This Town That World

OH, BOY! Some of the things that were happening to the Republican convention...
They hired the hall—now why don't they charge admission?

LEAVE US THAT! So by the papers where the Episcopal Church objects to these kind of candidates...
I have seen nothing in this which explains the ritual and theory and a host of other things, and not explaining the beds and person the music was the only thing that could be said about the whole thing.

FM-11! Mr. John M. Davidson of Manchester, N.H., announced that his business "I want" said he to meet the city who reads this column in the "Floyd County Times" that I read every Monday.

Somebody asked a "thunk" in my direction and said, "I think it's you." He said he had a child almost her "Oh!" One of the literary circles is that which tells of somebody's face falling. We'll have to wait for the next copy-kill.

Some smart wits, needless to say, have been making you and your friends the very worst thing you could do to the price of the Floyd County Times. I got my fall and winter mail order catalogue yesterday.

THE TUMULT AND THE SHOOTING... The crowd of thousands and catches the other fellow for his mistakes when his plans to make.

In addition to members of the organization, the hi-links will have a district American Legion representatives will be interested onlookers.

The accident took place at 9:30 a. m., and he died at 1:15 a. m. Monday at Green County Memorial hospital, Xenia, without regaining consciousness. Death resulted from a skull fracture.

BLOOD QUOTA IS NOT MET

Despite Legion Work, Garrett Falls Short; Blood Asked for Korea

Despite the fact that 131 persons had indicated they would appear to give blood, that 35 others came as walk-ins, the bloodmobile on its tour Tuesday morning received only 52 pints of blood, it was said here.
A member of the Red Cross regional office in Huntington said a shipment of blood for Korea was asked for Wednesday, and he expected that the bloodmobile's supply may be inadequate to fill that urgent request.
The disappointing showing made Tuesday morning he laid to lack of interest on the part of those sponsoring this first visit to the community of the bloodmobile, it was pointed out. The hard work of Shelby Draughn, a lieutenant of George S. Oswald post, American Legion, members of the local Auxiliary and the Boy Scouts in behalf of the blood program were given special mention. There were only 17 regular donors.
The 52 pints of blood were received was given by Eugene Martin, of Eastern, a soldier home from the Korean front, and by Mrs. J. W. Clark, of this county. He returned to duty the following day.
Next stop of the bloodmobile in this county will be at Martin on August 20.

Directors' Election Spices REA Program Staged for Members

In half a day Friday and all day Saturday the Big Sandy Rural Electric Co-Op's sixth annual Farm Show here last week-end was seen and enjoyed by an estimated 6,500 persons.
"It was the largest attendance we have ever had," an official of the cooperative said.
A splendid show, was the consensus of comment from those who saw it.
Farm families from Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Lawrence and Boone counties saw, during the two days, a program which included a beauty contest, a handicraft exhibit, Western riding and shooting acts, a sensational trap act, radio singers, and to top it all, probably the most spirited election ever held for posts on the Co-Op's part of directors.
Newly elected directors from this county are:
District 5—Abe Green, of Cliff, by 202 votes to 167 for Lewis Barbeck, of Emma; District 6—H. R. C. Bonanza, 255 votes to 178 for H. B. Church, Prestonsburg; District 7—Walter R. Hippo, 147 votes to 140 for Curtis Ousley and 130 for William Hicks, also of Hippo.

Vacation Period Past, Many Miners Yet Idle

The miners' vacation was over with the beginning of this week—over now many hundreds of them are wondering if there's work ahead to end the lay-off.
Coal production has been steadily increasing for the last four months and now it has sunk to the point where this field is operating only about 40% full strength, with the picture growing fiercer and the demand for coal less.
This gloomy view of the situation was expressed by the Big Sandy, Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute this week in reply to queries as to Floyd county's production from this field dropped to 612,659 tons.

Church was defeated on the basis of the official returns by H. R. Burke, of Bonanza, for one of the three directors of the Co-Op.
If the election is voided, the present directors, Clabe Bingham, of Bonanza, and Glenn Burchett, of Hippo, will remain in office till the next election—annual or special—is held, it was said here.

The ballots for the primary had already been completed, and County Clerk DuRan Morel Carter, who will occupy the No. 1 spot with Blackburn out, says he could not be reprinted at county expense. Carter then contracted with the Mountain Printing Company for the job to be done all over again.
Also out of the primary is Charley Laferty, of Prestonsburg who had filed for the Democratic nomination for Coroner in District 1. He was named the candidate line-up for that office, in order: Dayton Jones, Jewel D. Fitzpatrick, Banner Burckett.

