Time To Plan For Winter Cover Crops

By Donald W. Clayson
The winter cover crop is generally one of the most important crops grown in farms in this area. Not only does it provide protection of the soil erosion in the winter and add plant food and humus when it is turned under in the spring...

Just how much value a cover crop is to an individual farmer depends upon how well he does four important things. The first of these is to sow early. The earlier the crop is sown, the earlier it can be grazed and the more winter pasture will be had. This is of special importance to the sheep raisers of this and neighboring counties. If a cover crop is sowed in late August or in November and can usually be grazed for about a month. In the following March sheep can be turned back on the cover crop and kept there until the permanent pasture has obtained enough growth to use. Those farmers growing a variety of early maturing hybrid corn are ones who will be able to take the fullest advantage of early sowing.

lot of local history from Mrs. Wells by getting her started on her reminiscences. You can, with a little help, rather than talk about the present. She details her most recent plane ride. The pilot took her to fly out over the blue Atlantic. She looked down on the shipping along the coast. Asked for the flight she replied quickly, "Lord, yes, I took on it did." She explained how the boats looked down in the water. Her daughter-in-law, Beanie, was with her. Coming back to earth, the pilot was so impressed with the youthful enthusiasm of his 91-year-old passenger that he offered to bring her, fare free, to Pikeville. John Wells, a son, intervened to forestall his mother's acceptance.

She thinks hard work contributed to her longevity. She never smoked the traditional clay pipe of the mountaineers although the artists did. To her one of the most amusing things of her childhood was the vigils used by the sisters to get their pipes lit and enjoy a smoke away from the eagle eye of Wash, Wells, their father. "They would send me into the house to get a coal. You know we didn't have any matches. I'd pick up a hot coal out of the ashes and, twiddling it between my fingers because it was so hot, I'd carry it out to my sisters. They'd put the coal on top of a pipe and smoke away. I'd watch for dad." Those little reminiscences are highly amusing now. She laughs heartily after the passage of 80 years.

When the bottled-up giant poplars and oaks were heading over the shoals, Mrs. Wells could often hear the rending of breaking tree bolts and the noise of logs being hauled up each other as the rafts broke up on the shoals. Upstream rafts men would tie their crafts to the bank, rush down stream to assist them in the trouble at the shoals. To reach the steep they had to go through Mrs. Wells' yard. She recalls vividly the faces of stern woodmen as they are headed by, few speaking, all heaved grimly for the breaking rafts. Then suddenly Mrs. Wells shifts from the story of trouble at the shoals to the trouble she had with the children inviting them to stay all night. "Them brightly youngsters would go on to the river bank, yell out to their father, 'Throw in your line, we'll keep you all night.' Then we'd have a bunch of raftmen to keep and hardy any way to bed them down. One time I had six or seven of the boys brought in. I fed them their supper and told them I just couldn't bed them. They'd have to hunt another place to sleep. But the men said they would just sleep anywhere. They'd sleep on the floor or anywhere. I had to keep 'em." Life got better for Mrs. Wells. She recalls her husband gave them an education. John C., the youngest, is principal of Auxier high school. Charles M. is a retired professor of Rider College, Trenton, N. J. There is Stella, who married T. J. Harman, Maggie, who married Clabe Bingham, and Rosa, with whom she stays.

Now living in comfort at her daughter's home, she recalls most of her life with a laugh, remarks that she'd like to see some of this generation try a hand at hoeing corn around a rough hillside or watch them pull on an oxen's horn with a low hitch. She laughs at the very suggestion of it. "Few women, granted the boon of longevity, are ever as vigorous and alert as I, 80 Mrs. Wells. Perhaps it wasn't the hard work altogether that made life lengthen out for her. Maybe the fact that she could laugh so well at life's many vicissitudes had something to do with it.

requirements usually incident to the founding of an institution of this type. 1. That an approval of their petition before the Federal Home Loan Bank Board be obtained. 2. That a necessity for such an institution exists. Its usefulness and success. 3. That it can be established without undue injury to existing local thrift and home-financing institutions. It was emphasized that the East Kentucky Federal Savings & Loan Association is a community project formed to encourage home-building and is not designed to have any harmful effect on existing banking institutions. This argument, it is suggested, is supported by the fact that under the Federal Reserve System banks may not make a loan of more than five years' duration while a federal savings and loan association may not make a loan for any period less than five years. Ground-floor offices are required of such an institution, and the East Kentucky Federal Savings & Loan Association expects to locate in the business section of Prestonsburg. It was said this week to have two or three places under consideration, one of which is the Ford-Barker building opposite the bus station.

