Prestonsburg Residents Younger, Census Bureau Report Study Indicates

Special to The Times
New York, Jan. 3.—Taken as a whole, the residents of Prestonsburg are younger than their counterparts in other parts of the United States. This age differential is brought to light by the Census Bureau after an analysis of data gathered in the recent tabulation.

The media age of people in Prestonsburg is 29.4 years, signifying that there are as many above that age as there are below. In the other parts of the country the media is 30.1 years. This places Prestonsburg residents 4.1 years younger than their counterparts. They are younger also by a full year than people generally in Kentucky.

Other revealing data on the population trends in Prestonsburg and elsewhere has to do with the increase in the number of persons of age 65 or over. Advances in the medical sciences and better living standards have had a marked effect in lengthening the life span and causing this increase.

In Prestonsburg, the Census Bureau reports, 68 percent of the population is in the 65-or-over bracket. Of great interest also is the progressive change occurring in the labor force, with an increased number of married men holding down jobs. In 1940 only one out of every nine women in the United States was in the labor force. The corresponding figure has risen to one out of every five.

In Prestonsburg, the Census Bureau found, 24.7 percent of the female population over the age of 14 was in the labor force. The corresponding male percentage for a 7.8.

The civilian unemployed, including those who wanted jobs and did not have any, was only 5.4 percent.

The Tax League is a "shocking thing. We should have had it 25 years ago, and I certainly don't want to say anything to discourage the League. But we want to keep matters and prejudice out of the courts, because I don't want Judge Hill named various present and former officials who may have exceeded the Constitutional limit on their salaries, then remarked, "if one is guilty of a felony, all are guilty. I am giving my opinion on the matter, because I don't want the grand jury to do something useless which would only embarrass somebody. I have no purpose of letting anybody be harassed any body."

His remarks to the jury came as reports were heard to the effect that interested parties would request some officials accused of exceeding the limits set for their salaries. Indictment attempts were made at the November grand jury session.

Judge Hill noted that law violations have decreased, and he predicted less expensive "order" actions as a result. He ascribed the drop in crime to several influences, one of which he described as "the sobering influence of the cloud of Communism which hangs over us." The spread of religion, he said, is another deterrent to crime, and Judge Hill spoke of the number of young men who have become preachers and who "have pulled themselves up by their own bootstraps and by their own study of the Bible have learned to become excellent preachers."

The Kentucky law against carrying concealed deadly weapons was given credit for reducing cr. . . and Judge Hill asked that the law be enforced.

Example of what a 4-H boy can realize from such a project is the experience of Palmer Keith Lowe, of Maytown, Mr. Rice said. Last year, this youth bought 100 New Hampshire chicks for 10 cents each. He fed them to fryer size at a cost of $44.20. Young Lowe sold the fryers at a profit of $30, making the sale to one man. If he had marketed the chickens himself at the full market price his profits would have been at least $40.

The W.B.C.S. of the Methodist Church held its January meeting in the home of Mrs. Ruth Laven, Thursday night. Mrs. Maude Snodgrass presided. Floyd Native Renamed Head of State Police By W. Va. Governor

W. E. Burchett, the Floyd county native who has been superintendent of the West Virginia State Police since 1949, was reappointed by Governor Patterson last week for a four-year term.

This post at rest speculation that the 44-year-old Burchett might not be reappointed. Such speculation arose after the governor recently made public a letter he wrote last week criticizing State Police handling of law enforcement in connection with a protracted and violence-marked strike at Woden in Clay county.

Gov.-elect William C. Marland is expected to let the new appointment stand after he takes office this month, although he apparently would not be bound to do so. Law departmentals have been so far from the fact that such news are held at the will and pleasure of the governor, regardless of the length of term.

As a Veteran...

The V.F.W. is always on guard against any effort to destroy your established legal rights as an honorably discharged veteran. These rights include your entitlement—under certain conditions—to care and treatment in government hospitals, disability compensation or pensions, government insurance, burial allowance, pensions for dependents, preference credits for civil service employment, etc. Founded in 1899, long before other major veteran organizations were formed after World War I, the V.F.W. was demanding fair treatment for the nation's disabled and needy veterans. Thus was born the basic pattern of the "G.I. Bill of Rights."

By becoming a member of the V.F.W. you help keep the organization strong enough to protect—not only the nation's disabled veterans and the widows and orphans—but also those rights which are vital to your own security.

