CENSUS SHOWS FARM INCOME LOWEST IN MARTIN COUNTY

Fayette county farmers drew the largest cash income from agriculture in Kentucky, according to an analysis of Census Bureau farm statistics.

Preliminary county-by-county Kentucky farm figures, gathered last year by the Census Bureau, also show:

Martin county farmers have the smallest cash income.

Barren county has the largest acreage of farms. Gatlin has the fewest.

Christian county has the largest acreage in farms and McCreary is the smallest.

Union county has the largest farms and Bell the smallest.

Farms in Fayette county are the most valuable and those in McCreary are worth the least.

Jefferson county has the largest number of farm telephones and Menifee county the fewest.

Pike county has the most farms served by electricity and Lyon county has the fewest on power lines.

The cash income of Fayette county farmers totaled $12,150,334 in 1949, the year covered in the farm census. This was $2,565,180 higher than the income for 1944.

Farm figures for the entire state are not yet available, so the average for the state's 120 counties cannot be computed at this time.

Bourbon county, just north of Fayette in Central Kentucky's famed Bluegrass Region, reported the second highest income, $11,048,026.

The income of these two counties, in the heart of the Thoroughbred-breeding country, was increased by receipts from livestock, including thoroughbreds and standard-bred horses. The Fayette farm census, Thoroughbreds and standard-bred horses included $6,699,541 from livestock and Bourbon's included $5,778,191 from the same source.

Third highest income was reported for Shelby county, which was credited with a 1949 income of $9,899,462. Christian was fourth with $8,992,592 and Warren fifth with $8,697,077. Two other counties, Clark and Madison, which adjoin Fayette, also had farm incomes above $8,000,000. Scott, just northwest of Fayette, was just below the $8,000,000 figure.

1949 income of the 1,019 farms in Martin county was only $135,433. Lecher rated second from the bottom with $141,071 and Bell was third with $165,136.

Barren county has 4,292 farms, while Pike is second with 4,098. Warren is third with 3,765, Casey fourth with 3,134, and Adair fifth with 2,967.

Gallatin county has only 559 farms. Robertson has the second smallest number, 572, and Powell is third with 622.

Christian county has 399,431 acres in farms. Logan county is second with 327,526 acres and Warren third with 317,838.

McCreary county has only 45,714 acres in farms and Bell is second from the bottom with 46,890 acres. Harlan is third lowest with 50,364 acres.

Farms in Union county average is 357.2.

Despite the huge horse farms in Fayette county, farms there average only 114 acres.

Farms in Bell county average only 21.5 acres and those in McCreary are only slightly larger, averaging 39.3 Floyd county farms average 46 acres.

Land and buildings on Fayette county farms have an average value of $37,446. This is an increase of $11,854 from the value in 1944.

However, the Census Bureau says that, while most of its data is based upon tabulation of reports for all farms, the figures on value of land and buildings represent estimates made on the basis of reports from a sample of approximately 20 per cent of the farms.

Woodford county ranked second in value of land and buildings with an average of $12,090. Bourbon was third with $8,812, Jessamine fourth with $2,271, and Owslin fifth with $20,105.

Other counties in which the value of farms and buildings averaged above $10,000 include Clark, $18,273; Jefferson, $18,225; Shelby, $17,576; Union, $16,172; Boone, $14,051; Fulton, $13,862, and Henderson, $12,504.

Total average value of McCreary county farms and buildings was estimated at $1,642. Leslie county was second from the bottom with $2,090 and Lincoln county third with $2,363.

Telephone and electrical facilities on Kentucky farms also were based on a 20 percent sample of farms in each county, the census bureau said.

Jefferson county has 1,826 farm telephones. The Census Bureau estimates put Graves county second with 1,206 and Shelby third with 1,148.

The bureau reported only five farms on Menifee county farms and 15 each in Wolfe, Glendon, and Leslie counties. Only 16 were reported in Perry and Lee counties.

Only 607 of Pike county's 4,068 farms did not have electric power, the report shows.

Barren county ranked second in electric service with 3,454 farms served and Graves was third with 3,192 farms having power lines.

Lyon county has only 242 farms served by power lines. Second lowest in the state is Robertson county with 386 farms receiving electric power. Butler is third with 402.

Trig county homemakers held an International Festival attended by 250 men, women and children.

CARE IN HANDLING OF RABBITS URGED TO PREVENT SPREAD OF TULAREMIA

With the opening of the rabbit hunting season on November 20, hunters and householders were reminded of the need for taking proper precautions in handling rabbits and other wild game. Practice of these precautions will help to guard against tularemia, also known as rabbit fever since rabbits are the most common source of this infectious disease.

