Locate This Coal-Burning Plant in the Big Sandy, A Coal-Producing Area

THE TIMES has refrained from joining the chorus of angry yelps from those communities and areas which failed to get the new atomic center recently located near Portsmouth, O., and has decided that if anybody is to blame for the Big Sandy section's loss it is the people of the Big Sandy.

We thought Ashland would have made an ideal site. But we're thinking of this valley's industrial needs as much as we were considering those other factors which necessarily entered into the deliberations of the Atomic Energy Commission. And, if all things had been equal between Ashland and Portsmouth, we could not have blamed anybody for the choice of site made.

For Ashland and its surrounding area were hiked to start with by Portsmouth, if you can say that the guy who doesn't fight for what he wants is whipped when he doesn't get it. We did nothing, said little. So we have no complaint coming.

Now, what of the location of one of the two giant power plants which that atomic installation will need? Why not the Big Sandy region for one of these?

Interested? If so, say so. And get busy.

If one of these plants is located in West Virginia and the other at Madison, Indiana—as has been hinted—Big Sandy coal can get out the pick and shovel and use them for burying dead hopes instead of digging coal. They tell us those two power plants will consume seven million tons of coal a year; but if the plants are located in West Virginia and Indiana, they would benefit the Big Sandy's hard-pressed coal industry as much if they were seven thousand miles away. West Virginia, Ohio and Indiana would hog the benefits.

A private utility industry headed by Philip Sporn, president of the American Gas & Electric Company, apparently has the last word on the location of these plants, and the crying need of the Big Sandy for work, for economic existence, cannot be argued. Mr. Sporn and associates, as good business men, will want to know about costs, availability of water, fuel, labor; about distances and other matters.

Some of these questions can be quickly answered. Certainly it isn't as far from Floyd county, the heart of the Big Sandy coal field, to Portsmouth as it is from Madison, Ind., to that point. That fact should enter into the matter of costs; too, it should answer the query as to the availability of fuel. It also should be apparent that power can be generated here, in the middle of one of the country's great coal fields, and transmitted by lines to the atomic energy plant more cheaply than coal can be hauled to Madison, Ind., the power generated there, and finally sent to the Portsmouth area by transmission line.

We think the Big Sandy affords a water supply sufficient to the needs of one of these power plants. That, however, is a moot point. Even if there isn't, location of the plant in the Catlettsburg-Ashland area—only a few miles from Portsmouth—means the use of coal from this field would be better than the installation of a power plant in Indiana.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins has called the attention of the Atomic Energy Commission to Eastern Kentucky. He naturally has asked consideration of his district, the Seventh, as the location of one of these power plants; he could not single out any one county. Neither do we, although we cannot at this time see why Floyd county would not serve the purpose admirably. But we do single out one section—where water and coal and labor are all available in abundance, and not far from the proposed atomic energy plant—and that is the Big Sandy valley which has never received the consideration its resources, human and otherwise, deserve.

The grand jury in its first day of work Tuesday returned 16 indictments and apparently was in for a busy session. Throughout the first day the doorway to the county courtroom in which the jury worked was jammed, and one official said many of these appearing before it had not been summoned in specific cases.

A shooting and wounding indictment was voted against Policeman Hershel Lester, of Martin, in the serious wounding recently of Ed Hicks and his bond was set at $8,000. Lester also was named in an assault and battery indictment in which he is accused of beating Polly Barnett. Bond in this case was set at $2,500. Both bonds were promptly executed.

Another indictment accused Luther Stone, of Kent county, of voluntary manslaughter in the death of Idalis Stapleton, Lancer child, when she was hit by Stone's auto. His bond was set at $3,000.

Two men were named in indictments charging them with detaining women against their will. One of these, Vals Prater, was accused in the attempted rape of a 13-year-old girl on Middle Creek. The other was Ollie Martin, accused of detaining a 20-year-old Huesville woman.

Bonds of both men were fixed at $2,000 and their trial set for Nov. 4.

Other indictments reported to the court Wednesday morning: Herbert G. Sulisbury, of Beaver Creek; Arthur Boyd, Crate Spears, Avery Floyd and Perry Newsome, each for child desertion; Pat Bates, turkey at the county jail, accused by Johnny Higgins of assault and battery; Roland Sealf, drunk driving; Lloyd Conley and Sonny Caudill, breaking and entering Gorman Collins' store at Leakey; Arnold Sackett and John Burgess, breaking and entering; Luther Wright, Vancey Horn and Bobby Wright, chicken-stealing.

