of war with the 49th evacuation hospital. In that area the dangers were as much, he said, from the natural elements of climate and jungle as from the enemy. Kendrick left the United States from the East coast, going via Australia to India, and returning through the Suez canal to the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, thus making a complete trip around the world. Upon conclusion of a four-long service here, with his wife, he will return to Ft. Lewis, Washington.

Glass insulation—in home appliances—will mean jobs.

Making Postwar Jobs—Out of Glass!

HOW MANY postwar jobs will there be—for soldiers, sailors, war workers? No one can tell exactly. But this much we do know:

Business management, in scores of industries, has long since planned new products, new ventures, new services, that will make jobs by the thousands by creating new demands.

For example, the glass industry in producing for war has found amazing new uses for its product. Imagine glass through which nails can be driven, like wood. Glass that bends. Glass that bounces. Glass that floats, like cork.

Soon, new, beautiful textiles will be made of glass—textiles that are fireproof and mothproof. There will be rotproof glass tarpaulins. Glass awnings. Glass windows that will not frost. Improved glassware for homes.

All these new uses will increase the demand for glass—and demand for goods makes jobs.

The glass industry is only one of many along the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Nickel Plate, and the Pere Marquette, that have planned very thoroughly for postwar employment.

And now that Victory has been won, these industries and others throughout the country will put into operation their plans for the jobs and opportunities all of us want.

Southern Bell Tells Plans for Program Involving Millions

A three hundred million to four hundred million-dollar construction and installation program aimed to meet the expanding telephone needs of the Southeast was announced this week by Hal S. Dumas, president of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, through H. L. McCarty, Pikeville, group manager.

Mr. Dumas said the program, the largest ever undertaken by the Southern Bell Company, would extend over the next five or six years.

Some idea of the size of the program is given by Mr. Dumas when he points out that it means that "we must in this comparatively short period of time spend a sum for expansion about equal to the dollar investment in the facilities we now possess."

A large proportion of the amount to be spent by the telephone company in the near future will go toward clearing up pending applications for service; but, beyond that, Southern Bell anticipates a period of substantial economic development in the South which will necessitate further telephone expansion to meet the growing requirements.

Mr. Dumas said Southern Bell's post-war plans included many different projects, some of which were outlined as follows:

1. Filling as quickly as possible because of the lack of facilities.
2. Extending and improving rural long distance service.
3. Catching with plant shortages to provide for the volume of business about to be handled.
4. Expanding the long distance network.
5. Extension of service into other fields as the need develops.

TO THE MEN AND WOMEN OF FLOYD COUNTY

The war is over. We have won a great victory—a victory over the most aggressive and evil forces ever to appear upon the earth, a victory for the peace of the world, a victory for humanity, a victory for Christianity. In this time of tumult and celebration we pause and bow our heads in utter reverence to Almighty God, the Giver of all good things, for that victory. We pause in prayer for those who cannot return, and gratefully acknowledge a debt to them that is not humanly possible in any way to repay. We pray for those who have returned, and will yet return, broken and beaten, to spend the remainder of their lives living the sacrifices they have so willingly made. We promise them now that never shall they be forgotten—for to forget those who have made these sacrifices is to forget the horrors of war and lay down the bars for a recurrence of war, a war even more horrible than we have now experienced.

Those of us who have been privileged to survive, to return to those we love and cherish, now turn our thoughts to those loved ones and rejoice at the thought of soon being with them to remain always. We rejoice in the thought that now the brave mothers, fathers, wives and sweethearts may once again be free from the worry, the fear and the sleepless nights, and the loneliness that has dogged their every hour these many months just past. Worry and fear for their boys in all parts of the world, the boys who have been living, fighting and dying in the mud and stench of Europe, or the steaming tropics of the islands of the vast Pacific.

We must all be thankful that we are a nation so constituted that we can arise on a bright December morning, a peaceful country with no malice in our hearts towards anyone, and withstand the shock of a treacherous sneak attack that destroyed the major units of our fleet. A nation that in only 46 months converted itself into the world's greatest fighting machine—with an army unconquerable by any enemy against any odds, and a navy greater than all the combined navies of the rest of the world. We must be thankful for and proud of the spirit of these forces. We must be thankful and proud of the men who had the patriotic spirit of great Americans to "pull up their stakes" and move to other states to produce the implements of war. We must be proud of the women who were willing to lay down their home chores and work at man's work, shoulder to shoulder with their men. We must be proud of the old men and sick men who produced food on the farms with insufficient help, who went back into the bowels of the earth and produced coal for the fuel of the war plants. We ARE proud of all these men and women who while they worked carried with them the worries for their scattered loved ones and the cares of the world. But for the true American spirit in every man and woman the job could not have been done. But that spirit did prevail and the fight is over.

