Prisoner Pays Off, Then He Drives Off In Auto of Another

When Chester Roberts, of Brady... was jailed here last Friday night by Policeman Amos Gray on a drunkenness charge he apparently was down on his luck—no money and a jail term staring him in the face. A few hours later, he was in the money, out of jail and driving away in style.

Roberts had the cash to pay his $22 fine, shortly after midnight. Outside the jail, he nonchalantly inquired of Eric Chief Vernon Blackburn: "Where are the keys to my car?"

"Which car?" Blackburn asked. "That black Ford."

And so the keys were produced, and Roberts was on his way.

Learning the car, which was owned by another man, was missing, the "Big" Gilliam chased Roberts to Brady Key where the erstwhile prisoner abandoned the auto and six stacks in an effort to halt him. Not deterred, Policeman Gray proceeded a short distance to the auto and took to his heels as Gilliam fired his revolver.

This time, the city case was set, and Roberts' father paid for him another $22 fine. He also gave the money to Gray the $24 an Auxilier said he had lost at the jail, the chief said.

3 1/2-Year-Old Child In Recital Regarded As Musical Prodigy

A highlight of the recital at the grade school auditorium given by Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James pupils Monday evening was the appearance of three-and-a-half-year-old Quentin Terry, Jr., at the piano.

The child had had a total of 10 lessons with Mrs. James. He knows the clef signs and most of the notes, but this inadequate knowledge of music does not prevent him from playing by ear. He began to play in a childish fashion on an old piano board over a year ago. From that he took an interest in a grand piano. When his father bought a piano last Christmas he played "Jingle Bells" on an attempt.

The tunes that appeal to him are folk songs and he plays them on the black keys, but he has mastered several tunes from musical notation which Mrs. James has taught him.

The music he renders is full tone quality, it is said by his mother. Songs played at Monday evening's recital were "Yankee Doodle," "Wee Polka March" and "Little Mobe." Mrs. James said that he plays in the genuine folk manner, rendering the music as if it were the outpouring of a deep racial inheritance.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Terry of Prestonsburg.

Lightning Injures Two At West Prestonsburg

Monday afternoon's storm which brought some relief from the heat was resulted in the injury of two West Prestonsburg residents by lightning.

Mrs. Theodore Holbrook was shocked as she stood near or held a screen door, one side of her head being affected. She is a patient at the Prestonsburg General hospital.

The other person injured was Lawrence Bray, whose arm was slightly burned. Mr. Bray said the lightning just flashed through the house and apparently did not strike nearby.

Tree same storm knocked out the air conditioning system of the Prestonsburg General hospital in West Prestonsburg. Elsewhere in this vicinity the storm caused no injury or damage.

Hatmaker Named Head Of Bible School Drive For Funds in Floyd-Co.

F. A. Hamaker, of Allen, has been named chairman of Floyd county for the Clear Creek Mountain Preachers' Bible School fund campaign. In this campaign funds will be sought in Kentucky and adjoining states as well as from friends of the school throughout the nation.

For the purpose of this campaign, Kentucky has been divided into eight districts with offices in Ashland, Bowling Green, Paducah, Lexington, Louisville, Owensboro, Covington, and Clear Creek. The Ashland district covers 29 counties, including those of the Ashland district is guided by an executive committee consisting of the Revs. L. W. Benedict, C. B. Coats, C. H. Hockensmith, Carroll Hubbard, A. D. Odum, Paul Weber, Dr. Donald Herring and Walker Lowry.

The Mountain Preachers' Bible School is unique in that it accepts men who manifest faith in God and desire to preach without regard to their educational qualifications. In most cases, these men have only completed a limited grade school education and are too old to return to school, and have family responsibilities. Their limited education would prevent their admission to a college or theological seminary.

The school has risen from 12 students in 1892 to 176 in 1952. More than 2,000 teachers have received training here.

37 arrests, three cars dynamited, and three union halls blasted. He added that all the violence had been caused by thugs hired by coal operators.

In addition, Roney blamed the "gangs" for dynamiting a railroad bridge and disrupting shipment of coal from Clay county mines. He also charged they were responsible for the recent shooting and wounding of three union organizers from Amsh.

Raney said he had given information concerning these two acts of violence to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He said he was afraid to divulge the information earlier. He asked Circuit Judge Ray Lewis, London, to start an investigation of the two incidents. If additional law-enforcement officers are needed for such an investigation, Raney said the U.M.W. would finance them.