The first case to go to trial Tuesday, that of Abel Hamilton on a child desertion charge resulted in his conviction and a two-year pen term. During the trial Hamilton's young children sat with their mother and their cries were on the disturbing side. Later prosecuting Hamilton's sentence, Judge Hill told him, "We're going to fix you so you'll have to listen to your children crying."

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

With every privilege there is a duty—and it is the duty of every citizen to take part in the government which is the best in the world—to go to the polls and vote.

We have in Kentucky a new purgation law which will be put into effect for the year 1952. All time and changes are made in the law. We of the purgation board could not, because of time, get the work done covering every precinct, therefore in fairness to all voters we have not taken any names from the voting lists.

Five years after the general elections in 1952 conducted through May, 1953 you have the privilege of requesting or changing your precinct. Therefore you must vote in the precinct in which you live.

We of the purgation board have moved about and since we have not the time to separate these names the names in the books for the coming election.

We urge you as good citizens to aid all you can by voting in the precinct in which you live.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

HITS FISCAL COURT

The Taxpayers League is trying to recover money for the people and the fiscal court who represents the people (the prospective beneficiaries) are paying a lawyer, Jack Howard, to fight any such recovery for the people. Such action is especially odious in this necktie country. This record will show that Woodrow Burdett received over $11,900 in 1946 when under the State Constitution he was only allowed $8,000. I don't believe Jack Howard or Clarence Darrow either would be able to explain what happened to the other $3,900.

This writer feels that if the fiscal court desires to hire a lawyer for the defense of the County Attorney fact that we would like the figures listed by him as a master of public record in the Clerk's office and in the State Finance office and cannot be denied. That record will show that Woodrow Burdett received over $11,900 in 1946 when under the State Constitution he was only allowed $8,000. I don't believe Jack Howard or Clarence Darrow either would be able to explain what happened to the other $3,900.

Other taxpayers' money for this purpose, according to reports. In other words, taxpayers' money has been appropriated to try to prevent taxpayers' money from being collected from a county official and returned to the county which it belongs. How ridiculous is this matter going to become? It really looks as though the people are getting a rough ride. I believe the people of Floyd county are beginning to wake up.

Medical Examination Requirements of Law Cited by Coordinator

Teachers who did not complete their medical examination last year will need to do so this school year, said Mrs. Robert S. Wellman, health coordinator of Floyd county schools.

It is a state health regulation that teachers and school employees shall complete this examination by August 15 and every year thereafter, she added.

Beginners, fifth graders, ninth graders and all new teachers will need to complete a health examination this year. This health regulation now has the force of law, Mrs. Wellman said.

Any pupil who does not receive this examination is in violation of the State Board of Education regulation. Beginners examined during the present school year. The code states that a student beginning school will have an examination upon entering school and every fourth year thereafter.

If possible one or both parents should be present at the medical examination of pupils. The presence of parents is much more important if the pupil is in the lower grades.

power projects should be located in this Seventh Kentucky district. And he has asked the A.E.C. to relay this information to the group of private utilities that have banded together to furnish the 1,200,000 kilowatts the $1,200,000,000 atomic plant will require.

The congressman's office said that Guy W. Thaxton, power engineer for the A.E.C.'s Division of Construction, has promised to make a pass on all available information regarding Eastern Kentucky as a power site to Philip Sporn, president of American Gas & Electric Company, leader in the private-utility combination.

Although Sporn had said plans are not concrete, the utility group reportedly plans to build one power plant in Indiana, probably in the vicinity of Madison, and the other not far from Portsmouth. It is this second plant Perkins hopes to get for Kentucky. Much of the distance represents a less than 50 miles from the site of the new atomic plant.

Perkins, in a letter to A.E.C. Chairman Gordon Dean, said Eastern Kentucky is "suitable in every respect" for location of a power plant.

Coal is needed for such a plant, he said, and many mines in Eastern Kentucky are closed down because of the lack of a market for their coal. The miners are unemployed, he added.

"The power plants should be located," he wrote in an area where an adequate fuel supply will be unquestionable for hundreds of years.

Eastern Kentucky's distressed and underutilized mining areas require increased markets for their coal.

Floyd County Historical Notes

By HENRY P. SCALF

Researchers on the Big Sandy Stratum geology could go back with ease to "Old Kentucky" with Major Andrew Hood and Matthias Harman directed the laying out of Preston's Station (Prestonsburg) into lots but they know nothing of Solomon's wife, not even a name. Solomon died in 1819. Not an inkling from the meager record indicated his wife's name.