Hick's Name Ex-Wife, Her Kin in Warrants Alleging Kidnapping

A Floyd county war veteran swore out warrants this week charging six of his neighbors with the kidnapping of his son.
The complainant, Vernice Hicks, stated that his 12-year-old son, Tommy, was spirited away in an airplane from Garrett Tuesday while he and the boy, now residents of North Carolina, were visiting his father, Alex Hicks, on Stone Coal.
Jailed Thursday night by Deputy Sheriff J. M. Hill was Thomas DeWitt, a Knoxville, Tenn., resident; Mrs. Vera Phillips, who now resides in West Virginia, Wednesday afternoon, July 5, and she was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Seggs Daniels at Whitehall on the same charge.
Warrants for these two and for George Johnson and Earl Drury, Kentucky kidnappers, were issued by Magistrate M. C. Wright. These warrants were placed in the hands of Sheriff Daniels.

MINE SAFETY BILL ENACTED

Legislation Feared By Local Operators Sails Through Congress

The mine safety bill which a majority of this section feared as a measure which would destroy the industry in this field passed its last hurdle in Congress last week, and this measure federal inspectors have no enforcing authority of their safe recommendations.
McConnell said his bill stayed out of the general anti-union debate and away from health problems, leaving these problems to the state mining departments. His bill concentrates on the safety of the mine.
The Senate passed the bill by a vote of 77 to 19, and the House by a vote of 377 to 10. The bill was passed by the Senate without debate and by voice vote.
Senator Neely (D, W. Va.) told the Senate the House bill was a revision of his mine-safety earlier this year.
Neely said he did not like some of the changes, but urged acceptance of the revised bill because "we face the alternative of having no legislation on this subject."
In the House, jammed with last-minute general anti-union bills, the bill was limited to 20 minutes for each side.
Representative McConnell (R, Pa.) said he had found the Senate bill far too broad. He said he "hedged it round" to stop too much invasion of private industry and states' rights.
The Senate bill would have permitted federal inspectors to close down mines that were hazardous, and contained no provision for a review of decisions to shut down a mine. It would have given federal inspectors no enforcing authority of their safe recommendations.
McConnell said his bill stayed out of the general anti-union debate and away from health problems, leaving these problems to the state mining departments. His bill concentrates on the safety of the mine.

TO BE FIELD DAY ATTRACTION

Purebred livestock fanciers will find Gay Baca Duke, the two-year-old Hereford bull shown above, an interesting individual in the herd of Miles Gibson when the Floyd county Farm Family Field Day is held on the Gibson farm, near Maytown, July 31.

The Duke was in show condition when this photo was taken, and now is a splendid specimen. Mr. Gibson, whose herd includes 11 purebred Herefords and 24 grade cattle, bought the bull from J.D. Gay, Jr., owner of Brookview Farms, Pine Grove, Ky., which is near Lexington.

New Plan Pays $200 a Month When Laid Up—Even For Life! Pays $500 Doctor Bills, Too!

A new plan that pays $200 a month to men and women who are laid up by sickness or accident, whether for one day or even for life itself and paying their doctor bills, too—has been announced by the president of a large Chicago company.

This new plan provides for the regular expenses of the family and pays the doctor bills, too," declared E. A. Breskin, president of the Sterling Insurance Company. "It assures continuing monthly income from the very first day of medical attention for as long as you're laid up—even for life. What's more, this Sterling plan never reduces benefits at any age."

The important new doctor bill benefit pays the actual bills you get from your own doctor, or $25 up to $500 for each sickness or accident.

This "superior income protection plan" pays $200 regular monthly income from the first day you see your doctor and for as long as you are laid up with $500 a month payable for as long as 6 months when hospitalized. $5,000 insurance against accidental death, increasing to a maximum total of $10,000 is also included in the plan.

Other important features of this low-cost plan include home nursing care, payment for non-disabling accidents, non-confining illness, ambulance service and other benefits.

TO THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT NO. 1:

I am running for Constable of this Dist. No. 1. I have lived here for the past 17 years, and I hope I have made several friends during that time. I have never paid a fine in my life for a violation of the law. I don't think you have to be a member of a church to be a good citizen. You should all know me—I have been in the cafe business ever since I have lived here. If you voters of Floyd county believe I will give you a fair deal, vote for me and I will prove to you what I am. Your vote will be greatly appreciated at the Democratic primary, August 2.

