This Town - That World

If there were no 'falling out' between peoples, people would never need fear fall out...

STRAW HAT WORRIES

Speaking of rain and strawing out of it, I don't and I have straw hat worries. Remember when they 'went to bed' after taking a 'settling down'? Mine is drooping rather than bulging at the top as a lid does when it goes to bed, and I'm wondering if I have any grounds for complaint to the merchant who sold it...

TO RE-READ THE SMILING SAITS!

Every year or so I get a notion I'd like to re-read some maybe just one) of those old paper-back romantic novels I found an interesting, 'way back' for the first time. Mrs. Southworth tear-jerkers, or 'East Lynne' or some of Bertha M. Clay's 'wooden' advertisements... I get this notion, I suppose, on occasions when I have the vapors. Remember when sweet, young heroines swooned at the drop of a hat or a rose petal? And how the once heavenly creature with cerulean blue eyes, with an ethereal beauty that left Albert gawping in a delirium of delight as he gazed at her orbs on her half-parted rosy lips? Man and boy, then were the days!

WHO WAS THE GOAT IN THIS DEAL?

Jack Hyden, Prestonsburg, used car dealer, recently advertised that he would accept anything-but anything-in trade for his cars. He soon there appeared on his lot an alien man with a 'kitty' who had a note in his pocket that read 'I have no cash but would like to trade with you for a car. I have a goat.' MOTHER OF 6 AUTO VICTIM

SAFETY SHOW SET JULY 4th

Demonstration at Lake To Show Do's and Don't's While Swimming, Boating

A demonstration of swimming and boating safety will be given in the Stratton Branch recreation area of Piney Lake State Park at 10 a.m. July 4, under joint sponsorship of Floyd Chamber, American Red Cross, Dewey Lake State Park and the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. It was announced this week.

The demonstration will be staged by Lewis Gillette, water safety representative for the American Red Cross, in Kentucky. Canoes and boats with motors will be used in the boating safety show, which will demonstrate the do's and don'ts of boating.

In Kentucky last year 119 persons were drowned, and most of these were victims of boating or swimming accidents. Dewey Lake's safety record has been outstanding but, in view of the fact that boating and swimming poses a constant threat, the demonstration has been planned to impress on the public the need for safety precautions and how to take them.

EX-GOVERNOR COMMITTEE SENATE PICK

Leary Declines Post After Wetherby Named; G.O.P. To Meet Soon

Joe Leary announced Wednesday that he will not accept the appointment as U. S. Senator to serve till the November election. He turned it down because it was because it offers no opportunity for service, and said his hope is to promote party harmony. The G.O.P. committee to name a candidate to oppose Wetherby was postponed.

Action of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee in naming Former Governor Lawrence W. Wethington, Friday, as the candidate for the Senate post held by the late Allen W. Barkley, made those local political prognosticators who had predicted no compromise between the Clements-Chandler factions of the party assure the probability of a major political split.

Governor Chandler only Monday had named his ally, Joseph J. Wethington, Friday, as the candidate for the Senate post held by the late Allen W. Barkley, made those local political prognosticators who had predicted no compromise between the Clements-Chandler factions of the party assure the probability of a major political split.

Chandler had no comment to make. Harmony continued on summer vacation.

Next political move will be the Republicans' State Central Committee will meet Saturday in Lexington to discuss a candidate to oppose Wetherby. Thompson B. Morton was nominated by the G. O. P. at the May primary to oppose Senator Clements.

The committee was expected to announce a possible G. O. P. Senatorial choice is that of Dr. Blair E. Chubbuck, 68-year-old Presbyterian minister and president of Wittersburg College at Buckhorn, Perry county.

James Park of Lexington, also is often mentioned as a possible Republican choice to oppose Wetherby. In the 1954 election for Congress, Park was nominated by the G. O. P. at the May primary to oppose Senator Clements.

Wetherby's name was placed in nomination by Robert J. Wains, Middleboro, Va. It was seconded by Dr. B. F. Wright, Seig.

SUIT TO TEST RIGHTS FILED

Coal Company Claims 56,273 Tons of Coal Lost Around 11 Wells

Suit was filed in circuit court here this week by the Collins & Mayo Collieries Company against the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company seeking a declaratory judgment of the plaintiff's rights to payment of 10 cents per ton for coal left unmined around each of 11 wells drilled by the gas company.

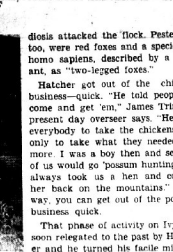

The lands involved in the suit, located in Floyd and Pike counties, are owned by the lands to R. J. Graf in 1936, and that Graf later conveyed these rights to Kentucky West Virginia.

In asking a declaration of its rights, the coal firm contends that the rules of the Department of Mines and Metastals, complying with state laws, provide that a block of coal, less than 200 feet square be left unmined around each well.

The plaintiffs has demanded payment for 56,273 tons of coal, valued at $6,672.30 from the gas company. Lands involved in the case lie in the south-east corner of the lot and the Mine Creek section of this county, and in the Shelby Creek area of Pike.

Hatcher's Ventures on Huge Farm Add to the Legends of Ivy Creek

Typical of the grand plans James H. Hatcher had for his Ivy Creek farm is this portion house, probably the largest in the section. He gave the flock away when coecidiosis, over-production and low egg prices made the business unprofitable.