Twelve cases of tularemia were reported in Kentucky last year, according to the Division of Preventive Medical Services, Kentucky State Department of Health. Most if not all of these cases could have been prevented.

To date there is no satisfactory method of immunization, so it is particularly important that care be taken to avoid infection.

Necessary precautions include:
1) Always shoot a rabbit on the run, never if it can be caught sitting.

2) Carcasses should be thrown away if, upon examination, small white or grayish spots are seen on the rabbit's liver.

3) Never handle a wild rabbit which has been found dead or which has been brought in by a dog or cat.
4) Keep hands away from the face whenever handling wild rabbits.
5) Always wear rubber gloves when dressing rabbits, and
6) Cook rabbits thoroughly, so that no red meat or red blood remains; thorough cooking destroys the germs.

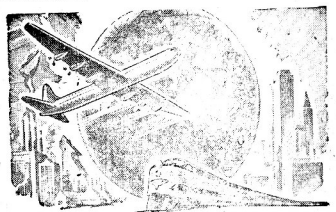

Cards warning hunters against the dangers of tularemia and listing few simple precautions have been prepared by the Kentucky State Department of Health and may be obtained from the local county clerk.

DOCTOR UNABLE TO FORGET BOY HE SENT TO BATTLE

Somewhere in Korea, Nov. 8 — An army doctor told today how he sent a frightened 16-year-old soldier into the battle line. He said it was something he cannot forget.

"It happened at a time we were catching plenty of hell," he said. "This boy came into our forward aid station. He was just an 16-year-old Irish punk—the kind the comic strips use.

"He said he was sick—that he couldn't go back to the line. I looked him over. There was nothing wrong with him. He was just frightened—scared of dying."

"The doctor took 5 minutes out to talk to the youth.

"I told him a lot of stuff about the war," he said. "About what we were fighting for. About the buddy he left in the foxhole up on the hill and how that buddy's chances of living were lessened by his coming down to an aid station; just because he was scared.

"The boy thought a mom of and then got up slowly. I guess you're right, Doc," he said. "I guess I'd better be on my way. Be seeing you."

Six hours later the youth was back in the doctor's aid station.

"This time I couldn't do anything for him," the doctor said. "He was doing a mortar burst had caught him."

Medical Association Legislation Intended For Patients' Benefit

The Kentucky State Medical Association's legislative program is being designed solely for the benefit of the patients of Kentucky's physicians, according to Dr. H. L. Houston, Murray, chairman of the association's legislative committee.

Dr. Houston said the program now being prepared for submission to the 1952 General Assembly, consists primarily of legislation aimed at increasing the effectiveness of the medical profession and for providing more physicians for the Commonwealth's needs.

"The Murray physician declared also that KSMMA 'looks with favor' on legislative proposals to be submitted by the State Health Department. 'The legislative committee and the governing body of KSMMA has examined the Health Department's proposals and are entirely in accord with them,' he declared.

Of general interest is a KSMMA-sponsored bill which would establish a commission, composed of physicians, consumer representatives and laymen, empowered by the legislature to 'make recommendations on the expenditures of tax monies for health and medical care. It is designed to assure efficient and practical use of tax funds.

Another KSMMA suggestion would earmark certain tax funds for health and medical care in Kentucky. Such earmarking would, as the good roads amendment to the Constitution, be put to a vote by the people.

Additional physicians in Kentucky would come through an additional research grant by the State to the University of Louisville School of Medicine. Such a grant would insure the graduating of 120 doctors a year compared with the 100 that go to 100. The additional new physicians and surgeons each year would bring Kentucky up to the required quota in proportion to the population. Experts believe that there should be one doctor to each 750 people. A second alternative would be for the State to subsidize deserving medical students and allow them to seek their medical education at other schools outside the State.

An indigent medical care plan is under study. Although not ready as yet for legislative action, the plan is similar to one adopted in Maryland whereby indigent care is administered by the counties rather than by the State. According to KSMMA such a plan allows for closer supervision of the indigent as a group. Counties would be given State aid based on need and ability to pay.

State Health Department measures which have gained KSMMA favor would:

1. Provide for the development, establishment and enforcement of minimum standards for the construction, maintenance and operation of hospitals; and
2. Provide modern and efficient administrative procedures for the proper control of the medical profession, including the elimination of quackery and medical shams.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

TORRACO—AND SHEEP, TOO
Editor, The Times:
Would like very much to say a few words to the farmers here in Floyd county, as I am always interested in my home county farmers. I think this tobacco program will prove to be a good cash crop. Can't see why it won't be.