Increase Is Fifth For Southern Bell In 6-Year Period

The Public Service Commission granted the Southern Bell Telephone Company a 6% increase in Kentucky rates since 1946. It was announced Monday. The new rates provide for increased charges on local and interstate service to be effective immediately.

Southern Bell had asked for much bigger rates desirable to bring its $2,882,000 instead of the new rates that will produce $7,000,000. It was said C. Hunter Green, Southern Bell manager for Kentucky, would discuss local and interstate service with the commission. "It provides for earnings at only a bare subsistence level," he said. He added that he had hoped a provision would be made for at least the minimum revenue required to obtain necessary capital to carry forward a construction program.

In general the increases will amount to 15 cents a month more for one-party residential phones, 10 cents more a month for two-party residential service, and 5 cents additional each month for four-party residential users.

Business one-party service will show average increases of 25 cents a month. Two-party business phones will be increased about 20 cents a month. Four-party business phones will be charged about 15 cents more each month.

On long-distance calls between points in Kentucky, the principal burden of the rate increase falls on the first 3-minute period on nights and Sunday calls, both states to person and person to person.

On intrastate long-distance calls of 18 to 96 miles, the first 3 minutes will cost 10 cents more. On calls to stations and up to 10 cents more for person to person in the daytime.

At night and on Sundays, station-to-station calls will cost an additional 10 cents and person-to-person calls an additional 15 cents for the first 3 minutes.

The new rates for Big Sandy and nearby points follow:
Prestonsburg, Paintsville and Anden residential—one-party, $2.40; two-party, $2.80; four-party, $3.20; business—one-party, $2.50; two-party, $2.90; four-party, $3.30; rural, $2.50; business—one-party, $2.50; two-party, $2.90; four-party, $3.30; rural, $2.75.

Pikeville and Eden (two) rates will be somewhat higher than Prestonsburg and Paintsville. Residential rates there are one-party, $2.60; two-party, $3.00; four-party, $3.40; rural, $2.80. Business rates are one-party, $2.60; two-party, $3.00; four-party, $3.40; rural, $2.75.

Rates for the Stone community are much higher and are in a class by themselves. Residential one-party, $4.50; two-party, $4.75; four-party, $5.00. Business rates are one-party, $4.50; two-party, $4.75; four-party, $5.00.

Southern Bell operates 168 central offices in 153 cities and towns serving 338,781 customers in 99 Kentucky counties.

GOV'T CLOSES CASE IN TRIAL

Federal Judge Directs Acquittal of Bloomer, One of 13 Defendants

The government closed its case against the 13 union men and peace officers indicted in Federal court at Pikeville, Tuesday. Soon after this Judge Max Baughman directed the acquittal of M. D. Bloomer, one of the Letcher county union men indicted, as no witness for the government had identified him as being in the crowd, May 10, on Cumberland Mountain that tried to stop non-union miners from entering Wise county.

The evidence presented by the government as to the size of the crowd and the events at the time Bloomer was in the crowd, as the evidence offered by the defense witnesses so far examined, the government said 200 or 300 men were present and the way was wide open for fighting and pistol brandishing. The defense averred the crowd never at any time exceeded 40 men and only violence was a few fistfights and cursing.

The prosecution claims that a group of Kentuckians, probably 30, was halted by union men accompanied by a liberal sprinkling of peace officers, and forced to turn back before reaching the state line.

The defense contends that the union men were merely attempting peaceful picketing when tempers flared and the affair grew out of hand.

Two union field agents—Ceres Hibbits and Joe Davis—look the witness stand.

Bloomer, one of the Letcher county union men indicted, as no witness for the government had identified him as being in the crowd, May 10, on Cumberland Mountain that tried to stop non-union miners from entering Wise county.

The evidence presented by the government as to the size of the crowd and the events at the time Bloomer was in the crowd, as the evidence offered by the defense witnesses so far examined, the government said 200 or 300 men were present and the way was wide open for fighting and pistol brandishing. The prosecution claims that a group of Kentuckians, probably 30, was halted by union men accompanied by a liberal sprinkling of peace officers, and forced to turn back before reaching the state line.

The defense contends that the union men were merely attempting peaceful picketing when tempers flared and the affair grew out of hand.

Two union field agents—Ceres Hibbits and Joe Davis—look the witness stand.