Jay Sparks, Ashland, a descendant of Solomon through his son, Turley, and Tandy's daughter Cynthia who married Stephen Hamilton, has worked on the genealogy of the Strattons for years. Like the rest of those interested she often wondered if anyone would ever learn about his wife. In the Wythe County, Virginia, records that she was the first name—Jane. Perhaps that is why so many of the Strattons on the distasteful site are named Jane or Jane's one of Col. Harro's daughters was named Jane but by every one called Jennie. Events today there are Stratton descendants called Jane Names living on and pass from generation to generation.

The following is requested information and is quoted from History of Scott County (Virginia) by Robert M. Addington (1912), page 144: "Jessie Elliott, who married Catherine Lawson, was a private in Captain Hammons' company (War of 1812). On reaching Norfolk, Va., he was attached to the command of Col. Henry E. Coleman and later was honorably discharged on account of ill health."

A letter from Harry Willard Mills of Arlington, Va., states he will soon release a publication on the Beverly family. It will be in book form. He says: "At the present time a concentration on the column in his 'home town paper' (birth place) in Lincoln county. Recently wrote up some history notes and sent them to the publisher. The idea of this writing history notes is from you."

Lees Junior College Fall Semester Begins Monday, September 15

Lees Junior College fall semester begins on Monday, Sept. 15, and the number of applications already accepted indicate an increased student enrollment over last year, according to President R. G. Landolt.

In addition to the regular class schedule, Saturday classes will be given in a number of courses, so that elementary teachers may further receive college training.

Dean Frazier B. Adams returns to the Lees faculty this year after an absence of two years, during which time he has been working on his doctor's degree at Peabody College. In addition to his administrative duties, Dean Adams will be head of the Education Department.

For many years the college has been known for its counseling and adjustment of students and stressing the development of the individual student's talents and personality.

This year in addition, a course in adjustment to college will be given for all new students. This course will cover a wide range of academic, personal, and social adjustments and is expected to be of great value to each student.

President Landolt explains that the new regulation requiring four years of college for the provisional elementary teacher certificate after Sept. 1, 1953, will in no way diminish the training of elementary teachers at Lees.

The great shortage of elementary teachers makes it certain that for at least the next five years a large percentage must be employed with two years or less of college training. This was recently affirmed by an official of the State Department of Education.

that is, reading your column gave me the idea.

The column referred to is "Lincoln County Pioneer Families," and appears in The Interior Journal, Staunton.

An enclosed letter from Mr. Mills gives a brief summary of Lincoln county history. As such it is passed on.

A military company was formed in 1780 from Kentucky county, Virginia, and named in honor of Gen. Benjamin Lincoln, a distinguished officer of the Revolutionary army. Lincoln Fayette and Jefferson were the three original counties established from Kentucky District by the Legislature with rank of Colonel was placed in charge of each. Col. He removed his family from Virginia in 1778.

told the figures must come down. They were asked to come here for the Superintended, pointed out that the architects had estimated the four-room block buildings at $50,000 each. He pointed out that a Knoch county school of the same materials had been built at a similar time ago, for $15,000 by eliminating luxury items and some of the modernities which an architect referred to as "aesthetic values."

"We can't build a school too fine, I know," said the Superintendent. "I'm all for the best, if we can afford it. But, since we don't have the money to do these things, I think we should get decent buildings up as cheaply as possible and try to reach more children with improved buildings and forget this dream of benefitting the comparative few with the finest."

On the more routine business side the Board did these things:
Approved the 1952-53 Prestonsburg independent school system budget amounting to $3,108,350 this year on county pupils attending the schools here. Total was $2,800,000 on the basis of 350 pupils at the rate of $8.81 per pupil.

Bought from Beaman Clark for $100 an acre of land for a school site at Goble Branch. The REA agreed to move power lines to clear the site, without charge. Mr. Martin will specialize in work with the rural schools.

Hall submitted identical bids of $12 a month on transporting Jack's Creek children to school at $16 a month to share the work, operating a conveyance alternate months. Hurrell Adams was hired at $5 a month to transport colored children from the Weeksburg village to Palmer-Dunbar school at Wheelwright.

Accepted the resignations of these teachers, most of whom were replaced:

Cats Suffer Injuries In Lafayette Practice; Hughes and Woods Hurt

Coach Doc Ferrell will send his Prestonsburg high school Black Cats into their first game of the 1952 season here Friday night against their usual season-opening foe, the Whitesburg Yellowjackets, with the usual results to be expected—since in recent years the Cats have come out ahead.

Whitesburg always fields a strong football team, and the eleven which comes here Friday already has one game under its belt—27-13 victory over Black Star.