"The Times is indebted to Jesse Stuart, poet-novelist, for much of the information of Clarke's career," said the writer and Mr. Clarke have long been close friends and the two have visited Clarke's boyhood home in this county together. As a young teacher in the Plum Grove school in Greenup county it was Clarke who taught Stuart to read and write.

"I was 14 years old," Mr. Clarke recalled, "before I saw a railway train. My mother died when I was 6. My father, T. C. Clarke, and my two younger sisters ran the home together."

"I was determined to get an education. When I was 15 I ran off to Greenup to go to school. I had finished the sixth grade and was put in the eighth. To earn my way I shined shoes and passed newspapers in Greenup."

Mr. Stuart said records of the Greenup schools revealed that Mr. Clarke was a member of the Greenup high school history.

"There were no paved streets and the roads were dusty in any weather," Mr. Clarke said. "I remember washing my boots in Brandy Creek before going into the school after a week-end."

Mr. Clarke lived with a grandfather, A. J. Ewsome, near Greenup. During summer vacations he worked on the Selby Shoe Co. plant, first in the shipping department under Ollie Peed at 15 cents an hour.

He took the teacher's examination in Floyd county, and topped the class, but was too late to get a post. He went to Greenup and took the exam and again topped the class.

Superintendent John Prichard recommended Mr. Clarke to the Plum Grove school board and he got his first teaching job there in a one-room building with 54 pupils from the first to the eighth grades.

The school term was from July to January.

Mr. Clarke went to a business college at Paducah, Ky., and studied bookkeeping two years. He passed the examination, which required two weeks.

After teaching the second year he returned to the Selby Shoe Co. plant, went to work in the supply room and was promoted to the office. He was offered a teaching post at Ashland and then rejected the job to remain at Selby's.

"After I worked in the Selby office awhile," Mr. Clarke said, "I believed opportunities to reach the top were limited. So I took a civil service examination and got a job in the income tax bureau at Washington at $75 a month."

"When I got to Washington I decided to be a dentist, but changed my mind and studied law at night at George Washington University."

"While there I made my first real estate venture and bought a home for $4,500 and sold it for $6,200. I borrowed $250 to make the down payment."

But he "got skinned" on his second real estate venture, he confessed with a grin.

Mr. Clarke continued his schooling at George Washington U., getting up early in the morning to study and spending the week-ends in the Congressional Library.

He continued to advance in the Treasury department and was promoted to chief of an income tax section. At the same time he received a master's degree from George Washington U.

He returned to Portsmouth in 1922 and opened a tax consulting office. Oddly enough, his first case came from the Selby Shoe Co. He won a substantial tax refund for the company.

He retained a home in Washington until 1927 when he moved to Portsmouth.

One tax case led to another and his reputation expanded. He has clients now as far west as at the central states.

While devoting most of his time to tax cases, Mr. Clarke branched into business and real estate. He is considered one of the largest real estate owners in Scioto county, Ohio.

His business ventures include the Blumont Insurance Co., Valley Supply Co., Pure Milk Co., in Portsmouth, Ashland and London, and the Structural Steel Co.

He's a quiet, modest, unassuming man.

He recalled his first trip to Portsmouth in 1909 by boat on the old Greyhound packet. He visited an uncle who lived at Sixth and Gay streets, on property now owned by Mr. Clarke.

He had little money, but was fascinated by his first sight of ba-

Ex-President Hoover, who, for all his admirable traits as a good, solid citizen, didn't set the world on fire as the nation's Chief Executive, stood up in the Republican convention Tuesday night as an old statesman and told wherein Democratic administrations have failed the United States and the world. It was all very impressive, and Mr. Hoover probably was in dead earnest.

If ever a man was entitled to lay it on the opposition with a vengeance, it's Hoover. For he's been the target often enough, and has suffered the last of men's tongues over the years.

So there you have it. Harry Truman, the man whose own private business went to smash beneath him, at the helm of the greatest business on earth—and Herbert Hoover, the man who had administered to the needs of millions of starving humans overseas, apparently unable when he was President to help his own people.

Tr'm willing to give all the boys the benefit of doubt. At the same time, I'm unwilling to regard any of them as the savior of mankind, and I keep beside me as a watch the convention orator in action a sizeable salt-shaker and I dip therein ever so often for a liberal pinch.

America is a great land. It has stood up under a lot. It can go through the bitterness of political campaigns, with all their schisms, and come up pretty well united for any worthwhile endeavor. Say, "God bless America"—and don't place all your hope and trust in politicians.