There's one thing on my mind, and it has been for the last 20 years, and that is sheep, how they have disappeared from Eastern Kentucky. We have one of the finest ranges in the thousands of woodland acres here in Floyd county which old Mother Nature intended them to have.

Well, here is the answer to my problem—dogs. I believe something could be worked out on the dog question if the farmers all would try and see if something could be done, don't you? More sheep and fewer dogs for Floyd county!

NORMAN L. HICKS
Goodloe, Ky.

Sheep numbers in Scott county are said to be on the increase, and many farmers report incomes of $80 per ewe.

Property Tax Remains Big Source of Revenue

The property tax remains the most important single tax in Kentucky today, but its effectiveness is hindered by such factors as Constitutional limitations and spotty assessment efforts.

These statements are drawn from a report of a series of research staff reports which a tax subcommittee of the Committee on Functions and Resources of State Government now is studying. The subcommittee's recommendations are expected by the middle of December.

Other taxes in the county of the huge local include selected sales and gross receipts, inheritance, unemployment, license, privilege and other taxes. The subcommittee's report indicates that the county's total revenue for 1945 to 1949 is 70 per cent of that for the five-year period from 1945 to 1949. The period the counties received nearly 75 per cent of their revenue from property taxes and school districts received over 95 per cent.

State income accruing from property taxes on all land and improvements, mineral and timber rights levied in the 1949-50 tax year amounted only to about $750,000.

Constitutional limitations, the findings say, are holding the effectiveness and the administration of the property tax in a legal strait-jacket. The county's present grading effectiveness is Section 157, which specifies the maximum tax rates which local units of government may levy. Counties with a population of 15,000 or more population $1.20; cities of at least 10,000 but less than 15,000, $1, and cities of less than 10,000, 75 cents.

Pointed out also is the fact that poorer counties, in many instances, make a greater tax effort than wealthier ones. Wolfe county, with a net per capita assessment of $212, levied $145 per $100 in 1950, the highest county tax rate in the State. Woodford, with a net per capita assessment of $93.49, levied only 32 cents per $100.

The tax studies are of crucial importance to the Committee on Functions and Resources of State Government. The committee is to report to the Governor and the Legislature, due December 21. The committee was set up by the 1950 Legislature to make long-range recommendations about the future of the Commonwealth's Government. Tax income, it is pointed out, will be of importance at some point in virtually every phase of State Government activity about which recommendations are made.

Public Health Ordinance

(Kentucky Revised Statutes, Sections 86.140, 86.150)

It appearing that there are a number of outside open toilets located on individual property in the city, and that some of them are not kept in a sanitary condition, and are calculated to cause and spread disease and endanger public health and are a public nuisance;

It is, therefore, ordained by the City Council of the City of Prestonsburg, Ky., that upon the written complaint of as many as three residents of the city, or upon the complaint of the Floyd County Board of Health, that any person or persons who are maintaining, or permitting such a nuisance to be on their property, and that the same is dangerous to public health;

The Mayor shall cause a notice to be given to such person or persons to correct such nuisance within thirty days and upon their failure to comply with the notice, and abate such nuisance, within that time, the Police Judge shall issue a warrant against the offender for his failure to comply with this notice, and, upon conviction, the offender shall be fined not more than $100 for the offense, and each day said nuisance shall remain on said premises after that shall constitute a separate offense. The Police Judge shall try the case without the intervention of a jury.

If the nuisance is not then abated, the city may enter upon the premises and abate the nuisance, at the expense of the property owner or person maintaining the nuisance. The nuisance may be abated by installing a closed sanitary toilet, septic tank or plant, or by making proper connection with the city sewer.

Keller Says Rowan Sheriff Should Show Tax Expense

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 5.—A recommendation that the sheriff of Rowan county be required to show his actual costs of collecting County school taxes has been made by Assistant Attorney General W. Owen Keller.

Keller explained in answer to a query from Sen. Ted L. Croshaw, of Rowan county schools at Morehead that the Kentucky Court of Appeals has ruled sheriffs may collect only their actual costs from the education boards.

As to the sheriffs itemized charges presented by Croshaw, Keller replied: "It does not take more than 10 seconds on any tax bill to add or compute the school taxes. I would advise therefore, with respect to your specific questions, as follows:

1. The charges itemized have no connection with the collection of school taxes.

2. It is unreasonable to pay a sheriff $625 a month to collect school taxes.

3. A private citizen could possibly recover from both the board and the sheriff, but a lawsuit of this amount in excess of the actual cost of collection."