Referring to the shooting of the three organizers, Raney said: "For every one you shoot down—we're like Ike—we'll send two to take his place. You can't kill enough of us to keep us from organizing."

He said he had heard he would be shot at the rally Monday. Then Raney declared:

"If they shoot me down, every one of you—union men—would be turned on these gun thugs and there wouldn't be a damned one of them left."

In answer to Raney's charges, Mayor White said later, "The people of Manchester know my past and present record. From what Raney says about me, it seems he doesn't know me very well."

Then the mayor quoted this piece of Scripture: "Blessed is the peacemaker for he shall see God," adding, "I wonder who Raney will see when he leaves here."

The Mayor said in regard to this U.M.W. rally held in Clay county: "One thing which I am very grateful and thankful is that we accomplished what we strive for here in Manchester—that we peace."

He expressed appreciation to Governor Wetherby and State Police Commissioner Guthrie Crowe and the men who serve under him.

In contrast to U.M.W. claims that county miners are being paid $4 a day, Clay M. Bishop, a mine operator, said miners generally are earning $12 for 8 hours. Machine men and their helpers receive as much as $18 to $20 a shift, he added.

The U.M.W. has promised miners $10.35 a day plus other benefits if they will become union members, Bishop said.

Authorities Reported Studying Rough Fish Situation at Dewey

While anglers of the area this week awaited with some anxiety a report from the Department of Game & Fish on the abundance or scarcity of game fish in Dewey Lake the Department was planning action against the rough fish which are known to be there in abundance.

Minor Clark, head of the fisheries division, said this week he has been trying to get Great Northern pike for the lake and that this species will be added when available in an effort to control the growing and carp population. A similar experiment was made at Herrington Lake with marked success.

Asked about walleyes for the lake, he expressed the belief that natural stocking will supply that species. He based this belief on the fact that walleyes are known to be in Big Sandy and that they have access to the larger body of water through files of the dam. Some walleye have been reported caught since the lake was impounded, but these reports have not been confirmed.

Mr. Clark and other officials of the Department office will attend the district conservation officers' meeting which will be held July 6 and 11 at the camp on Dewey Lake of R. B. Burke, seventh district supervisor.

To buy a sewing machine, the Milburn 4-H club in Carlisle county raised $130 by holding an old fiddlers contest.

The sale of Kenland red clover seed in Jackson county jumped from 60 pounds in 1951 to 2,000 pounds this year.

in the case, it was said. Only one principal was transferred, and that was Eugene Conley, who had been nominated by the Board of Education to succeed Superintendent Turner as principal of the Maytown school, but who had not begun his duties there.

Aside from teacher placements and the employment of special teachers, office personnel and school bus maintenance men, the Board considered certain individual school problems.

It heard a plea for a school on Campbell Fork S. R. 2 of Cow Creek where approximately 40 children are, furnished in winter, and cared for by the Baptist Church here $100 a year rental on a building there. The Rev. L. W. Benedict, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here, said the church will erect the structure for regular church purposes and leave it for school use.

The Board voted an outright trade of school sites at Backinham where a new road through survey involves school property. The new site will be across the railroad and creek, and the fiscal court has agreed to move the three-room school to that site without expense to the Board.

Addition of one room to the Sellers Branch school will be the subject of a study to be made, and the State Board of Education will be asked for approval of the project. It was said.

Regular school bus drivers and janitors were not employed. Summer janitors recommended by Mr. Hall were hired at half-pay for the months of June and July.

The rural school term will begin July 21. Consolidated schools will begin their terms, Sept. 2.

Superintendent Turner noted that the number of emergency teachers had dropped from more than 100 one year to 57 at this time, with only three of them being assigned to high school work. "I have been told, however," he added, "that in the past many applicants have filed for teaching posts merely to provide job insurance and later have refused to teach. This has placed the board under a handicap, faced with the task of finding replacements at once and usually from the ranks of emergency teachers. I hope all those who have applied this year mean business, and will not disappoint me."

The drop in emergencies may be ascribed, it was said, to two causes: 1. More teachers have applied for positions, some because of changing economic conditions; 2. A larger number of persons have taken the additional training necessary to get out of emergency class.

