Floyd County Historical Notes

By HENRY P. SCALF

Sometimes ago, this column received a letter from F. B. Lambert, of Barboursville, W. Va., who is currently engaged in the preparation of a history of Cabell county, West Virginia. Curiously engaged doesn't quite express his present work and, perhaps, it should be said that West Virginia is currently engaged for the work has already consumed 16 years. Mr. Lambert explains: "I wrote a history of early schools here, in 1910 and the old Kanawha Road, known by many people then as the James River and Kanawha Road, about 1913, when I was in West Virginia University. "Prof. Callahan published this in his three volume history of West Virginia. Most of the work was done by history students and outsiders. He had a trouble in the bottom of my article saying the material, I furnished all of it except a few lines which he corrected, but which were 'corrected' when corrected." As a background to the rest of Mr. Lambert's letter it should be said that Jenny Wiley's daughter Jenny married Richard Williams in Floyd county, and she and her husband emigrated to Twinsdale, Pa. Creek in West Virginia. Their descendants and the descendants of Hokeah Wiley, a son of Thomas and Jenny Wiley, are scattered over Southern West Virginia. "As to Jenny Wiley, I do not know a great deal about her. I knew the case from Southeast Virginia and that Indians killed some of her children. I have talked to an old man at Crum, William Crum, I believe, who claims to be a relative of hers. Possibly a descendant. My name Hardesty's book on Cabell, Wayne and Lincoln counties. This gives some account of her. My people claim to be descended from her but no one ever gives me any direct line of descent and I doubt if they could. "A prominent official of Huntington, Mayor and City Commissioner, claimed to be a direct descendant, but never explained his line of descent. I try to trace families by complete lines and have hoped that some one would do this for this heroic woman

...singling adventures while hiding in a hollow log or skulking around Indian campfires.

Now life can be what would be hard to find in a world of handouts to us but to others it would be pure, rare enjoyment. Mason would have to sing. He went to neighbors' homes at night to sing. He and one of the elder Hamiltons, John White, could sometimes would sing their voices in vocal harmony until midnight.

He had six children, four of whom are living. Nancy, his wife, died in 1919 and is buried near it, the mouth of Branham's Creek in the Hamilton cemetery. Today he lives with his widowed daughter, Mrs. James Branham, a widow and granddaughter. Ethel, Hamilton. These three, representatives of as many "emancipated" acquisitions in a home to the side of the road.

Here come children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren to see their ancestor, Mason Sward. They snap his picture. He is one of the most photographed men on Big Mud Creek. No one knows without tedious counting how many descendants he has. Twenty-four grandchildren are on the list. More than that are listed as great-grandchildren. What makes the counting difficult is that the family is widely scattered.

If you want to talk to Mason Sward as he lies on a couch before the fire, you find he has no inclination for conversation. You are just another visitor. He answers slowly and perhaps with the same old story. James Branham tells you the story of his life when you doubt from questioning a man whom the years of nearly a century have bowed down.

He never carried a pistol in his life, never swore a oath, nor, to Mrs. Branham's knowledge, had a doctor. Her father had fever once upon a time. She is positive that since that time, which was over 50 years ago, he has never had or needed a doctor. If he is slightly indisposed and one of the family suggests a doctor he is up in arms. No doctor for him. Well, he has lived a long time without them.

He makes no statement as to what gave him a long life. He never drank but he uses tobacco. He declares it won't hurt a man. He has used it for so long he can't remember. That a man can live from 11 years before the Civil War, which he remembers to the present day without one brush with the law of the county is remarkable in itself. Mason Sward was a litigant in a law suit over some land one time, a minor action that may have been a friendly means of adjusting a difficult matter. He served on a petit jury of 12 in his life.

It is the story of his life. Unsuccessful, perhaps, to us, but to him it has been satisfying and complete.

...the defendant's claim that he went to the show around 7:30 and remained there till about 9:30. Time of the crime was fixed at 8. Ratliff testified he stayed at the theatre till 8:30 and that at that time he was told by Mr. Reathley that somebody wanted to see him. He added that he walked across the street and was arrested. That, he said, was his first knowledge of the accusation against him.