Prestonsburg Women At Maryville College

Three Prestonsburg women have been among the 150 Presbyterians from 10 states and foreign countries attending the Leadership Training School on the Maryville College campus, Maryville, Tenn., June 30-July 11.

They are Mrs. Orville Pearson, Mrs. E. R. Burke and Mrs. Frank Layne.

At the school, and at other like it across the United States, between 3,000 and 4,000 volunteer church leaders study each summer. Courses are also offered for professionally trained leaders.

Establishing a route in Clinton county April 1, the Carnation company probably will be picking up 4,000 pounds of milk daily by July. By home mixing of fertilizer, Powell Rakostrov of Westsett county estimates he saved $150 in treatin' 30 acres of pasture.

on the causes of major mine disasters. It permits federal inspectors to close a mine where immediate danger exists of a fire, explosion, flood or accidents on the man-haulage ways or main-hauls.

The bill does not apply to a stream of appeals for operators who do not agree with an inspector's decision.

The bill also sets up a system of strip mines or to mines having 14 men or less working underground.

The bill was attacked as a further extension of federal controls and as an invasion of states' rights.

Representative Lucas (D., Texas), declared the bill was sponsored by the big operators and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to kill off the little, unorganized mines.

This is the first step toward the regulation of every industry in the land. Lucas, who led the opposition, said.

The bill was strongly supported by Congressmen from coal districts, including Carl D. Perkins, Democrat, Hindman, and Wendell F. Beeson, Democrat, Evansville, Ind.

Perkins summed up their position as follows:

"This legislation will save many lives. It will bring about greater cooperation between the states and the Federal Bureau of Mines and will serve as a stepping stone for better mining departments in the various states."

Perkins said the bill was aimed at the 10 per cent of the total coal-mining fatalities that result from explosions and fires.

"If this bill had been on the books last year, the mine explosion at West Frankfort, Ill. last December which took 119 lives would never have happened," Perkins declared.

From 1942 until a few weeks before the explosion, 13 Federal inspectors reported the dangers that existed in the mine, but nothing was done about it, Perkins said.

Coal is the raw material for thousands of chemical products.

To the Voters of Magisterial District No. 1

I hope nobody is disappointed if I am unable to see them. I have no means of transportation and this makes it very hard for me to get over the district. But I am in the race for Constable to win, and with the help of you people I will win.

There are some people in the district who do not know me, and to acquaint them with who I am I mention the fact that my father is J. D. (Jonathan) Fitzpatrick and that mother, who died when I was a small boy, was Nell Short Fitzpatrick.

I repeat my previous statement: I do not think the office of Constable is important to the people; so I will not have any deputies and I will serve only those civil papers the State give me. In this way I can earn a little money which I otherwise could not earn because of near-blindness.

I will appreciate all the help you can give me.

BUTLER GIVES 1952 FIGURE

On Per Capita Allotment Of Money To Counties For School Expenditures

The per capita for the 1952-53 term was announced by Wendell P. Butler, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"Twenty years ago, the per capita was $7. Ten years ago it was $11.69, and five years ago it was $30.65.

The per capita is calculated by dividing the census of school-age children into $28,215,500, the appropriation for the year. The census for next term is 629,250, a loss of 285 children from the term just ending.

It was this small loss that made possible a 1 cent higher, inasmuch as the same amount of money was distributed in 1951-52.

This per capita distribution accounts for 81 per cent of the state's Common School Fund of $31,785,500. The remaining $5,573,000 will be distributed in some 90 of the poorest districts to maintain equal opportunities there more equal to those in wealthier counties.

Total payments to other populous counties are: Boone, $255,388; Daviess county, $249,280.

Pike county, $905,554; Harlan county, $723,874; Perry county, $486,654; and Letcher county, $385,021.

While the census of children showed a loss of only 285 for the state at large, many of the 231 school districts experienced significant changes in population.

As a rule the heaviest losses were in the coal mining area of East and West Kentucky.

Most of the biggest gains were in suburban areas within driving distance of industrial centers.

"The population in rural sections did not change much in either direction.

Taken as a whole, the census shows that areas suburban to Louisville and Lexington are gaining at the expense of the coal-mining sections. Even so, the net loss for the state at large suggests that many Kentucky families have left to find work in other states.

