URGES SUPPORT OF DRAMATICS

Few people with little or no knowledge of play production realize the tremendous amount of work that goes into a well-presented play of three acts. It represents many, many hours of intensive measuring, designing, ticket selling and many other tasks too numerous to mention.

The productions, as presented by the various classes and groups in Prestonsburg high school, have shown decided improvement in the past three or four years. Each year, the quality of the play selected, as well as the ability displayed by those taking part, has shown rapid growth in the field of drama.

This training is most valuable and deserves the support of the Prestonsburg public, in that they will not only have an evening of high-type entertainment but they will encourage a group of young people who have worked long and intensively and whose efforts deserve to be rewarded.

This is just as much a part of our school activities program as is football or basketball and gives a chance to pupils who possibly cannot compete in those fields a chance to develop their particular talents. Make our school activities well-rounded and give our would-be young Bernhards and Barrymores a boost by attending the senior play, "Turn Back the Clock."

HEART DEATH RATE LOWER

In Floyd, Data Shows; Rate 17 Per Cent Off National Disease Pace

Special To The Times

NEW YORK, May 9—Heart disease, the leading cause of death in the nation today, is less of a factor in the lives of Floyd county residents than with residents of most other parts of the country. A smaller percentage of deaths is caused by heart disease in the county than in most other communities, according to data gathered by the National Office of Vital Statistics in 1950, covering the previous year, and just released.

Out of a total 346 deaths in Floyd county in the year from all causes, 121 were the result of some form of heart disease, the official figures show.

Thus, heart disease was charged with responsibility for 35 percent of the Floyd deaths, as compared with nearly 52 percent in the nation at large and with 45 percent in the East-South-Central states. In the state of Kentucky, the official figures show, it was accounted for 47 percent.

The fact that more than half of all deaths in the county—more than the combined total of those due to cancer, the other diseases and accidents—are chargeable to heart ailments, points up the importance of the problem and the emphasis being placed upon it nationally.

The 121 heart deaths in Floyd county during the year were equivalent to a rate of 228 deaths per 100,000 population. In the East-South-Central states the rate was 412 per 100,000 population and, in Kentucky, 455. Elsewhere in the United States the average was 492 heart deaths per 100,000 people.

The chances of dying from heart disease are becoming greater year by year. It is pointed out by the U. S. Public Health Service. This is due largely to the fact that other diseases are being conquered and people are living longer. Older people are more subject to falling victim to it than are younger people.

Hope is held out for an eventual solution, however. Rapid progress has been made in the last 25 years, so that at present, according to heart specialists, we have compiled more knowledge about the disease through research than we have yet learned to apply.

There's a new kind of land grab going on. It nibbles small chunks of public land steadily, day after day, and like the sand in the hourglass, these losses add up to a startling volume. It's all legal but nonetheless, it adds up to a rather startling filling of the public domain.

The federal mining law is 85 years old and does not make the difference between surface rights in mining locations or claims. This loophole opens the way for numerous abuses of surface resources. During a trip through several western states, Cleveland Van Dresser, an outdoor writer for national magazines, saw beer parlors, hot-dog stands, private homes, motel and motor courts located within national forest and other public lands and areas that were masquerading as "mines."

All these people had to do was find a piece of land that is sufficiently mineralized, locate a claim, file it in the county seat—and they're on their way toward owning some property that is hard to get to. The mineralization requirement isn't much of an obstacle. In fact, a judge sitting on a claim case said: "It is common knowledge that the flight of fancy here is one phase of the situation confronted by the Forest Service. Close to one million acres of national forest land have passed into private ownership under the mining laws. According to the best estimates available, only about 14 per cent of these lands have ever produced minerals in commercial quantities."

Here's another case: The Bureau of Land Management, inspectors heard of a sawmill operating on public land. They investigated and found the mill. This claimant simply took a broad interpretation of the law (which states in effect that a claim locator has the free use of as much timber as he may need to pursue his mining operations) and cut down all the timber on his claim and sold it. There was enough of it to warrant erecting a sawmill.

Morally, that timber was the property of the American people. But by the looseness of the public land laws and inadequate enforcement of the existing regulations, a single individual got profit from it, besides detaching a public acre.

The Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization made some strong statements on this subject, and study is under way by federal officials aimed at a revision of the mining laws. Keep an eye on it.

Since 1890, more than $29 billion worth of coal has been produced in the mines of Pennsylvania.

Coal is consumed in greater tonnage than any other commodity produced by man.

Mexico's coal production is only about one million tons, or less than the output of Arkansas.

the bonds shall, when issued, be held under the control of the fiscal court of the county which shall determine when, at what price and how they shall be sold.

In the Floyd bond election, he reasoned, the voters gave only assent to the court to incur the indebtedness, and the court has the right to refuse to issue the bonds if conditions have changed and necessity has ceased to exist.

So he advised: "It is the duty of your fiscal court in this matter to pursue the course that will impose the least burden upon the taxpayers of your county, and if refusing to issue the bonds is for the best interest of the taxpayers... it is their duty to make that refusal."

Between $55,000 and $20,000 was collected this year in taxes on the levy made to create a fund to right the bonds when issued. What is to be done with that fund is a matter which has not been decided.

"I Thought the Gas Gauge was broken" says Sam Pearce, Seattle, Wash. "If you want pickup, there isn't a car on the road, in any price class, that can beat the Rambler. Yet for economy, the gas gauge goes down so slowly you think it's broken."

THE NEW Nash Rambler owners are amazed at the sensational mileage they get. This is the car that holds the all-time record in the Mobilgas Economy Run with 31.05 miles per gallon! This is a real "red-hot" performer with so much room inside! This in such a smart and beautifully equipped car—the only car that comes to you with its many custom accessories at an extra cost!

Come see it. Especially, come drive it. Just take five minutes to discover something absolutely new in handling and parking ease... and new in performance, too!

Dr. Biggs To Return To His Alma Mater As Alumni Speaker

Pikeville, Ky., May 12 (Sp.) — Dr. A. D. Biggs of Chicago, Ill., "Alfred" to his classmates and other friends in Eastern Kentucky — will speak at the annual banquet of the Pikeville College Alumni Association May 28.

Dr. Biggs, a noted pediatrician in Chicago and the Middle West, was graduated from Pikeville College Academy in 1911, and returned in 1916 to teach there a year. He is now, Alumnus president.

A member of the 11th graduating class, Dr. Biggs was the 22nd person to receive a diploma from the young school, which was founded in 1886 as Pikeville Collegiate Institute. At commencement he won the Dr. B. C. Condit prize of a gold watch, then given each year to the highest-ranking Academy graduate.

Distinguished as a Fellow of the American Medical Association, Dr. Biggs is professor of pediatrics in the Northwestern University Medical School. He is also chairman of the department of pediatrics of St. Luke's hospital, Chicago. The hospital maintained by the University of Chicago school of medicine.

The banquet speaker earned his doctor of medicine degree at the Medical College of the University of Chicago in 1922, after receiving the A.B. degree from Maryville College in 1915. Dr. Biggs, a native of Greenup county, Kentucky, is a brother of the late Sen. Biggs of Frazer. He is a veteran of World War I.

STRIP BANKS RECLAIMED

By Fertilizer Application, Crops Pasture Program, Cops Co. Official

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 6 (Sp.) — Frank J. Foreman, personnel director, The Pittsburg and Midway coal Mining Co., Pittsburg, Kansas, described the encouraging progress being made by his company in rehabilitating and farming lands acquired through strip mining of coal, at the 1952 Coal Convention of the American Mining Congress here today.

Foreman said that rehabilitation and farming activities are carried on over more than 17,000 acres owned by the company in Cherokee county. Of this acreage some 5,000 acres have been stripped of the underlying coal.

He told the meeting that the company undertakes the first reclamation work by planting trees on mined over areas as early as 1938. He pointed out that 100,000 acres have been planted with walnuts and fruit.

Foreman also said that the strip areas have been planted in soybeans and other crops which have proven good sized yields of beef cattle.

In addition to the rehabilitation of the strip banks, Foreman said that considerable work is carried on to develop and improve land that is not contain workable coal. He told the convention: "The entire acreage not mined is utilized for growing wheat, corn, oats, alfalfa and pasture. The total acreage is made up of many tracts varying in size from one acre as small as 1 to as large as 400 acres. Except on the experimental farm projects, the land is farmed on a sharecrop basis by tenant farmers under guidance and supervision of the company's farm department headed by an agriculture college graduate who manages and supervises the operation. Many farmers in the vicinity have extended their acreage by leasing one or more tracts in addition to their regular farm. A large number of the tracts are situated along smaller tracts as supplementary acreage."