Keller suggested that the board file such a suit if necessary to force the sheriff to show his actual costs.

BLACK DEVILS UPSET WASPS TO WIN MEET

Pre-Season Tournament At Garrett Is Marked By Overtime Contests

The Campbells were up and coming—at each other—Saturday night in the finals of Floyd county's pre-season basketball tournament, a premet which saw three games go into overtime periods and which at the very outset found a favorite falling by the wayside.

Coach John D. Campbell's Garrett Black Devils, the host team, defeated Coach "Copper" John Campbell's Wayland Wasps in the championship tilt, 56-53.

And the whole tournament, except for the games which drew a heavy attendance, and the finals attracted a capacity crowd. The tournament netted the Floyd county school annual fund about $2,000.

Wheelwright's Maroons, pre-tournament co-favorites with Garrett, just lost in the very first round to McDowell to provide the biggest upset of the meet. Wheelwright led 11-points lead with three minutes to go, when three consecutive field goals by Floyd Francis, center, and two lay-ups by Edgar Stephens, knotted the count. From there McDowell went on to win, 53-51, in the overtime.

Garrett reached the finals by downing Martin's crippled Purple Flash, 57-47, and in the semi-finals knocking McDowell, 32-49 in another overtime event. Wayland whiffed McDowell twice, but Meade scored 20 points in each of the last two quarters, with 32 points leading the attack. Wallen was next for the losers with 22 points.

SOIL CONSERVATION
By L. E. JOHNSON
Soil Conservation Service

This is the story of how James Hicks, of the Brush Creek community, has increased the value of his land.

Mr. Hicks had a bottom field of five acres that was too wet for the production of crops except during dry years. In fact, the field has been too wet and soft to get over with any kind of farm machinery approximately nine months of the year. In fact, it was too wet to prepare a seed bed for grass.

Two lines were staked out for drainage improvement, and instructions given as how to do the job.

Last week, I visited Mr. Hicks' farm and saw the almost unbelievable improvement. The field has been drained and a good growth of grasses and legumes, and the ground dry enough to walk over even after the recent rains. Mr. Hicks said that with the help of his neighbors and farm tractor the job was completed in less than a day, and that the value of the five acres of land is more than doubled.

The green vegetative cover would afford some good winter pasture, but the farmer said he would wait until spring, that livestock would damage the new stand and cause less desirable pasture next spring.

Drainage improvement is very essential for good production of crops on many acres of land in this county.

now and then runs a bit swifter here than it does there. But the sand and the gravel find the beam of sunlight on blue water are gone. It no longer sings. It gurgles—thickly like a drunk stopping his liquor.

I can't say if all the fish are dead or not. I don't attempt to find out. I wouldn't care to waste that much where a horse or a cow would not drink. There are few who would wade the blackened weeds and clamber over coal-stained rocks to get into the water, even if it were clear.

That is what has been done to one of Kentucky's most beautiful streams in the name of progress. Upstream, the coal is being mined, and it is being washed for the market. And the dust and washings are being poured out by the thousands of gallons into the stream, with no attempt made, apparently, to protect the stream and prevent inconvenience to all those who live along its banks farther down the valley.

Seeing such things, one wonders if one coal company is bigger than the state of Kentucky, the Division of Game and Fish and every lover of nature in the land. Or is it because we are all so small?

THIS IS NO BULL!
With the recent purchase of two purchased bulls, all bulls in Elliott county now are registered or purebred.

Garrett reached the finals by downing Martin's crippled Purple Flash, 57-47, and in the semi-finals knocking McDowell, 53-49 in another exciting event. Wayland whipped Betsy Layne, 52-51, and edged Maytown in another thriller, 49-48, for a place in the final round.

Tuesday night the Betsy Layne Bobcats returned to regular schedule play to drop a 63-53 decision to the undefeated Betsy Layne. It led a lead at the half, but Meade scored 20 points in each of the last two quarters, with 22 points leading the lozers with 22 points.

SOIL CONSERVATION

This is the story of how James Hicks, of the Brush Creek community, has increased the value of his land.

The first step was to get out for drainage improvement and instructions given as how to do the job. Last week, I visited Mr. Hicks' farm and saw the almost unbelievable—a good stand and a good growth of grasses and legumes, and the ground dry enough to walk over even after the recent rains. Mr. Hicks said that with the help of his neighbors and farm tractor the job was completed in less than a day, and that the value of the five acres of land is more than doubled.