The war is over but the burden of peace rests with us. We must preserve the peace with equal vigor. We must face all the problems of reconversion from the greatest fighting nation to a peaceful but firm nation with the same spirit of cooperation we had in converting from peace to war after Pearl Harbor. Every returning service man will have some problem—some the problem of completing their education, some of securing employment, either new jobs for those who entered the service before they had ever worked at steady employment because of their youth, or a change in employment by reason of training received while in service. Many will have the problem of establishing new independent businesses; most all in securing a home, a small tract of land, a chance to live in peace and security and forget the horrors of their experiences. Many will be entitled to, and forced to rely upon, pensions for wounds, diseases, and weakened conditions created by reason of the great service they have rendered.

Every worker will have his problems of uncertainty of employment, of changing jobs, of moving his family, of any number of readjustments. But unemployment must not occur—full employment with an ever increasing standard of living and education and recreational advantages must be guaranteed. A nation that can accomplish so much and overcome the great tasks forced upon us by foreign countries, in which we stood to gain nothing of a material nature, can and must overcome the simpler domestic problems of unemployment and scarcities and of even the fear of unemployment and the fear of scarcities of essentials needed for a full and free life. Our American spirit is the one thing that must be used as a basis for this freedom in our pursuit of peace and the maintenance of that peace.

One cannot live with the fighting men overseas, on the islands of the Pacific or in the countries of Europe without realizing the problems confronting us on our return, without thinking of the problems belonging to all of us in returning to our pre-war lives.

I am Howes Meade, a lawyer from the hills of Kentucky. My father was Lloyd G. Meade and I am the grandson of Henry S. Howes. My family has lived in these hills for over 150 years. I am married and have one child, a daughter 7 years old. I was practicing law when we became engaged in war. The day after Pearl Harbor I volunteered for the Army. I was rejected but continued to volunteer and was received by the Navy in 1943, and went on active duty immediately.

I have been overseas now many months and I am, at the date of this publication, still overseas. Due to the fact that I cannot be on home grounds at this time I must deviate from the usual custom of building through personal contacts my candidacy for the Republican Nomination for Congress in August, 1946. I wish to announce now that candidacy which must be carried on, at the present time, by way of the newspapers and the mails. When I am returned to civilian life, after the termination of my services, I will get out and see the people. I want to shake the hand of every man and woman in the Seventh Congressional District. I have a lot to say to the people of my district and I have the youth and vigor to get out and say it. I will make a most active campaign.

I was born 33 years ago in the Happy Hollow section of Paintsville, Johnson County, Kentucky. I attended the public schools, Mayo College, and was graduated from the Kentucky Military Institute in 1929. After my graduation I enrolled in the Western Kentucky State Teachers College at Bowling Green and left during the height of the depression and accepted employment in the Second National Bank of Paintsville, Kentucky. For a number of years I was the manager and auctioneer at the stock yards in Paintsville. In 1936 I resumed my college studies at the University of Louisville, where I was an honor student, and was graduated from its School of Law in 1939. I have been very active in my church, the First Methodist in Paintsville, serving on its official board and as president of the Men's Bible Class. I have been active in civic work as president of the Kiwanis Club, and for a number of years as chairman of the Red Cross Drives. I have been a life long Republican and a party worker since before I was old enough to vote. I have served as campaign chairman in Presidential and Congressional races.

To the farmers I offer a long and substantial friendship in the development of our mountain farms and in the daily swapping and trading of livestock.

My father was a member of the United Mine Workers and I have defended the miners and other workers in the local, state and Federal courts. I have never represented a corporation in any case against a workingman and never will.

To the returning service men I offer a common understanding of our present and future problems that has been thoroughly instilled during our service.

To all I offer my legal and business training and experience, coupled with youth and the energy that goes with youth, plus an iron bound determination that our hard earned peace shall not now be marred by an economic set back such as followed the last war. We have earned prosperity and we shall have it.

I know the problems confronting the farmers, the miners and the returning service men. I believe in doing something about them other than just talking. These problems can best be dealt with through the medium of a Congressional Office. I will be a candidate for that Congressional Office.

FIVE BILLION DOLLAR FAMILY BUSINESS

WHEN Grandma was a farm girl, she tended the chickens, milked the cows, churned the butter (72 percent of the nation's butter was home-churned then; less than 20 percent today). When she produced more eggs and butter than the family could eat, she would trade the rest for "pin-money" or frills.