By HENRY P. SCALF

This is the story of a mountain estate and a blasted dream. It is the story of Ivy Creek, this county, that at one time was on the threshold of greatness but never made it because the price of eggs went down and several unusual agricultural enterprises died a-borning.

The Ivy Creek schoolhouse, only one in Big Sandy that serves only the tenants of a single farm. It also is used as a mission site by a Prestonsburg church.

A Financial Dross And a Wet-Dry Vote

With a local-option election in Catlettsburg only a few days away, the mayor of that city which was once widely known for its Front Street "Saloon Row" is telling his own people and all others who read of the city's dire financial straits. Because of the imminence of that wet-dry vote one wonders if the sad state of affairs in Catlettsburg isn't being emphasized in order to coax reluctant voters, to snatch at a straw and vote wet as a money-raising scheme.

Mayor Rice says past-due bills are piling up and that property taxes, franchise taxes, parking meters, police court fines, auto stickers and license fees aren't enough to pay them.

What more the city needs to raise money Mayor Rice doesn't say. His tax structure appears from this distance to be about the same as that of other cities of the same size. Many factors could enter into the situation, however. The city may have been spending too freely. Its assessments may be ridiculously low. The tax collector may have been doing a poor job; the police department could be dead weight. We do not know.

But one thing we do know. Catlettsburg will not find a solution to its ills by voting "legal" whiskey back. It will find legalised whiskey sales no more a panacea for all its ills than Prestonsburg did, several years ago. Sound government policies put into actual practice will mean more to Catlettsburg and to any other city than all the changes they may take down dark alleys after the pot of gold at the foot of Saloon Row.

FORD sets 500-mile record at Indianapolis Speedway

Again proves nobody outperforms Ford
... dramatic demonstration of the kind of performance and roadability that makes all your driving more fun in a Ford!

A Ford V-8 hurtled across the brick and asphalt surface of tough and testing Indianapolis Speedway... whirling through the tight turns and flashing over the straight stretches... to set a mark that no stock car ever reached before.

Peterson de Paolo, leader of the team of drivers that piloted the winning Ford, states: "No other stock car could have equaled this performance." And Peterson de Paolo should know, for he was the first driver to win the "500" Classic with a better than 100 m.p.h. average. And now he comes back with a group of drivers to establish a new mark record with the great '56 Ford!

Ford wrote this new stock car legend and hold in the record books. And the whole Ford did the trick. From the load-hauling thrashing horsepower to the road-hugging rear end, Ford demonstrated that it has what it takes to make you driving more enjoyable. Convince yourself that driving a Ford can be real fun. Test drive a '56 Ford. There's a lot of fun waiting for you, so come in and see us now.

MAY GET BACK IN BUSINESS

I may go back into the dog business again, after all. I trowed it would not after my dog was spotted was killed by a car as it looked on two years ago. But I'm weakening.

I need a dog that is too lazy to gamble and get run over by cars or one of our other folks' premises and get spotted. Cocker, dalmatian, beaver, grey, bulldog—all will have their appeal, but each has its faults. Some I'm too much for and some I'm not. I'm a dog man from way back and a plain ordinary, long-eared bound would just about fit the bill with me, even if he does have an inclination to sack his lane nose where it has the best business. But I doubt if this kind of dog would meet with unanimous approval at our house.

So I have decided that a cross between a bulldog and a dachshund would be just about my speed. Long ears, long body, short legs, with pronounced tendency to flop in any spot not already occupied.

A bound-bound like Chee, the dog that steals eggs in the Peoples' Choice on TV is of course what I have in mind. If the new is right.

P. S. If offered at a bargain, will not require the dog to talk.

were through a vast bottom area started to grow in kudzoo. In fact it grew so well, for when the movers went at their task the machines clogged with the tangled masses. They swung and swayed but utterly failed to harvest any profitable amount. Cool Hatcher, disgusted with the vine, had it turned under. It was a fine green manure crop anyway. Today around the Trimble residence near U. S. 23 and alongside the road up Ivy Creek, kudzoo is life. A reminder of Hatcher's interest in unusual aspects of agriculture.

Chickens and kudzoo. Many wondered what they had let loose to wait. A voracious reader of agricultural literature, Hatcher learned about the differences between the bird and the beast. He had plenty of the wild feed falling on his Ivy Creek acres. He ordered several birds, turned them loose.

The mule-footed hogs were the genesis of his interest in articles on the tuber-like feed material, excellent hog roasting. The feed also luxuriant with kudzoo, were planted in sections. In fall and winter the mule-footed swine came down out of the hills and rooted in the artichoke boughs. Things went along all right for a time until Cool Hatcher found out nobody would buy a hog that "doesn't fetch the hoof."

After that he lost interest. He liquidated the animal with the help of poachers and a few "tagged-leg" boys. For a dozen years afterward hunters would fritter a stray and wild mule-footed rooster (only on high ridges of Buzzard Roost, Fork or in the head of Drapping.)