The teacher-placements made Tuesday, filling all positions in both the rural and consolidated schools, follow:

IT'S A GIFT, FELLOWS!

While anglers hereabouts were vainly attempting to coax the way bass into striking, Dr. R. M. Sirkle, of Prestonsburg, and Chas. Moore, of Lexington, formerly of McDowell, were having better luck salt water fishing off Sarasota, Florida, as the photo here shows. Dr. Sirkle, left, and Mr. Moore shake hands after catching the two big tarpon in the picture. The Lexington man's, first strike of the day, weighed 55 pounds and was his first big fish. Dr. Sirkle's tarpon weighed 77 pounds.

At that, the two weren't in Florida just for the fishing. They had been to the Shrine's convention in Miami, and stopped at Sarasota, en route home. Dr. Sirkle is deputy grand master of the Masonic grand lodge of Kentucky.

Mr. Elliott was an engineer and surveyor and not too much interested in the telephone company he had started and developed. So when Mrs. Roberts approached him about buying the line a trade was made, a quarter of a century ago, and smiles, her eyes filled with mirth. B. F. moved the switchboard from place to place. He moved it up on the hill. He had to move it again, up on the hill where Jack Scott now lives. After a short time

TO THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT NO. 1:

Several people have asked me why I want to be Constable and I admit that's a fair question so I will try to explain. To start with, I'll admit the office isn't important and that it has no excuse for being. But we have it, and somebody must be selected to run it. Now can I go out and try to make money by breaking the law. No, can I go out and try to make money by breaking the law. No, can I go out and try to make money by breaking the law. No, can I go out and try to make money by breaking the law.

I am a member of the Presbyterian Church, and if I am to be a Christian I am not afraid to take money by giving protection to a moneyed few who would like to make more money by breaking the law. No, can I go out and try to make money by breaking the law. No, can I go out and try to make money by breaking the law. No, can I go out and try to make money by breaking the law.

GIVE HIM THE GOVERNOR'S DUES

The Republicans are all set for the grand old party at Chicago next week which is being billed as the "burr" against the "elephant". But Judge S. C. Ferguson, of Prestonsburg, will take that shebang his party threw at Beattyville, back in 1906.

This was the Congressional district convention at which the late John W. Langley backed Tom Hopkins for Governor. It was a nomination. This also, by the way, was the year that Mr. Bryan was packing a train on the Floyd section, beside U.S. 23 near the present Harold postoffice.

"When he carried the switchboard up the steps, he said: 'Now, Mrs. Roberts, I have moved this thing enough. Let it stay here.' Stay here it did," she said.

While talking she answered the phone. She traded another one for the one now in use and the board she got was used. Was it 50 years old? She guessed it was.

That reminded her of an old telephone on her line. It was there when she bought the company. "That telephone has been in use all these years and has never given me a bit of trouble. We all talk about that old telephone but as long as it gives us good service we don't bother it. It's now 40 years old."

The first years of her ownership of the line were hard ones. She worked on the line with the men. She carried wire and assisted with the ladder as the lineman had no climbing hooks. She reached wire up the pole to Jimmy Castle, the lineman. At another time she, B. F. Elliott and Mrs. Elliott moved a long line near Ivel from a road right-of-way.

Back to those early days when the line needed a name. Mrs. Pebble Johns named it. Pebble was an operator for B. F. when he owned the line and stayed on to teach Mrs. Roberts exchange work. So when she wanted to call it the Roberts Old Telephone Company, Mrs. Roberts acceded. Olga was her daughter, now Mrs. Harold Conn.

Most of her children, grandchildren and sons-in-law have helped her in some capacity. Rachel, a daughter, now Mrs. Fred Gearheart, was an operator, after Sadie Raiford, who was one of the few outside the family who worked as operator. Sadie was the cook, too, and while she was in the kitchen Mrs. Roberts answered calls.

Rachel's oldest daughter Mavis helped out as operator. But it was Helen, another granddaughter, now Mrs. Glenn White, who became her mainstay for a long time. Helen operated, kept the records and her husband for a long time served as part-time lineman. Nell, Helen's sister, is one of the regular operators now.

