This Town-- That World

FROM AN OLD JOURNAL

Old account books one finds about the courthouse here indicate that of food Floyd county folk went to the store back yonder for little. Certain items in these old ledgers show, however, they invested freely in drink.

These items, dated in the spring months of 1854, were characteristic: "To 1 flailing strig, 1c... one-fourth pound powder, 12c... 1/2 doz. flints, 5c... one pair boots for little. Certain items in these old ledgers show, however, they invested freely in drink.

"Back then, tobacco was the highest 'commodity' entries in the ledger show John Shumbaugh, for one, was charged 30 cents for one pipe. And James A. Hunter paid 15c for a bottle of hen's oil.

In the drink department, one billion (shown was charged $3 for two saloons of whiskey.

In one of his more romantic moments this early storekeeper jotted down at the bottom of a page these deathless lines:

"Dear Miss, I take my pen in hand To inform you of my love. My ink is bad, my pen is pale— My love for you will never fail!"

If you are unmoved by such wooing of the muse, try this last entry from the journal:

"One vile old vermouth, 25 cents"

THE LIGHTER SIDE

All is not grimness in these murder trials. They have their lighter moments.

Wednesday after W. A. Daugherty, speaking in defense of Mrs. Ritter Hall, had said an impressive paragraph on the stand.

"The defendant was an old citizen of his own county, and the grounds. His chest had dinner prepared for lawyers, court-stand and others, and all was well. The judge, however, demanded that by jury, since he was slain rather to both parties and the convicts."

"There was a considerable spell of waiting. Finally, the jury emerged with a brief verdict.

"The judge," he solemnly reported, "the jury cast their verdict."

Then there was the instance when a certain workman, lawyer of this section appeared, before one morning in court and waxed exceedingly indignant upon reading an answer to a bill he had filed. He stood on his Constitutional rights, demanded justice in no uncertain terms and wound up by declaring:

"I defy the allegations, suit and severally, and I also defy the almighty."

TWO WORKING ON PAY PLAN

Lewis, Bridges Join
In Ready Pension
Pay for Mine Workers

John L. Lewis and Senator Bridges (R-NH) began setting their ready Wednesday to pay elderly coal miners their $100-a-month pensions if the courts don't prevent.

Lewis and Bridges, two of the pension fund trustees, announced: 1. The appointment of an administrator; 2. The appointment of a director, Miss Josephine Roche, associate of Lewis.

"That the paper work will require 'several weeks.' No pensions before that. Lewis and Bridges went this far in the face of a suit by coal operator, Ezra Van Horn, who is the third pension fund trustee. Van Horn says they can't go ahead without his approval, and he hasn't given it. He wants the court to make Lewis and Bridges personally liable if they start the money flowing until he settles."

The Lewis-Bridges plan calls for payments to miners of $2 or older with 20 years' service and retired after May 29, 1946.

The United Mine Workers' president forced the new Hampshire Senator forward with his group, which has been working for some $500,000 of the miners' welfare and retirement in government short-term bonds.

Lewis and his 400,000-sold coal miners are now under injunction against (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

The final tax recap for this year placed real estate of all kinds, improvements, mineral, timber, etc., at $3,827,621. The assessment of Ford automobiles and trucks totaled $291,506 and of other taxables, $1,927,759. The county's livestock was Magisterial District 1, outside Prestonburg, $1,368,779; District 2, $1,130,194; District 3, $1,431,872; District 4, $291,444.

Corporation and non-resident assessments on the face of the Commissioner's first recap stood at $8,490,030.

Will Floyd county escape a blanket raise? That remains to be seen. Already Magoffin and 23 other counties have been hit by blanket increases. Magoffin's lots and farm-lands by 10 per cent.

H. Clyde Reeves, Commissioner of Revenue, announced that the policy of the Tax Commission in reviewing assessments this year will be to use blanket raises as sparingly as possible in equalizing property tax assessments between counties. He stated the Commission is aware that property assessed in the state is in a mess. A Department of Revenue study of recent sales, compared to the assessment of the same property, shows that the average county assesses a piece of property at 10 per cent in one county to a high of 102 per cent in another county. Mr. Reeves stated that individual properties within these counties is assessed even more erratically than the county averages show. The same study indicated that 1 per cent of the property in the state is assessed at under 20 per cent of fair cash value while 8 per cent is assessed at over 100 per cent of fair cash value.