He said an extensive fertilizer program is being carried on by the company by paying half of the fertilizer cost, "is increasing the value of the land and paying the farmer a larger profit." He said, "In many instances wheat production has been increased by 45% and the carrying capacity of flat land pasture has been substantially increased."

As part of its rehabilitation program, Foreman said, the company is cooperating with the Kansas Fish and Game Commission and the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service to improve fishing in lakes that have been formed in the abandoned strip pits on the company's lands. The Kansas Fish and Game Commission, in cooperation with the Biology department of the Kansas State Teachers College, has been doing much work collecting information concerning physical, chemical and biological conditions. These facts, he stated, will be studied and evaluated so that proper management techniques can be applied in making improvements in the lakes, which will result in better fishing. To encourage more people to take advantage of the unusual recreational facilities provided by the strip land areas, district coal mining companies, in cooperation with the State Game Commission, sponsor an annual fishing contest with highly desirable cash and merchandise awards. The bass that won the grand prize in 1951 weighed 6 pounds.

With the number of people participating in the popular sport of fishing increasing every year, strip land lakes are helping to fill a recreational need in every community where they are found, Foreman declared.

Income Tax Processing Is Nearing Completion

Frankfort, Ky., May 10 (Sp.) — Most checks for payment of State personal income taxes will be back in the hands of taxpayers by the end of this week, Commissioner Revenue Clyde Reeves reported today.

Reeves said his office was beginning to get queries from persons who mailed returns close to the April 15 deadline wanting to know when checks will be back. Except for checks received late, all will be out of the Department of Revenue by the middle of the week, he said.

Of a total of 220,000 paid returns processed by the department to date, only 20,000 were received before April 10. Reeves noted that this left nearly two-thirds of the year's total for processing at the last minute. All returns are being processed according to the date received, the commissioner said.

Persons who make a business of filing returns for others generally got returns in well ahead of the deadline. A few created a bottleneck by holding returns and mailing them all at once on April 15. Reeves said several months before, he said.

We Should Get Tough

Of course the driver of that automobile which came hurtling around a curve near here, the other day, to dash to death a young girl didn't plan her death. The fact that the car plunged on over an embankment after striking the girl and a young boy points to that fact.

Yet the result was no less lethal than if he had been gunning for the youngsters.

The driver of the car claims he was not drunk. He may not have been. But the tragedy in which he figured was of the drunk driver pattern: utter abandon, high speed, a car out of control—then a wrecked car and the injured or dead.

A drunk man armed with a deadly weapon can and does kill as dead by shooting by random as the cold-eyed killer does by drawing the bead.

So, not in anger but driven by a wild, demonic exuberance, the drunken man at the wheel of an automobile kills the innocent and the defenseless. Thus it is that every man or woman at the wheel of a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant is a potential killer, a killer against whose human frailty and property society has failed to build or maintain a defense.

"Shooting would be good enough for a man like that," is the cry of some citizens who were horrified by the tragedy.

But what did they do about that acquaintance of theirs whom they saw while driving on a wild swoosh of tires after loading up on whiskey, a few evenings or weeks earlier? "Poor fellow! Hope he gets home safely!"

Poor fellow, indeed! How safe are those other folks he'll be meeting, on the way home? How safe the boy or girl walking on the dirt at the edge of the road there?

Yes, he may be a good fellow out of his cups. Thought of tragedy may be far from him mind. But he is a menace to others, and he deserves no pity if you want to look at this matter of life and death realistically.

How much better for "the poor fellows" would it be for the law to be firmly enforced before he blindly drives a mass of steel into yielding flesh and brings mental torture and sorrow to others as well as to himself?

These "poor fellows" and these "good fellows" are among the biggest menaces to the public. For they are given the benefit of doubt, their influence weighs heavily against strict enforcement of the law, and so they are given enough rope to hang themselves but not before bringing death to some innocent.