Leonard Roberts, a nephew of her deceased husband, was at one time a schoolboy lineman. He went to school at Betsey Layne and did line work in his day. Some times he arrived at the schoolhouse with sweat and grime all over his face, carrying a load of tools. Leonard's biggest experience, Mrs. Roberts thinks, was the time Bill Layne's bull ran him up a telephone pole and maintained snorting guard over him there for two or three hours. Neighbors hearing his cries for assistance ran the animal off.

It was Leonard in his capacity as schoolboy lineman who attended the line to J. K. Stratton's at Ivel. This part of the line has now been discontinued.

"You hear surprising things, very interesting things, on a party line," said Mrs. Roberts. She did not say, but we knew that her life had been interesting, too.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE
 By GORDON WILSON, P.L.D.
 Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

"THE SINGER WEEPS"
 Often when I have listened to a folk singer, the genuine sort rather than a theatrical client, I have noticed how he has had difficulty in getting by some of the pathetic passages without genuine emotional feeling, almost to the point of tears. One of the best singers told me that he actually felt weak after singing "The Death of Queen Jane" or "Barbara Allen." So did I, and I told him so, for his singing brought back the emotions of the folk groups that I knew so well when I was a boy. Those who look upon folk literature, oral or written, as something cheap or emotionless are doing violence to one of the finest things in our nature. Of course, the singer wants to weep at the tragic events of his songs; he does those who listen understandingly. I recall how a cultured lady who sat by me at one of the meetings of the Kentucky Folklore Society cried unashamedly as a Negro quartet sang fervently "Steal Away to Jesus" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." She said it brought back all the emotions of her childhood, spent in the Delta Country where the music that she knew was always colored by the rich, melodious voices of the Negro workers in the cotton patches. Those who listen to folk music as rendered by a good singer and do not feel a surge of emotion have progressed too far from folk life to be reached by even the best art. I have known "Foggy, Foggy Dew" a great many years and have loved its strange and tragic story, but it failed to reach me at my best until I heard it sung recently by a young woman who grew up in the mountains of Tennessee and sings folk songs beautifully and expressively. The whole tragic feeling of the simple ballad broke on me, and I must have looked like a queer old man to youngsters seated near me as I had to reach for my handkerchief. After all, the same tragedy was told in the few stanzas of "I Told in an extended novel or even a short story would bring many a tear, in the silence of one's own room as he read of the old yet ever-new sorrows of one who loved not wisely but too well.
 Bradley Kincaid's saying that the folk song is about something that happened is pertinent here. When we as children listened to Aunt Jane sing "Barbara Allen," we shared with her in the strange happenings by which a beautiful girl brings about the death of her lover and then dies of grief. Barbara may have lived, and Kincaid says he thinks she did. Anyway, I knew cases in our remote little world that deserved a ballad, cases that would be better than...

G.O.P. Chances Slim, Digest Writer Warns
 Pleasantville, N. Y. — A warning that the Republicans need a miracle in political leadership" to win the presidential election is sounded in the July Reader's Digest.
 Discounting the advantages favoring the Democrats as "enormous," Stanley High, noted political writer, appraises the 1952 campaign as involving "more than the success or failure of either party." Another Democratic victory, in High's opinion, will raise the question: "Can a party, entrenched in control of the resources of the U. S. Government by six successive victories, be beaten?"
 "The choice," he warns, "is between a single, unbeatable party and our uniquely American democracy."
 High points out that, to win again, the Democrats "need gain no new territory; only hold northern states which in Presidential elections since 1928, have been consistently Democratic."
 The Republicans, who "are certain only of Maine and Vermont," High says, "must get 258 more electoral votes. The Northern negro vote, once overwhelmingly Republican, is now largely Democratic. Farmers, once strongly Republican in the North, are now rated 92 percent Democratic. Voters under 30 years of age favor the Democrats by a margin of 17 percent, according to a recent survey. In party affiliation, 41 percent of U. S. voters are Democratic, 22 percent Republican, 27 percent Independent. In 1948, the Independent vote was 37 percent Democratic."
 High lists among the "formidable" forces available to the Democrats:
 More than 25 million voters receiving federal checks.
 A political machine manned by 2,000,000 federal checks.
 A government publicity and propaganda organization of 45,000.
 The federal treasury to draw on.
 A government publicity and propaganda organization of 45,000.
 "The federal treasury to draw on."
 "and the means to exploit them threaten the structure of our government by endangering the two-party system which is its foundation."
 "The challenge to the Republicans is to nominate for the Presidency a candidate who can lift the campaign above narrow partisanship and lead the nation to settle this issue in keeping with American principles."
 Abdullah as-Salim as-Subah, ruler of Kuwait, a near-East country, hardly larger than Connecticut, makes $160,000,000 a year, with no income tax, says Edwin Muller in the current Reader's Digest. In the palmy days of the Rockefeller, Morgans, and Indian princes, none had wealth approaching this. Abdullah endeavors to spend it wisely, for the welfare of his people.