In between these ventures into wild and picturesque agricultural pursuits Hatcher loosed the timber on Ivy Creek. As the forks he built a farm. He found his swine fattened full vent. The sides were covered with boards from native trees, and the porch posts were sections of log standing upright. On this porch he had many evenings when the loggers returned from the hills. He ate and slept with them.

In a few years the vast virgin acres were loosed out, and the timber again to farm. He had tried chickens, kudzoo, artichokes and mule-footed hogs. Most people knew Uncle Jim talked of farming on strange plants and animals would find their way to Ivy Creek and so they were not surprised when he announced Johnson grass. It grew as luxuriantly as kudzoo, makes excellent feed at the right state of growth. He learned later that it's the worst pest any farmer can become afflicted with, for it survives under the most adverse conditions, creeps, with roots burrowing several feet deep to places it is wholly unwanted. Mr. Hatcher eliminated all the other things he had and profitable but he never got rid of Johnson grass. The present day, he and Jan's Trimble, are off his heels are still battling the stuff.

In a few years Hatcher cared of self advertisements in agricultural magazines and attention to him and the erection of a hotel at Pikeville. Into the hotel went a chunk of his money. He learned later that it was not a detour for the effort. He remembered that a man his size to walk didn't deserve a bed. From the mouth of Ivy Creek where the Rebels and Press tonight he collected cannon balls and other memorabilia of the battle. He saw them on display in the lobby. He painted the hotel walls with early maps and old advertisements in military news. He had them removed. They are there yet.

Hatcher knew all but his love for Ivy Creek. He and he went back there often from Pikeville, pondered upon the history and legends of the place. He could pour out with exactitude the military dispositions of the Union general.

Bill Nelson, and the Confederate general, Andrew Jackson. Mr. Hatcher had also his horse just before the battle opened. It would go pointing to wherever his master's shoe.

If you had traveled up the hill with him he would have pointed out the location of the other soldiers in the wall for their to be beside a huge stone that disintegrated and plipped over into the bottom. You would listen to the legend he told.

Years ago so long ago as the man who remembers when a woman with a tube in arms was walking on this road. It was the evening, when the shadows were at the bottom there. She was seen by someone, nobody living remembers whom. When she was passing the mountain and the giant rock came crashing down hill. Suddenly there was a long, piercing scream and after that silence filled the twilight. People say today the woman and baby are buried under the quiet stone. Some say that a duck woman draped in black walks around the element rock, looking for her child. Other say that each year on the anniversary of her death screams are heard.

The battle of Ivy Narrows is history and the story the rock legend Jim Hatcher loved both.

Men live and dream. He Hatcher did maybe of chickens or Herefords and sheep, then he die. He succumbed in 1939. Before he died he sold the timber in the Northeast Lumber Company, which logged it.

He installed Penn Layne, an uncle, in the big house where Cool May sat on his horse, Uncle Penn, a white bewiskered patriarch, died there, grateful to the nephew who sheltered him.

The Hatcher venture in agricultural pursuits having ended in failure, the valley was filled with tenants who usually built the kind of house they wanted, framed prettily where they pleased and dug up for decades. Tulliver Lewis, the oldest tenant, was 23 there. At one time there were 21 stave-croppers. Only eight remain. Most of them have gone to Ohio, Trimble said.

Jim Hatcher willed Ivy Creek to the seven sons and daughters of Andrew Trimble, a favorite neighbor. James Trimble lives in the big house at the mouth of the creek, conducts the varied affairs of the estate. Young Trimble came back from the navy in 1945, induced the heart of "Education" to build a schoolhouse. It is said to be the only school district in the state comprising only a single farm.

The schoolhouse serves as a mission point, too, for the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist church at Prestonsburg. Phil Schroeder, Prestonsburg church layman, goes up Ivy Creek every Sunday. In winter weather when the snow is impossible he parks his car at the mouth of the creek and walks up part of the time. The schoolhouse is being renovated. An unincorporated house is being renovated. Floyd County Times, June 21, 1956—Sec. 1, Page 5 corn crib that held thousands of bushels are gone, having been torn down by the bottom three or four of the heils. The chicken house is windowless and shows evidence of age and neglect. Artichokes, mule-footed hogs, kudzoo and Johnson grass are staple products no more. Trimble directs modern farming. Thirty-two acres of corn grow, as do clover fields and other profitable crops. Thirteen gas wells have been sunk on the big farm. One of the overseer's many duties is to look after these production.

Ivy Creek is now being divided among the heirs. Soon the section's largest single landed estate will be broken up and smaller farms will emerge. But the valley remains now much as Cool Hatcher knew it—filled forever with history and legends. He was a bit of history himself and, being the man he was, he will be legend, too, some day.

MARTIN ERROR LEADS TO WIN

Martin Scores First Run In Fourth Inning; King Coluts Triple in 4th

An error off Ed Hall, Martin pitcher, led to the winning run which scored on leftfielder Robinson's single that won over Harold at Harold last Sunday, 2-1.

A closely contested game throughout, Martin had its biggest scare in the eighth when Harold loaded the bases with no one out. Then the Martin pitcher bore down to get Grady Wallace to force a runner at home. W. Clark short-circuited the rally by grounding into a double-play which traveled from P. Griggs to J. Blair to C. King to P. Griggs.