The 10-year term given Ratliff is the minimum penalty. The maximum is death. James Allen was appointed by the court to defend Ratliff after it had been shown he was unable to employ counsel. Trial of Deputy Sheriff Scott Compton on a charge of malfeasance in office resulted Saturday in his acquittal. The charge against Compton, defense testimony showed arose from an execution issued for Lonnie Jones, Jr. on a $12 debt, a part of which had been paid and not credited to Jones through oversight. Compton collected the full amount of the execution, and the error was discovered when he reported to the County Judge's office. He had not returned to Jones the money due.

Jones claimed Compton threatened to jail him—a charge which the officer denied. The amount due Jones on overpayment was paid him on conclusion of the trial. It was said. Otherwise during this last week of the January term, five were fined—three on pleas of guilty. The defendants in three cases charged against them and the amount fined were: Roy Salisbury, "absoluting" on public highway, $50; Douglas Sampson, Rock Hudson, Julia Adams, $5; Moby Cudde, News and Comedy.

SMART FOLKS—THOSE BUICK ENGINEERS!
They've made the 1953 BUICKS 87 ways better

OUR hat's off to the men who made the 1953 Buick's what they are—the greatest Buicks in fifty great years.

They came up with a new kind of V8 for the SUPER and the ROADMASTER—a brilliant V8 Engine with a long list of engineering "firsts."

They redesigned the F-263 Fireball 8 for record horsepower and compression in the spirited Buick SPECIAL.

They kept every inch of room in the roomiest six-passenger Sedan in America—and still shortened its turning radius considerably.

They did new wonders with the wonderful Million Dollar Ride. They stepped up visibility, comfort, handling ease, control.

And man!—what they did with getaway!

They dreamed up, designed and developed a new Twin-Turbo Dynaflow Drive that whisks you away quick as a wink—and just as smooth, almost as silent.

In fact, no other car in the world gets away with all the combined quickness, quiet and smoothness of a Twin-Turbo Dynaflow Buick.

Wouldn't you like to see for yourself just how great these Golden Anniversary Buicks really are? Drop in soon—we'll be happy to do the honors.

Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Buicks.

State Sends Tax Forms To Kentucky Taxpayers Prompt Filing Is Urged

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 20 (AP)—State income tax forms have been mailed to all persons who filed tax returns last year and departments of revenue officials were promptly filing to avoid a rush around the April 15 deadline.

A new short form for persons whose income came from wages, bonuses and commissions and not more than $103 in dividends and interest will begin filing returns. Persons who are able to file returns without outside help, the officials believe.

Required to file returns are single persons who had a 1952 gross income of at least $1,500 or a net income of $1,000. Married persons living together must file if they had a combined income of $2,500 or a net income of $2,000.

In special cases help-in-filing is available here or in Revenue field offices in Ashland, Covington, Lexington, Owensboro, Bowling Green, Harlan, Louisville and Paducah.

Persons who are at least $50 in tax may pay it in three installments throughout the year.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD BY WILMA

Recently we heard Bro. Jones, superintendent of the Baptist Sunday School in East Washington speak on "Living at a Brother's House." We do wish every Christian might have this young man tell of his personal experience in giving according to the only scriptural plan given to God's people. He told how they could not make ends meet when they began tithing more than ten years ago with a weekly income of thirty-three dollars. Today his tithing often amounts to as much as his income did then. God can and does pour on blessings if others can trust. He told how God collects from us when we fail to tithe: too less than the percent of the Christian in America could afford to tithe before the last war but we can all afford to pay twenty-eight percent of our income today in tithing. That is a simple matter. And, sadly, even Christians, many of them, prefer doing that and meeting the other more horrible costs of this life of the modern world in manhood to tithing, which is the only way whereby the gospel may be spread rapidly enough to erect a future world inhabited by non-Christian nations.

Mr. Jones explained how Christians can enjoy every provision of tithing by giving to poor relatives, worthy folk, by donating cassio clothing or donating their labor on the church, etc. He made it really plain that God has the one and only plan. Church members who believe tithing was limited to Old Testament times should read the chapter of Hebrews and also Luke 18. If we accept one part of the Bible we must accept it all. Nor can we afford to neglect our own responsibilities about tithing and other duties. Too many people get scared into tithing. Tithing is not a burden. It is a privilege. It is the beginning of wisdom, but we should tithe for love of God, not to advance his kingdom, not because we get sick and tired and need rest, but because we love God and want to advance his kingdom, not because we get sick and tired and need rest, but because we love God and want to advance his kingdom, not because we get sick and tired and need rest, but because we love God and want to advance his kingdom.