Delmar Hughes, the Cats' all-star quarterback, was badly shaken up and this week was suffering a stiff neck. He was examined during the week by a Huntington specialist, suffered a leg injury which may keep him out of the line-up for some time.

The Black Cats appear to be strong in the line but lack in reserve and experience. Gone from the team are such stars as Alex Patton, Morris Isbell, Farrell Burton, Bill Jim Compton, Wah-Wah Caudill, Jim Mayo, Melvin Pennington, Edgar Buchanan, K. Kullen, Curt Reed Burchett, Don Carver and Pete Every—all lost by graduation—and Lloyd Hager, who has not come out for practice; Bobby Daniels and Bucky Burchett, who will attend Millsburg Military Institute this year, and Conrad Newsome, who was lost to the Air Force.

Whitesburg also lost its share of players via the graduation route with the end of the last school year, but its strong 1951 machine was not so badly stripped of its gears as Prestonsburg's.

Barring the sidelining by injuries of some regulars, the starting Prestonsburg line-up may be Delmar Hughes, Chester Shepherd, John Dixon and Lowell Hughes in the backfield, Woods and Johnny Hall at ends, Stanley Prater and Tom Spradlin at the tackle positions, Charles Grigsby and John Gordon Goble as guards, and John Harris at center.

Other members of the squad, who are expected to see considerable action through the season are: Randall Wells and Charles Salyers, guards; James Branham and Donald Puckett, tackles; Paul Ousler and Truman Lafferty, ends; Kendall Alexander, quarterback; James Chaffin, Bert Dixon and Ronald Goble, halfbacks; James Eldridge, fullback; Robert Newsome and Donald Harrington, centers.

ACCIDENTS DOWN
Industrial accidents have dropped sharply in Kentucky since the 1947-48 period, although industrial employment has risen, according to a report by Edwin C. Willis, commissioner of Industrial Relations. With 379,185 workers on the job in the first period, there were 19,675 accidents. IT'S A GOOD WORLD

BY WILMAX

So many things to report on this week that a majority must wait till later. Teachers heard a wonderful message from Dr. Spain of Morehead Saturday in Martin. More news to come. We hope to stress a few points he made, though an account of his address is in this issue.

Congratulations to Harold Rice, our splendid county agent, for the Green Pastures section of The Times last week. And to the cooperating business men who made its publication possible. The business houses of our county are certainly loyal and public-spirited. They never fail to boost a good cause.

We commend the town of Martin for posting the financial report pertaining to the purchase of its fire truck, in the window of the bank. The account of payment expenditures will be placed there by Dr. Wades Mahood, treasurer. It is always right that those handling public funds do this; moreover, it prevents criticism.

We had the happy experience of attending the Enterprise Baptist Association in Paintsville last week, and hope soon to mention this experience further. Rev. Hockingsmith, pastor of the Paintsville church, brought to mind the story in a recent B.T.U. lesson, in which someone asked a woman, who was a Christian, what she had done for her church. She replied that she had done all she was ever asked to do, namely, she had taken a seat up front the night she joined and was told to sit down. Much talent and many gifts are never discovered, utilized, developed, and all suffer from the loss. Every individual has something to contribute to any organization. Jesus knew there was wood in everybody and did his best to bring it out, so it might be put to use.

Reports say a local option campaign will be held soon. We have many good friends on the other side of the issue and believe most of them know why the Wets cannot win in Floyd. Six years ago the Drys passed the biggest majority in a portion to population ever recorded in the state. Today the county has more than a thousand persons who were not professed believers in 1946. We have several strong, new churches and many active small missions of various faiths, plus a larger number of missionaries.

Our chief advantage is the experience acquired the last time. Drys now know whom to trust. False fronts and behind-scenes moves are an old story to Drys now. We were sold out by some of our own (?) in 1943 and similar attempts were thwarted in 1946, when insulting anonymous notes were traced to church members! When state workers had to write county workers whom to watch within the organization itself and why! when a secret panel of three on the inside became necessary! when some voted dry for the sake of expediency. Such errors will not be repeated.

The dries have a head start not possible in 1946. Old records are intact, including 10,000 cards polled. The organization can be set up in an hour. Leaders know which phases of the work previously brought the best results and efforts will be concentrated where dividends will be highest. Training classes for challengers and election officers are one essential that pays well. Prevention is worth a pound of cure. Numerous Wets have changed sides in the past six years, but Drys challenge Wets to name a dry who has swapped. For every dry speaker available in 1948, today there are 10 capable ones willing to serve.