Martin scored their first run in the fourth inning when Pete Griggs smacked out a double and scored on a single by catcher Lawson. Harold played their sole run when King clouted a fourth inning triple and rode home on a double by W. Clark, Harold rightfielder.

This will be the third season for Camp Chatterbox, which is located seven miles from Prestonsburg on Dewey Lake. Each week among other things each unit will have its own water supply and at the main lodge there will be a new water cooler. Improvements at the water front are also being started.

The program of activities is being planned this year to include a wider range of experiences. The girls will enjoy beginning and advanced swimming classes, canoeing, life-saving, archery, sports and games, nature craft, camping skills and the fun of living, working and playing with others their own age.

Mrs. Moore was the daughter of James and Martha Allen, early Beaver Creek residents. Surviving sons and daughters are Earl Moore, Prestonsburg; Jones Moore, of Lanesville; Ed Moore, Gallatin; and Mrs. Fred Bailey, of Eastern. Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. last Sunday at the Wilson Street Baptist church in the Rev. M. C. Waight, Russell Jacobs and Benjamin Morris officiating. Burial was made in the Bailey cemetery at Hillside, Eastern, held by Rev. J. L. Wainwright.

A heart diet has to be taken thus. He has to be absolutely spotproof. And he has to be tough. Sports. And.

Since 1935 over 10,000,000 children have received the Salk polio vaccine with a perfect safety record. Polio was first described in 1889 by British physician Michael Underwood.

There are an estimated 700,000 children in Kentucky who have received no polio vaccine. An epidemic of polio this summer is possible unless action is taken to protect these persons.

Kentucky's worst poliomyelitis epidemic year was 1952, when 1,762 cases were reported.

Poliomyelitis occurs in children five to nine years old more than in any other age group.

The damage suit was filed by Mrs. Flo Whicker, widow of Freddy Whickers of Martin, victim of Miss's shotgun blast, on behalf of herself and her five children. The action was taken shortly after Rice had been convicted of the slaying in the Lawrence circuit court on charge of venue and had been given a 21-year pen term.

Rice was returned to Prestonsburg from LaGrange a few days ago for trial of the case.

Paul E. Hayes, who with Claude P. Stephens represented the widow, said the plaintiff's pleading will probably be amended. It was learned from another source, however, that the one-year time limit for filing such an action may bar amended pleading. Joe Hobson represented Sheriff Collins and the bond firm; Tackett & Tackett represented Rice and his bondsmen.

Elephants Wreck Trees
Elephants wreck many trees in feedlots, but they do not get at one in a furious charge. When Sports Afraid magazine sent artist W. J. Wiswending to Africa on a sketching safari, he reported that they slowly walk up to a tree, slowly put their huge heads against it and then, putting their full weight of many tons behind the punch, they slowly walk the tree to the ground. It comes up by the roots as if a storm had thrown it over.

FLOYD NATIVE WINS AWARD
Of $1,000 Scholarship
From Extension Service
Department of University

One of five $1,000 scholarships for advanced study awarded by the University of Kentucky's Agricultural Extension Department to many members of the Extension Staff in county or regional positions has been won by Clinton County Agent Durward Salsbury, a native of Floyd county.

The scholarships are the first awarded the Extension Service. All recipients have been granted leaves of absence and will work toward their master's degrees the coming year.

Selection of Salsbury and the other four Extension staff members was made by a judging committee on the basis of meritorious service in extension work, interest in advanced college work, scholarship and potential capabilities.

Other recipients of the $1,000 grants are:
Fred Brockman, area agent in farm and home development, Campbellville; J. W. Poe, Jr., Jackson, county agent in Breathitt county; Warren C. Thompson, Clinton, county agent in Hickman county, and Mrs. Mucille E. Warren, Winchester, home demonstration agent in Clark county.

County Agent Salsbury is a son of Farmer and P. Salsbury of Hunter. He was educated at Eastern State College and the University of Kentucky. His mother, who recently completed her 75th year as a classroom teacher in this county, is now a student at Morehead State College prior to resuming her teaching work with the beginning of the 1956-57 school year.

While bread prices rose 70 percent between 1946 and 1955—and the farmers received only a 20 percent increase in the same period for their wheat.

1956 Farmers' Tax Guide is being prepared and will be shipped out in November, the Federal Agricultural Extension Service says.

In one Kentucky county 1300 gun cartridges were used in control of ground hops, and 1000 more cartridges were on order from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

WIDOWS, TOTS DRAW $37,880

In Floyd Each Month From Social Security, Says Flynn's Report

Monthly payments to widowed mothers and minor children in Floyd county amounted to $37,880 per month based on figures as of December 1955, according to Robert A. Flynn, district manager, Social Security Administration, Ashland.

In making the announcement Flynn said that many persons think of the old-age and survivors insurance program as providing protection only for older men and women. He made it clear that it is also a program benefiting youngsters. At the end of 1955, nationwide, 1,275,000 children under age 18 were receiving monthly benefits payments under the social security law. Of these, 120,000 were being paid monthly dependent's benefits because of the retirement of an aged parent, the others were receiving survivors benefits as children of deceased parent. Mr. Flynn pointed out that about four times as many orphaned children are receiving benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance program as are being helped under the Federal State program for aid to dependent children. Nationwide, almost 300,000 mothers of children under age 18 were receiving monthly survivors insurance benefits. If death should occur as the end of 1955.