Today, Grandma's "pin-money" has become BIG money. Last year it added more than five billion dollars to the income of U. S. farmers. That's more than hogs brought in—or cattle or sheep. Just look:

1944 Great Farm Income

Dairy Products.....	$2,969,000,000	$5,264,000,000
Poultry Products.....	2,295,000,000
Hogs.....	2,796,000,000
Cattle and Calves.....	2,607,000,000
Sheep, Lambs and Wool.....	450,000,000

And believe it or not, dairy products alone returned more money to farm families than the entire corn and wheat crops combined!

Any way you look at it, cows and chickens is a great industry. It is nation-wide too. California and Texas are crowding close on the leaders—Wisconsin, New York, Minnesota, Iowa, and Pennsylvania. From millions of small dairy herds and chicken flocks in every state, as well as from large-scale operations, comes the enormous volume of dairy and poultry products that are such a vital source of our nation's food.

LET'S KEEP THE MACHINE IN GEAR

In these days of mechanized farming practically everyone is familiar with the gears that make the tractors, combines, and other equipment go 'round. We know that should one gear be removed or get out of line—or even if a single gear tooth is broken—the machine won't run smoothly. If all the gears are in gear, it is much the same with the livestock and meat industry. The three main gears are the producer, the processor and the retailer. When any one of these "driving gears" gets out of order, then the entire industry suffers. Cooperation of their interests can contribute greatly to the smooth functioning of the industry as a whole. None of us gains by insisting too vigorously that our part of the industry is the only one which has problems that matter. We gain more by trying to look at our particular problems as they affect all of us. In other words, whatever hurts or helps the producer hurts or helps the processor and the retailer also. The livestock and meat industry is an important part of the national economic structure. We at Swift & Company believe that we can contribute most to the welfare of America—and ourselves—by promoting harmonious, practical working relations between producers, processors and retailers.

Progress Made in "Test-Tube" Breeding

Artificial insemination of livestock is expanding rapidly. The first breeding cooperative using this method was started in New Jersey in 1938. Today there are over 100 such units throughout the nation. Evidence of the success of "test-tube" breeding may be found in the records of the New Jersey unit. "Artificially sired" daughters produced 14% more butterfat and 5% more milk than their dams. Another survey shows the average yield of 280 "artificial" test-calf heifers was 8,125 lbs. of milk and 324.3 lbs. of fat in 305 days. This is 22.2% more milk and 24% more fat than the average of all cows of all ages in the U. S. A.

Matha Logan's Recipe for SKILLET DINNER

For Fry 1 lb. bulk sausage meat with 2 tablespoons hot fat. Pour off the drippings. Add 2 cups cooked rice, 1 1/2 cups canned tomatoes and 1/2 cup chili sauce. Blend well. Cover and cook over very low heat for 10 minutes. Do not stir. Serve with lettuce salad and crusty bread. Serves 6 to 8.

CULL THE NON-LAYERS Now!

Hens in your flocks that are not producing eggs regularly in the early fall months are superior layers. They are the hens with white heads, shanks and with old, frayed and brittle plumage. The sick hens with yellow legs and smooth feathers are the ones that should be used for poultry meat. They should be culled out of your flock to make room for mature, ready-to-lay pullets now on the range. As it doesn't pay to sell laying hens, try to examine all individuals in your flock carefully. A red comb and moist, expanded vent are sure signs of a layer. If the vent is dry, pushed back or flat, you may be certain that hen has stopped laying for some time.

ROY GUY REALLY KNOWS SHEEP

When Roy F. Guy, head buyer for Swift & Company at Chicago since 1931, was a lad of 17, he answered an ad in a Kansas City newspaper that led to his first job with Swift as a $4-a-week messenger boy. Before his first year he had doubled his salary and was getting a start in calf buying. At the ripe age of 22, Roy Guy was head calf buyer for Swift & Company. In the past 10 years and then went back to the starting line to learn lamb buying. In his 46 years with Swift, Roy Guy has bought many million lambs and judged in many a show ring. But his greatest pride is in the boys he hired and trained who have made good with the Company. "I always told a young fellow to keep his head down and his Company... and to stay with it," he says.

