ATTENTION, VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

As you know, I was running for Coroner but I learned today I couldn't hold office even if I was elected. To my unfortunate I forgot to file my expense account.

Therefore I ask all of my friends and relatives to vote for James J. Carter as he is qualified and deserving. I owe him my vote and support because of his father and his many favors of the past. Next to my mother, he wrote me regularly while I was overseas in World War II, telling me all the happenings here at home, and trying to keep my morale as high as possible.

"All you people who were for me, I appreciate it to the depth of my heart. Honest, that is the way I feel.

Thanking all of you for your intended support, I remain your friend,

STEPHENS ANNIVERSARY TO BE CELEBRATED AUG. 17

It was fifty years ago last May 6 that James J. Stephens and Lydia Emerson Cooley were married. Celebration of the anniversary on August 17 at their Old Farm home will be accompanied by many reminiscences. After stating that he was married by the Rev. Henry Ford and that the ceremony was witnessed by the Rev. and Mrs. Ben W. Craft, Mr. Stephens indulges in reminiscences.

Mrs. Stephens was the daughter of James Cooley, representative of a pioneer Floyd family, and was reared on the Mutton Fork of Bull Creek. "But for her, life would not have been successful or happy," her husband said.

Reminiscences go back beyond the anniversary date, back to the beginning. James was born Jan. 2, 1872, one of the ten children of Morgan Green and Malinda Hale Stephens. In 1874 the older Stephens moved from Stephens Branch to Bull Creek. Here after the marriage of James and Lydia they set up housekeeping near the present residence of Ralph Marshall. The total amount of money expended by them for this momentous occasion was $11.

Mr. Stephens taught school, beginning back under Mevin Spencer, who was County Superintendent in 1891. Sometime after the death of an only child, James and Lydia adopted a son. The years of teaching in 1874 the older Stephens moved from Stephens Branch to Bull Creek. Here after the marriage of James and Lydia they set up housekeeping near the present residence of Ralph Marshall. The total amount of money expended by them for this momentous occasion was $11.

at fourscore the arduous task of farming is being shifted to others. But he retains an interest in the vocation of his later years, serving as a committeeman for the Production and Marketing Administration of Floyd county. On committee meeting days he may be found entering into the varied discussion of farm problems and after the business session has ended "Uncle Jim" gives advice to many a younger, uninformed farmer who asks for it.

While the anniversary celebration had to be delayed until August 17, many of his friends will gather for the occasion and wish him well.

MAKE TOUR OF WEST

Numerous gifts were received by the couple. Moving pictures were made by Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Berkeley.

Jack Salisbury, 18, Dies As Second Wreck Victim; Cline Killed Instantly

Pikeville, Ky., July 30—Jack Salisbury, 18, died in the Methodist hospital early today, the second victim of an accident on U.S. 119, a mile from Pikeville, yesterday.

Dewey Cline, 20, was killed and Morris Kendrick, a soldier home on leave, suffered a broken arm.

State Patrolman E. L. Corneille said a light truck driven by John S. Allen, 18, ran off the highway at a curve and crashed into an embankment.

Allen was released by County Judge Erwin Pruitt on $1,000 bond on charge of manslaughter, reckless driving and driving without a license.

A. J. Dalton, owner of the truck was released on bond after it was being operated without his consent.

REMINDER

All citizens of Floyd county should exercise their right to vote at the August primary. I certainly hope the people do not neglect to exercise this privilege. I will appreciate every vote cast for me.

Wheelwright Juniors Rack Up 25th Victory; Hall Twirls One-Hitter

Wheelwright, Ky., July 28 (Sp1)—Playing "three strong teams in a period of 24 hours, the Wheelwright Junior baseball team won two games last week to score their 24th and 25th wins of the season but in losing to the Pikeville Panthers the Juniors suffered their second defeat.

First of all they manhandled a Martin-Prestonsburg assemblage of youthful stars, 15 to 5, last Thursday night. Next day, they went to Pikeville to play John Bill Trivette's Panthers, which they had defeated on all three of the previous occasions they had met. This time, however, the Juniors led the Panthers only in the matter of hits. They trailed in the run-making department, 6 to 3, with two Wheelwright errors contributing to Pikeville scoring.