The study shows that in practically all counties individual properties are assessed at levels ranging from about 10 per cent of fair cash value to well over 100 per cent of fair cash value. When property is so erratically assessed, the inequality of treatment between taxpayers is increased by blanket raises applied to county assessments by the Kentucky Tax Commission. To illustrate this Reeves gave the example of a taxpayer who owns a $10,000 piece of property assessed at $2,000, while another owns a similar piece of property assessed at full value. Upon the application of a blanket raise the assessment of the first is increased by $400 and the second, who is already paying more than his fair share, is increased by $2,000. Thus, Reeves observed, the inequality between individual taxpayers is aggravated by blanket raises and the Kentucky Tax Commission is 'cautious in the dilemma of either failing to carry out a clear legal injunction to raise the assessments of counties where they are relatively low or of making a bad situation worse.

The Kentucky Tax Commission is now beginning the task of reviewing county assessments. Commissioner Reeves said that while the Commission is convinced that the only answer to the property assessment problem lies in improving local assessments, it will be compelled to use blanket raises in some of the worst cases. He advised county clerks to delay their preparation of tax bills until notified that the assessment of the county has been changed. On Tuesday, May 11, the Kentucky Tax Commission.

Federal Mine Inspection Reports

While enforcing a score of recent safety improvements in the 3000-ton-a-day Wayland No. 28 mine at Wayland, a federal coal mine inspector likewise recommends additional rock-blasting and timbering and timbering safeguards in a report released by the Bureau of Mines. Operated by the Elk Horn Coal Corporation, the mine employed 88 men when re-inspected in February by Russell Shaw.

Most of the mine was dry, but considerable rock dust had been applied. Inspector Shaw reported. For greater safety, he advocated rock-dusting to within 80 feet of several working faces, and in back entries near face regions, using water or other means to alloy coal dust during cutting and loading, removing all coal-dust accumulations from roadways and the tipples, and installing dust-tight motors in tippie locations.

To increase haulage and timbering safety, Inspector Shaw proposed bans on excessive back-poling and jumping from fast-moving locomotives, removal of obstructions from haulage roads, clearance space and shelter holes, suitable re-rolling devices for locomotives, full adherence to the adopted timbering standards, safety posts close to each working face where they are not set already, and the removal or support of some loose haulage-way roof.

Summarizing recent improvements, Inspector Shaw commended good ventilation, use of line brattices, weekly examinations of the mine for hazards, screened ventilators for the explosives-distributing magazines, well-installed insulators for pump power wires, a cut-out switch near the beginning of each branch trolley circuit, other electrical safeguards, locking devices for mining machine cutting chains, adequate underground fire-fighting equipment, and the wearing of protective hats and footwear for all employees.

Other recommendations called for tests for gas immediately before and after on-shift blasting, and frequently when operating electrically-driven equipment in face regions, firing all on-shift blasting shots in series immediately after changing added electrical and mechanical safeguards, air-lock doors along haulage-ways, pre-shift examinations, offset installations and other safeguards for the Nos. 30 and 32 main ventilating fans, prohibition of carrying flame-making devices into the mine, wearing of approved-type goggles for eye-hazardous underground work, and discontinuing the use of three natural-gas stores and four coal-burning salamanders in dusty tippie atmospheres.

Better timbering and ventilation are among the recommendations in an inspection report on the Harold mine at Harold, this county, released by the Bureau of Mines. The report also cites such recent safety improvements as the use of permissible explosives for all blasting. Operated by the Harold Fuel Company, the mine employed 50 men and produced 250 tons of coal a day when C. L. Savoy and J. H. Johnson examined it in February.

Observing that generally temporary safety posts were either too few in number or too far from the faces, and permanent timbers were too far from the faces to protect the face workers from falls of roof, the inspectors advised correcting these conditions and following the company's timbering rules throughout the mine. They advised workmen not doing so to tear the roof, the face of their working places frequently, and proposed removing or supporting loose and doubtful haulage-way roof and correcting broken timbers promptly.

The inspectors proposed more air at many of the working places, with a current strong enough to carry away smoke from blasting and any inflammable or harmful gases. They also suggested fireproof housing and other safety devices for the Nos. 1 and 2 ventilating fans. Noting with approval that two permissible flame safety lamps were provided and weekly examinations for gas made, the inspectors proposed making pre-shift examinations as well.

Rock-dusting had been done since the last inspection, but the inspectors advised using more, carrying it closer to the faces and using water or other means to alloy dust during cutting.

While a number of haulage and electrical improvements had been made, the inspectors suggested others, including discontinuance of jumping on and off moving cars and coupling them by hand without coupling books; frame-grounding the ungrounded electrical equipment with overhead protection as needed, and keeping electrical lights clear of combustible material. To reduce the fire hazards, the inspectors advised scrupulous observance of the no-smoking rule.