While admitting that there was trouble on the mountain, Hibbits and Davis denied that the union men were forced to turn back from the state line or that anybody was forced to sign union cards.

The defense case began with an opening statement by John Y. Brown, Lexington, one of the six attorneys representing the accused.

His statement that one of the defendants, Muburn "Cootie", Hall was armed with nothing more readily than a flashlight instead of a pistol, as charged by prosecution witnesses, was supported by Hibbits and Davis.

The only fact Hibbits said he saw was between Joe Ison, who was the first government witness to testify, and another fellow, Hibbits said Ison, one of four operators of two truck mines in Wise county, Va., was not knocked over a bank, as charged by prosecution witnesses, but fell while stepping backward. In order to protect Ison, Hibbits said, he helped the operator up to the bank and escorted him to his truck.

First of the nine government witnesses Tuesday was a former union member, Joe Hodges, one of the four operators of the Combs small truck mines in Wise county, Virginia. They are nonunion mines. Although he swears his truck was just slugged around a bit, Hodges said he didn't hesitate very long in affixing his signature to a union card when somebody shoved it through his car window and said, "By God, you'll sign it or die." The man had a gun, he said.

Hodges testified that big "Cootie" Hall stopped his car on the mountain, cursed him, and made him pull over to the side of the road. He said the 13 men on trial, Hall was identified in the courtroom by Hodges, who said Cootie had a pistol in his hand when he forced Hodges to sign his card.

"After that" Hodges testified, "everything was going on. There was fighting and cursing, some of them acted a little drunk. But some of them acted pretty nice. There was between 200 and 300 of them. They pointed to us and said, 'These are the men who are taking your jobs away. Then they look us down the mountain, made us line up, hold our hands up and take the collection.' Somebody in the union group shouted, 'Your scab days are over in Virginia.'"

Additional families are being enrolled in the Christian county Farm and Home Development program.

"The Courthouse Loses Some of Its Appeal"

Among other passing institutions that need to be restricted is the old courthouse. Now, the building is still here, as important and necessary as ever, but its appeal has sadly waned. I left Perville nearly half a century ago, as conditions have changed, the building as such has sunk in importance. The farmers can no longer afford to have a courthouse anywhere. Without being in the way or unwanted. For the farmer has the money now, and if he still makes the more, he can't care. There are no more to be made. There is no incentive to seek out the courthouse in order to get at home in the county seat. Hardware stores, farm stores, the county agent's office, and just anywhere is a hardware store. In fact, the farmer is not necessarily the fellow who used to come to town to spend the day and who felt somewhat out of place with his car now he can run the few or many miles to the county seat in a matter of minutes and he back home at any given time. And, consequently, it is not necessary for him to hang around the courthouse all day, except for the short time he might take off to buy a few things at the store.

The courthouse still has its picturesque history of the past. In the other times when the courthouse was, in reality, every man's clubhouse. In old Perville, the nucleus of such a group was a small number of faithful whittlers and yarn-spinners who had fought through the Civil War, not only in the trenches but over the hills, whenever a listener could be found. And I am sure that when they have been young, the courthouse yarn-spinners were the aging pioneers, who re-killed all the bears and wildcats and panthers that had infested this country. So far as I can figure, the Garden of Eden was the only place in the whole course of human history that did not have a group of yarn-spinners whose memories went back beyond anybody else's.

A few weeks ago I visited again picturesque Nashville, Indiana. On the courthouse lawn still sits the famous liars' bench that has appeared in many magazines. As it was a fairly cold morning the old fellows had not assembled for the day-long yarn-spinning. I have seen the same bench full and running according to tradition, but you must make allowances for incoming age and cold autumn mornings. But even in the small while there are many other places to attract the attention of liars; the village is a sort of theatrical county center for the summer, and numerous needs for travelers must be met. I have often found my best group of loafers at a dinner table, just outside of the eating place. I am sure that even the natives would hardly admit that the courthouse, except for thousands of visitors, is losing its appeal.

As I have hinted before, the passing of the prominence of the courthouse is largely the result of the breaking down of the wall between the town and the country. To many of us in Perville days, the courthouse was an imposing thing, a small corporation that all of us could feel free to enjoy. With many a county now possessing school buildings and churches and houses far more elegant and beautiful than the average courthouse, there does not seem so much pride in the county's own house, situated in the center of the town and dominating the landscape. WHO FERRIED JENNIE WILEY GIVEN DIFFERENT ANSWERS

By HENRY P. CLAF

The story of Jennie Wiley, the stiff, broad-shouldered, three-cornered hat and riding that for a paddle they reached the shore in safety. One of the Indians was killed by the men in the boat and the others departed with a "Yah!"

