FLOYD SOIL CONSERVATION RECEIVES INITIAL IMPETUS

In his pocket, and Prater had his hands in his pockets. Prater motioned with the gun as if to wave the other back, this testimony continued under questioning by County Attorney W. W. Burchett.

Moore testified he next saw Hicks with a block of coal in his hand. As Hicks drew his arm back, apparently to throw the coal, Prater intervened. He also told of the trouble between the two men, a few days earlier. Moore said he saw Hicks "waving" a knife at Prater who "was standing back with a hammer in his hand." Hicks then shut up the knife, jammed it in his pocket, and picked up two cap wedges. Prater then jumped from the coal tiple or loading platform, a distance of about seven feet and Hicks threw one of the wedges at him. Prater started to go to his home but returned to the mine, and Hicks left his residence, returning within a few minutes. Prater, meanwhile, had gone to the nearby home of Ernie Moore, and Grover Hicks went there, also. Prater fed from the rear door as Hicks entered the front. Moore testified. On cross-examination by Defense Attorney Edward L. Allen, Moore said the cap wedges missed Prater's head by about an inch.

Madison Hicks' version of the shooting closely followed that of Moore. He added that Grover Hicks did not appear to be drinking. Thomsbury said he did not see either Hicks or Prater as the shot was fired, explaining that he was leading the tiple at that time. He did not see the trouble between the two, he preceding work.

All three witnesses testified Prater shot the others present to take Hicks to the hospital as quickly as possible.

During a conference with attorneys, Moore had given his testimony, Greely Hicks, son of the slain man, remarked that he wanted "the people to hear what these other witnesses have to say."

MARE CREEK

Clarence King was injured in the mines of Martin, Thursday afternoon, when his left hand was caught beneath the motor he operated and badly crushed. He was taken to Our Lady of the Way hospital where two fingers had to be amputated. He was released from the hospital Monday but will have to go back daily for treatment for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Kennedy and son, Archie and Duane, visited Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Kennedy in Williamson last week. Before returning home they also visited friends at Andy, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Crisp of Allen, were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Erman Ratliff.

Mrs. Hassell Collins has been ill for several days. MRS. MOUSIE HALLBERT, Prater, Ky. 5-14-52.

Years ago an old "deer lick" on Mare Creek yielded a mineral water. The lick barn rotted and fell to the earth under a giant beech, and the few feet it ran before going underground was marked by a red sulphurous trail. Underground it went, no one knew where, but out near the bottom edge a perpetual marsh existed. It was not a big marsh, but what it lacked in size it compensated itself in dampness. Harvey Washington Stratton tried to drain it for in an unwaying area to build he had constructed a barn on the edge of it. In the winter it was a place to avoid.

There is a plaque erected at the old Johnston' homestead, stating: "Farm and residence of John Johnston (1791-1889). Eminent farmer who here originated the drainage in 1825 and thereby became an outstanding contributor to human welfare. Honored by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers."

The Department of Agriculture now recognizes the value of this work to the extent that it will pay the major cost of the tile. Four-inch tile costs, and the low cost is a contribution of local dealers, about nine cents a foot. The Soil Conservation Service will pay out costs. This spring Johnson has estimated and chiefly surveyed tiling for 1,283 feet that will drain 70 acres of land. Several farmers have completed their work under his supervision among whom are Jerry Goble, Xavier, Gracia Ekles, East Point, Ransom Greer, Bonanza Forest, Durbett, etc. (cont.) Sugar Lark, Everett (cont.)

A native of Orchard, Lincoln county, he has been engaged in soil conservation work for 17 years and 11 of these were spent on soil work in Fleming county. He says he did more work on hills down here, corrective as it sounds, than he is going or expects to do here. The reason seems to be that in Fleming contour plowing was a necessity on the low hills for many many hill acres were cultivated. Here in Floyd farmers are disinclined to do more than plow, preferring to put it into pasture.

Soil conservation work in Floyd is comparatively new. R. L. Shephard, vocational agricultural teacher at the Prestonsburg school system, organized the soil conservation district. It has five supervisors who are responsible for the work. They are Billy Merritt, Virgil Smith, R. C. Barnett, Stascom Clarke and R. C. Stanley. Stanley, succeeded Shephard. Since a soil conservation district was now organized and functioning under the Department of Agriculture, a soil conservation expert was furnished by the USDA. Hence the entrance of Johnson up on the scene and the drying of the land near Mare Creek.