The green vegetable cover would afford some good winter pasture, but the farmer said he would wait until spring, that livestock would damage the new stand and cause less desirable pasture next spring.

Drainage improvement is very essential for good production of crops on many acres of land in this county.

General Public Urged To Attend Inaugural Events

Kentucky's quadricentennial inauguration of a Governor and Lieutenant Governor is open to all Kentuckians, regardless of race, color or political affiliation. Chairman John D. Partridge announced this week in a memo to the general public to encourage on the state capital for the event.

The inauguration, to be held next Tuesday, will witness the installation of the new Governor, James H. Broyhill, and Lieutenant Governor, Sherman Beachamp, as Lieutenant Governor.

Partridge urged that marriage units and other groups desiring to participate in the inaugural festivities be ready by 9 a. m. next Tuesday so that the event moves forward with precision and dispatch.

The Prestonsburg high school band will take part in the inaugural parade, it was announced here. Floyd county expects to send a marching band to Frankfort for the activities.

The inaugural parade—including military units from Fort Knox, Fort Campbell and Camp Bearden—and political clubs from many counties will assemble at 9:30 a. m. on Tuesday morning and proceed past the receiving stand in front of the New Capitol where the new Governor and Lieutenant Governor are to be inducted into office.

Plans call for administration of the customary oath of office by Chief Justice James W. Cammack, Jr.

A reception will be held at the Capitol building on inauguration night, to be followed by the Inaugural ball. Formal attire is neither necessary nor required.

Kentucky Saves $7,000 In Postage

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 3.—The State Revenue Department announced its going to save the taxpayers about $7,000 in postage.

Its field men who arrived today from all over the state for a meeting are going to take home the 1952 automobile registration certificates and as many income tax blanks as have been printed.

Formerly these papers have been mailed, and the department estimates it cost about $7,000 in stamps.

The field men will deliver the automobile registration certificates to the county clerks and the income tax blanks to banks and county and city offices for distribution to the public.

Delivery of the income tax blanks by field men was made possible by a change in plan whereby those liable for income tax reports are to be notified by postal card this time instead of being mailed a blank.

Someday you'll heat your house with a Refrigerator!

Sounds startling, doesn't it? But people have come to expect startling things from electricity. One of the big reasons these expectations are so often realized is that your electric company is continually engaged in research... in a quest for new ways to make living better through electric power.

For some fifteen years now we've been developing and experimenting with the "heat pump." It's a device that works on the familiar principle of the electric refrigerator—which actually "makes cold" by pumping out the heat that's in the box. The heat pump is a sort of two-way refrigerator, cooling your house in summer (as you might expect) and, by pumping in the opposite direction, heating it in winter, too!

It takes heat that would otherwise be wasted and pumps it from where it is to where you need it. You can use heat that's naturally in the ground, or in the air, or in a handy body of water. Maybe temperature of the air or ground or water is only 30 or 40 degrees. It doesn't matter. The pump can still get enough heat from it to bring your house to a cozy 70.

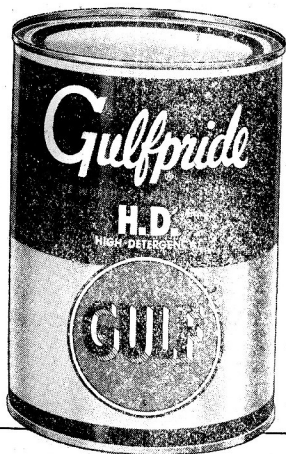

Heat pumps are already in successful daily operation in fifty homes and commercial buildings on the American Gas and Electric System. Hundreds more are in use elsewhere throughout the country.

You'll hear more about the heat pump, count on that. And count on your electric company to continue its pioneering research to make living better electrically.

IT'S A GOOD WORD

BY WILMAY

(Opinions expressed herein do not necessarily reflect those of The Times.)

D-E-C-E-M-B-E-R—magic month that ushers in the Yuletide season, the one that brings families together and takes us all back home, if we can go, reuniting brothers and sisters, Mother and Dad. This is the month when children's eyes get the biggest. What is more beautiful than a child's face on Christmas morning?