 FLYING SAUCERS ARE NEW ONLY IN NAME
 "The Flying Saucers" are new in name only says James F. Arwell, in the current Reader's Digest. As long ago as 1870 a mysterious sky traveler was sighted from a British frigate in mid-Atlantic. A sketch, made on the spot by the frigate's captain and later published, bears a striking resemblance to the newer drawings of recent years. Arwell reports other instances of "celestial visitors" seen in the years 1882, 1897, 1904, and 1912.

For CORONER

Although the office of Coroner is a non-paying office it is, nevertheless, a highly important office to the people of Floyd county.

In the past it has been an office to be made a joke of, but to the people who have loved ones who have met death in suspicious ways, it certainly is no joke.

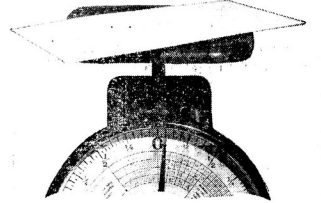

James J. Carter is running for the office of Coroner at the primary election Aug. 2. He is a licensed mortician and is well qualified for the job. He is not a man who will consider the office of Coroner a joke, but will take it very seriously as the people of Floyd county deserve.

James J. Carter is a young overseas veteran deserving of your support. Let's elect him and take the office of Coroner out of the funny class.

If you want to find out what kind of man James J. Carter is, ask his neighbors. They will tell you he is a well respected young man who has never been in any trouble and who has always lived a respectable life.

This has been paid for and donated by a neighbor and long time acquaintance.

A Sound Platform Plank

THE most refreshing idea of the year for a national party platform plank is the suggested Senators Smathers and Douglas and Representative Bennett for adoption by the Democratic convention at Chicago. The members of the party who are in charge of the platform plank which would read, in part: "We have pledged ourselves to the support of a national presidential primary so that the people in both parties can select the president's nominee."

The machine, which will operate with its usual efficiency at both the Republican and the Democratic conventions, will probably brand that as impractical, visionary and unworthy of consideration. If the bosses take this attitude, will pass an opportunity for the party to make a new and powerful appeal to the American people as the party of the people.

For the people of the country are tired of the machine, they are tired of the machine in the nomination of candidates by a hand-picked few or, at the best, of a delegation named by a mere fraction of the voters. They are tired of having their candidates named in "smoke-filled hotel rooms" in the most sordid tradition.

If the people of these United States have enough sense to be self-governing and to elect their officials from top to bottom, they have enough sense to name their candidates. If they haven't, we are farther on the way to dictatorship than we know.

Many farmers in Hart county last about to plant their tobacco crops as a result of the drought last fall, followed by the winter freeze.

The strawberry crop in McDowell county was estimated to have been worth $200,000. Robert Cooper sold $200 worth of berries from three quarters of an acre.

Speed, Drinking Called Holiday's Big Hazard

Frankfort, Ky., July 1 (Sp.)—Speed and drinking drivers are the Fourth of July from a holiday into a day of tragedy, Charles B. Jones, executive secretary of the Governor's Committee for Highway Safety, warned today.

"The three-day holiday over the Fourth of July week-end means Kentucky's highways will probably have more traffic on them than during any other similar period this year," Jones said. "The two chief hazards of the highways, speeding and drinking while driving, will claim a record number of lives if we are not careful."

Jones pointed out that eight Kentuckians lost their lives in traffic accidents over the last long holiday weekend at Memorial Day. Four died during the three-day period over the Fourth of July last year, when the holiday came in the middle of the week.

Speed and drinking figured in a number of these deaths and in numerous accidents where no deaths occurred, Jones said.

Through June 25, Kentucky had recorded 330 deaths for 1952, according to State Police records. Through the same period in 1951, there were 329 deaths.