If You Remember...

The old man pushed a broom and well fed. But, senility art long wearing years he had known enough to think, one day that they were safe and well fed and could sleep in a dry, warm room. Born in him was a plan. A plan that would bring him food and a good bed and money to spend. When it was over he had killed and the bags of money were taken away from him before he had run two blocks. The judge "did not" should be done was solemn as death can be had said that the old man must spend his life in prison. And there he is today, although he pushes a broom and well fed and clean and mope.

After 17 Years Public Does Not Comprehend Social Security Extent

Many people are still unaware of the extent to which social security payment affects the community, declared Tompkins Thompson, social security representative for Floyd county working out of Ashland field office of the Social Security Administration.

At 64-year and survivors insurance enters its 17th year of operation, Thompson says, over five million people are receiving $200 million in insurance payments each month. The total paid in 1952 to these retired workers, their families and to dependent survivors of deceased workers who were insured, will be more than $2 1/2 billion.

In the past 16 years Thompson believes, American families have built up more protection under Federal old-age and survivors insurance than any other country in the world. About 80 percent of all jobs in the country are covered by the program, and 62 million persons are now covered for benefits on the basis of their employment in covered work. Twenty-three million of these are permanently insured. Four out of five mothers and children in the United States are protected under the federal program in case of the death of the family breadwinner. The total face value of the life insurance policies underwritten by the system is over $275 billion.

Thompson argues that the program comes home to Floyd county in the form of added purchasing power where it is needed most. Most of the wage earners, their employees, and self-employed people here pay social security taxes regularly, which buys insurance for them. But right now regular cash payments are going into the homes of people who have retired and to homes where the wage earner has died, to replace income which has been lost.

WHAT THE V.F.W. MEANS TO THE OVERSEAS VETERAN

Membership in the V.F.W. helps the V.F.W. foster the kind of patriotism that teaches love of country to the boys and girls of today—the citizens of tomorrow.

When a V.F.W. Post parades its colors, or sponsors the observance of patriotic holidays, or cooperates with civic and school authorities in doing those things that contribute to youth welfare, it is teaching respect and reverence for the patriotic ideals you have risked your life to preserve.

In thousands of communities, V.F.W. youth welfare projects (athletic and recreation groups) command the endorsement of school, church and civic leaders. The V.F.W. says the cure for juvenile delinquency is to be found in healthy outlets for youthful zest and surplus energy.

Every parent knows the truth of this formula—and that's another reason why you will be proud of your V.F.W. membership.

You still have a few days to get the March of Dimes campaign in the national campaign to raise the money to fight polio.

The national campaign is now in its final stages and the March of Dimes is now in its final stages.

In a last-minute appeal, Paul O'Connor, president of the National Campaign to Fight Polio, has appealed to the public to help raise the money to fight polio.

SOME FACTS FOR FARM FOLKS

(From the Kentucky Bankers Association)

1. Modern trunk highways from other states must not by-pass Kentucky, and they will if the state cannot with federal aid finance their construction within Kentucky.

2. Kentucky's highway needs are so great that expenditure of great sums of tax monies on these super-highways would work an injustice on those other parts of the Commonwealth which are crying for roads, any kind of improved roads, and whose cries could not be funded for a simple lack of funds.

3. Highways of the "super" class should be paid for by those who use them, and tolls, not taxes, would collect money from those users, and not from motorists who never travel them.

4. Construction of these major routes by toll funds would leave the usual fund sources for other road construction untouched, and so it would be possible for the state to reach out in the construction of a comprehensive system of improved roads throughout Kentucky.

5. The Blue Grass Automobile Club at Lexington has suggested that the state should first determine if modern free roads can be provided without toll funds. The Club pointed out that other states have found these means without resorting to tolls.

Coal's Place in Manufacture of Synthetic Chemicals Told

(From Bituminous Coal Research)

Demand for synthetic chemicals by 1975 is expected to reach 30 billion pounds per year, according to reports issued as fuel. If coal were the basic raw material to produce all these chemicals as well as to satisfy expected demand for synthetic liquid fuels, more than 80 million tons of coal would be consumed annually in these two markets.