Districts showing a gain of 100 or more pupils are:

Ballard county, 670; Bullitt, 130; Campbell, 106; Carlisle, 140; Daviess, 211; Owensboro, 268; Fayette, 389; Graves, 124; Mayfield, 179.

Hardin, 107; Jefferson, 2,571; Louisville, 227; Kenton, 280; Lewis, 137; McCracken, 1,497; Paducah, 1,471; Meade, 169.

Districts showing a loss of 100 or more pupils are:

Barren, 150; Bath, 117; Bell, 170; Butler, 142; Newport, 140; Carter, 241; Clay, 233; Cumberland, 164; Floyd, 410; Fulton, 152; Grayson, 185; Harlan, 450; Jackson, 287; Johnson, 209; Knott, 175; Knox, 255; Lawrence, 158; Letcher, 213; Jenkins, 150; Magoffin, 433; McCreary, 115; Middlesboro, 402; Ohio, 124; Perry, 482; Pulaski, 299; Rowan, 199; Russell, 195; Warren, 121; Wayne, 105; Whitley, 372; Wolfe, 174.

It Doesn't Have To Be "Cheap"

CAN an agricultural or industrial exhibit such as a county or state fair be staged without "extra" attractions?

Those who have been doing the thinking for us in the conduct of these excellent exhibitions dealing with the life and production apparently think a fair cannot be successful unless there is something of the bizarre, of sensational or off-color to attract the yokels. As a result, fairs in many instances deteriorate into glorified "street carnivals" with girle shows, gambling devices and an assorted array of "attractions" which have nothing whatsoever to do with the progress of a civilized community.

The Big Sandy Rural Electric Co-Op's farm show here last week should convince those of this way of thinking that such things are not necessary. True, there was some show business about this big show which in a day and a half drew an estimated six thousand persons, but it home life and production—a half trapeze act, a bit of natural history, and a beauty contest—all conducted with verve and with complete decorum—constituted the "added attractions" of the Co-Op's big show.

Valuable "door prizes," exhibits of farm-and-home appliances and handicraft, competition for worthwhile prizes, and an annual election thrown in for good measure—these were the main ingredients of the show's success. In short, it was a county fair on a small scale, minus the carnival tawdriness.

Which should prove to the rest of us that a fair can be a success without trying to get the public a mess of dirt that would disgrace any halfway-decent barnyard.

MORE THAN 40,000 PERSONS VISIT LAKE DURING HOLIDAY WEEK-END; RESERVOIR VISITORS SINCE JANUARY 1 NEAR 300,000

The number of visitors to the Dewey reservoir between Jan. 1 and the day's end July 6 was barely shy of the 300,000 mark, according to estimates arrived at by Reservoir Manager Roy Moore and rangers on the lake.

Last week, with its holiday crowds, saw an estimated 66,983 persons at the recreation spot, with the July 4 gathering of 15,515 the largest for the seven-day period. The total for the preceding week was 22,633.

It was estimated that the lake attracted during last Friday, Saturday and Sunday more than 40,000 persons.

Although fishing of Dewey is in season, in the summer doldrums, the sport is attracting most of the reservoir visitors. Bass catches are few, even trolling failing to produce. The same reports come from other artificial impoundments of the state.

You Don't Travel So Far These Days To Be Auto Victim

Frankfort, Ky., July 5 (Sp.)—It's easier to get killed on Kentucky highways than it was a year ago.

Figures released here today by State Police and the Governor's Committee for Highway Safety show that a fatality occurred every 10,873.372 miles driven during the first five months of 1952. It took 10,931,848 miles of driving to produce death in the same period of 1951.

Kentuckians drove 3,949,000,000 miles during the January-May period this year when 308 persons died on the highways. They drove 3,041,000,000 miles through May of last year when 279 were killed.

The mileage statistics are based on gasoline sales reports of the Department of Revenue and estimates made by the State Police and the National Safety Council.

Increases in injuries and in the total number of accidents also got ahead of the increase in miles traveled, the study shows.

An injury occurred every 741,585 miles over the report of the period this year and every 788,641 miles last year. There were 4,516 persons injured through May of 1952 against 4,096 in 1951.

There were 12,336 accidents during the five months this year or every 271,441 miles. The number for the same period in 1951 was 10,721, for one every 283,648 miles.

Mileage reports are not yet available for June but accident records show 242 motor fatalities through June 30. The number for the first six months of last year was 223.

For the next several months the "Sage of Ashland" was confined to his suite of rooms in the old National hotel, his once strong constitution was struggling against the hacking cough and loss of weight and strength characteristic in the final stages of consumption. He had hoped that it would be possible for him to return to Kentucky to die, but by the middle of April it was apparent that he could never leave Washington.