HOG CHOLERA

Hog cholera is one of the most common and deadly contagious diseases of swine. This disease is produced by a very small form of the (infectious virus), and therefore easily transmitted from one herd to another. Inasmuch as the sick hog is to be considered the main agent in spreading hog cholera, the most common method of spreading this disease is placing infected hogs nearby or in pens with uninfected hogs. Other means of spreading the disease consist of feeding raw pork scraps and garbage, and the vaccination of diseased swine with hog cholera virus and serum. It is also a known fact that people, water and certain insects will carry the disease a long distance. Generally an outbreak of hog cholera can be expected to occur more frequently in the fall and early winter.

The typical symptoms to be observed in hog cholera include the following: loss of appetite (refuse food), slight cough, constipation usually followed by diarrhea; high fever (104-107 degrees), pus in eyes (mucous eyelids), disinclination to move (stiffness), partial paralysis in hind quarters and purplish red spots between the ears and forehead. The hog has a dejected, listless appearance with head and tail hanging downward. Some of the symptoms observed are similar to those of certain other swine diseases. Therefore it is very hard for the veterinarian to differentiate hog cholera from other swine diseases. However, as a general rule the veterinarian does a post-mortem examination—that is, he cuts the hog open and examines for certain indications of the disease. The period from exposure to first appearance of the symptoms of the disease is generally 3 to 5 days. Shortly some of the hogs will have fully developed the disease and perhaps die while others are beginning to show symptoms. After the first appearance of the disease in a herd the hog will die within 10 to 15 days. All breeds of swine are susceptible to the disease, but other species of animals are not susceptible.

Hog cholera is a preventable disease, and only by proper use of preventive measures can your animals be protected. The only method to insure your herd against an outbreak of the disease is by vaccination with hog cholera virus and antiserum. Devitalized hogs (worn or sick hogs) are poor risks, and should not be vaccinated as the hog has a mild form of the disease and refuse to vaccinate hogs that appear to be sick or infested with parasites. There are a number of different methods and vaccines for immunizing hogs against hog cholera, and all of these methods should be used only by your veterinarian. Vaccination as practiced by an amateur or unqualified person frequently results in an outbreak of the disease; thus producing an epidemic of hog cholera. All animals sick with hog cholera or exposed to the disease should be isolated and quarantined placed on them. Proper and effective means should be used to prevent the carrying of the disease on the clothes or in water and food to well animals. All hogs, swine, choleas or suspected of being with hog cholera should be buried in lime or buried in a hole. Buried dogs and other scavengers will often dig up the dead hog and spread the disease. The hog pens formerly occupied by the sick animals should be torn down and destroyed; therefore, newly purchased hogs should be placed in clean pens and kept free of contact with other hogs. In other infectious diseases, effective control depends on closing the channels through which infection spread as uncooked garbage, transportation of infected swine and indiscriminate use of virus.

There is no cure for hog cholera. Still, the disease has made its appearance in a herd. When hog cholera appears in a herd of swine, all hogs will die of it. The use of preventive measures should be used only by your veterinarian. Vaccination may be beneficial sometimes. However, many of the advertised vaccines and tonics for hog cholera are of no value in curing hog cholera and have been found to be worthless. Again I might state that the only step in controlling this disease is prevention, sanitation and vaccination.

Walton's message rejecting the union's proposal to mediate, said, in part:
"Company has never and now has no intention of discriminating against any employee, but in the discharge of its duty to the public and in fairness to its willing employees who have and who now desire to work, must and does reserve the right to discipline or discharge any employee if, after investigation, evidence justifies such action."

"Not being advised of any other issues," the message said, "company cannot blindly agree to any extraordinary hearing nor be bound by judgment of selected special arbitrators, as proposed by union."

The company has taken the position that all issues pertaining to the controversy have been presented to the regional W.L.B. by a three-member panel which conducted hearings in Chattanooga after a general strike of United Fuel employees last July.

The panel recommended a base pay for laborers of 55 cents an hour, an increase of 5 cents, with other raises for those making up to 85 cents an hour, and shift differentials of 4 and 6 cents an hour.

An "investigative" hearing of the dispute is slated to be held by the War Labor Board in Cleveland to day (Thursday).

29 October, 1944
She had no time for painting lovely pictures.
The beauty shone from out her loving eyes;
She never penned a lovely, graceful sonnet.
But she could sing a baby's lullaby.
she never wrote for fame or admiration.
Because of little children at her side.
But in telling and re-telling fairy stories she learned them all with very greatest pride.

Instead of writing books with stirring action.
She only watched a little body grow;
And, starting baby's eager stumbling footsteps,
Guided them the way that they should go.
It is quite sure they will select another
When giving out the laurels won by fame.
For she was but a plain, sweet mother—
Yet, at the Throne of God they bless her name.