Commending more than 20 safety improvements made since the previous government examination of the Diamond Elkhorn Coal Company's 500-ton-a-day Diamond Elkhorn mine located at Bosco, a federal inspection report issued this week by the Bureau of Mines recommends further ventilation, haulage and electrical safeguards. The mine employed 63 men when re-examined in February by Inspector Harvey P. Landis.

Inspector Landis noted approvingly that sufficient air was passing through the last entry crosscuts and that, pre-shift examinations for explosive gas and other hazards were being made. However, he proposed prompt closing of crosscuts, replacement of wooden stoppings between the main intake and return airways with fireproof seals, a pressure-recording gauge and an automatic stop-signal for the main fan, and discontinuance of smoking in the mine.

Among suggestions for correcting haulage and electrical hazards were maintenance of unobstructed haulage clearance and shelter holes, re-railing equipment and audible warning devices for the locomotives and use of permissible trip lights, the insulator support for power and light wires where needed, frame grounds and overhead protection for certain electrical equipment, and placing of insulating platforms for the starting switches for the conveyors and pumps.

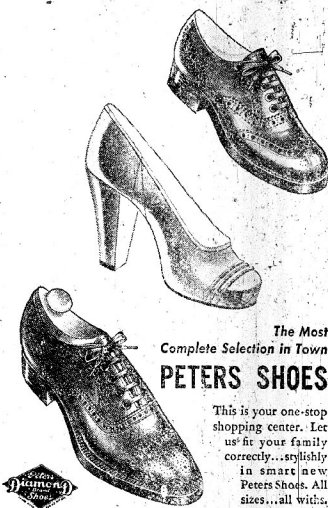

In enumerating recent safety gains, Landis commended the compliance with the adopted timbering standards, effective lumbering of working places, satisfactory control of haulage-way roof, roof and face examinations before and after blasting on-shift, recording of the daily fan inspections, weekly air measurements, purchase of two permissible flame-safety lamps, an adequate rock-dusting program, cleaning of coal-dust accumulations from the mine, safer installation of the trolley wire and other electrical precautions, and suitable check-in-and-out system.

Sophisticated Gotham Wants Mournful Mountain Ballads

By GEORGE TRENT, in The Courier-Journal.

For a Kentuckian from the hills, it was an unforgettable experience. The young concert artist had just completed her program. Sustained applause brought her back for the first encore. As she took up her instrument, the audience literally yelled in unison:

"Black, Black, Black!"

"But isn't that song a little too sad?" she bantered.

"Black, Black, Black!" they persisted. She stroked her mournful instrument and an expectant hush settled over the auditorium. "Black is the color of my true lover's hair," she sang. Slowly, plaintively, in tones as clear and pure as spring water, the words flowed out into hearts starved for simplicity.

The singer, Susan Reed, the instrument, a fiddle, the place, New York City; the song—fresh from the banks of Troublesome Creek in the hills of Kentucky.

Like so many of the "onesome tunes" which jazz-mad New York has taken to its heart, the song was discovered and published by John Jacob Niles, Kentuckian. It is a prize package in that rich store of Anglo-American folk songs preserved by loyal transmission for generations in the Southern mountains—found so abundantly in Eastern Kentucky that such songs often are referred to as "Kentucky ballads."

Here in the political, commercial, cultural heart of the world, representative audiences are demanding folk songs. Folk singers have not gone high-hat; concert and night club patrons are just letting their hair down. Sophistication has been found wanting. Simplicity is in demand. These people want the freshness of green things, the challenge of an aviril, the promise of new-plowed ground. In the complexities of post-war life, vague gropings for balance are reaching a level for many—the human level in the fundamental expression of the simple folk. And those who find their bloom in folk songs need more than more. Into night clubs, concert halls, Broadway musicals, movies, Disney cartoons, the "opera" and the ballad have moved, apparently to stay.

Among the many people who deserve credit for popularizing folk songs in New York are Max Gordon, Broadway producer, and Cafe Society owner Barney Josephson. The forward-looking Gordon is proprietor of the Village Vanguard, one of the few real Bohemian outposts today. Both he and Barney Josephson, with a sense for humanity as well as sound business sense, have striven to introduce new trends into night-club entertainment. For the last seven years, jazz-matured night-club fans have flocked to the Village Vanguard and Cafe Society for something right off the vine—yet older than Mother Goose. Their favorite singer now strums a guitar. Top songs on her personal hit parade are "Lord Randall," "One Morning in May" and "Barbara Allen."

Here's how it started:

In 1929, Barney Josephson wanted appropriate musical support for his Cafe Society feature Hazel Scott. He brought in the Golden Gate Quartet and its program of spirituals and spirituals in a night club! They were incredibly successful.