On the morning of his last day, Clay's illness, James, summoned Thomas H. Clay, of Mansfield, to his bedside. "Sit near me, dear son," said the dying man. "I may not see you to leave me for any time today."

Clay died at 17 minutes past 11 o'clock on Tuesday, June 29, 1852, after a long illness of 17 days. In addition to his son and servant, Senator James C. Jones, of Tennessee, was present at his death.

Jones Given Pen Term For Assaulting Ranyon

Charged with maliciously assaulting Commonwealth's Attorney J. A. Ranyon, of Pikeville, last January, Earl Jones, 40, Shelbyton, was given a three-year pen term Wednesday of last week by a jury of the Pike circuit court.

Jones was accused of knocking Ranyon down and beating him on a Pikeville street. The veteran attorney required hospital treatment and was confined to his home several weeks after the attack. It was reported at the time that Jones' wife had been in the hospital about a divorce suit, but that the couple was later reconciled.

Agriculture is Kentucky's leading source of employment. Over 36 per cent of her people work on, or are connected with, farms.

Clay's Death, Century Ago, Cause of National Mourning

By J. Winston Coleman, Jr.

Henry Clay, Kentucky's favorite, though adopted, son, had come to Lexington shortly before 1800. He was a professor of law at Transylvania University, then the only university in the west and a school ranking with the best in the east. As he moved in ever-widening circles of public life, he gave up his active teaching career, but continued his interest in education through a life-long membership on the Transylvania Board of Curators.

In 1851 he was 74 years old. He had served the nation and Kentucky well. In the fall of that year, aged and feeble though he was, as United States Senator from Kentucky, he journeyed alone to Washington. The 12-day trip was made by carriage, river boat and stage coach. He answered the roll call on the opening day of the thirty-second Congress, but the hard trip over the mountains had weakened him further. His was his last appearance on the Senate floor.

For the next several months the "Sage of Ashland" was confined to his suite of rooms in the old National hotel, his once strong constitution was struggling against the hacking cough and loss of weight and strength characteristic in the final stages of consumption. He had hoped that it would be possible for him to return to Kentucky to die, but by the middle of April it was apparent that he could never leave Washington.

On the morning of his last day, Clay's illness, James, summoned Thomas H. Clay, of Mansfield, to his bedside. "Sit near me, dear son," said the dying man. "I may not see you to leave me for any time today."

Clay died at 17 minutes past 11 o'clock on Tuesday, June 29, 1852, after a long illness of 17 days. In addition to his son and servant, Senator James C. Jones, of Tennessee, was present at his death.

Heavy tolling of bells announced Clay's death in Washington; all government departments were closed and many of Congress adjourned. Newspapers throughout the land carried the sad news in heavy headed columns of thousands of words. The loss of one of America's most beloved sons.

President Fillmore appointed a committee of six United States senators to accompany Clay's body to Lexington for burial. A round-about route back to Kentucky was chosen to give the public a chance to express its sympathy and mourning. The route took steamboat and train through some 20 principal cities, including five state capitals, and covered about 1,200 miles. The long trip back to "Ashland," Henry Clay's estate near Lexington, was the greatest display of funeral pageantry the country had ever seen.

After elaborate funeral ceremonies in the Senate chamber, the body lay in state until 3:30 p.m., when it was removed to the railway station and placed in a car appropriately decorated. In a few minutes the black-draped funeral train moved slowly west through an avenue of sorrowful, weeping people, for Philadelphia. Clay's body rested overnight in Independence Hall, and on Sunday, July 4, the iron coffin with his remains rested in the Governor's room in the City Hall in New York City, where it was estimated that upwards of 20,000 people came to take a last look at the casket of the noted Kentuckian.

All along the funeral route, each city tried to out-do the other in a public frenzy of grief. Crowds waited long hours at trackside and river bank to gaze upon the coffin. The funeral train finally reached Lexington about dusk Friday, July 9. A torch-light procession, headed by a cavalcade of horsemen, preceded the hearse and mourners out East Main street to Ashland, where the body was deposited in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Clay, as a study.