That night with the Pikeville defeat ranking, they invaded Memorial Field, Williamson, for the game with the Wolf Pack, and they went about the business with a vengeance, rolling over the Pack, 7 to 1, with Lee Hall holding the West Virginians to one hit, one unearned run and striking out 14 for his 11th victory of the season without defeat.

To The Voters of Floyd County:

I am taking this opportunity to speak to you before the primary election and to tell you just why I am in this race for Coroner. There has been a lot of talk about QUALIFICATIONS concerning the office of Coroner. I would like to give you my reasons for running for Coroner.

1. The office of Coroner is primarily a LAW-ENFORCING OFFICE. I served four years as Constable of District No. 1 and learned by experience of the necessity of having good law enforcement. Also in that period I found the necessity of having a Coroner free and not obligated to any group or business.

2. I am also aware that for many years the office of Coroner has been the subject of much JOKING. The death of anyone is no joking matter and COMMERCIALISM. It is an important office and should not be handled by any person in the Funeral Home business. In most states any person being connected with a funeral home cannot hold the office of Coroner. Kentucky has no such law but the obvious reason for the law is to prevent any funeral home from making a RACKET of the office of CORONER. I can assure that no such RACKET will exist when I am elected, but your loved ones will be treated with all the kindness at my command.

3. I have also seen in the past the office of Coroner hindering the cause of justice. On several occasions bodies have been moved and taken to a funeral home before the proper authorities had been notified and a thorough investigation had been made. You and I know that this cannot go on and still have proper law-enforcement.

I am a laboring man, who works for a living—the same as most of you—but I am tired of seeing the office of Coroner subjected to a RACKET and would like to see it stopped—just like most of you. It will be stopped when I am elected. LET'S GIVE THE OFFICE BACK TO THE PEOPLE.

I appreciate your support and will do everything in my power to do a honest and efficient job.

Your friend,
MACK HARMON

Floyd County Historical Notes

By HENRY P. CALF

When away from home with an hour to spare and being adjacent to an old cemetery, what could be more profitable for an amateur genealogist than a stroll through the city of the dead? Here, if you are not too far removed from the original sources, may be found dates and names of interest, especially if the place is old.

There was ample proof that Buchanan Chapel cemetery was old. It was a hundred years since Samuel Sperry was buried, for here on the stone was the inscription, "Samuel Sperry, Born March 27, 1775 and died in the triumph of the faith April 30, 1851." Or there are the Buchanan stones, the oldest being that of William Buchanan which reads that he was born Dec. 8, 1769 and died April 8, 1860. Nearby is the gravestone of his wife, Elizabeth. The stone is broken and the dates are indecipherable. Another sister of the Buchanans is Oliver, born Dec. 26, 1815, died Feb. 15, 1897.

Buchanan Chapel, which stands at the edge of the cemetery, is an old church. We are told that it was originally of logs but that about 65 years ago it was weatherboarded. It stands about 1 1/2 miles south of Buchanan, Lawrence county, on a hill overlooking the railroad. His stood there, probably, for a century or more, sheltering the generations of Buchanan, Curritte, Kinmer, Lambert, Frazier, Lakin, French, Bryan and Lane families that came to worship.

Some of the stones recall the first families of Southwest Virginia. Here

P'Burg, Paintsville In Community Contest Sponsored by C. of C.

Kentucky communities are placing great importance on self-improvement and development as a method of acquiring new industry and gaining sound economy via the plan expressed by Robert M. Watt, Lexington, chairman of the Industrial Development Committee of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

Watt, in a report to the State Chamber, said this trend is evidenced by the state-wide enthusiasm of Kentucky communities in the KCC community development program.

Forty areas—cities, counties, and trade areas—through local organizations—have entered the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Community Development Contest and are competing for $4,000 in prizes. The money will be awarded to communities achieving the most progress during a period from April 1, 1952 to Feb. 28, 1953.