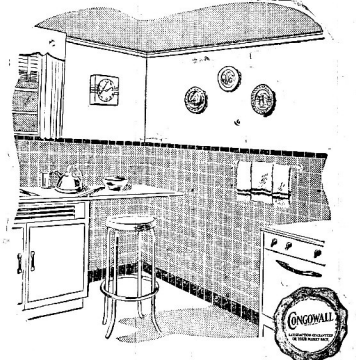

The next year, this was followed by Josh White in a program of spirituals, blues and ballads. Josh White was fairly successful, but did not become a hit until 1942, when he started concentrating on ballads.

In the meantime, the ballad had become firmly entrenched at the Vanguard. Richard Dyer-Bennett, who likes to be known as the "20th Century Minstrel," opened here in 1941. He has been a regular ever since.

The year 1945 will be remembered as a landmark in what Alan Lenox has called "a significant cultural movement." He was speaking of the current interest in general American folklore. From the standpoint of folk songs alone, however, the year is important as the one which saw Bill Tves, that "Wayfaring Stranger," establish himself securely as a night-club concert attraction. That year, too, saw Kentucky's Tom Scott in his first Town Hall recital.

No Closed Season To State Anglers

There will be no closed season on fish in Kentucky streams this year, Frank Phipps, superintendent of conservation officers, notified E. R. Burke, Prestonsburg, district supervisor, Monday.

Had not the Division of Game and Fish decided to depart from the usual custom of closing all state streams to angling during May, only impounded waters could have been fished during the 31-day period. In announcing the open season, Mr. Phipps also said the size limit has been taken off crappie and catfish.

 In the last months of that year was born the biggest single force for the propagation of folk singing: an organization called People's Songs. This outfit concentrates primarily on the promotion of folk songs, but its topical "hootenanny" sessions usually include a few of the more vibrant songs and ballads in the Anglo-American tradition.
 The most spectacular folk-music event of 1945, and the best for the Kentucky ballad, was the Cafe Society opening of fountain-voiced Susan Reed. She was 18, red-headed, freckled, plainly dressed—and sensational. Mildly sensational, that is, for Susan and her ballads don't hit you in the face; they seep into your heart and at the same time stir up and soothe that part of your nature which is goodness. Her voice is a delight, pure and effortless.
 Coming up to the 1946-47 season, it was especially significant for the spread of the ballad into concert halls. Up to 1945, Richard Dyer-Bennett was the only one of the ballad singers who had appeared in Town Hall. In that year, however, Tom Scott and Burl Ives joined him in appearances. Last season there was a total of 23 folk recitals at Town Hall. All of the "Big Six" among the ballad singers appeared at least once: Joseph White, Susan Reed and John Jacob Niles made Town Hall debut last season.
 Ted Zittel, well-known concert manager, launched an unusual "Music at Midnight" series. It was New York's first folk-music series, and for his opening concert he presented John Jacob Niles in a program of love songs, carols and ballads. For this Kentucky balladier, it was his first personal Town Hall appearance. Yet, whenever ballad programs are sung, in Town Hall or anywhere, Niles is present in the songs which he brought out from the hollows and hills, arranged, published and recorded.
 Last season also saw the spreading of the ballad into movie. Burl Ives starred in "Smoke!" after a successful feature spot in the Broadway hit "Sing Out, Sweet Land."
 Susan Reed, after her second season at Cafe Society, went West long enough to do the feature role in her own life story, "Glamour Girl," which in New York this season the interest in the "lonesome times" has increased. Town Hall had 58 folk concerts scheduled. These included the American folk cousins of the British ballad-bus and New Orleans jazz.
 Richard Dyer-Bennett went to Colorado, where, for three months, he conducted the first school designed to train folk singers for the concert stage.

England Says He Fired On Officers in Fear; Returned to County
 Sheriff Troy B. Sturgill and Deputies Roy Lacey and W. A. Will arrived here Monday with Walter England, 27 years old, whom they had claimed in Tulsa, Okla., for trial in the Floyd circuit court on a charge of shooting and wounding two Floyd county officers.
 England's return was made without incident. He is accused of shooting Highway Patrolman Ed Craft (a deputy sheriff at the time of the shooting) and Deputy Sheriff Scott Compton on Buck's Branch, last November. Since that time England had been a fugitive. He was arrested in Tulsa by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents at a service station where he had been working a few days.
 En route here, England told his attorney-here that he fired on the deputies because he thought they intended to kill him. He explained that this fear was created when Compton reached for his revolver.
 The officers said, however, that England was not threatened and that Craft was producing a warrant he held for England's arrest when England suddenly whipped out a revolver and began firing at close range.