Saturday, July 10, 1852, was the day of Clay's funeral in Lexington. It was estimated that upwards of 30,000 people came to the Bluegrass capital to witness and participate in the solemn ceremonies. Great crowds lined the length of Main street as the funeral procession passed, which was estimated to have been a mile and a half in length. The services which had been commenced at Ashland were now concluded by the Rev. Edward F. Berkley, pastor of Christ

Episcopal Church, assisted by the Grand Master and members of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, who took charge of the corpse and performed the highest Masonic ceremonies in honor of the illustrious member of their order. During the last rites of the old Whig leader, there rested on his coffin the handsome Masonic apron, given him some years before by General Lafayette who had worn it at the corner-stone laying of the Bunker Hill monument. As sundown the bells tolled and 31 minute guns were fired and thus were ended, in Clay's own hometown, the ever-memorable obscurities of the "First Citizen of the Republic."

The Henry Clay Monument Association, through private subscriptions and state aid, erected a handsome 120-foot monument, which was finished and dedicated on April 19, 1881. On the death of his wife in 1864, his remains were taken from the family lot and placed in a marble sarcophagus and deposited in the vaulted chamber of the Henry Clay monument in the Lexington cemetery. Mrs. Clay's remains were put in another sarcophagus, and placed nearby, at right angles to her husband.

Today the itinerary of historical visitors to Lexington almost invariably includes the last resting place of Henry Clay. On the lofty Corinthian column they see the marble figure of the great statesman standing with his face toward his beloved Ashland, in the attitude of uttering his immortal words of parting: "I know no South, no North, no East, no West"—a refreshing, heart-warming inspiration in the turbulent and uncertain days of the present. "Ashland" itself, furnished with many of Clay's relics and memorabilia, is now a private shrine and is open to all on all days except Mondays.

The Wheelwright Junior baseball team ran its victory string to 20, the last week. They covered Price of the Big Sandy League, 7 to 2, Oil Springs, from Johnson county, 26 to 0, and an all-star team from Weebury and Melvin, 6 to 2.

These latest victories give the Juniors 20 wins out of 21 starts. In racking up their wins the Juniors have played all games and have met and defeated some fine teams.

Bobby Hall, fancy-fiddling second baseman, in the last three games has handled 15 chances without a bobble, and in all games played he has made only two errors. Effort Little and Don King have likewise played some mighty fine ball for their team.

Farmers in Monroe county bought more than 20 fine blooded beef cows at out-of-state sales this spring.

For CORONER

James J. Carter

I was appointed to the office of Coroner to fill a vacancy. Without meaning to brag I can truthfully say that many people have told me that I have done a good job. I have taken this office seriously as a good citizen and Christian should. I do not consider the office of Coroner as political, but our state Constitution states that the office of Coroner must be filled every four years by election and I am seeking that office as an experienced mortician and a young overseas veteran deserving of your support.

I will be subject to call day or night and I can assure you that I will be where I am needed without delay or confusion. I am asking the good people of Floyd county to help me out by voting for me.

It's possible that there will be many people in Floyd county that I will be unable to see before the August 2 primary. However, I will deeply appreciate all the help and assistance that the good people of Floyd county give me. Please remember that any help, large or small, will be appreciated by me.

How your power company's 2-way radio helps in emergencies

Some of the most thrilling human drama that's enacted comes through radio stations you've probably never heard or even heard of.

They're the 92 radio stations of this company and its AGE affiliates and the 999 transmitter-receiver units in company cars and trucks.

Chief job of our 2-way radio-equipped service cars is to protect your electric service, in routine maintenance and in answering trouble calls that save lots of time and money for us and for you. And not infrequently they've gone beyond the call of duty and helped save something more... property, for instance, or even life.

That's where the drama comes in. Drama like the incidents shown here in a few real-life episodes from AGE company files.

Drama is one name for it. Our radio-car service men have another that we like better: being a good neighbor.

Floyd County Historical Notes
 By HENRY P. SCALF

This column is no authority on antiquities, notwithstanding a certain interest. That interest is intensified sometimes when mementos of the past are brought forth for appreciation.
 There is the old Herford watch, for example. It is being carried over by George Herford, Prestonsburg business man, to whom it descended from his ancestor, Dr. J. H. Herford. It was Dr. Herford who was in the Confederate Army and almost had his military career ended at the Battle of Ivy Mountain. The estimable doctor was probably carrying the watch there in the Ivy Narrows.
 The watch, and after all that is what we started to talk about, is a 17-jewel Sewell made in England. It resided in the family archives of the Herfords, grew old with dust and inaction. George, the present day owner, getting the address of the maker from the inside works, wrote the English firm, asking about the possibility of repairs. He had no idea the old company was even in existence. But back came a reply to send the watch over for repairs. They were still doing business at the same London address, after a lapse of over a hundred years. The present day makers had no record of the old key-winder's age. Incidentally, it took a year to get the watch overseas and returned.