To the oil and gas industry, the 30 billion pounds of synthetic chemicals represent a market of 36,700,000,000 pounds of oil and gas annually. They estimate that if these chemicals were made from oil and gas rather than from coal, their investment in new and existing capacity would be more than $5,000,000,000 between now and 1975.

Coal, oil and gas industries are all interested in synthetic chemicals for very obvious reasons—additional markets and more money for their products. Gasoline at the refinery is worth 11-12 cent per gallon. Familiar chemical products from the coal hydrogenation process have an average value of 50¢ a gallon. Synthetic chemicals, then, have a much greater potential value per ton of coal than do synthetic motor fuels.

Because it would take a long period of time and huge capital investment before synthetic liquid fuels could become a major factor in the over-all fuel picture, it appears that synthetic chemicals is a more attractive and accessible market for coal in the next two decades.

A few years ago practically all synthetic chemicals were derived from coal as a result of the coking process. The production of these chemicals has been limited by the demand for coke for steel making.

As the need for these chemicals grew, the oil and gas industries conducted a vigorous research program to learn how they could be produced from oil and natural gas. Coal was not able to capitalize on this growing market because processes had not been developed to convert coal to chemicals in large yields.

What portion of the synthetic chemical market will be produced by natural gas industries that depend on flow through the pipeline? Technical problems that are involved in developing better processes to produce synthetic chemicals are attacked, and on economic factors that are unproductive today.

Only about 100,000,000 tons of coal are currently used for the production of coal chemicals. Practically all this is used in chemical recovery coke. A group of synthetic chemical makers, Inc. in a report to the President's Materials Policy Commission, estimated that by 1976 if the proper technology were developed, about 120,000,000 tons of coal could be used for coke making and chemical recovery. 150,000,000 tons could be used in producing chemicals and liquid fuels by hydrogenation; 155,000,000 tons would be consumed to make chemicals and liquid fuels by the Fischer-Tropsch process; 200,000,000 tons could be used for the production of synthetic ammonia and 2,800,000,000 tons could be used for making synthetic methanol. These figures are based on coal's getting all the raw materials market for synthetic chemicals and synthetic liquid fuels.

Most of the chemicals produced by coal carbonization and coal hydrogenation are aromatic. The demand for and products that require these chemicals in their manufacture, according to the President's Materials Policy Commission, will create a synthetic chemical market of 30,000,000,000 pounds in 1975. Three-fourths of these chemicals will be used in the production of plastics and synthetic rubbers. The rest will be utilized in the manufacture of insecticides, solvents, and miscellaneous aromatic chemicals. Bituminous coal can be processed by carbonization, gasification, hydrogenation, oxidation, extraction, etc., to give a large number of valuable industrial and domestic products. Many of these chemicals have use as primary products; some must be processed further.

conditions selected. Oxidation will produce a number of chemical products including carbonic acids. The extraction process will produce coal tars. The above chemicals are necessary for the manufacture of many of the common products in the field of plastics, synthetic rubber, ethylene, detergents, pharmaceuticals, insecticides, dye-stuffs, explosives, etc.

No estimate of the future value of coal as a chemical raw material is available. An indication of its present importance is the fact that, however, it is the fact that in 1951, the value of coal chemicals produced from U. S. coke-oven by-products was $185 million, exclusive of coal gas. If coal processes were developed and used to satisfy the expected demand for synthetic chemicals and liquid fuels in the next 25 years, the material would be tremendous.

The names of many of the chemicals derived from coal masses nothing to the average person. As soon as these chemical terms are translated in relation to their end use, however, it becomes apparent that they are a part of everyone's daily living.

Toluene is used to make fingernail polish, food preservatives, flavoring, soap, perfume, and paints for furniture and automobiles, as well as TNT, the well-known military explosive.

Toluene is used in the manufacture of synthetic fibers, colored ink, food and cosmetic dyes, lacquer and other coatings. Methyl alcohol, used in the manufacture of synthetic fibers, is used in the manufacture of synthetic fibers, colored ink, food and cosmetic dyes, lacquer and other coatings.

Methyl alcohol, used in the manufacture of synthetic fibers, is used in the manufacture of synthetic fibers, colored ink, food and cosmetic dyes, lacquer and other coatings.