ELKHORN CITY NIPS GARRETT

Floyd Schoolboy Hurts Hitless Ball Six Innings; Stumbo Winning Pitcher

Five innings of Sunday's Garrett-Elkhorn City baseball game at Elkhorn City was a hitless pitchers' duel and after that neither team took any great liberties with opposing moundmen, but the Pike cantonians wound up the winners, 3-2, for their second win in as many Sundays over the Floyd cantonians.

For six innings, Gene Mullins, Garrett schoolboy twirler, held Elkhorn City hitters, although an error and three walks cost him a run in the third. In the sixth Mullins allowed two hits but was not scored upon. His relief, Potter, was charged with the loss as Elkhorn City took advantage of a walk and two hits in the eighth to score two runs.

Garrett scored its second and last marker in the ninth when Branham reached first on an error and came around on hits by Martin and Johnson. Burk Stumbo in a relief role for the winners, fanned the next three batters, however, ending the Garrett threat. Stumbo was credited with the win.

A four-run outburst in the fifth inning at Wayland Sunday, sank Prestonsburg hopes of breaking into the win column of the Big Sandy League standings for the first time this season, and Wayland went on to win its second consecutive game 4-1.

Prestonsburg drew first blood in the fourth when Meade doubled, took third on a fielder's choice and scored on Clark's single. After that, Prestonsburg was unable to advance a runner past first.

In the fifth, Branham, first up for the winners, singled. Adams followed with a high fly which dropped over the right field fence, just out of Clark's reach, for a homer. Two more runs came in as Collier, Prady and Ratliff singled.

Adkins and Lyons hurried for Wayland, with the former being the winning pitcher. The game started at Prestonsburg and was charged with the loss. He was followed on the mound by Bradley.

SPORTS AFIELD

Wonder what kind of salt water tackle to buy? Does the variety of fishing tackle available today confuse you? J. Charles Davis, II, noted fishing authority, advises the neophyte to try them all, and the gear that you use to the best advantage, the gear that gives you the most pleasure, should be your choice.

There's not much sense in handicapping yourself by using tackle that is obviously unfitted to your fishing just because somebody says it is the only tackle to use. Some men can't use light tackle; others can't handle heavy gear. Sporting tackle means tackle which gives the fish better than an even break and gives the fisherman greatest pleasure.

Clubs have arbitrarily set up standards of 3/8 light and heavy tackle and insist that members adhere to their rules. Primarily, these rules were laid down to eliminate the telephone-pole and clothes-line fisherman and to establish sporting tackle that gave the fish a chance. This is fine, but it can be carried too far and the result is more harm than good.

Serious anglers who want to use the right gear are perplexed by the formidable array of equipment now on the market. Rods range all the way from lighter than regulation 3/8 to super-heavy, each has its devotees. For the other fellow it may be the right gear, but is it good for you? You are the one who's going to use it. Does it suit you? Does it do your best work with it? Does it feel right in your hands and respond to your every demand?

The answer to the buying equipment is to find the tackle that best suits you and your kind of fishing. Then stick to it, regardless of the fives of friends or the wisecracks at the club.

Safety Improvements

Noted at Floyd Mines In Inspectors' Reports

More than two dozen recent safety improvements in the Edgemont Fuel Company's Turner No. 7 mine at Dritt are commended, and additional rock-dusting and other precautionary measures are proposed in a federal coal mine inspection report released by the Bureau of Mines. The mine employed 51 men and averaged 100 tons of coal daily when inspected in February by Leslie Johnson and John E. Jones.

Notable safety advances embraced the removal of some loose roof and overhanging brows, firing permissible explosives with electric detonators, permissible single-shot blasting units and suitable blowing cables, safety devices for the ventilating fan, warning signs at abandoned workings, clean crosscut shelter holes, suitable clearance or shelter holes at entry switches, and discontinuance of getting on and off moving trips, coupling moving cars by hand, and using open-flame lamps underground.

Recent beneficial changes also included cut-off switches in branch trolley circuits, guards for trolley wires at all necessary places, frame-grounds for the shortwall mining machines and hand-held electric drills, adequate underground fire-aid and fire-fighting supplies, and the wearing of safety shoes by all employees.

Administrator's Notice

All persons having claims against the estate of Jacob Crisp, deceased, are hereby notified to file same, properly proven, with the undersigned administrator at Martin, Ky., on or before May 10, 1948, and all persons indebted to said estate are notified to settle same at once.

