This Town-- That World

A magazine clipping telling of the giant couple, Capt. Martin Van Buren Bates and his wife, Anna Swan Bates, reminds The Times that the huge Lecher couple can spend a night in Prestonsburg at the home of H. H. Fitzpatrick, father of Henry D. Fitzpatrick, of this place.

Quite a hunk of man was this Mr. Bates. Eight feet in his sock feet and weighing around 500 pounds, he was an ordinary human look like Lulliputians. At the Fitzpatrick home he had a bed made up with the idea of putting two beds together and re-informing them. And the giant mountaineer's wife was built in proportion to the word gorgeous a gross under-statement. She was only an inch shorter than he. Both needed European tours, attracted thousands while they were with P. T. Barnum and the Cole circus, and in 1871 gave a command performance before Queen Victoria.

SPARE THAT TREE!

The feature about Ohio and Michigan towns that has attracted the most, and doubtless will attract other visitors, is the avenue of trees that is each town's main street. These are the "tree experts" who, in the leafy canopy above, are each village's warm welcome to the traveler, just in from the glaring sunlight of the open road.

Wherever found a tree is an adornment as well as a thing of natural value. The trees of Prestonsburg beautify the town, even glorify some spots that would otherwise be unimpressive.

Floyd County Woman, Partially Paralyzed, Shows Ohioans How Not to "Give Up"

An outstanding example of sheer grit, Floyd county brand, transplanted from the hills to the broad fields of Ohio, was discovered recently near McCutney, O., by Dr. M. T. Dolson, of Prestonsburg.

But was the former Floyd county woman helpless, discouraged and demanding the attention needed by an invalid of advanced age? She was not.

When Dr. Dolson arrived at her home, three miles out in the country from McCutney, she was moving the lawn, the handpowered lawnmower actually supporting her and making locomotion less difficult. The 60-by-60-foot lawn was treated in flower beds, weeds and grain. Nearby was the half acre garden and its beans, corn, peas, cabbage, onions and the like that she, unaided, had planted and hoed. More than that, she does her own washing and ironing, the cellar is well-stocked with her canned fruits and vegetables. Every household chore is done by her, and the Prestonsburg physician marveled at her efficiency.

When Mrs. Dolson suffered the stroke, five years ago, her physician advised her not to give up, and she remained as active as possible under his instructions. But it was not his idea that she live alone and do all her work.

Mrs. Dolson, a daughter of the late Johnny Shepherd and a native of Middle Creek, lost a young child, seven who would stay with her or who would take her home with them. Thus she prefers to live alone, to do her own work—and never to give up the fight.

Success with Pike In Herrington Lake Reported by Division
The little well-kept pike in Herrington Lake are growing up. First reports on the survival of a great number of the approximately 800,000 pike fry which were placed in the lake in May have been received by the Division of Game and Fish from fishermen in that body of water. They report that many of the small fish, now about four inches long, have been captured on worm-baited hooks. The pike were released by the Division with the belief that this cannibalistic fish, which is particularly fond of gizzard shad, would eliminate this species to a large degree thereby depriving the bass in the lake of an abundant food supply.

The Division determined, after tests, that the lake contained plenty of bass but that they would not come to the lure of fishermen simply because there was an over-supply of shad in all sizes on which they feed. By decreasing this source of food, the Division believes, the bass will again bite and the lake will return to its former status as one of the best fishing spots in the South. Catching of the small pike in the lake has proved to the Division, Earl Wallace, director, explains, that the pike project is feasible. In a few years when the pike are larger and their appetite increases, they are expected to devour an immense number of shad and fishing in this lake should be improved by then, the director pointed out.

Minor Clark, superintendent of fisheries for the Division, announced that plans are under way by the Division to obtain muskellunge to be distributed in the lake this fall. It is hoped that they, like the pike, will feed on the shad and thereby decreasing this type fish will provide sport for fishermen. Also efforts are being made to secure a number of larger pike for distribution in the lake this fall, Mr. Clark said.

"How to save money on your electric bill"

Anemiar in a Series by Dr. Phineas Q. Twitch, Eminent Economist

- 1 Toss out your electric fan, and adopt a small boy to wave a palm leaf for you. Of course, you'll have to feed and clothe him—and he'll be pretty noisy—but think of the money you'll save! When you can pin him down to work (which won't be often!) you'll save a penny every three hours. That's real economy.
- 2 Throw away your electric clock and buy a sundial. Of course, it won't wake you up for work, but think of the fun you'll have trying to figure out what time it is—on sunny days, anyway. And you'll be saving about $6 every month! At that rate, you'll have the sundial almost paid for in only 41 years!
- 3 Turn off your radio during the Summer Electric Hour, starring Woody Herman and Peggy Lee, every Sunday afternoon at 4:30 over CBS, EDST. In this way, you'll miss a grand show, but think—you'll actually save one-sixth of a penny every time you do! In only two years, this self-sacrifice on your part will have saved you the price of an ice cream soda.