As a further illustration of the protection federal survivors insurance now provides for the young people of the country, it was pointed out that the mothers and children in line out of ten American families can receive monthly survivors insurance benefits if death should take the family breadwinner. More than half of all young children in the continental United States whose fathers have died since 1935 are receiving social security benefits at the end of 1955.

In all, 2,452 people in Floyd county were getting $90,890 each month in old-age and survivors benefits at the end of 1955.

And people accounted for the greatest number in the county's increased beneficiary total, he said. In Floyd county at the end of last year, 758 retired workers were getting $4,275 monthly; 26 widows and dependent husbands were receiving $6,882 monthly; 107 aged widows, widowers, and parents were receiving $4,792 monthly as survivors of deceased insured workers.

"With the bringing in of many groups of employed and self-employed persons previously excluded, the old-age and survivors insurance program achieved almost universal coverage at the beginning of 1955," Mr. Flynn said. He said that an estimated 68 million persons had taxable earnings under the program in calendar year 1955. Some 10 million workers were insured under the program as the year came to an end. Of this number, 25 million are permanently insured and are qualified for old-age benefits at age 65, regardless of future employment; likewise, in the event of death, their survivors can qualify for monthly benefits, lump-sum death payments, or both.

When a worker retires or dies, he or his survivors are urged to visit, phone or write the Ashland Social Security office for assistance in making claim for benefits. "In fact," Mr. Flynn said, "the social security office should be contacted (1) when a worker reaches age 65, regardless of retirement; (2) when he reaches age 72, regardless of earnings; (3) when an insured member in a family dies; and (4) when a worker becomes totally disabled for any gainful employment or self employment."

The Ashland Social Security District office is located at 246 14th Street, and Representatives of that office visit Prestonsburg, each Tuesday at 10:00 a.m. (EST). Further information concerning social security benefits can be obtained from the representatives free of charge.

Fatalities Total 30 In State Coal Mines In First Five Months

Frankfort, June 18 (Sp.) — Thirty fatalities were recorded in Kentucky coal mines during the first five months of this year, according to a report released by James H. Phelan, chief of the Department of Mines and Minerals. Truck mine deaths included one each in Bell, Floyd, Harlan, Johnson, Lee and Whitely counties, four in Leslie and two in Leslie counties.

Rail mine fatalities included three each in Letcher, Mader and Perry counties, four in Harlan and Pike counties and one in Floyd county.

"Three lives are lost needlessly because someone along the line has failed to do his job," Phelan said. "This slaying death toll should cause every one connected with coal mining to be concerned to a degree that he personally will do something about it."

CATLETTSBURG 'ON ROCKS,' CITY OFFICIALS DECLARE

Catlettsburg, Ky., June 17 — Catlettsburg is still having financial difficulties, and unless something is done to solve the problem the City may soon be without some vital services, Mayor Edwin Rice said yesterday.

Rice and City Treasurer Marjory Carpenter declared additional revenue is "urgently needed so past bills can be paid and current expenses met."

The Mayor said the City is having difficulty in meeting its payroll.

"Already some policemen and firemen are looking for other jobs," he said. "They want to be certain that they and their families will eat."

He said this fact summarizes "how poor our town has become. We still owe for the food prisoners in our City Jail east."

Rice described Catlettsburg's police and fire protection as being below par, and he warned that unless the City's money problems are solved, the situation can only get worse.

"Unless back bills are paid, Rice said, Catlettsburg faces the possibility of being without street lights, water for fire protection, and gasoline to operate City vehicles."

"Catlettsburg is getting the maximum revenue from property taxes, franchise taxes, parking meters, Police Court fines, auto stickers, and license fees," he said.

He encouraged citizens to examine the treasurer's records, adding the book will show that every dollar received in revenue is accounted for.

He said borrowing would be no solution because the City now owes $5,000 delinquent on its electric bill more than $8,000 for water and around $2,000 for gasoline and oil.

"We could list other past-due bills," he said. "How much our town owes the telephone company, the service station which keeps our police and fire-protection vehicles up and running, and the insurance company which issues policies on all our City-owned cars and trucks."

The Mayor's statement emphasized that he and City councilmen will welcome suggestions from all residents as to what can be done to help solve the difficulties.

INJUSTICE

Since the Banking Commission had declined to approve the Articles of Incorporation of the Peoples Security Bank of Martin, after considerable effort, time and money was spent on my part. I want to thank the people who so generously and loyally assisted me by subscribing for stock in the proposed bank. I will always retain a warm spot in my heart for each of you and if the opportunity ever comes, I hope that I will be able in my humble way to show my appreciation for the confidence you placed in me in our effort to establish this institution in which so many were interested and desired so much.

Of course the less competition in any business, banking or otherwise, the greater price you pay. Another bank at this place would have been a great asset and would have brought more business to the community and the public in general and the benefits received would have been greater. Our application received very little attention after the law firm of Leary and Smith were employed by the opposition in this connection, there was a wheel within a wheel.

It now seems that our efforts have diminished and faded in some degree in this connection. We are now at a standstill and the only course left to us is by law suit in the Franklin Circuit Court, which means a lot of expense and a long delay of a year or more in the courts before we could begin active business.