Drying up of that wet land intrigued him when he was told of the many efforts that failed. He felt it was time to try the land, and the possibilities because rye had been sown there and the high hills nearby. Where the land was high and dry the rye grew to the height of a man. Where it was wet germination failed. (See cont.)

Mr. Stanley received the land. Almost immediately the soil began to crack as the moisture left,

Booze Cases, Breaks Jail Six; Seven Draw Fines Following Raids

Breaking and entering and liquor cases comprised the major charges against Floyd county jail inmates in the week.

Isaac Stone and Wayne Dempsey were jailed last Thursday on a charge of attempting to break into a poolroom, and Richard Giers was booked Tuesday for breaking and entering a dwelling. Stone and Dempsey were jailed by Police Officer Hershel Lester, of Martin, Akers, by Steve Hamilton.

Booked in liquor cases were: Anderson Moore, possessing whiskey, and Carl Finson, drunk driving and possessing whiskey, both arrested Friday by Deputy Sheriff Jim Burchdick and Constable George Hall, Jr.; Virgil Triplett, drunk driving, arrested by Deputies Scott Compton and Green Johnson.

Deputy Sheriff Ouley reported that he found 10 gallons of home brew on the premises of Ernie Moore, near the farm of Ernie Moore, near the farm of Ernie Moore. Terry was fined by Magistrate M. C. Wright.

Arthur Thomsbury was fined $50 in violation of police regulations for police there, assisted by Deputy Sheriffs Willie Johnson and J. M. Moore. He was fined $50 for possession of moonshine alleged to have been his. Five negroes paid fines in police court as a result of the same raid.

RAIN, Mud No Hindrance As An Estimated 53,981 Visit Lake Last Month

Despite April showers and muddy waters, 53,981 persons visited Dewey Lake during last month. It was estimated by Roy Moore, recreation manager, and rangers on duty in the area. This brought to 188,626 the number of visitors since Jan. 1.

Last Sunday, May 4, was the best single day at the lake this year, with an estimated 17,600 visitors. The biggest preceding day of the year was April 13 when the count was 9,867.

Despite the large number boating or fishing on the lake, red-tailed hawks were seen by the park. They were seen only on the part of two persons. Fishing from boats or from the shore Sunday were an estimated 1,600 persons.

The number of visitors last month, by weeks, follows: Week ending April 6, 7,288; April 13, 14,305; April 20, 10,178; April 27, 11,188.

Thompson plowed the land this week. It had never been dry enough to plow in May before.

Soil conservation is a science, rather a group of sciences. Its practical applications require the services of trained personnel. The drainage method of mowing wet ground was marked by a red sulphurous trail. Underground it went, no one knew where, but out near the bottom edge a perpetual marsh existed. It was not a big marsh, but what it lacked in size it compensated itself in dampness. Two Are Hospitalized
When Bus Leaves Road
On Highway 60, Knott-co.

Harard, Ky., May 7 — Two high-school students were hospitalized and a third was hurt today when a school bus carrying 35 pupils went over a 50-foot embankment, tearing the body of the bus loose from its chassis.

In a hospital here are Phyllis Ashley, 16, Smithboro, suffering a broken vertebra, and Christine Reevy, Whitesburg, who received cuts and bruises. James Hargin Mullins, 16, Knott county, was treated for a broken arm and released.

The accident occurred in Knott county on Highway 60. The driver, Norman Combs, Litterear, said he heard a snap and then the driving mechanism broke. The bus ran off the road and overturned. Combs was treated for a cut on his forehead.

The students were returning from the last day of chasses at Carr Creek high school. Principal Morton Combs and a teacher, Fernit Beveridge, said they heard the crash and ran to help the pupils out of the bus.

TWO CHILDREN ARE DROWNED

Legionnaires Recover
Bodies at Paintsville
After Day's Search

From the recovery of the bodies of a nine-year-old girl and a 13-year-old boy from the Paint Creek at Paintsville by American Legionnaires, Sunday, authorities theorized that the double drowning, first in this section for 1952, was the tragedy of a heroic rescue attempt which failed.

Police Chief Heber Ward surmised that the girl, Phyllis Joan Ward, fell into the stream while fishing and that the boy, Paul Gus Stone, lost his life in a vain attempt to save her.

Grover James Trimble said the two apparently drowned while fishing early Thursday. Nobody witnessed the drownings.