Two of Five Accidents On Railway Crossings Occur Where Protected

Some motorists seem to insist on getting hurt. Five of the five railroad grade crossing accidents, for example. Two out of five of these accidents occur at crossings protected by gates, lights, bells, watchmen or a combination of these according to the 1955 edition of the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts."

Wash Wells: A Story of a Straggler

Wash Wells came back at the close of the war and life lengthened out, with hard work on a farm featuring most of his days. Belle and a brother, Alex plowed with an ox-team, named Bell and Rowdy. Alex held on to the plow handles; Belle drove them with a line wrapped around the hind steer's horns. Old enough, she started to school. The old log school house at the forks of Daniel Creek had a dirt floor but was replaced with puncheons years later. She remembers her first teacher as Wallace Spears, her second as Bill Johnson. "Lots of the teachers used a lot of birch but you know I never got a whipping," she declares.

In 1883 she married James R. Wells, a neighborhood boy, and they went to housekeeping near her husband's farm and log camp. He entered into a partnership with his uncle, Jim Perry, on a river saw boat. These two wandered up and down the stream, doing custom sawing at any place a man wanted to skid a few logs. In the meantime, hard work for her filled every waking hour. She sheared sheep, picked, carded, ginned and wove the wool, picked geese, wove coverlets, made blankets under a shed near the barn and down the stream, doing custom sawing at any place a man wanted to skid a few logs.

Representatives of the Lexington landscaping architectural firm of Ferguson & Hammond also left before the commission proposals for camping and parking areas, the development of overlooks, and park roads. Day said that the commission gave its temporary approval to some of the plans, suggested some minor changes in others, and in general cleared the way for final drafts. "We want to go ahead as rapidly as we can," Day explained. "The people want the park." He explained that the commission has about $150,000 at its disposal. That amount includes $50,000 Governor Chandler of Kentucky recently allotted to the commission from his emergency fund.

Fannin, McCreey Judge, Resigns; Had Been Named Presidential Elector

Mitchell S. Fannin, a native of Betsy Layne, who was appointed McCreey county judge several months ago, resigned Thursday of last week. Fannin had held a state job appointment since March 1, serving as manager of the Somerset State Highway office.

Fannin said he was resigning to serve as Democratic presidential elector from Kentucky, a post to which he was named recently by the party. He said the attorney general's office had held the positions of judge and elector were incompatible; that is, he could not hold both.

But Attorney General J. M. Ferguson said his office also had advised Fannin it thought the judgeship and highway posts were incompatible after Fannin had asked about the matter.

Fannin was named judge by former Governor Lawrence Wetherby for the unexpired term of G. C. Walker, which extends to the November election this year.

Harry G. Davis, Governor Chandler's executive secretary, said Fannin's resignation as judge had been received and appointment of a successor was expected to be announced soon.

Few Convictions May Be Mounting Deaths Cause

Kentucky's traffic violation conviction rate was pointed to this week as one of the possible causes of mounting deaths in the Commonwealth.

Commissioner of Kentucky State Police P. A. B. Widener compared Kentucky's 98.3 per cent conviction rate for moving hazardous traffic violations with 96.7 per cent figure in New Jersey.

He emphasized that speed hounds the list of fatal accidents causes and stressed the 77 per cent conviction rate in Kentucky for speed arrests as compared with a 98.3 per cent figure for convictions in similar New Jersey arrests.

Commissioner Widener said Kentucky statistics used for the comparison were from the 1955 calendar year while New Jersey statistics represented the 55-56 fiscal year. "The two periods are close enough together to get a close parallel comparison-wise," he said.

The Commissioner said safety officials are alarmed at Kentucky's rising death toll. He pointed out that road deaths in the Commonwealth has consistently run about 40 per cent under the 1955 count for most of this year, but as of Aug. 1 were only 3 per cent under the 55 mark. He said 404 persons were killed on Kentucky's roads during the first seven months of 1956 compared with 416 during that same period last year.