In this section Prestonsburg and Paintsville have entered the contest. Designed to stimulate activity in the improvement of all phases of community life, the contest is open to every town and county in Kentucky. Watt said, adding that entries are still coming in from all sections of the state. Deadline for entering the contest is August 1.

Announcements for Sunday, August 3:
8 a.m.—All Sunday Schools as usual (attendance last Sunday, 230.)
10:35—Sermon by pastor, "The Why and How of Christian Love."
3:00 p.m., at Slick Rock, sermon by pastor, "Building a Church."
7:00 p.m., at the church—Training Unions.
8:00 p.m.—Service conducted by Brother Birch and the "Ridgecresters."

Items during week—W.M.S. Circles meet Monday night in homes. Brother Burch will have charge of prayer meetings at the church, Wednesday at 7:30, and at Lancer at 7:30 on Thursday night.

At the Hopkins county homemakers' annual meeting, 115 homemakers modeled the cotton dresses they had made in their sewing project.

Henry Lee Edwards, of Metcalfe county, put up 850 barrels of hay from the first cutting of eight acres of alfalfa.

Any stroll through a cemetery will take the mind, on a flight into the past and the sustained moving of mental images' lines. It is a relief again to approach the entrance gate as if we would cast off the shadow and ghosts of those who were once as we. But the psyche, slow in yielding its moods to the present day, delays its surrender near the gate with a flash to the stone of Dr. J. Allan Frichard (1867-1925) and that of Laura Compton Frichard (1883-1943), his wife. Dr. Allan Frichard was a brother of the late Dr. Carl Frichard, of Harold.

Sew for a year Electrically...

for the cost of a few spools of thread

Imagine all the money you save by making things yourself with the help of an electric sewing machine. Compare that with the 30¢ you pay for the electricity used in a whole year... actually less than 1/4¢ a cent for each hour of use. Cheap? Definitely! This is just another example of why electricity is still the biggest bargain in your family budget. Progressive, economy-minded business management helps keep it that way.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

BY WILMAY

Billie Graham preached from the passage in which Jesus was tempted by Satan, on the one night we heard him emphasize the fact that Jesus answered by quoting passages of scripture from the Old Testament and made clear that Christians today can resist temptation if able to quote God's Word effectively.

Dr. Graham also gave a portrayal of the anemic or sickly Christian who never grows because he fails to feed himself. His long, wiry body almost faked up in collapse as he tried to keep his weak belief on from failure to partake of a balanced spiritual diet. The soul requires nourishment just the same as the body does. The young evangelist outlined the Biblical recipe for spiritual growth: Bible study to include memorizing the word or verses from it, prayer, church attendance and activity, things, etc. When we pause to think how few professed Christians avail themselves of these opportunities to develop into strong soldiers in God's army, it is easy to see why it is so rampant. The few are equipped to fight and to oppose it.

Dr. Graham warned Jackson and Mississippi not to legalize the sale of liquor when the state votes in August on the issue. He declared Jackson the cleanest city he had visited and attributed this to the absence of legalized liquor largely. He bitterly denounced the state's tax on Black Market liquor and did not hesitate to express himself on the racial question, though it meant hitting the South where it is most needed.

Many wonder why this fiery young man has advanced so rapidly in the few years he has been preaching. The answer is simple. He is in close contact with the Almighty God, whose strength and power. And he is absolutely fearless. There is no compromise about him. He does not soft pedal or evade issues. He does not decline to answer questions but gives a forthright reply to any and all, and it is obvious that he is completely yielded to the will of the Master. Christians are praying earnestly that he will lead the nation to a mighty revival.

During the Jackson campaign two men flew from London to hear Dr. Graham and to arrange for an evangelistic campaign in England in 1954, the earliest date available. He is expected to conduct one in France while abroad. He is the first American evangelist to be invited to Europe since Dwight L. Moody sounded the gospel seventy years ago. And like Moody, Graham refused to accept any salary. When the expenses of his campaign are met no further offerings are taken during a series of services. He himself takes only a salary; any surplus goes to the Radio Services, The Hour of Decision, on each Sunday at 2 p.m.