The famous DDT, which keeps flies and fungus infestations away from poultry, is made from wood preservatives for fence posts and lawn furniture also depend on this chemical.

The synthetic detergents which have already captured half the packing and soap market are expected to hold 75 percent of this market by 1965. These detergents are made from synthetic chemicals, but also supply the plastic used in the manufacture of telephones, radiator cabinets, fountain pens and bottle caps. The plastics also provide many rubber chemicals from which automobile tires and tubes, rubber paints, and suspenders are made.

The invention of the electric wiring for your Christmas tree lights depends on a coal-derived chemical called Epsol. This substance is also used for the manufacture of household disinfectants, shatter proof automobile glass, as a flotation agent in concentrating copper ore.

Many of the non-dyeing colors used in dresses, draperies, and suits can be made from aniline. This chemical is represented to make rubber chemicals for the manufacture of shoe heels and soles, and automobile tires. It also supplies the pigments to color rubber balloons and life rafts.

Toluidines are used to make yellow pigments for print dresses and dyes, as well as newspaper and magazine inks.

Benzene, one of the more commonly known chemicals is used to make synthetic rubber, and plastic molding powders for the manufacture of toys, combs, hair curlers and fountain pens. Many paints, masonry water proofing, water proof adhesive tape and "zeolite" shoe soles also depend on benzene. These are only a few of the thousands of products that can be made from coal-derived chemicals. It is expected that new chemicals will be obtained each year when the hydrogenation process is perfected to take coal apart chemically by chemical-impurities fundamental and pilot-scale research is being pushed by universities and the government.

Coal's future as a chemical raw material should be great. How fast it will come will be decided by the growing demand for synthetic chemicals competitive economic factors, and how soon research can develop the process to get these chemicals cheaply out of our abundant coal supply.

Scouters Meet Here, Prepare for Annual Fund-Raising Drive

As the several districts of the Sandy Valley Girl Scout Council were engaged in the annual fund-raising drive, Mrs. Ray Howard, Prestonsburg, answered the old question: "What are the Girl Scouts doing?"

The Pikeville and Retz Layne districts have completed their fund-raising campaigns, both exceeding their quotas. Other districts in the midst of the work, and the Prestonsburg district was readying its drive.

Pikeville Girl Scouts are taking an active part in the building of a community center there.

Wheelwright's Scouts are planning a mother-daughter supper, the girls preparing the food and bearing all expenses by either earning the money or saving money through the sacrifice of normal enjoyment such as movies and the like.

The David Girl Scouts are planning to attend graduation ceremonies of Mrs. Mary's School of Nursing in the midst of the work, and the Prestonsburg General Hospital, and Troop 2 has just completed work on two Preficiency Badges, with nine girls in child care and 10 in first-aid. They have begun work in music, and for the first time in the history of Prestonsburg scouting has called on their consultant for special training in art. Mrs. Rosa H. May is assisting in this work.

Martin Girl Scouts are beginning a library for local hospitals, taking particular care that children hospitalized there have reading material. There, two persons carry the full workload of scouting activities. Mrs. Howard said, pointing to the need for assistance from somewhat leaders, district chairman and executive officers.

February will find every troop in the Council observing International Girl Scout Month.

Prestonsburg district's quota in the finance drive is $1,200, and large business firms in the Council will be asked to contribute $2,000. Other districts of the Council have been asked to raise $2,800.

In Fleming county, 1,099 soil samples from 285 farms were tested in 1952.

1952-53 Hunting Season For State Ended Jan. 18

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 29 (AP)—The hunting season in Kentucky came to a close Sunday, January 18, after which it became illegal to kill birds or quail.

The season opened on November 20 and lasted from throughout the state, including a generally good season for the hunters of both the raptors and the quail in many sections. Reports show the rabbit population has been at an all-time high, while quail populations have been spotty, says the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. There will be no open season for hunting in Kentucky until the squirrel season opens and the deer that is now being hunted has been set for a season ending January 18.

Kentucky may have a second archery deer hunt during the 1952-1953 season. If the Fish and Wildlife Resources Council reacts favorably to a recent proposal by officials of Bernheim Forest Park, Forest plantings at Bernheim have been damaged extensively by the herd of European Red Deer on the area, and the archery hunt has been proposed as a solution to the problem. Quail, of course, are illegal in the park, which is under contract as a state refuge.