The differences in the two stories are these: Connelley states Henry Skaggs ferried Jennie Wiley across the river by the ferrying. Connelley fails to mention the hat incident, probably because he never heard it for he was never a historian to omit detail. That an Indian was killed by men from the boat was not possible in the Connelley story. He related that all the men, except Skaggs, of Blockhouse had taken the canoe off with them to hunt earlier in the morning.

Bumannah Sellards, sister-in-law of Jennie, who being the wife of John Sellards, the heroine's brother and who lived till 1876, never in all of her reminiscences of what Jennie told her said that an Indian had killed from the boat. She never related the hat incident either. So in the light of the evidence preserved by the various descendants we must conclude that the Connelley story is more accurate. Only one disagreement exists between what Connelley stated and what Sellards told. Jennie told her, Connelley related that Mrs. Wiley traveled all night and that part of this night route was up what is now called in her honor, Jennie's Creek. It is inconceivable that she traveled all night in the hat, wilderness and cold. Bumannah Sellards said that her sister-in-law crawled into a giant hollow log and slept until daylight, resuming her flight to escape early in the morning.

What was to be done? With quick wit, Jennie promptly seized Simon's coat and hid it in the trunk of the car. As they were returning, when about the middle of the river, the pursuing Indians came in sight, yelling at the top of their voices. Probably the excitement just at this time caused Simon to drop his car. Anyway, that is what he did and then they were in the stream on the log raft without a paddle, while the rogues were yelling and shooting from the bank.

PETITION
 To the U.S. Corps of Engineers:

Assuming that a governmental agency charged with heavy responsibility for plans and works designed for the public benefit has a commensurate interest in the desires of the people affected by the agency's work programs, plans and official acts, the undersigned respectfully submits that the interest of the more than 500,000 persons who each year visit the Dewey Reservoir in Floyd county, Ky., would be better served by the deepening of said reservoir an additional five feet above its present conservation pool.

The petitioner asks your favorable consideration of this request, for these reasons:

1. Recreation values of the reservoir would be greatly increased by such action and would directly redound to the benefit of a section of the United States which otherwise has little or no recreational advantages such as are afforded by a large impoundment of water.
2. Deepening of Dewey Lake would improve fish propagation, would increase the area of the impoundment and may, by retarding siltation, increase the life of the lake as a habitat for fish and wildlife and as an attraction to the public.
3. Addition of five feet to the present depth of Dewey Lake will not materially affect the impoundment as a flood control project, nor will this impoundment adversely affect any industrial installations within the reservoir area.
4. Furthermore, such deepening of Dewey Lake would create no onerous burden of expense or labor for the federal government or the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

The undersigned respectfully requests that the U.S. Corps of Engineers take immediate action to make possible in Dewey Lake the additional depth requested during the Spring season of 1953.

"a Million more kilowatts for Me?"

No, Mrs. Elliott, we don't expect that you'll be needing a million more kilowatts for yourself. But we do aim to make sure that you will always have as much electricity as you want. That is why your electric company, along with others in the American Gas and Electric Company System, is now installing generators that will increase the system's capacity by a million kilowatts.

You see, our territory is growing mighty fast these days—new factories, new homes and a lot more people. We have to see to it that there is enough electricity for all of these folks, and enough left over so we can invite other new industries to move in. This means better living for all of us.

Ground-Water Study Progressing in State

An initial investigation to determine ground-water resources is being carried on in most sections of the state, according to an announcement this week by the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board and the U. S. Geological Survey.

Special emphasis is being placed on areas in the Johnson - Floyd area and the vicinity of Henderson, Paducah and Scottsville.

A similar investigation recently concluded in northern Kentucky revealed that the areas near Covington, Newport, Ludlow, Dayton and Bellevue have an abundant supply of cool ground-water easily obtained at a shallow depth.

The project is being financed jointly by the state and federal governments and the work is being conducted by 11 members of the U. S. Geological Survey.

The information of special importance to industrial users of underground water may also be utilized in the planning of new or additional water supplies and provides valuable data on the possibilities of mass air-conditioning of larger buildings in the cities.