The board of directors of the Martin Passion Pageant has invited Dr. Graham for a morning service on Friday, Aug. 1, at 10 a.m. at the Pageant Day for 1943 or 1944, provided he is close enough to accept the invitation. If not, another outstanding evangelist will be used.

Unquestionably television will do more to inform the American public about the elections than any other medium. It is too bad that the machines and big-wigs who seek to control our conventions, and sometimes our elections, are not more interested in the comparatively new men appear on the national horizon, each with advantages and both with disadvantages. No one can question the ability of either. Without doubt it will be a hard-fought campaign. Either side foolish enough to think victory will be easy in this coming race is likely to get fooled badly. There is more concern being shown in this on than in any for many years.

If part of the time spent in rabble-raising and noisemaking at convention headquarters were devoted instead to prayer that God would truly lead and help the nation, that His man or man would be chosen that America come back to God before some catastrophe humbles us, it would be better.

Our founding fathers and early leaders were guided in motive and deed by religious principles, but today we have veered far from the path of pioneer days. Thousands fear a downfall unless we return to those original religious moorings that made the country great.

William O. Gilreath, of McCreary county, plans to construct a thing county for irrigation purposes and had irrigated 15 acres of hay and pasture this year.

PLANS ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW

Plans for the Maytown Woman's Club at the Maytown Parent-Teacher Association for the second annual Maytown Flower Show were nearing completion. Saturday, September 20, has been chosen as the date. Entries must be registered by 11 that morning. Judging will follow immediately. A chicken dinner will be served at the noon hour, followed by a musical program at 1:30 at which time winners in the flower show will be announced. The music program will feature some of the best talent in Eastern Kentucky. A needlework and bake bazaar will be held from the opening to the closing of the day's program. Proceeds from the dinner and bazaar will be used to improve the Maytown high school library.

The music program will be announced later. Points on which the flowers will be judged will also be announced after further correspondence with the judges.

Flower growers and flower lovers from all over the county are invited to attend and are urged to bring their entries.

A list of committees and persons helping to make this a good flower show follows:

Barckley's Aiken Barkley: One of the 'Aies' That Bind

(TIME Magazine last week featured the familiar face of Kentucky's Aiken W. Barkley, Vice-President of the United States, and followed that up with an article on the "Veep" which, for all its future interest, was as up-to-the-minute as the withdrawal from the list of Democratic Presidential aspirants and his dramatic victory before the convention Wednesday night.

TIME obliged The Floyd County people by volunteering permission for republication of the article, which is reproduced in here.)

"Puddin'! Sugar Puddin'!" sang a husky feminine voice from the back seat of a Packard as Aiken W. Barkley, a full-blown figure of a woman in scarlet hosiery, her hair in disarray, burst on to the deck of the "Look," she said, "I've got Mamie Eisenhower's bangs." Aiken Barkley from his chair, tilted his wife's tousled hair in his big hands, and smiled. "Well," he said, "you're prettier than she is."

Jane Barkley laughed and rattled back inside a Packard as the woman who had come to get her all fixed up for the Democratic convention. Her husband sank back in his chair and a moment later James Barkley, in this week before renouncing his candidacy, he was the most revered of all Democratic politicians in Washington he had defied all political rules by retreating to his comfortable back home in Kentucky. He puttered around his four farms. He went on picnics with Mrs. Barkley; he helped his hired man saw up an odd cherry log.

On his last day at home, he came back from the telephone with a glimmer in his eye. "You know," he said to the man who had just left, "I've broken up there in Chicago with a streak of lightning running right through my name!"

It was the campaign. The Barkleys—the Veep, Mrs. Barkley and her daughter, Jane Hadley—rolled into Chicago three days before the convention, and the candidate's first act was to pin a lightning bolt to his lapel. Then, to prove how young he is at 74, he let a pack of five bullets through the air, they went to his headquarters in the Conrad Hilton Hotel. At a full-dress dinner that night, he was seen encouraging business, the old Jeffersonian slogans appealed to both the planters and hard-pressed city miners.

Tammany contributed far more than control of New York City. It became a model for other city machines and it developed a "classless" political structure that ran all the way from the East Side to New York's Four Hundred.