In Floyd county there has been a toughening of the attitude of the law toward drunk driving. It could and should be tougher. And the law here could be greatly toughened by an adequate performance on the part of the state police. Arrival at the scene of an accident long after some broken body has been hurried off to a hospital or the morgue is too late.

The state police have the facilities and the men to crack down hard on those who make use of the highways one of man's most perilous missions of the day.

Citizens of this county should demand impartial enforcement of laws governing conduct on the highways. They should support officers who crack down on the offenders rather than carp about the law being enforced when a friend or relative is involved. We hear much talk of "money hunts" and "coffee money": too little of the rights of the lawabiding people who are fair targets for death on wheels.

With the rank-and-file adopting the proper attitude, final enforcement of the law by jurists in the courts is certain; for already the people will have adopted the get-tough policy and will carry it out to the finish.

Some of us may be educated accidentally to the rights of others, some may learn from precept; and then some will never learn except in the School of Experience which, rightly enough, is mentored by a stern teacher.

MARTIN WINS FLOYD TITLE

In Basketball Tourney; Goes Stars in Relief To Halt McDowell Rally

Martin high school outlasted McDowell high to win last Friday the district basketball title, 8 to 7, and a place in the regional tournament at Grayson this month. Winner of the Grayson meet will take part in the state high school tourney in Louisville.

Coach Donnell Halbert's team won its second district title in the five years of his coaching regime at Martin largely through the pitching and batting of Jimmy Goines, sturdy righthander. Goines, who had downed Prestonsburg's Black Cats last year's district champs, 4 to 1 in the semi-finals last Thursday, went to the hill in a relief role Friday after Martin's defense collapsed as the team held a 7-2 lead over McDowell in the sixth inning. After McDowell's centerfielder Yates had rapped a double in the seventh, Goines struck out the next two batters and smelted the uprising.

In the top of the seventh he singled, stole second and scored on a sacrifice.

Shortstop Pete Grigsby paced the attack with a single and home run and righthander Ronald Tackett drove home three runs with a double and single. McDowell's pitcher, K. Stungbo, whose mates kept him in hot water with strikeouts, led the losers with a triple and single.

McDowell reached the finals by eliminating Wheelwright 4-3 Thursday as Edgar Stevens hurled a three-hitter, adding, in addition to dropping Prestonsburg in the semi-finals, topped Auxier 7-1 in the tournament opener with righthander Ezra Cline going the route. In the other opening round game Wheelwright bested Betsy Layne 10-9 in a slugfest.

Recreation equipment was purchased by Clay county 4-Hers with $25 won in the National 4-H Club Recreation and Rural Arts Program.

Folk Music Program Honors 'Daughter' Clubs

Garrett, Ky., May 12, (S.A.) — "American folk music portrays the early social and religious history of America and is a living history of our country's growth and complexity."

Mrs. Tom James, of Prestonsburg, singer and musician and authority on folk music, in her appearance Saturday afternoon at the Garrett school auditorium as part of the Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club Accompanying Mrs. James was Mrs. C. P. Stephens, also of Prestonsburg. Mrs. James appealed to native Kentonians to preserve their mountain ballads in their "purity and simplicity, stressing the fact that most of the old love songs are pure Elizabethan ballads, many others of these ballads end on a tragic note, portraying the tragedy and hardship in the lives of our fathers," reminded Mrs. James. "These folk songs are needed now more than ever to help us to hold our balance in a changing civilization."

Following early religious songs Mrs. James and Mrs. Stephens sang "Oh, What Wondrous Love," with "Sweet Home," which Mrs. James claimed, is written in free rhythm.

"Oye in the Lonesome Fane" was sung by Mrs. Stephens followed by "Pretty Polly," sung by Mrs. James. In conclusion the two most singers gave "You Mist Walk That Lonesome Valley" culture on the audience to join in the chorus.

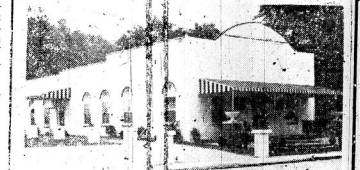

This program was given in honor of the daughter clubs of the Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club and representative groups from Hindman, Betsy Layne, Alden-Martin, and Wootton. Ladies were asked to stand for recognition.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served in the Home Economics room, with Miss Marie Cebura in charge.