Pending publication, copies of the report, on northern Kentucky will be examined at the offices of the U. S. Geological Survey, Federal Building, Louisville.

NO RATE CONTROL

Five Louisville taxicab companies agreed today to raise rates with the Department of Motor Transportation to take effect Jan. 1—but a reversal of the law, according to Department officials, does not expressly give that body control over rates charged by this type of common carrier, though it does give them control over the service. It is the first time such a notice has been filed.

The deplorable condition of many Kentucky public schools today nobody is to blame but the people who have been running the schools for three or four decades. When the school people can boast of good schools the taxpayers will respond with adequate financial support.

The state-wide investigation, headed by Dr. Arthur V. Lloyd, director of the Research Commission, can be counted on to do a thorough job. But while the work is in progress any and all intelligent discussion of the school system will help.

Chrysler has best planned here for Jan. 9 when a portion of former State Treasurer John E. Buckingham is to be recalled. It was Buckingham who conceived the idea of refinancing a $10,000,000 state debt at a lower rate of interest than the statutory 5 per cent rate. IT'S A GOOD WORLD

BY WILLIAM

And a New Year reminds most of us how good it is, especially here in the United States. The comfort of a good fire, warm clothes, adequate shelter, and wholesome food on such wintry days as recent ones make us realize how lucky most Americans are. So many in the world are still homeless because of war. Numbers living under crowded conditions or other circumstances which few of us appreciate. The comparison shows how fortunate most of us are, despite high taxes and other undesirable problems that do exist.

Someone asked what accounts for the splendid behavior of the big boys in the (Wyland) school. Our reply was—that the successful discipline there may be attributed to the principal, Lawrence Price, and a faculty who believe in authority. The latter is essential when youngsters have classes under several teachers. Another said that Mr. Price's personal influence over the student-body and in the community, as a whole, is partially responsible. He is a man who knows what he wants and how to get it. He has certain standards and ideals in mind, and he sets a high example for the boys and girls. The paddle is a last resort with him, but he never hesitates to use one when it is needed. A session with him is referred to by some of the boys as "a meeting with the County Board of Education."

Children formerly sent to the Houses of Reform will be sent to the youth center as well as those who formerly were sent directly to the Kentucky Children's Home; children studied at the center who appear to be defective mentally may be sent to the Kentucky Training Home at Frankfort.

Children who have already been committed to the Houses of Reform or the Children's Home or who are under the care of the Division of Child Welfare will also come under the Youth Authority.

Under the direction of the Commissioner of Welfare, any child under 18 who is presently confined in the state reformatory or penitentiary may be transferred to the authority.

The center at London is separated from the rest of the Children's Home and is connected with diagnostic work only. Three cottages have been set aside for it.

Old Man Short is his arriving in Cincinnati, a week past due, and we have a number to pick with him. Every time the phone rings we run into each other to see if the grandpa has arrived. The privilege of becoming grandparents has come rather late in life to us, since we are behind the schedule of most of our friends and are going along in years, so please understand.

It was a great joy recently to have a note from Jean Burke, saying she and Henry are now on the list of hopefuls, counting the months they must wait for a blessed event. We made the acquaintance of this fine young couple last April but each in the type of individual you cannot forget, and we do enjoy them tremendously. The baby who chooses a home like theirs is lucky before he ever arrives.

Reading one columnist last week we found these words: "How I envy mothers today who are told to feed, nurse, love their babies, and hold them when they are hungry. Twelve years ago we were accosted into this. The world moves back a step then forward."

The truth of the matter is simply that medical science, like any other branch, often finds its conclusions wrong, hopelessly so. We ourselves could enumerate fully a score of points on which a straight about-face has been ordered in a decade. Many factors account for this. One is the fact that too many M.D.'s have left God out of their lives. Another—according to some outstanding doctors themselves—is the manner in which so many medical-school applicants have been chosen, as proved by the failures in the profession, which is one of the highest in every sense.

For long years Sister Kenney was opposed by the medical men as she sought to prove and to demonstrate that her discovery concerning polio was correct and best. She triumphed in time, and the entire world has been blessed because she refused to quit in the face of criticism from those who should know.

Much that Freud taught and believed long since been discarded, along with other concepts in the field of psychology, closely related to medicine. It is safe to say that when other field confining with the teachings of the Great Physician, and the Master Scientist, who not only controls everything but also created all things, sooner or later there will be a reversal.