It was the alliance of city boss and planter was never comfortable. It was often effective. During the long Republican years, the Democrats rarely dropped below 43% of the national vote.

Franklin Roosevelt, son of the Hudson Valley equivalent of the Southern planter, saw that a political house which could hold such disparate elements could be made to hold still wider differences—if only there was attention to the interplay of law and little nonsense as possible about overall party principles. He and the organized labor, Northern negroes, socialists and an assortment of millionaires. The goal was so wide open that even the communists got in when they wanted to.

Today the Democratic party is the home of the most reactionary Southern leaders and the American for Democratic Action. It is the party of the least educated and the college professors; of the uneducated and the millionaires; of the Hollywood glamour-pusses and Tobacco Road; of most Roman Catholics, most Jews, most voting negroes, and most members of the Ku Klux Klan.

As reconstructed New Dealer Leon Henderson put it last week: "The party is strong because the divergent elements are brought together by an unspoken pact of mutual convenience." The Democrats are certainly not lacking in principle; each of the "divergent elements" has a stake in the union of its own. What the Democrats lack are principles held in common by all elements of the party. The "mutual convenience" pact does not create intellectual agreement or compromise on these principles. But it does generate a strong emotional loyalty to the party. The Democrats have far more bitter internal fights than the Republicans, but they also have a sense of feeling that they must stick together. Party love is more highly developed among the Democrats because they need it more.

The Democrats no man is more identified with the party's emotional cohesion than Aiken W. Barkley. He leads no ideological faction, stands for no one of the "divergent groups"; he stands for the glue that holds the party together. He is the party's emotional glue. Barkley has spent a long lifetime becoming the best loved man in the party of love. His yen for politics stretches to his grandpa, Aiken W. Barkley's first stories of her distinguished cousin, Grover Cleveland Vice-President Adlai Stevenson (grandfather of Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson).

To Aiken's lasting political credit, he was born (Nov. 9, 1877), in a two-story log house in the one-crop tobacco country near Loves, Ky. He was the eldest of eight children, and his father's favorite. When Aiken had outgrown the little Loves school, his father loaded the family and their possessions into a single wagon with the cow trailing behind, moved to Clinton, Ky., so Aiken could go to Marvin College as a junior years later, was posted a sign on the lawn: "Barkley Sweep Here," won high grades and a medal for oratory.

For Marvin he went on to Georgia's little Emory College, and worked summer peddling earthenware by horseback through the back country. On his first circuit, he personally guaranteed his customers that the bowls and dishes would not crack with heat. On his second he used his profits making good on the guarantee. Says he: "I wiped out my earnings, but I didn't lose a vote in that part of the country when I ran for office."

Roads to Congress. Barkley picked up law in the informal and highly efficacious way of the times; a few years at the University of Virginia law school, home reading, and a term of clerking in the office of a prominent lawyer. He was fictionalized as Judge Priest by Paul Duncanson's other famous citizen, Irvin S. Cobb. Law led to politics, and in 1905 he was elected to the Kentucky State Bar. He served on a one-eyed horse, stopping at every farmhouse to swap stories and get himself elected county clerk. He was elected to the State Bar in 1909; was to county judge, and the next (in 1912) was to stump campaign for Governor. He landed in Congress.

He arrived at the onset of Woodrow Wilson's New Freedom, set his course with the leadership. He was identified as a progressive. In 1926 Barkley moved over to the Senate, two years later was in such good graces that he was allowed to second the nomination of Adlai Smith at the convention. He stamped for Smith, stamped again for Roosevelt in 1932. In 1937 Roosevelt threw Barkley the majority leadership of the Senate by the famous "Dear Aiken" letter, and "Bumming Barkley"—amably known as the charges of sharp-tongued critics said that he was nothing but a Roosevelt errand boy.

The Rebellions—But his critics didn't know what made Aiken Barkley tick. They found out on Feb. 22, 1944. Barkley had worked faithfully to get through a $105 billion Administration tax bill, came out with $23 billion which he knew was the best Congress could produce in an election year. Roosevelt rejected the $23 billion bill with a single stroke. He was protesting in the Senate that the bill was really "a tax-relief bill, providing relief for the needy by the tax breaks."