The body of the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elba Stone of Paintsville, was found about six feet from shore. His fishing pole was anchored in the bank. One fish caught apparently by one or the other of the victims was tied to a line in the water.

Mrs. Stone said her son, "Fugly," had left home to fish about 8 a.m. Saturday. When he did not return at noon, members of the Legion's volunteer emergency squad began a search. They found the boy's body shortly after midnight.

Ward said a man who passed the fishing spot around 11 a.m. Saturday reported to one there. The girl's body was recovered late today about 200 feet downstream.

She had been living, as a foster child, with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Whiting here for about three years. Her mother is now Mrs. Joe Gayhart of Iron Gate, Mich. Whereabouts of her father are not known. The parents had separated some years ago, Ward said. He said young Stone was a good swimmer.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Western Kentucky Teacher's College Bowling Green, Ky.

"HOUSES ALONG THE ROAD"

Most of the modern homes are being built along highways and usually not more than a few yards from a way out to the rest of the world. Only a very eccentric or very rich man would locate his home as houses were located in other times. The coming of the automobile has made it necessary to be close to a paved or gravelled road so that the family can get out. Building a very long driveway soon cuts into one's finances and makes a house away from the road a rather expensive luxury.

Old-fashioned homes did not have to be planned thus; in fact, it often seems that they were placed as far away as possible from the avenues of travel. Roads in horse-and-jug days did not need to be fastidious, I suppose. I know that they were far from good. The only difference between a driveway back into the plantation and the so-called public road was often a matter only of which road was used often. Therefore, it did not matter about the location of a house, anyway; a suitable "house place" was all that was necessary. We will have to admit that many older houses did have locations that were beautiful and even commanding. Sometimes we had to drive into a field and a half mile or so before arriving at the house itself. One such house that still stands is Clerly Hill, the home of General Simon Bolivar Buckner at Civil War times. It must be more than a mile from the last public highway to the commanding large mansion, and such a road as it was in our own times! I drove a car over it many years ago, but it was not a very pleasant experience. And yet, it was like to negotiate this private road in mid-winter. Now, I am sure, a better road leads back to the house, but it is a fact that it was to be much better known than it has ever been.

One of the pathetic reminders of other times is old houses that used to be big and fine but is now away off in a field, reduced to a ten-acre house or a barn or just sitting out in the weeds, haunted by memories and bats and wild beasts. One such I often pass on one of my long walks on land study. It was once a fine old brick mansion, a badge of the respectability that it has helped produce. The roads, when better known, were built, passed by it. The old mansion fell into a state of decay and since it is still an impressive site, a left-over of times that have gone.

Just about the time the roads began to determine the location of modern houses a man of my acquaintance decided to build the house he had long planned. He had lived all his life in a rather commodious, stately old mansion down under a hill, away from the road, but the house site was not under of sight from any section of the road. He selected a site for his new home on the edge of his farm, right on a much-used highway, but rather pathetically, on a bend that modern cars have difficulty in rounding smoothly. Unhappily, in rounding smoothly, this way or the other, the highway was straightened to avoid this unnecessary bend, and now the new house is cut off from the highway. Across a field the car can be seen speeding on their way, but the house sits above from things, as if it had been slighted by the company into which it was seeking entrance. Whenever I see that house, whose owner was so much to be in the center of things, I cannot help wondering at another human effort to adjust himself to a new way of life, but the new as well as the old somewhat out of date.

Mrs. Ferrell Initialed By Chapter "G", P.E.O.

At Mrs. Stumbo's Home

Mrs. Earl A. Stumbo was hostess, April 14, to members of Chapter "G", P.E.O., at which time Mrs. D. L. Ferrell was initiated.

On Monday, April 28, Mrs. Phil Schroeder entertained Chapter "G" at her home on North Lake Drive.

Mrs. C.E. Rhinehardt, of Chappewa Falls, Wis., who is an organizer of the Supreme Chapter, was in Prestonsburg Tuesday, April 29, to inspect the local chapter. Inspection of the chapter was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Chalmers Frazier on North Arnold street.