There never was any doubt in my mind with our 107 stockholders, their neighbors, kindreds and friends that another bank at this point, being in the center of population and wealth of this county would be a success and they would have had a big bank and a large one and the stockholders would have greatly profited thereby but a time may come whereby we will be more successful in our wish to establish this bank. I hope the day may speedily come when people will have equal opportunity and discrimination and favoritism will cease. When the public becomes sufficiently aroused they usually get what they want, politically or otherwise. I will know that a great number of people are disappointed with the kind of treatment we received and that many more people were interested in our behalf than the stockholders.

I am, faithfully yours,
HENRY STEPHENS

Get Polio Shots Before July 1 For Prevention

Frankfort, June 18 (Sp.) — Manufacturers are producing enough Salk polio vaccine to give at least one dose to every one of Kentucky's most susceptible persons who have not yet been vaccinated, Dr. Russell T. Tague, State Commissioner of Health said today. Polio strikes most often at children under 20 and pregnant women.

"The increase in supply fortunately comes just in time," Dr. Tague said. "The number of polio cases is usually greatest in the summer months."

Dr. Tague said if every person in the most susceptible group received one dose of polio vaccine before July 1, the danger of a paralytic polio epidemic in the State this year would be markedly reduced.

"For widest over-all protection of a community against an epidemic it is better for everyone to get the first injection before anyone receives the second and third doses," Dr. Tague said. "Now, with the current vaccine production all persons in the most susceptible group can receive the first injection immediately."

As reports from 1955 polio immunization programs over the nation are completed, the vaccine's ability to prevent paralytic polio becomes more and more apparent. Studies in 22 states involving over 8,500,000 vaccinated and unvaccinated persons have already been completed. The paralytic polio attack rate among vaccinated children, most of whom had only one injection, was only 43 a 100,000. Among the unvaccinated children, the attack rate of 292 a 100,000 and among those vaccinated children who still contracted polio the crippling effect was reduced greatly.

There is every assurance that the vaccine is safe. After revised federal safety standards were adopted in the spring of 1955, some 10,000,000 children in the United States received vaccine with a perfect safety record.

Despite the vaccine's proved effectiveness and safety, there are still an estimated 700,000 children in Kentucky who have not received the first shot. An epidemic of polio this summer is possible unless immediate action is taken to protect these unimmunized persons.

That new Dynaflow, for example, brings you the world's only switch-pitch performance in cars—plus a new part-throttle getaway response that's swifter, surer, and a gas-saver to boot. The new V8 engine is 322-cubic-inches big, and packed with the highest horsepower, the highest compressions in all Buick annals. There's a joyous new ride, too—a new steering magic—a new "sense of direction" in your every handling maneuver. Thing to do is come see for yourself. That way you can also look at the prices that have helped move Buick to a new sales success—outselling all other cars in America except two of the well-known smaller ones. Will you do that, this week?

DANIEL BOONE

The early history of Kentucky is closely identified with the name of Daniel Boone — explorer, trail maker, and Indian fighter—more than with that of any other man. Boone was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, in 1734, of Quaker parents, Squire and Sarah (Morman) Boone. There were friendly Indians in the neighborhood and young Daniel early learned the red man's habits, character and way of life. Chester Hardin, who painted his portrait when he was a quaint, old man, described him as a dreamy person, shunning publicity, and depicting the traditional headgear of rooster-ear with bill by the top.

Its purpose is to work for the construction of the proposed dam on the Licking River at Cave Run, two miles south of Farmers and for the promotion of recreational facilities, water conservation, and hydroelectric power through ownership of the dam.

Dr. Alex Spier of West Liberty was elected president. Russell Meadows, Marshall, vice-president and Woodrow W. Barber, West Liberty, secretary-treasurer.

Named directors were: Rowan County, H. H. Lay and Alpha Hutchinson; Morgan, Attorney J. Blaine Nixell and Logan Flannery; Bath, Roger Berns and Charles Canfield; Elliott, Woodrow Comley and John Wheeler; Wolfe, Ruth and Mentzer Paul; Jackson and Mazon, Homer Hale.

Production of bituminous coal in 1955 by the nation's two leading producers, the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. and U. S. Steel Corp., exceeded 53,000,000 tons or about 11.5 per cent of the national output. U. S. Steel's production of more than 28,000,000 tons was generally for use in steelmaking.

"I personally feel that this bill will help all the municipalities that have sewage problems in our area," Congressman Carl D. Perkins said recently in discussing the Blatnik bill to provide prevention of water pollution and its control.

The bill, discussed in the House of Representatives last week and made available to the federal governments available to cities up to one-third of the cost of sewage disposal systems not to exceed $100,000.

"Reliable estimates indicate that the nation will require by 1975 an increase in current water supply of 145 percent," Perkins told the House. "This is equal to the additional supply of 120 cities the size of New York. To meet these increasing demands the control of pollution has an essential role. It is the key to the national problem of water supply for polluted-water is wasted water."