FRANK CRISP, Adm'r. Estate of Jacob Crisp, deceased. 4-15-31-pd.

ther. Inspectors Johnson and Jones recommended rock-dusting to within 30 feet of several working faces, and elsewhere as needed to minimize dust collection charges. Use of water or other means to alloy coal dust during cutting, removal of all coal present in 5-foot haulage, removal of permanent timbers in accordance with the timbering standards, unobstructed clearance along all standing cars, stopblocks or derails on entries going to a dip, and a ban on smoking in the mine.

Other recommendations called for the improvement of explosives magazine, air-lock doors on main entries, pre-shift examinations for hazards, approved bonding of the main-line track, overhead protection for locomotives and mining machines, and the wearing of approved-type goggles for all eye-hazards work.

To supplement many necessary improvements in the Glo No. 1 mine at Glo, federal mine inspectors recommended a better ventilating system, additional rock-dusting, and safer haulage practices. Operated by the Glovers Coal Company, the mine employed 151 men daily in the production of 309 tons of coal when inspected in February by Leslie Johnson and W. R. Stewart.

The inspectors proposed more air through the open crosscuts and by a blower fan, air-lock doors instead of canvas curtains at several locations, pre-shift examinations, and examining worked-out areas, pillar falls, and return airways for hazardous conditions each week.

To minimize dust-explosion dangers, Inspectors Johnson and Stewart advocated thorough rock-dusting of conveyor sections, and elsewhere as needed, the removal of coal-dust accumulations from conveyor lines and the tipples. Considerable rock dust had been applied between inspectors, excessive coal-dust air concentrations were not observed, adequate haulage roads, and a dust-tight enclosure was provided for an open-type motor in the tipples they reported.

Among many suggestions to increase haulage safety and eliminate electrical hazards were bans on jumping on and off moving cars, using coupling moving cars by hand without using coupling hooks, unobstructed haulage roads, well-installed insulators for all power and electric-light wires, and guards for the trolley wires at all necessary locations.

Recent beneficial changes also embraced approved safety posts in working places, exclusive use of permissible single-shot blasting units, suitable re-rolling and warning devices for main-haulage locomotives, several electrical and mechanical safeguards, and the wearing of protective footwear for all employees.

QUININE

The old Puruvian word for Cinchona is Quinine—and that is the name Pierre Pelletier and Joseph Caventou, two French scientists, gave to the chemical which they isolated from the bark of the Cinchona tree in 1820. It is one of the five most important alkaloids obtained from this bark and since its discovery has been largely used in the cure of malarial fever.

HUMPTY-DUMPTY
 hit a stone wall,
 After too many drinks from the keg;
 His car took fire—made a funeral pyre,
 And now he's just a fried egg!

Funny? No!—Humpty Dumpty's kind of death is only stupid—and criminal.
 Look at the facts: Drinking drivers cause one out of every five highway deaths. When innocent victims perish, too, that's manslaughter! It must be dealt with by strict laws, strictly enforced.
 Even one or two drinks slow reactions, impair judgment, increase accident chances three to four times.
 Drinking and driving just don't mix. If you drive, don't drink. If you drink, don't drive.

KENTUCKY ON THE MARCH

BY EWING GALLOWAY

Did you ever see a dead community with a live newspaper? You never did. Neither have I.

Wherever you find a self-satisfied community that is doing next to nothing for itself, you will also find one or more newspapers plugging along in a rut of complacency.

The foregoing is our preface to the story of Letchfield and Grayson county. The local newspaper is The Gazette, edited and published by the Hugheses, Fred and W. J. The Gazette comes pretty close to being all a good weekly paper ought to be. It cooperates with civic leaders, always using persuasion, admonition and advice. Though I am not familiar with the files of The Gazette over a considerable period, it is a safe bet that the Hugheses have never laid claim to leadership in any agitation for local community betterment.

One of Letchfield's very recent acquisitions is a new $120,000 hospital and public health clinic. The county voted a $100,000 bond issue and the federal government came across with the other $20,000. The new hospital has already brought one new doctor to Letchfield. The clinic, full-time, will not only handle cases in the usual way but will also teach fathers and mothers how to protect their children against the hazards of disease.

The town has definite plans for extensions of its municipal water system to recently build residential districts, and the gas works will increase its capacity and extend its service.

And plans are already prepared for a city sewer system.

Going back a few years, there are many other good things to report: a volunteer fire department, 15 miles of concrete sidewalks.

Letchfield's industrial asset is a clothing factory employing 200 men and women.

Grayson county built a new courthouse, a new jail, and an office building.