Three plantings of sudan grass in Hart county are being watched by farmers as a source of supplemental grazing in midsummer.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

BY WILMA Y

This is written two days before we head South for a three-week vacation in several states with relatives and friends. Only those who have less than once annually can really appreciate the joy that is ours when the time rolls around to leave for home. With a sister in Oregon and in New Jersey, another in Texas, and a fourth in Mississippi, we are truly scattered and look forward to reunions.

During the present heat wave the boss insists the Gulf of Mexico is the place he most wants to see. In New Orleans are so close home they are always on the itinerary. This time we just have to see a young couple in Alabama, who were so kind to us on our last visit. Can't trouble (clayed us in a small town this side of Birmingham, near night, and the gang had to call the city to send some part on the next morning. There was not a hotel, motel or taxi in the town. The last but not least, we tried to find tourist rooms in private homes; nothing doing.

A sweet couple in the restaurant where we were phoning and discussing our plight came to the rescue, and introduced themselves as Mr. and Mrs. Buddie Burdick. They insisted that we be permitted to drive us to the nearest motel, seven miles away, and did so in a heavy rainstorm, refused to take one cent. Such unexpected generosity and goodness are not to be found everywhere. We have kept in touch with them since and hope that some day they will visit Dewey Lake and us!

What a green-eyed monster jealousy is. A precious little girl, who once resided in Floyd county, recently won a high honor in a large city, but the joy of it was lost to her when her closest friends dropped her following the keen competition that can exist in such contests. The child herself is modest and she did not mention the honor or the disappointment.

Friendly rivalry is a wonderful thing for us all and persons who grouch over losing are the poorest of sports. Teachers and parents must help them in the lives of their children to learn to rejoice when others are successful, victorious and happy. To help them to rejoice when they do so. If we spend just a small portion of our time seeking to make others happy, to serve humanity, to brighten the corners where we are, we can lose graciously.

Floyd county missed the gorgeous floats on May Day this year at the Music Festival, and it was no secret that many opposed them. We cannot always win but we can do so. If we spend just a small portion of our time seeking to make others happy, to serve humanity, to brighten the corners where we are, we can lose graciously.

Floyd county missed the gorgeous floats on May Day this year at the Music Festival, and it was no secret that many opposed them. We cannot always win but we can do so. If we spend just a small portion of our time seeking to make others happy, to serve humanity, to brighten the corners where we are, we can lose graciously.

A young friend who has been a successful Scoutmaster for some time says he must give it up, and one reason is the lack of cooperation and interest on the part of some parents. So often community work becomes a burden both financially and physically for the few willing to carry on, serving others, without reward or gain, often in the face of criticism from the wrecking crew who never join the construction gang in anything. It is sad but true.

But we could not let this fine, needed by continue with his resolve to drop out of the great organization without reminding him that people do not serve others for praise, credit and glory, for the plaudits of man, but for the good it does.

Wheelwright Juniors Add 2 More Victories To Record for Season

Wheelwright, Ky., June 30 (Sp.)—The Wheelwright Junior baseball team rolled over two more league teams last week to win their tenth game out of 11 starts. In the 11 games played this season the Juniors have scored 118 runs while holding their opponents to a total of 42.

In the two games last week Cannon, the little left-hander, hurled his mates to a 12 to 1 victory over Drift. He was helped by excellent fielding and hitting by his teammates.

In the game played Friday night it was Gene Hall, the curve-ball artist, who held a strong Pikeville nine to only three hits, two of these coming in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Hall didn't win by himself, as his teammates played excellent ball behind him.

The final score was: Wheelwright, 5 runs, 7 hits, 2 errors; Pikeville, no runs, 3 hits, 3 errors.

Any Scoutmaster finds this disheartening when only a small group responds but this is generally true of any endeavor. But there is delight in having a clear conscience, in standing for the best, in being a doer, in helping boys and girls or men and women, in doing one's part and someone else's, if necessary, even if no one says, "Thank You."

Once a woman worked for years, almost single-handed, to put on a beautiful Christmas program in her church. Many would promise to help with the countless tasks pertaining to it and would fall to do so when the time came. The poor woman wondered if any good would come of it for the undertaking was a burden to her. Years later, she found one of the Christmas programs tucked away among the keepsakes of her older son. It had been there since his grade-school days. Scribbled across the bottom were the words in his boyish scrawl: "And my mother made the most beautiful decorations for this Christmas pageant that I have ever seen. The reason that her work had been dreamed of by the one dearest to her gave her renewed heart to go on again. Often we give up too soon. It matters not who plants or waters, for God gives the increase, which is all that counts."