Perkins noted that the bill would authorize continuation of federal-state cooperation in the development of water pollution control programs, increase technical assistance to states particularly on new and complex problems; intensify and broaden research to determine the effects of pollutants on public health and other water treatment; increase aid to the conduct of and grants for demonstration, studies and training; broaden matching grants to states and interstate agencies for the construction of needed treatment works; continue encouragement of interstate cooperation; assist in the development of improved state water pollution control legislation; improve procedure for state-interstate-federal collaboration on abatement of interstate pollution; and encourage prevention and control of pollution from federal installations.

Section VI of the bill provides for grants to states, municipalities, and other agencies, to help in the preliminary planning and construction of needed sewage treatment. Perkins said, "This I regard as one of the most important of our already tax-burdened municipalities."

As amended in the subcommittee which conducted thorough hearings on the bill, the section would provide federal assistance to any one municipality up to one-third of the cost of sewage treatment facilities, or $300,000, whichever is smaller. At least 50 per cent of such grants would be earmarked for aid to communities of 125,000 population or less. An appropriation of $30,000,000 per year for such grants would be authorized by this section of the bill, in an aggregate not to exceed $300,000,000 over a period of years.

Grants are to be made only for projects approved by the appropriate state water pollution control agency and the Surgeon General of the U. S., and for projects included in a comprehensive program developed pursuant to the terms of the bill, priority to be given to grants for advance planning.

The Congressman said, "The predicament of the small city for which Section VI offers some hope, was graphically presented by witness after witness during the hearings on this bill. It was testified that many communities have reached their legal limits of bonded indebtedness. Many are limited as to their tax resources and expenditures by State law. In city after city it was declared that their financial resources had been strained to the utmost by their current needs for such essential services as schools, water supply, police, and fire protection services. They have simply exhausted their resources in many instances. And still the grave and increasing problem of providing sewage treatment facilities has to be met."

For small or medium sized cities of up to 50,000 population, largely dependent upon one industry which contributes heavily to water pollution is an additional disadvantage. In the event of a period of relatively depressed activity within that industry, the tax income available for public purposes decreases. The municipality is unable to attract new industry to provide a diversified tax base as it is unable to offer ample quantities of pure water. Pure water is not modern industry's only requirement. It is essential to meet the cost of an investment with the absolute need for the construction of sewage treatment plants in order to attract new industry.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.
Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, Ky.

"WHERE DO YOU LIVE AT?"

If you think that folk psychology is wearing thin or that radio and television sets have transformed human nature, you should come with me on some of the trips that I take to study birds. Every spring, when I know it is true to hear Whip-poor-wills and their cousins, the Chick-will-widows, I go out into certain areas where I am most likely to hear these night callers. On several occasions I have been spotted by suspicious people who cannot understand what a fat, middle-aged man might be doing by strolling in his car by a roadside and listening intently or else walking up and down a lonely country road waiting for seven o'clock and then for a bird song to happen at the same time. This spring I had the usual experience: I drove to the top of a country road about a half hour before sunset and waited for the daytime birds to sing their evening songs and the night birds to take over. A rather rough-looking fellow, about as old as I, came by in his car, stopped, and politely asked me whether I was having car trouble. I carefully explained that I had come out to hear Whip-poor-wills. His only comment was "Where do you live at?" I hastened to explain that I was a college professor in his neighboring good-stoned town and that I studied birds for a hobby. He drove away in his car and on up a rough, rocky, winding country road, probably wondering what sort of lie I would tell the next fellow who asked to relieve me from any trouble my car might be having. Soon after he left, the night birds began their songs, and I drifted back to my home, convinced again that whatever someone believes that is not a matter of general knowledge is a thing to be suspected and questioned. I was not near any place where a cold spring flows down from a hillside might have been utilized for what cold spring water is said to be very useful in fact. I was only a few hundred yards from a great national highway where dozens of cars whizzed by while my suspicious friend was putting me through a standard set of questions when a strange character drifts into a remote community.

By the way of contrast, two days later I stopped in front of a country church that I have often visited, to listen to the birds in the trees around the building. Another came by, one of my former students, he greeted me and asked how many birds I had seen that morning and seemed greatly pleased that I was observing birds around the old church and in the churchyard where sleep some of the distinguished people of this excellent community. I suppose that this second man could name no more birds than the first, but his contact with the big world had taught him that such mere ducks as ornithologists do exist and that a man wandering around with a pair of binoculars slung around his neck is not trying to spy out a still or other questionable industry. The gap between the two men is one that is hard to bridge without doubt, the first man was as sincere in his neighborliness as the second, he just didn't know what a fellow could be doing studying birds.

Though nearly fifty years separate me from Fidelity, I still know the folk living behind this strange suspicion. I never knew any one in our remote little world to suffer any physical harm from being a stranger, but we watched everybody who entered our dead-end community, knowing that we had no chance at him, as he came in and as he turned around and went out. Sly hints or even direct questions usually brought the information he sought, and then we told everybody else about the wandering "Cops" who was rampled down by Sullivan Springs, was driving through to the river in his duty wagon. We certainly watched him and his business family as he went, and we wanted to know who he was and where he was going to and where he lived at.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means to express our sincere appreciation to everyone who did so much for us in sharing the passing of our father and father-in-law, Rufus Crisp Allen, Kentucky. We shall be eternally grateful to our kind neighbors for their thoughtfulness and many helpful deeds, to those who visited us and those who brought food, to the Allen Methodist choir and Mrs. Paul Doyse, of Wayland, for their message in song, to Rev. John P. Cox, Rev. Isaac Stritton and Rev. Bill Amburgey for their part in making the funeral services something and comforting, to the sent flowers, and to the Turner & Ryan Funeral Home and the Allen police force for their very efficient services.