Farmers in the back corners of Grayson county don't merely gape about their mud lanes. They donate rights-of-way for gravel roads then help the county finance the building of them. They are doing this not only because the roads say good dividends as a convenience but also because they enhance the market value of their farms.

As an agricultural county Grayson is moving right along with the best in the state. "Our farm lands," a farmer told me recently, "are in better condition now than at any time since they were cleared by the pioneers."

Yes, Letchfield and Grayson county are on the march.

DR. PAUL B. HALL
Announces For CONGRESS

THROUGH THE VARIOUS NEWSPAPERS OF OUR 7TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT I TAKE THIS MEANS OF ANNOUNCING TO OUR CITIZENS THAT I AM A CANDIDATE FOR THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR CONGRESS.

For several years I have had an earnest desire and ambition to represent our District at Washington. Now I feel that I am mature enough in years and experience to make you the type of Congressman that you are entitled to have represent you there. I'm sure all of you that you will appreciate the fact I'm not asking for this office for the money there is in it. After serving the people for over a quarter of a century as a surgeon and realizing that the time is about here when I have to begin to slow down, as all of us do at my age, I feel that I can serve you and serve you well as a Congressman and still supervise and help run the Paintsville Hospital. We have our "house in order" here at the Paintsville Hospital in that we have six other well-qualified physicians and surgeons to carry on. And of course I would expect to spend quite a bit of my time here myself.

I feel that I know the people of Eastern Kentucky and know their needs about as well as anyone possibly could. I say this because: I was born and reared on a farm near Paintsville, walking about three miles to high school to get my preliminary education; because I worked in and about the coal mines at Van Lear and Jenkins, Ky., during the summer months to make money so I could go to college at the University of Kentucky and to Medical College at Louisville (it was necessary that I miss one whole year when I worked at Jenkins in order to get funds to go to medical college); because I spent one year in the U.S. Navy during the first World War and both my sons served in the U.S. Navy during the second World War; because I served as Commander of the American Legion Post of Johnson county for several years and as District Commander of Eastern Kentucky for one term.

Politically, I have served a four-year term as chairman of our party here in Johnson county and I was an alternate delegate to our National Convention at Chicago four years ago and have always taken an active part in the affairs of our party.

Almost a year ago the Paintsville Rotary Club named me as their delegate to represent our Club at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, South America, and my wife and I have reservations to sail from New York, Monday, May 3rd. We expect to be gone about six weeks. I feel that this trip to this international convention, where several thousand representatives of about 50 countries of the world will meet and discuss the affairs of the world, should be well worth my time. Soon after I return from this trip I intend to visit every county in our District and discuss this campaign with you, and show and convince you that I really want to be, can and will make you a real Congressman.

Sincerely,
DR. PAUL B. HALL

The last day for Kentucky farmers to file "farm worksheets" in the 1948 Agricultural Conservation Program is April 30 except for those counties which have announced an earlier closing date. M. D. Royse, chairman of the Production and Marketing Administration State Committee, said here Monday. Farmers are required to file the worksheets in order to qualify for federal farm program assistance in carrying out conservation practices in their farms. Royse said, this applies to both the supplying of conservation materials like lime and phosphate and the re-payment of part of the cost of practices at the end of the year.

OF INTEREST TO VETERANS

Veterans who become permanently and totally disabled, even though their disability has no connection with military service, may be entitled to a minimum pension of $60 monthly, officials at the Veterans Administration Branch Office in Columbus, O., said here Monday.
This pension is payable to eligible veterans whose annual income is less than $1,000 if they have no dependents, or $1,500 if they have dependents. The pension is automatically increased to $72 after a veteran has received it for 10 years or has reached the age of 65.
To qualify for this type of pension, the applicant must show that the disability is not due to his own misconduct. The veteran must have served at least 90 days, unless discharged for line-of-duty disability, and must have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.
This pension provision applies only to veterans whose disabilities are not service-connected.
Three rules which govern admission to Veterans Administration hospitals were reiterated today by VA Branch Office officials in Columbus, Ohio.
They are:
(1) Priority is given to those veterans who require immediate hospital attention because of an emergency condition. They are entitled to a bed at once.
(2) Those veterans who have service-connected disability also are entitled to prompt admission to a VA hospital.
(3) Veterans who have non-service-connected injuries or ailments are entitled to VA hospital care if they state that they are unable to pay for private medical care, and if a bed is available in a VA hospital to take care of them. Requests for admission to a VA hospital should be made to the nearest VA office of hospital.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