Kindness of Trainers Pays Off in Results

Old-timer animal trainers used blank pistols, whips and iron rods to teach lions and tigers to do stunts. Changing all that, says O.K. Armstrong in the July Reader's Digest, a young German named Karl Hagenbeck demonstrated that animals of all sizes and natures can be taught to perform by kindness, and exhibited outside of cages. Hagenbeck's methods are today used the world over.

T. W. English, Advisor Of Coal Association, Announces Retirement

Announcement was made this week of the retirement of T. W. English, of Ashland, labor advisor for the Big Sandy-Bikhom Coal Operators Association since 1941. His retirement was effective June 1.

Mr. English, a native of Scotland, Pa., started his career in the mining industry upon graduation from high school. His first work in the coal industry was with the H. C. Frisk Oke Co., a U. S. Steel subsidiary, as a member of an engineering crew.

He later was promoted to mine superintendent, at that time the youngest man ever to hold that position with the company.

In 1929, Mr. English joined the Consolidation Coal Company as general manager of its Coalwood, W. Va., operations. About four years later he became general manager of the firm's division at Jenkins.

During the years he spent at Jenkins, Mr. English was active in organizing the Big Sandy-Bikhom Coal Operators Association. For several years he was a member of the arbitration board for the Big Sandy district, and also served as chairman of the board.

Retiring at the age of 70, Mr. English will continue to serve the Association in an advisory capacity and as a member of the arbitration board for the Big Sandy district.

Eagles Here Support More Social Security

Support for a bill aimed at increasing social security benefits and payments, which is now pending in Congress, has been promised by members of Prestonsburg Aerie No. 2866, Fraternal Order of Eagles, according to W. G. Biggers, worthy president of the Aerie.

The bill would provide an increase of 40 per cent for persons now drawing benefits and would provide a like increase for those who retire in the future. Additional provisions of the bill would increase from $150 to $168.75 the monthly benefit payable to a family and would allow retired beneficiaries to earn up to $70 per month instead of the present ceiling of $50.

Mr. Biggers stated that the Aerie would send letters recommending passage of the bill to Senators Clements and Underwood and to Representative Carl D. Perkins.

Additional improvements will include drainage, livestock and buildings.

Multiflora Rose in Use For Floyd County Fences

Times do change, indeed. Once upon a time, not too long ago, our fathers built "stake and rider" fences. Those fences had, probably, more wood or timber in them than any other kind of fence ever built. But the ample oak timber necessary to construct such a fence became scarcer and farmers built paling fences in Floyd county. Finding this was the most uneconomical fence ever built they at last came to use wire and locust posts.

"That is fence history. A new chapter is the use of roses for a "living" fence. Yes, roses—the multiflora rose. Its use began some years ago as an experiment in fencing, perhaps as the American variant of the English hedge fence. Today its use as the United States where it will grow.

"The idea is so radical, especially in this country, that its practicality would be in question here were it not that such a staid and respectable group as the Soil Conservation district supervisors of this county are interested. Several people have started such fences—Alex Spradlin, Gale Music, J. B. Clarke, J. C. Moore, Webster Akers, Lonnie Hall, Woodrow Burchett and others. The farmers mentioned planted their living fences this spring. A thousand plants set a foot apart make a thousand feet of fence. Some have planted 2,000 feet of plants.

Wallace L. Anderson and Frank C. Edmister, biologists for the Soil Conservation Service, have jointly issued a bulletin entitled "Multiflora rose—For living fences and wildlife cover."

They say: "Living fences and multiflora roses are used on more American farms every year. Only recently have farmers had roses come to realize the many advantages of the plant. Chief among these is the fact that it will make a living fence that will keep livestock and your soil in boundaries. It is also the least expensive fence that you can establish and the cheapest to maintain. One thousand plants will give you 1,000 feet of living fence. . . . as compared with the usual fence, a living fence of multiflora rose is a thing of lasting beauty. In the spring it carries masses of white blossoms; in the winter its red fruits brighten the fields. Unlike fences that must be repaired or replaced, multiflora rose fences last a lifetime and will continue to give you children."