The meeting was presided by a dinner at the Victoria House, honoring Mrs. Rhinehardt. Attending these meetings were Mesdames W. A. Rose, W. R. Callahan, Tom G. Dings, Phil Schroeder, Merle Wilson, Marvin Mann, Fred Francis, Woodrow Greenleaf, D. L. Farrar, Winston Ford, George P. Archer, Chalmers Frazier, Robert Hughes, E. J. Stumbo, and Miss Margaret E. May and the guest, Mrs. C. E. Rhinehardt.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood was founded Jan. 21, 1869 by seven girls, students at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant, Iowa. There are three divisions of the Sisterhood: the supreme chapter, state and local chapters. From the seven who founded the Society in 1869 the membership of the Sisterhood has grown to more than 100,000 women. There are 3,015 chapters located in 46 states, the District of Columbia, the territories of Alaska and Hawaii two provincial chapters, British Columbia and Manitoba and in four additional Canadian provinces.

Furthering the cause of education for women has been the chief project of the Sisterhood. This aim has been accomplished through the Educational Loan Fund, scholarships to Cotsey College and International scholarships which were established two years ago as P.E.O.'s contribution toward peace and better understanding among the nations of the world. Fourteen girls from eight countries have studied in this country the past year.

James Garrard, Kentucky's second governor, served the longest continuous term of any of Kentucky's chief executives—an eight-year administration from 1796 through 1804.

Germans constitute about one-third of Kentucky's foreign population.

SENIOR'S DAY IS SPONSORED

By Coal Mining Institute And Vocational School At Inland Steel Mine

The Big Sandy-Eikhorn Coal Mining Institute with the cooperation of the Mayo State Vocational School and Big Sandy-Eikhorn Coal Operators Association, will sponsor Saturday the fifth annual High School Senior Day.

Between 300 and 400 boys from Floyd county's nine high schools and from Pike and Letcher counties are expected to make the tour.

This year the program will be at the Inland Steel Company's mine at Wheelwright. It will include a nine-mile trip, starting at the main portal of the mine at Wheelwright and proceeding through the mine with the underground tour ending at the Price portal. Some of the features that will be pointed out to the boys will be support of the mine roof, using bolts, an extensive underground railway system; covered mainpicks; a fully automatic signal system to govern the movement of the trips; underground dispatcher's station, and an underground assembly yard.

At noon a lunch will be provided by the Big Sandy-Eikhorn Coal Operators Association. After lunch a tour of the surface operations will be made. This will include machine and repair shops, the price preparation plant, coal testing laboratory and the administration buildings.

"It is not the intention of the Institute or other agencies supporting this program to encourage the boys to leave school to enter the coal industry, but to encourage them to finish school with mining in mind," said a representative of the Institute spokesman said.

RESTAURANT DEADLINE, APRIL 25

Operators of restaurants and taverns were reminded by Thomas A. Duggan of the restaurant section of the Kentucky Office of Price Stabilization that April 25 was the deadline for filing a list of their prices with OPS and for posting them in their establishments.

Dollar-and-cent ceiling prices at the end of those in effect during the week of February 3 are established under a new order which went into effect April 7. Under the former regulation, prices were tied to the cost of food incurred by the operator.

Copies of the new regulation and blank posters have been mailed by OPS to most restaurant owners and taverns. The regulation has been explained by Duggan at meetings with restaurant groups in more than a dozen cities in the state.

Lexington and Louisville, two of Kentucky's most prominent cities were founded one year apart—Louisville in 1778, Lexington in 1779.

Notice:

May 7, 1952
James Green, Chairman
Dr. J. H. Allen
John E. Campbell
Members, Floyd County Board of Education

Gentlemen:

This is to inform you that I had ready to submit to you for your consideration at the regular meeting of the board, which should have been held yesterday, a list of teachers, special teachers and attendance officers whose employment for the 1952-53 school year I am recommending.

Since neither of you showed up for the meeting, thus preventing a quorum to do business this had to be postponed to the next meeting at the appointed time for the regular meeting and has been made a part of the official records of this office for your own purposes in an early action.

The law requires boards of education to hold at least one regular meeting each month. It is now time that teacher applicants should know what they are going to do next year as many of them may wish to renew their certificates if they are to teach. A number of other items of business, including the payment of salaries and bills, should be acted upon at the earliest possible time. On behalf of those who are interested in a free and open meeting each month, I respectfully request that you take such steps as are necessary to perform these duties.

Very respectfully,
PALMER L. HOLA,
Supt. & Secy.
Floyd County Board of Education
(Paid Adv.—11)

A major coal-marketing agency estimates that about 360 million tons of bituminous coal will be sold this year.

The job of moving coal from mine to market in this country requires more than 30,000 railroad cars every day.

There are more than 70 native species of trees in Kentucky, at least 60 of which have commercial value.