It was repaired and is starting on a long run, probably the first part of the second century tick.
 Two weeks ago, The Times carried an article on the May family of May's Branch. There was an accumulation of data left over unused from the article. It is proposed to pass on the residue of information to the public as some assembly will be interested.
 Samuel May, father of Bascom, was born April 17, 1820, died September 22, 1904. He married Mary Osborne, March 9, 1843. Mary Osborne was born Oct. 9, 1823. Solomon P., their first son, killed at Mr. Stelling in the Civil War, was born April 16, 1844. Bascom May, the youngest, was born June 23, 1847.
 Bascom and Annie Rhoda Mayo were married Dec. 17, 1880. Annie was a daughter of Jacob Mayo. In commenting on her marriage to Bascom, Mrs. May said that she was a teacher and that the marriage was deferred a few days until she was 21 years of age.
 For family historians who need the birth dates of Samuel May's children, these dates are recorded here in full: Solomon, as given in a preceding paragraph, Dorcas P., born Sept. 28, 1845; David, October 27, 1847; Elizabeth M., October 27, 1849; Mary Florence, March 2, 1852; Thomas, April 17, 1857; Martha, April 17, 1857; Samuel, June 23, 1859; William Harvey, March 14, 1862; Bascom, as given previously. It is noted that Bascom and his older brother Samuel had identical month and day of birth, although the span of years between was eight.

 The Osbornes, May family tradition states, were from near the present site of Coeburn, Virginia. The ancestor of the Osbornes branch of the Samuel May family was a Solomon Osborn, born 1795, in Virginia. As stated, Mary Osborn, born 1823, married Samuel May in 1843. Mary's youngest sister, was named Frances Afair Quiter, married Julia Ann Advertiser William Harker. What whim of old Solomon Osborn ever possessed him to name his daughter with such a miscellaneous hodge-podge we will never know. But we can understand why his family just called her "Six."

This column is currently at work on the Gearhart family, as usual in such an undertaking assistance is needed. To generalize, Adam Gearhart, who married Rhoda Spurlock in 1808, and who is the ancestor of numerous Floyd county descendants, must have had several brothers. Valentine Gearhart may have been one. Diligent search by this columnist and Pre Gearhart, a Valentine descendant, shows conclusively that Valentine was not a son of the above mentioned Adam, and the record indicates he must have been a brother. Who has any information?

IF YOU WANT BIGGER PAYLOADS, YOU WANT A DODGE

"We solved our hauling problems with Dodge 'Job-Rated' trucks"
 ... says BERNARD J. CARNEY, Manager, Weyerhaeuser & Denkmann Lumber Yard, Rock Island Lumber Co., Rock Island, Ill.
 "Our business calls for trucks that can haul big loads day in and day out—and we like our trucks to last, too! That's why we prefer Dodge trucks that are 'Job-Rated' to fit our particular hauling job."
 "We recently put in service two Dodge 'Job-Rated' 1 1/2-ton models... and they sure haul big loads the way we want them to! For instance, the 170-inch wheelbase models allow for a 14-foot body, which is ideal for our business. And Dodge easy-handling advantages enable us to maneuver these trucks in the same space as some other trucks with 12-foot bodies."

For bigger payloads, choose from many Dodge "Job-Rated" trucks—1/2-ton through 4-ton.
 "Job-Rated" engineering makes it possible for you to haul more with the right Dodge truck for your needs.
 You haul more economically, because of advantages like lightweight aluminum-alloy pistons and others.
 For smoother power and extra load protection, glycol Fluid Drive is available on 1/2, 3/4, 1-ton and Route-Van models.
 Come in for a demonstration—and an extra good deal!

Better weight distribution. The short wheelbase design of Dodge trucks allows more weight to be carried on the front axle. Because the engine is located farther forward and the front axle is moved back, you can haul bigger payloads without overloading.

The right load-carrying units. The frame, axles, springs, and other units that carry the load are "Job-Rated" on Dodge trucks. Each is engineered to provide the strength and capacity needed to support your load. And all are "Job-Rated" to work together!

The right load-moving units. You get an engine that's "Job-Rated" with plenty of power to pull bigger loads at low cost. In fact, all load-moving units—such as clutch, transmission, rear axle—are engineered to move bigger loads.