It is a real joy to be teaching in Wayland with some old friends; Mr. Price, whom we have known for years; Lattie Hatcher, who used to be a frequent caller when she taught in Maytown; Thelma Daniels, whom we knew at Poppass in 1924; Archie Beverly, whom we first met during the depression days, and others. Teachers have such a marvelous opportunity. The child is with us nine months a year, six or more hours daily, for the most impressionable years of his life.

Most voters seem inclined to want to know which presidential candidate will balance the budget, and when, and which one will get us out of the red for keeps. And plenty of us are asking when taxes will be lowered, not only the visible ones we pay each spring, but also the hidden ones that constitute a part of the price we now pay on those items purchased. Americans believe in helping war-torn countries, in assisting in time of disaster and catastrophe, but we do not feel the necessity of supporting most of the world, when countless nations are laughing up their sleeves and while we are regarded as the most hated and feared country on the globe, according to reports from some of our own tourists abroad. There is a limit!

Suppose this next will pass the editor's desk We like General Ike immensely. The General is tall and stately, with excellent bearing, and most prolific! The deep, red color of General Eisenhower is really glorious, for that is the name of a choice red cactus dahlia just blooming for the first time in our garden. Do not forget the Maytown fall flower show at the school Saturday, Sept. 20, at 10 a.m. The women hope to see men growers participate at this time.

SUPERINTENDENTS NAMED

Two appointments as State Park superintendents were announced by Henry Ward, commissioner of Conservation. James S. Gouley, present superintendent at Carter Caves State Park, Olive Hill, will go to General Butler State Park, Carrollton, as superintendent, and he will be succeeded at Carter Caves by Ralph Brewer, who is now business manager at Kentucky Dam Village. Both appointments will be effective Sept. 15.

FLOOD CONTROL PLANNED

Kentucky's Division of Flood Control and Water Usage will play a big part in a program to develop the Rough River basin in Western Kentucky for protection against floods and loss of soil. The division announced that it is going to work with the U.S. Corps of Engineers and soil and forestry agencies of the U.S. Department of Agriculture on the job. The project is part of a larger program of developing flood control systems in the Green and Ohio river basins, and it will mark the first time that the federal agencies have ever got together to provide full treatment in an entire river basin.

Robertson's anty home-makers and a display of finished furniture in connection with their annual meeting.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Frank Vittetow, Gloversport, former superintendent of Gloversport schools, and Mrs. Mary Marshall, Bardonia, former teacher and principal in Bardonia schools, were named district supervisors for the Department of Education's In-Service Training Program. Vittetow went to District 1, which is in far-western Kentucky, and Mrs. Marshall went to District 2, which adjoins it on the east.

Hen Lays 4 1-2-Ounce Eggs, Lives Up To Her Name

A Black Giant hen owned by Ray Calvin Webb, of Betsy Layne, recently lived up to the family name by laying an egg weighing four and one-half ounces. That's a big job for the ordinary egg is only about half as large.

Curious investigators upon examination of the large egg found that another perfectly formed one was inside and that still another egg was forming.

County Agent Hank Dowdy, of Pike county, reported that he had heard of such eggs but had never seen one. It is a very unusual occurrence, he said. County Agent Harold B. Rice, of Floyd county could not be reached for comment.

After this extraordinary effort the hen has resumed her normal routine and shows no ill effects from what must have been quite an ordeal.

Civil Defense Office Lists Floyd-Co. Sites Of Observation Posts

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 25 (Sp.)—Seven sites in Floyd county have been selected for Ground Observer Corps observation posts, according to an announcement by the State Office of Civil Defense.

The communities where the posts are located and the post supervisors are: Prestonsburg, Tom James; Betsy Layne, Palmer Crum; Martin, Denzil Halbert; Wheelwright, Everett Hall; Wayland, Elmer H. Morrison; Mud Creek, Palmer Crum; Signal Post, Palmer Crum.

Floyd county posts have already functioned at practice alerts.

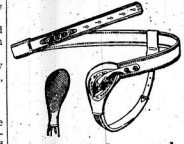

General Jesse S. Lindsay, State Director of Civil Defense, has urged persons willing to work as aircraft spotters at the posts to contact his office in Frankfort where it will be assigned to duty.

About 100 persons will be needed to man each post should Kentucky be put on an around-the-clock watch as several neighboring states to the north and east have. The observers, all civilian volunteers, will spot aircraft and telephone information to filter centers where it will be relayed to the Air Force. Most of the state is served by centers in Lexington and Louisville, but Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn., and Columbus, Ohio, are used in some sections.

About 400 posts will be needed in Kentucky and 203 have already been set up with supervisors, Lindsay said. Of this number, only 165 have enough volunteers to carry on even part-time work and none are at full strength.