December brings the gayest and best holiday season of the year. Margaret Wolverton, of Martin, said, "I just love Christmas." Don't we all? It does something to us, even the air of haste and bustle that can be firing as well as stimulating. This is the time we all look forward to the most and the one we remember the longest. It is the season that moves the most of everyone, children and adults alike. All of us are so; when our children outgrow childhood and no longer recall Santa written in their eyes each year. And how we middle-aged folks adore grandchildren, even if we are not fortunate enough to have any of our own. One dear old grandfather said, "They call them grandchildren because they are grand." December is the month-end of the year for old and young alike.

It is time now to tune in on Christmas carols that started the first of the month. Such beautiful songs they are. Not one of them ever grows old, and new ones appear annually, also makes the melody dearer to our hearts. Families gather round the piano to sing them or at the fireside windows, lights, to reminiscence. Traditions are established, and little ones hum the tunes or join in the words they know. Soberly recalled slowly but surely weave the pattern of home-life.

It is fun to plan the decorating and still more fun to translate the ideas into reality. The house must express the season, inside and out. If the spirit is there it takes so little to do this, whether home is a palace or a two-room shanty and temporary. But when the spirit is absent an ocean of decorations will not make up for its absence.

Likewise, one child may be happy with a single toy or gift, while another may be miserable with all that money can buy, if the true and priceless spirit of Christmas is missing. This fact in itself is one of the things that sets Christmas apart from all other occasions.

And what is this spirit? Where may we find it? Who embodies it? How is it expressed? It is expressed not in receiving but in giving. It is embodied in Christ himself, whose birthday we celebrate on Dec. 25th. Without Him there can be no Christmas for anyone, only a cheap and empty imitation, noise and selfishness. If Christ is not the center of Christmas we may have something we call by that name but it is far from genuine.

If there is nothing spiritual about our Christmas we delude ourselves and are guilty of mistaking one of the most sacred occasions known to men. We have permitted Christmas to become too highly commercialized, with an overemphasis on the material side, at the cost of neglecting the spiritual aspect. This explains why churches and other groups throughout the land have recently organized to promote more spirituality in Christmas. They offer many suggestions as to how this may be done and best overtures to cooperate.

The humble life Jesus lived among lowly people was far removed from Twentieth Century modernism, but his majestic love and mighty power have not diminished one particle through the intervening years. His Spirit still strives with men and women, to seek and find Him, to love and serve Him, to fill this old world with so much good will and love that hate and war and strife can find no resting place anywhere.

Without Him, at the center and core, any Christmas celebration will be utter mockery. With Him at the helm some of us may practice Luke 14:13-14.

Owsley Unit 295 of the American Legion Auxiliary held a special meeting, Nov. 22, at the home of Mrs. Helen Scott, Unit President Bessie Conley urged all members to obtain one new member by Dec. 5. The team with most new members will be voted at a rodeo party by the team with a lesser number of new members.

Guests at the meeting, were Mrs. Marvin Bigelow, Mrs. Bigelow gave a very enlightening talk and told of her visits to units in many states. Kentucky's State Police have rejected more than one-third of the persons taking driver license tests during the first ten months of the present year, according to Commissioner of State Police Clifton F. Crowe.

Crowe declared that during the period 7715 tests for driver licenses were given, and 49,109 licenses issued. Some 18,000 of the number rejected were permitted to retake the test. Based on the belief that poor vision leads to accidents, the Police referred approximately 1,500 applicants to eye specialists for corrective treatment.

"It is far better to exercise caution and be assured that an applicant is qualified to be allowed to drive," said Commissioner Crowe "than to place many on the road who have no business there in the first place."

State institutional dairy herds are "big business" so far as the state is concerned. Commissioner of Welfare LeRoy Gibson revealed that 538 dairy cows at the various state hospitals and penal institutions produced 432,895 pounds of milk in October—an average of 804 pounds for each cow.

"This substantial contribution is helpful in many ways," observed Gibson. "It saves us from buying milk in the open market, and also contributes to a well-balanced diet for our patients—there being some 16,000 of them."

Entitled "Made in Kentucky," the Kentucky Agricultural and Industrial Development Board, in conjunction with the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, has published a handbook of industry and manufacturing that lists more than 2,500 manufacturers of products—some 300 more than appeared in a similar handbook two years ago.

The publication drew praise from Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby who remarked that "Kentucky has transportation, power, fuel, raw materials and an unexcelled labor supply which have made it the marketing center of 50,000,000 people. The State offers quality products of its mines and factories... and needs a welcome to still more new enterprises to locate in Kentucky."

E. Murphy Josey, Frankfort, was named chairman of the State Tuberculosis Sanatoria Commission to replace Dr. John B. Floyd, Dawson Springs, resigned.