The community had the pageant as a result of presentation with the sanction of the judges and except for the work of three carpenters two days and a stone mason or two for one day, all the manual tasks were contributions from the pageant volunteers. The pre-Easter budget was strengthened considerably, however, before Sunday presentation, with Mrs. E. R. Colman as chairman of the fund campaign.

Following to the pageant opening ceremony, the presentation of Martin schools, introduced Mayor E. P. Grishy of Martin who presented to Elder Leo Smith, representing Martin Sunday Schools, then presented Mrs. Amanda Dingus, a lady which was the gift of the people of Martin in appreciation for her offer of the grounds on which the pageant was staged.

Mr. Salisbury introduced to the gathering Miss Blanche Dingus, parent director, and her associates, Mesdames Eddie Greer and Frank Folsie, and Miss Dingus presented E. P. Grishy, Jr., who portrayed the life of the Christ, and those who appeared on the Twelve Apostles, Siles, Tackett, Charlie Rickman, Clarence King, Ray Flannery, Clarence Crisp, Don Prater, Don Hutchison, Bill Clark, Frank Peters, Ed Hampton, Wayne Hagans and W. J. Reynolds, Jr.

Mrs. Dortha Allen was the reader for the presentation, and Franklin W. Moore, of Prestonsburg, directed the choir in the rendition of appropriate songs. Mrs. E. R. May was the author of the script.

A number of spectators served as constructive critics, and those in charge of the pageant themselves took minor changes to be made in future presentations.

Any already plans are being talked for the next Easter pageant. The building must be roofed and enclosed, if not moved to another site. The plans for the building are customised on the bill and the board of directors plan to publish a booklet on the pageant.

Ashland, Ky., May 2—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway announced today it will spend $100,000 to improve its assembly and repair yards at Pikeville.

Harry Kintz, superintendent of the railroad's division here, said the improvement will carry out the line's plan to expand in the repair yards at Paintsville.

The contract has been given to Forbes Construction Company, Huntington, W. Va. The job is expected to be finished about July 15.

Two new tracks and a new car-coupler track will be added at the assembly yard, where coal cars are received and dispatched.

Magoffin Man, Son Draw Pen Sentences For Draft Violation

A father and his son were sentenced to five years' imprisonment each last week in federal court at Pikeville for violation of the Selective Service Act.

In other cases before the court, two persons drew suspended sentences for converting postal funds, and a Pikeville woman was given a suspended sentence for using the mails to defraud.

Oscar Howard, of Magoffin county, and his son Paul were each given sentences of five years. Paul was charged with refusing and evading selective service in the armed forces, and his father was charged with aiding and abetting his son's act.

Bernice C. Gilliam, postmaster at Coal Run, pleaded guilty to converting postal funds to her own use. She was given a suspended sentence of a year and a day and placed on probation for a year.

Morris Patrick, postmaster at Broadway in Magoffin county, was given a year and a day on a similar charge of converting postal funds. He was placed on probation for a year.

Emma L. Maynard, 21, of Pikeville, pleaded guilty to a charge of using the mails to defraud, and was given a suspended sentence of a year and a day. She was charged with giving wrong names to mail order houses for goods which she had received. She also was placed on probation for a year.

Vernon Little, Looker, pleaded guilty to failing to perform duties required as a member of the Reserve Component of the U. S. Army and was given a suspended sentence of six months, provided he report to his local draft board when required. The charge came about because of a ruling which requires ex-service men to register with local boards if they are below a certain age limit.

The grand jury, which Judge Max Swinford empaneled at the beginning of the court term, returned 44 true bills, the majority of them on charges of operating and possessing illicit stills.

While 25 of the true bills were on the operation and possession of stills, the majority were on charges of operating unlicensed whiskey, converting postal funds for use and transportation of a stolen car across the state line.

SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT
A three-year-old with whom I have a more than passing acquaintance has been hospitalized several times. Several of the things I didn't tell him, either, the disparity in our ages and my stodginess of thinking being what they were.

I didn't tell him it might keep him from growing old, fearing he'd go back and repeat the performance several of the things I didn't tell him, either, the disparity in our ages and my stodginess of thinking being what they were.

He could have been reminded that getting older is what everybody is trying to do, although we all shrink from old age; that we submit to vaccination against disease, dose ourselves with nostrums, even eat spinach—all in order to stick around and live longer.