To Barkley this was a high-handed, impetuous insult to the Democratic majority. So he rose at front-row desk in the Senate and voice, told off Franklin Roosevelt for "this effort to belittle and discredit the Senate." He said: "I am a Senator, let me say . . . that if the Congress of the United States has any self-respect, let it not be overruled by the Senate, read and cheered and stamped. At a party caucus Barkley resigned as F.D.'s majority leader and, minutes later, resigned as majority leader in a resounding vote of confidence in his independence.

Franklin Roosevelt mumbled a half-apology in a "Dear Aiken" telegram. But five months later, when Barkley was getting ready to nominate Roosevelt for a fourth term at the Democratic convention, Barkley got the news that Roosevelt had passed him over as a candidate for Vice-President in favor of Harry Truman. This was a personal hurt, but not an affront to the party, so Barkley pulled himself together and made the hall echo with his eulogy of the Chief.

Chances are good that Aiken Barkley would be President of the United States if he were not Grover Franklin Roosevelt in 1944. But without that trial by fire, he could never have qualified himself as the loved Democrat, as the symbol of the Democratic mutual-security pact.

He went back to his job of increasing majority leader to bear an increasing personal burden. Dorothy Barker Barkley, whom he had married in 1918 in a farmhouse when he was 25 years old, fell ill with heart trouble. As her condition worsened, she required the attention of a nurse and extensive medical attention. Barkley's finances were exhausted, and he made ends meet by taking on a heavy schedule of out-of-town speeches. After a day's work in the Senate he would fly out to town to deliver a light-hearted speech, pick up a fee ranging from $300 to $500, and fly home again during the night to visit briefly with the dying Mrs. Barker. He then spent again for his daytime work in the Senate. Mrs. Barker died in 1947.

The Ombudsman. Vice President Barkley's loyal party service as a

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE FIRST MAGISTERIAL DISTRICT:

If you will recall, I have not said one ill word to say about either of my opponents. I have no quarrel with either of them, and I admit they have the same right that I have to run for office.

I am simply making the race for Constable in this district because I feel I can do a good job for the people. I know that promises come cheap, and so I only say, elect me, give me a trial and I will prove to you that I will do what is square and right between all the people in this district.

I don't expect to get rich out of the office. I am a poor man, and I am not interested in having a lot of money. I am only interested in getting by with satisfaction. I don't expect the Constable's office to supply me any money with all my money needs.

I will deeply appreciate your support at the primary election next Saturday, August 2, and I thank you in advance for whatever you may do for me.

DAVID

Mrs. Ora Bussey has returned to David from the Prestonsburg General hospital after a brief illness.

Sgt. Orville Dempsey is now stationed at Fort Knox. His mother and sister, Oma, will visit him in Logansville the end of the month.

Andrew Dempsey died July 22 and was buried at Verdunville, W. Va., last Friday.

Miss Marie Donahue and Donnie Huddleston visited Mr. and Mrs. Wm Crawford and family during the past week.

Ewert Hager was in Logan, W. Va., over the week-end.

Dawson Bussey has been the guest in Birmingham, Ala., of friends and relatives.

Mrs. Hubert Durham and sons, Larry, Edgy and Charles, are staying with Mrs. A. E. Durham while Rev. Durham is in the hospital at Huntington, W. Va.

Miss Jane Crawford is home from Camp Hinton in Welch, W. Va. A few days ago, Mrs. Shirley Hager traveled to Charleston, W. Va., visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. Hager is expected to return to David in the early part of August.

For the past two weeks, David has been a lonely and anxious community. Lonely because a man who for the past seven years has pastored the people of David was suddenly available because this same man, Rev. J. E. Durham, has been seriously ill due to an operation performed at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, W. Va. Rev. Durham is the spirit of David community.

Under his guidance the young and the old have come to cherish Christian values and have been taught the way of Christ. We pray that God will grant Rev. Durham a speedy recovery and that David will again be blessed with his ministry.

For all those who may wish to write Rev. Durham, his temporary address is: St. Mary's Hospital, Room 314, Huntington, W. Va.