Kentucky freight rates on interstate commerce were ordered raised approximately six per cent by the State Railroad Commission to keep them in line with recent increases on shipments moving in interstate commerce. The increases were unopposed by shippers.

POULTRY POINTERS

November is not too early to make plans for a more profitable year. With the setting back each year of the peak egg prices plans have to be made early to be ready for chicks in January or February.

Here in Kentucky, the highest egg prices always occur during the last six months of the year. Annually egg prices start moving up about the last week in June and continue at a high level until late November or early December. The reason for this is simply that the demand for eggs is so much greater than the supply at this time of year. Since the majority of Kentucky flocks are sold off in June when the normal hatching season ends and the average pullet flock doesn't come into production until late November, there just aren't enough eggs available to supply the market.

Very often the only difference between a profitable and an unprofitable flock is the number of eggs produced between the months of July and November. Figures show that here in the state 53 per cent of the eggs are produced between the months of January and June while only 23 per cent are produced between June and December. Taking this into account, a flock owner to cash in on this period of high egg prices, should plan to produce about 50 per cent of the total egg supply between June and January.

By allowing six months for the average hen to develop maturity, it becomes obvious that if July eggs are to be expected, chicks must be started in January. November is certainly not too early to begin making arrangements for next year's chicks. November is also a good time to make sure that the laying flock is ready for winter. Check your equipment and house and see if it's ready for freezing weather. Particularly see that your water system is protected from freezing. A practice some Kentucky poultrymen have been using is to suspend an infrared heat lamp above the automatic waterer. This keeps both the water and lead-in pipe from freezing. Don't fail to provide plenty of litter and nesting material. Make sure feeding space is provided. Allow four four-foot feed hoppers or about 25 three-foot per 100 hens. Good winter management means more eggs and more profits from your flock.

More Than a Military Man

THE Times disagrees with those voters who write off as unfit every military man who might become a candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

With those who shy away from the prospect of a professional sabre-rattler heading this government we also move for cover, shrinking from that type of leadership which might think in terms of guns and bombs and adopt the attitude of being ready to fight at the drop of the proverbial cocked hat. But we are not ready to agree that every man who has led other men in their country's uniform is of that type.

A man who is regarded as America's most brilliant military leader also was probably its noblest and gentlest citizen. This was Robert E. Lee, the South's beloved "Marble Ruler," who, though trained at West Point and given to the calling of arms through most of his life, saw men and events and life through the eyes of the great-souled man he was.

Lee's last years were spent at the head of one of the South's great universities. The Times does not present Dwight D. Eisenhower, who may or may not be a Presidential candidate, as another Lee, although there is some parallel to be found in their careers in that both were West Point-trained and both returned to civilian life to become leaders in the peaceful field of education.

Certainly America's Ike isn't a military man of the Bismarck, even the MacArthur, type. He isn't one of the spill and polish boys, nor is he the blood-and-thunder type.
The fact is, General Eisenhower's has been a job of leading, not mere armies but of cajoling, directing and persuading along the right roads, leaders of nations without whose unity of purpose and action the greatest of all wars could not have been won. His field has been the world, not one battlefield, political as well as military; a field of diplomacy as well as one of action.

For these reasons—without arguing, however, that he is the best material available for the Presidency—we would say it is not fair to the General or to the nation for the American people to reject Eisenhower simply because he is, in the popular conception, a military leader.

Homemakers' PRICE FACTS

Q Will the new excise taxes voted by Congress on manufacturers and other producers be passed on to consumers?

A Yes. That procedure has been customary and in most cases is required by the Herlong Amendment to the Defense Production Act. OPS has prepared a series of amendments for present regulations, which allow the excise tax changes to be passed through manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

Q Last week I bought some cuts of beef which I later realized weren't marked with the grade. Aren't meat dealers supposed to tell us the type of grade the meat is?

A Yes, they are. The grade of meat must be displayed with each type of cut. This grading requirement includes all pre-packaged cut meat with the exception of ground beef.

Q Are Christmas trees going to be covered by any OPS price regulation this year?

A No. Amendment 21 to the general price regulation specifically exempts Christmas trees from price control.

Q What section or other part of the Defense Production Act specifically authorizes price stabilization? I am doing a thesis and need the information for reference material.

A Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, provides for price and wage stabilization.

Q Isn't milk under price control? I read where the price is going up again in Louisville, Hopkinsville and many in other cities in Kentucky.

A Yes and no. Milk is under the General Price Regulation but as it has not yet reached parity its price cannot be controlled at the farm level. Until parity is reached the farmer's price increases may be passed along through the wholesaler and retailer to the consumer.