Then, to prove that adults buck the inevitable as desperately as the child in his fear of old age, it could have been pointed out that we diet and do exercises and give ourselves about with stays and girdles and supports, have our faces lifted and eye brows and smoothes, ourselves with strange-sounding and evil-smelling pastes and clays and pomades—all with the idea of extending time and appearing to be what we are not.

I could have told him about man's long search for the Fountain of Youth, of some doing a great job with monkey glands or trying to buy youth at the corner drugstore. But I figured the main job for me was to keep him out of the branch and a million other places, and that by the time he was approaching old age—some time after 2000 A.D.—he could glance over the patent medicine ads and do his own shopping list to cover the wrinkles that he'd later wrinkle in wrinkle-remover.

IT'S A FAKE!
It was "The Grand Jury," I believe, who said, "Wrattling is as phony as a sage sunset." And as far as yours truly is concerned it ranks near the top in a cure for insomnia.

I am not, you may gather, a great admirer of the grunt-and-iron racket. Perhaps I have no right to post on others the verdict I have reached, having seen only two or three matches from ringade, and built up by television. But what I saw was a plenty.

There is a definite pattern to these fake athletic events. It's the old story of hero and villain. You will observe, one of the groaners is a good deal more handsome — or should we say, considerably less repulsive — than the other. That sets the stage. Then the absurd brute commits various and sundry degrees of mayhem on the darling of the ringade mob. He scowls and roars and turns threateningly on the fans. There's a bit of hat-pulling, body jabs, and the hero — with the most telling effect, Two boxes can flail the daylight out of each other and neither leave his feet, but he's a wrecker through and through in the direction of his opponent and you'll witness a perfect pratfall, every time.

What gets me is the utter compliance with which one of these big brutes will stand and permit his opponent to hold a groping hand down his leg, ever so slowly set a firm hold on his fetlock and then bring his foot up for an apparently excruciating toehold. Dito for head-holds—the old noggin stuck out there for the other to latch onto, as if he'd be disappointed if the other didn't accept the invitation to do him damage.

Wrattling? I'll take ping-pong.

Fishing License Sales Up 315,000 in 8 Years

Frankfort, Ky., May 7.—A look at the increased sale of Kentucky fishing licenses is solid proof that the state is fast being recognized as the land of opportunity for fishermen.

Figures released today by the Division of Game and Fish show an increase of more than 115,000 in the license sale in an eight-year period. The increase is considerably above the national average and an all-time high is expected this year.

In 1944, 73,061 licenses were issued, and by last year the figure had jumped to 390,525.

Other years in the period and the number of licenses sold: 1945, 105,839; 1946, 197,419; 1947, 227,997; 1948, 295,489; 1949, 324,060; and 1950, 354,153.

It Will Be in Demand When It's 10 Years Old!

Take a new Cadillac home with you—use it with common prudence and give it reasonable care——and ten years from today, there should be many, many people anxious to drive it and call it their own!

The soundness of this prediction is attested on used car lists throughout America. Every day, buyers are taking possession of Cadillacs built before the war—and are doing so with pride and anticipation.

There are many and vital reasons for this enduring value of a Cadillac car.

First, of course, is quality. Cadillacs are built to the highest standard it is practical to enforce in the production of a motor car.

The watchword and the goal of those who design and build for Cadillac are one and the same—how good and how enduring can this car be made?

Year in and year out, the search for improvement goes relentlessly ahead.

Small wonder that the car keeps its youth and its performance—far, far beyond the normal span.

And then there is its sound and enduring beauty. Cadillac styling is a development—with continuous improvement and refinement. Older Cadillacs, of course, are not to be mistaken for the current ones; but, regardless of age, they are still Cadillacs—and are distinguished and dignified in their own rights.

And then, of course, there is the wonderful Cadillac name—which never loses its significance, no matter how old the car which bears it. Year for year and age for age, a Cadillac is always aside and apart from other cars.

It is not unusual for a Cadillac to pass through four or five or even six different families—each one owning it with pride and driving it with pleasure.

Think of this when you buy your next car. If you get a Cadillac—there can be no doubt that others will be eager to own it when it has served you the normal span.

Why not come in—see and drive this wonderful car? We'd be happy to welcome you any time.

FARM NOTES

Floyd Farmers, call this too—Anderson county farmers are realizing the value of having their soil tested and buying fertilizer to suit their needs, says LeVonne Miller, county agent with the University of Kentucky. As a result, they often save money and can expect better crops.