To the Voters Of the Seventh Congressional District:
At an open forum meeting of Local Union No. 8431 of Printer and Allied, Ky., a discussion was held relative to the coming Congressional race in this district. The bills passed by the present State Legislature, including the new Congressional bill which was fought through the Kentucky Senate by one of the coal miners' staunchest friends, namely, State Senator Doug Hays, of McDowell, Ky. He has been a friend of Labor on every labor bill since he has been in the Kentucky Senate and now that he is asking for another office it is the duty of Labor, especially the coal miners, to come to the aid of their friend and benefactor.
So, with all this in mind and taking into consideration that our Local Union is non-political, Local Union No. 8431 goes on record as heartily endorsing the candidacy of State Senator Doug Hays for Congressman from this 7th Congressional District. This Local Union has 264 members and we are glad to be of aid and assistance to Floyd county's best known Labor Man—Doug Hays.
Any assistance or aid that we can offer will be given Senator Doug Hays in his race for the Congressional seat—of course, many of our members are Republicans and cannot be of aid in the primary, but we'll all be together this fall.
When Labor knows they have a friend, always re-elect him.

DARING, DAINTY AERIALIST NABS THE SPOTLIGHT

Strength and endurance are combined with daintiness by Miss Grace Sykes who performs high in the dome of the big top with Dales Bros. Circus.

Tops in the thrills promised by Dales Bros. 3-Ring Circus coming to Prestonsburg on Monday, May 3 for two performances, afternoon and night, at the Old Ball Park will be provided by a group of intrepid aerial performers who defy the laws of gravity in daring exploits high in the dome of the big top.

Occupying top billing among the solo stars is a tiny slip of a girl, Miss Grace Sykes, regarded as America's foremost aerial gymnast!

Miss Sykes leaves her spectators literally open-mouthed with amazement when she eliminates her neck, less feats with a sensational standing ankle drop, knee plunge, and somersault into mid-air from the flying trapeze to a perpendicular rope. Furthermore, she does it all without the protection of a safety net, and with a display of dainty feminine grace that is captivating.

Appearing in person at each performance is Hollywood's newest western film star, Don McLeoman, whose feats on horseback, and with the lariat will astound even the most ardent western picture fans. Two complete performances are given daily at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m., with doors to the main show opening one hour earlier.

The Scouts Blaze the Way

WHEN the Boy Scouts of David recently planted 2,000 trees, only then was begun a work which should have been started in this county half a century ago.

These adolescents have wisely begun rebuilding where adults of presumably mature minds destroyed. Their work and the failure of us adults to do likewise, would indicate that Floyd county's hopes for soil conservation and flood control through reforestation may lie in the organization of a Boy Scout troop in every community of the county, with each troop headed by an energetic, conservation-minded adult such as is the Scout leadership at David.

To those whose cupidity or unimaginativeness are such that they can only see the value of doing work on which cash returns can be realized in their time, it should be pointed out that those 1,000 walnut trees the David Scouts planted will, within a few years, yield a cash crop. Returns from walnut trees have been the subject of several recent agricultural notes compiled by the University of Kentucky's Extension Department, and walnut-growing is considered a commercial project with good chance of success.

Whatever the returns in dollars and cents that we may count as "current business," Floyd county's farmers must awaken to the fact that, as surely as they want to leave their land as a heritage to their children, so they must now begin to stop erosion, to replace the woodland they have destroyed or permitted to be destroyed by ruthless blade or blaze, to stem the flow of Floyd county soil which fills our own streambeds and enriches farms of others downriver a hundred miles or more.

Man-made reservoirs will help to prevent downstream floods, but only nature, given the cooperation of man, can stop desolation of these hills at its source.

Need Volunteers for VFW Sale of Poppies Here

For the 27th consecutive year the Veterans of Foreign Wars will conduct its annual Buddy Poppy Sale throughout the nation during the week of Memorial Day. Tom James, Commander of Walter Karr Bowling Post No. 5839, has announced...

"This year," Commander James stated, "the sale in Floyd county will be held on Saturday, May 29. Many women and girl volunteer sales workers are needed to help reach the national goal of 10 million Buddy Poppies sold. The entire proceeds of the sale will be used exclusively to help the disabled veterans in government hospitals who made the poppies, to bring relief to our veterans in need, and to care for the dependent orphans and widows of our deceased veterans in the VFW National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich. Of the total money contributed during the sale, approximately 70 per cent will remain in Floyd county for relief and welfare work among our local veterans."

Commander James invites all women and girls who are interested in helping disabled and needy veterans to participate in the sale this year. All church, civic and other women's clubs and organizations are invited to participate as a unit.

Those who wish to render this service are asked to call Tom G. Dingus, Buddy Poppy chairman, at 5431, or contact him at his home.