Six Important Steps In Tomato Production

Disease and insect control, fertilization, cultivation, watering and mulching are important steps for the home gardener toward a crop of 10 pounds of tomatoes to the plant, says George A. Marlowe, Jr., U. K. Extension specialist in horticulture. He makes these recommendations:

Weekly spraying or dusting, started at the time the first blooms appear should be continued until fruit to control early and late blight. Spraying is preferred, as the undersides of the leaves as well as the tops are given better protection.

Tomato dust containing copper may be used, but even better are the sprays containing zinc or mancozeb such as Dithane, Manzate or Vandice.

Many insects bother tomatoes, but they can be controlled by the use of a malathion spray once a week. Marlowe emphasized that while malathion is a good general insecticide it should not be used on a crop that is to be harvested within 10 days. It is available in a dust or spray. Manufacturers' directions on the use of all chemicals should be carefully followed, Marlowe emphasized.

If an all-purpose spray is wanted, the combination formula of 3-percent methoxychlor, 4-percent malathion, and 5-percent captan is all right for tomatoes, though not as good a fungicide as those mentioned in the paragraph above.

The first application of fertilizer should be made when the fruit is the size of a pea or cherry. Too early application may prevent fruit from setting. Use 1 tablespoon of ammonium nitrate, or twice that amount of nitrate of soda, and make a ring within 4 inches of the stem of the plant, then water it closely into the soil. A second application of fertilizer should be made when the fruit is about one-half inch in diameter.

Cultivation of tomatoes should be very shallow and only as necessary. Deep cultivation destroys roots and causes the soil to dry out more quickly.

A few thorough soakings of the soil is much better than frequent light waterings. A good rule is to apply an inch watering what would be equal to an inch of rainfall. Don't wet the foliage. If possible, as the spray or dust is washed off, and blight is more likely to strike under deep conditions.

An inch mulch of sawdust, straw or dirt or a plastic covering will save moisture and keep the soil cooler, the weeds down, and the fruit clean.

Mayor's Fraternity Brother Brings Plant to Cynthiana

Frankfort, June 18 (Sp.) — A new one million dollar manufacturing plant will locate in Cynthiana as a result of the State Agricultural and Industrial Development Board's bringing together two former college classmates. The plant will employ about 100 persons.

The AKID Board said a spokesman of Blake & Johnson Co., 100-year-old Waterville, Conn., machine screw and bolt manufacturer, has notified Cynthiana's Mayor Sterling of the decision to build a branch in that city. The announcement was made by Chester P. White, vice-president of the firm, and one of Cynthiana's former delegates to the State Agricultural and Industrial Development Board, class of 1938.

George W. Hatley, executive director of the AKID Board, said while contacted the Board last December for information on Kentucky's census between 18,000 and 20,000 population and within 350 miles of Blake & Johnson principal markets in the Midwest and South.

Hatley said Blake & Johnson is one of 34 companies the Board recently announced were considering industrial sites in the State. Little League Here Draws More Support; Gets Home Plate Back

Good news was received this week when word was passed that the Prestonsburg Little League has had new home plate and, out of some interested individuals, more money in the treasury.

In recent games the youngsters had been playing without a home plate. Still, according to league records, there are many other improvements which must be made, such as:

(1) Scrapping the infield before each contest to insure a playable surface;

(2) Fences for the outfield;

(3) Adequate umpiring, with help coming from parents who have children playing in the league;

(4) More bats and catching equipment;

(5) More enthusiastic attendance by parents.

Recent rulings made by Commissioner Mack Harmon stipulate that every contest must be over by 7:30 p.m. and that every player must be played at least ten innings.

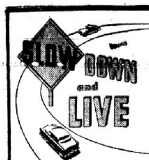

Major Deal Pulled Among Martin Minors

A transaction of major league week by manager Pete Grigsby, Jr. of the Grigsby Little League team in Martin.

A five for three deal was finally approved and made, Grigsby relates, with Dermont's Roy Ratliff, coming from the Grigsby team to Dermont's Charles Dings, infielder, Eddie Taylor, outfielder, and Buddy Bradstock, an outfielder, in exchange for Pug Osborne, pitcher, Richard Collier, infielder, Bobby Barnett, infielder, and Roger Osborne, a pitcher.

General Manager Grigsby said that both teams were endeavoring to strengthen weak spots on their respective teams. It was a straight player transaction with no cash involved, "Trader" Grigsby said.

SITE OF STATE TOURNEY NOT DECIDED

Last week's meeting of the Kentucky High School Association Board of Control meeting revealed what was predicted in this column six weeks ago, that the board would vote to tie, 4-4, on the site of the 1956-57 state high school basketball tournament.

Next week's column will be penned by Quentin Allen, who will capably fill our shoes while Darley Sturgill, Frank Reine and I are in Kansas City attending the national Junior Chamber of Commerce convention and watching the Yankees and Red Sox come in for games with the Athletics.