He cites the case of Leon Drury, who last year spent $200 for fertilizer on his tobacco. This year he had his soil tested and found that he could save $87.50 in fertilizer. Many similar examples could be given, said Mr. Miller.

Manure is one of the most valuable by-products produced on the farm. The average value of farm manure is over $200 per farm. However, the full value of this manure can be realized only if the farmer handles it properly.

Manure is about 80% water and if it is not properly conserved much of its fertility value is soon wasted. Manure should not be allowed to dry out. Piling of bedding with a high absorptive capacity should be used. It is too late now to use leading as this item should be remembered this fall and winter.

Manure supplies much fertility to the soil and improves the tilth of the soil. When super-phosphate is applied to manure it makes a complete fertilizer, the manure being deficient in this nutrient. About 50 pounds of phosphate should be used for each wagon load of manure. The phosphate will help prevent the loss of nitrogen and make the manure equivalent to a complete fertilizer.

Manure adds humus to the soil. This increases the water-holding capacity of the soil and improves the physical properties as well. It makes the soil easier to work and promotes the activities of bacteria and other soil organisms that make plant nutrients available.

Manure should be plowed under or disked into the soil at once. It loses nitrogen fast if it is allowed to lay out in the sun. Manure properly handled is the cheapest and best fertilizer you can use on the farm.

Fire fatalities in Kentucky dropped 38% for the first three months of 1952, compared with the same period last year. State Fire Marshall T. J. Underwood, Jr., revealed that 72 died through March of last year and 46 this year. He attributed the drop largely to the work of local state and fire protection authorities.

in McLean county, Ky. 16 continues to be the most popular tobacco variety, followed by Ky. 35 and Ky. 414.

Little winter-killing of pastures in Bullitt county was noted where fields were fertilized according to plans made following soil testing. Today at ROSE DRUG CO.

Let Us All Share the Blame

THE athletic situation at the University of Kentucky, far from ideal, is that of a thousand smaller schools over the land, magnified several times.

It was not created by the University per se; rather, the situation evolved from public demand for a winner. From that start the thing snowballed till the situation got out of control.

Followers of the fortunes of football teams of the school do not have to recall too many years to remember when they plaintively chorused, "Why can't we have teams like Alabama or Tennessee?" "What's wrong with Kentucky?" and so on. The answer to the questions, of course, was "Capable coaches and better player-material."

So, as other schools got the headlines—the big, black headlines and the lyrical effusions of sportswriters—Kentucky prepared to get into athletics in a big way. The alumni, the public demanded it; they got it.

Coaches were hired to deliver the goods. If they didn't, other coaches would be sought. You know the story. A losing coach moves on, and somebody else moves in. Character-building? Everybody not necessarily the coaches, but all of us—were looking for a winner. The Epworth League for character!

Then came Madison Square Garden and the gamblers. Then the debacle. All the sordidness of big-time athletics hit the public with shocking effect. The public learned that scholastic effort had been subordinated to athletic prowess; that Kentucky had induced athletes through the lure of money—as if no other school had ever done likewise! Coach Rupp of Kentucky's basketball team was accused by players who themselves had charges of accepting gamblers' bribes; he was accused of being a doting, fatherlike personality in victory, a stern, unforgiving tyrant in defeat. He was accused of talking point spreads to his boys—a fact known to every reader of the country's sports pages.

This is not to argue Rupp's case or the University's. It is all shocking. But overemphasis of athletics did not begin at the University of Kentucky, though it may well begin to end there.

We are all, in some degree, guilty. Did you ever bet on a basketball or football game and gripe your head off at the coach, the players who were doing their best, and at the referees when you lost?

Now the pendulum starts its inevitable swing in the other direction? Will it go to the other extreme? Will the public want the mediocrity of athletic talent which simon-pure amateurism brings? Will it stand for it?

If not, how much sensible cooperation will be given toward attaining the "golden mean" between those two extremes of rank amateurism and near-professionalism?

AN OPINION ABOUT COAL

The brilliant essayist Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote in 1860: "Coal lay in ledges under the ground since the Flood, until a laborer with his axe and windlass brings it to the surface. We may well call it black diamonds. Every basket is power and civilization. For coal is portable climate. It carries the heat of its fires to the laboratory and the workshop; and it is the means of transporting itself whithersoever it is wanted. Wind and Stephen whispered in the ear of mankind their secret, that a half-ounce of coal will draw two tons a mile, and coal carries coal by rail and by boat, to make Canada as warm as Calcutta; and with its comfort brings its industrial power."