GROCERY CHAIN PAYS FOR OVERCHARGES

Payment of $2254 representing over-calling charges to its purchasers by Safeway Stores, Inc., a grocery chain operating in twenty-three states. The amount is 30 per cent above the actual overcharges to customers, OPS said. The chain increased its pork prices July 15 but pulled them back on July 21 when price stabilization officials pointed out the increases were not permitted by OPS regulations.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

Ninety-five out of every 100 deer hunters, in the opinion of sportsmen, say and Kleiman, make things hard for themselves by looking over a general character of the game they hunt. If they would bother to consider deer as something besides an animal that lives in the woods, their venison and trophies would come a lot easier.

At night a deer seeks a favorite sleeping place, often bordering a field or meadow. He'll eat as he wants, then lie down and rest. He'll eat again and sometime before daylight he'll seek cover. This may be a thicket, brush, swamp, or whatever the deer prefers.

A buck that goes to rest before dawn will be hungry again in a few hours. However, in daylight he will seldom expose himself to open meadows. If the day is warm and he's in mountain country, he'll start browsing up the mountain. If it's around the mountain, he'll graze down toward the valleys. If he's in flat country, Wisconsin or Michigan, and it's stormy, the deer will browse in sheltered swamps. If it's mild he'll be in the open spots. The hunter who remembers this and who regulates himself accordingly, will see five times as many deer as the hunter who just walks through deer country.

If the weather is fine and the deer is in swamp or lake country, the chances are that he'll never be far from water. If in the mountains, toward evening he'll start browsing his way back toward water. Deer may be on the ridges when there isn't any snow, or only a few inches. As the snow deepens, they'll move into sheltered valleys, or thickets or swamps, and that's the place to look for them.

I used to run my leech off all day long hunting for deer. Finally I realized that it was the resting and not the so-called hunting that produced the deer. Though under ordinary conditions it is almost impossible to walk up to a deer whenever I set down where deer had been feeding or running, sooner or later one would walk up to one.

However, just sitting can be tiresome. If the snow is soft or the leaves rain-soaked, making for silent walking, it is possible to walk almost up to a deer. And if everything else fails, you can always try driving deer.

HEALTH FOR ALL

SAFEGUARDING SIGHT

The eyes are delicate and complex, but hard-working organs of the body which can serve us well throughout life if we give them a little care.

Care of the eyes should begin early in life. The child who gets regular physical examinations, including checkup on his eyes, has the best chance of having any possible eye defects detected early. Parents should be on the alert for any signs of slight imperfections in a child. Crossed eyes, continual squinting, chronically red or watering eyes, blinking or squinting, or anything which makes the child should be brought to the doctor without delay.

Ideally, every child should have a complete physical checkup which includes thorough eye examination before he starts his school life. If a child has his school without it, however, he should get a medical checkup on his eyes as soon as possible. The child's happiness and progress in school depend as much on good eyesight as they do on intelligence and study. Slight defects found at this time, moreover, can be more easily corrected than if discovered at a later date.

It is estimated that more than 75 per cent of adults and children in this country are suffering from some form of defective vision. Some of these cases are serious enough to require hospital care and surgery, but most of those who suffer from slight imperfections have common eye defects which could be corrected by the proper glasses.

Armed Forces Extend Enlistment Period

M. Sgt. Glenn R. Walker, of the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station, Paintsville, announced this week that the armed forces have extended the period during which men can enlist in the services after taking production physical examinations for the draft. The new deadline is Dec. 31! It had been Nov. 30.

Young men who are interested in the volunteer program are urged to call at the army and air force recruiting station as soon as possible because of the fact that a slight curtailment in enlistments in the air force has been noted.

Sgt. Walker further announced that men who have a high school education or above can now volunteer directly for Officers' Candidate School for a two-year period. Full information concerning the volunteer program may be procured from the recruiting station located in the post office building, Paintsville, or call 554 Paintsville.

More people buy Chevrolets than any other car!

CHEVROLET

tized Knee-Action. Bigger brakes—biggest in the field—for safer, surer stops. Finest no-shift and standard driving at lowest cost with Power-glide or Synchro-Mesh transmission.

There's the way Chevrolet saves. Chevrolet is the lowest-priced line in the field and the savings go on and on with low operating costs.

There are, plenty more reasons why Chevrolet is America's favorite. Come in and let us show them to you.

Chevrolet's time-proved POWERGLIDE automatic transmission