You can see by this "plug" that the Soil Conservation Service is an ardent advocate of living multiflora roses. So enthusiastic are they that they will procure the plants, not cuttings, from the Fish & Game Commission and supply them to you free. Of course the Fish & Game Commission is interested because the fences make excellent cover for game.

Qual use living fence of roses for cover. Here in the prickly cover the fox will not attempt to enter in quest of game. So the game commission, interested in game protection, is willing to furnish the plants free of charge to those farmers who will plant them under the supervision of the Soil Conservation Service.

L. R. Johnson, of S.C.S., who came to Floyd county from Fleming, says the biggest use of multiflora rose he ever saw was by a former Floyd countyman, J. P. Hall, who moved from here to Fleming county several years ago. Hall built a farm pond of approximately three acres, some 20 feet deep. This was 11 years ago, about the time the Soil Conservation Service started advocating multiflora rose for fences. The large amount of soil thrown up from the huge excavation was in process of eroding away. To, its erosion would eventually destroy the pond. So the excavated soil was planted in multiflora roses. The protection afforded was complete. One soil conservationist said that this was one of the best examples in the state of erosion control by multiflora roses. So multiflora has a multitude of uses. Living fence, gully control and the soil conservation men say, highway beautification. Highway plantings give erosion control and a beautiful covering for an otherwise ugly spot.

Living fences of roses! No longer do you have to "lay a worm" as the builders of "stake and rider" fences did. Neither do you have to dig a post hole and stretch abashed wires. You merely plant long rows of roses.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SUGGESTS USE OF MONEY

Editor, The Times:
Some one asked the question about what to do with the $64,000 which was collected to build a county hospital that was never built for some reason or other.
Here is my idea of what to do with it. Let's use the $64,000 to build a county home for the unfortunate aged men and women, for the orphan children, for the orphan children of our county. Why have to send our children and aged to some other county to take care of when we can do it in our own county? Other counties have orphanages. If this money is not used for this purpose it will be gobbled up some way or ways. We taxpayers will never know. If the $64,000 isn't used, we get more just like we set this amount, and I am sure there isn't a taxpayer of Floyd county who would refuse to cooperate on this issue 100 per cent.

We have one of the richest counties in the state, so there is nothing to hinder us from having a place in our own county to take care of our unfortunate citizens. And another thing, I don't think the $64,000 should be spent to purchase a site for such purpose. It should be donated by some good citizens. It doesn't have to be on the highway. Go up some of these country roads and build it. I think I know where it can be built and the land won't be on which to build it. I can name a few places where they have homes for orphan children, etc., on country roads that are just as rough as we have in this county.

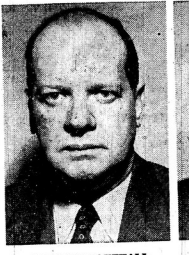

Why put this money aside when it can be used as stated, would be one of the best deeds our county could ever do with it. In addition to a home for our unfortunate aged, we could either build a school for the orphan children to attend. We have the teachers who would be glad to teach such schools. By doing this it would lessen the county of illiteracy.
Now, a question: Who has this money? And really whoever has it just what do you intend to do with it? If anyone can think of a wiser way to spend it, I sure would love to know now.

Driver Training Pushed For State High Schools

Kentucky's Department of Education is encouraging all high schools in the state where such training does not exist to inaugurate driver training courses, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler.
Butler said a new manual on driver education, which will be issued this fall, will push classroom study of the impossibility of obtaining automobiles, he said.
"Although the ideal training includes on-the-road instruction by a qualified teacher, lack of cars should not prevent schools from teaching driving. Much valuable instruction can be given in the classroom that will benefit the student when he starts the actual operation of an automobile."
Under the state's present course of study, it is recommended that students spend 12 hours in an automobile during a semester course. Six hours are spent in observation and six hours behind the wheel. Remainder of the course is in the classroom.
Butler said teacher training courses in driving are being given this summer at the University of Kentucky and Morehead State Teachers College, and that he hopes similar courses will soon be offered at other state colleges.

E. B. Whalin, director of Health and Physical Education for the Department of Education, said about 15 Kentucky high schools offered driver training last year to approximately 3,000 students. He expects an increase during the coming school year.
The pioneer Floyd county school in this field is Garrett high where driver training has been a part of the curriculum, the last two or three years.
The Department is cooperating with the Governor's Committee in promoting the training.