BETSY LAYNE

The Betsy Layne Woman's Club, with the cooperation of Lloyd Crum, manager of the Betsy Layne Theater, sponsored a double feature show Tuesday night, April 29, for the benefit of the Cancer drive. A large crowd was in attendance and the net proceeds, amounting to $36, were given to the American Cancer Society (Ky. Division) to help support Kentucky's program of service, education and research in the fight against cancer. Leaflets received from the Cancer Society were given to adults buying tickets. These leaflets gave the seven danger signals of cancer.

Club members were in attendance and with the cooperation of Mr. Crum the benefit show was very successful. The Betsy Layne Woman's Club wishes to take this opportunity to express its appreciation to all those who attended the Cancer Benefit show.

"DE GUSTIBUS"

The Latins had a phrase for it—"no accounting for tastes." It is spring again, and I must be allowed to rhymodize just a little about things that spring always brings. Our Kentucky spring greens along so slowly, from early February to the middle of May, that we seldom have any of the bursts of springtime that the New England poets rave over. Not more than twice in my lifetime have I seen one of the sprouts that Lowell describes, when overnight the world seems full of leaves and flowers and birds. But every spring brings its attendant awakening of life, its choicest odors and tastes and sounds. May I name a few of these folkish things, probably not the same list you would name, but at least suggestive of what we all enjoy in spring.

In our long evolution we have lost much of our keenness of the sense of smell; just any animal, below us can test us at enjoying and using this sense. However, when spring comes round, we seem to get a new lease on this half-atrophied sense. The odors of burning plantbeds in my part of the state are almost the first spring smells, for many a plantbed is burned in January and February, often while winter is still a very obvious fact. The suggestive odor of newly-turned earth comes along about the same time, and that that not even a poet could find words for; if you have never smelled this odor, actually and through memory, try to start a new experience this spring that will come back with every spring as long as you live. I know you will think it queer when I recall, also, the odor of burning herbs' nests, for this, too, is a good sign of spring. And the leafy, mossy smell in the woods as the first wild owers come into bloom! And in our yards the slightly unpleasant odor of new daffodils. Who could enjoy spring without a sense of smell?

Poets have somewhat squelched our enjoyment of smells, but they love to remind us of tastes, chiefly exotic ones that only some poetic world-traveler could have known. Meanwhile we common people, with our limitations in travel and often in education, must not forget our love of tastes, even though they may seem rather plain to the poetic poets. Do not forget the taste of fresh sassafras tea, especially as it is served in spring to turn down the blood after the long, hard winter. In the absence of the tea itself, a good twig of sassafras chewed while you plow or work in

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

The business of breeding, buying and selling dogs is just as honorable as any other business and the vast majority of people engaged in it are honest, conscientious and respected citizens.

Nevertheless, buying a dog sight-unseen has its risks, for few of us see things exactly alike. What suits one man may not suit another. The beautiful manners and style of a dog may not interest a man who is more interested in how often a dog finds game rather than how he handles it.

Many of us are particular about the markings of a dog, and a written description is not very satisfying. What one man might consider a wide ranging dog might be a dog of medium range to some other hunter. These are only a few of the disadvantages of sight-unseen buying. It is always best to see the dog before you bring him in the field, handling him under the gun if possible.

Quite often we must ask for a trial on ground that is strange to the dog. If this is the case, consider a wide ranging dog. Remember that, although you have posted the purchase price, he is taking more of a chance on you than you are on him. You may say the dog is unsatisfactory, and ship him back—and he has no recourse.

Bear in mind that no dog is at his best in strange territory and under strange handling. A long trip may tire him or upset his nerves. He should be given ample time to become accustomed to his new surroundings and to you. Don't make snap judgments and bundle the dog into his crate and send him home, because he makes a few errors under your handling. Give the dog that comes on approval a fair trial. The seller relies on your sense of fair play to do just that.

Henry P. Davis, noted expert of sporting dogs, suggests the prospective buyer do these things: See that the dog on trial only for a definitely stated period. Post the purchase price with the local express agent or some mutually agreed-upon person pending results of the trial. See that the terms of sale, including trial privilege, registration eligibility, etc., are agreed upon in writing. See that the payment of transportation boys ways is agreed upon before shipping. Give the dog every reasonable chance to prove his worth. And finally, don't look for bargains.