Widener added that Kentucky State Police have 254 police persons with a 7,830 square mile area. He also stressed the fact that Kentucky has 18,023 miles of state maintained highways compared with 12,416 in New Jersey.

GI LOAN END SET FOR 1958

Life of Loan Program Is Prolonged by Year Under New Legislation

The World War II GI Loan program ending date has been extended for one more year to July 25, 1958 under an omnibus GI loan law signed by the President August 1, 1956.

In the 12 years that the GI loan program has been in operation, 4,466,000 World War II veterans have borrowed the nation has borrowed $32 billion in GI loans to purchase homes, farms and businesses in Kentucky approximately 40,000 World War II veterans have borrowed $280 million in GI loans.

The GI loan program previously was scheduled to end July 25, 1957 and under the working of the original law all GI loans would have had to be closed by that date.

Under this new law, any GI loan for which VA receives an application by July 25, 1958 may be guaranteed or insured by VA if it is completed by July 25, 1959.

VA emphasized that the new law affects only World War II veterans. Korean conflict veterans have until January 31, 1956 to obtain GI loans for homes, farms and businesses.

In addition, this new law will permit any veteran who sells residential property purchased with a GI loan to be relieved from liability to the Government under certain circumstances.

Previously, the veterans who sold his property and allowed the purchaser to assume his GI loan still remained liable to the Government in the event of subsequent foreclosure and the payment of a guaranty claim by the VA.

Now the veterans may be relieved of liability if the purchaser assumes full liability on the loan, the VA approves him from a credit standpoint, and the loan is current.

The new law also permits World War II veterans to have their GI loan entitlement restored up to January 31, 1958 if their property:

- (1) Was taken by a Governmental agency for public use.
- (2) Was destroyed by a natural hazard, or
- (3) Was otherwise disposed of for compelling reasons without fault on the part of the veteran.

The new law also amends the GI bill to permit the restoration of GI home loan entitlement to a veteran in military service who disposes of his home because of a transfer under military orders.

A veteran, under the new law, will have to certify that he intends to live in the home he is buying with the assistance of a GI loan at the time of application and at the time of closing the loan.

The new law also clarifies and confirms VA's authority to make the final determination of reasonable value of property irrespective of the estimate of value made by an individual appraiser.

Motorists Asked For Suggestions On Road Markings

Frankfort, Aug. 6 (Sp1) — State officials in an effort to lift Kentucky higher, nationally in highway and traffic operation, are asking motorists for suggestions on improving driving conditions in the Commonwealth.

Highway Commissioner Bert Kiser has requested motorists—both here and from out of state—to write Mr. H. Abex, director of Traffic Department of Highways, Frankfort, giving constructive comments on improving road markings and other safety signs so important to car drivers, particularly visitors.

Although Kentucky is now ranked fourth highest in traffic operation and maintenance in the southeastern states—and in the top half nationally—State authorities want to put the Commonwealth in first place. Presently, only Virginia, Florida and North Carolina, in that order, rate ahead of Kentucky in the 12-state area.

According to State Traffic Statistics, Kentucky leads the region in number of marked curves, in no-passing zone signs, in special markers, in number of signal studies made and in highway delineation. It ranks second in miles of hard-surface roads and in total miles of new highways constructed.

Kentucky is recognized as being one of the most attractive states in the country. Now state officials want to make its highways the best marked and safest for its motorists.

His plans are to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin, Sr., Wayland, before assuming the duties of superintendent in South Salem, Ohio, September 1. Both Mr. Martin and his wife have been enrolled at the University of Kentucky for the summer.

NOTICE

I hold notes, checks and material liens on properties for large sums of money due me for lumber. Many of these accounts have been outstanding for a long time. I find that due to illness I will have to ask all who owe me to pay their accounts by September 1.

I have never sued anyone yet on an account but when you get old and are not able to earn a living you often find it necessary to demand payment. If accounts are not settled by Sept. 1, I will go before the grand jury and indict the persons who have given me bad checks. All others are hereby notified that I will bring suit on uncollected accounts by Sept. 1.

Three widows owe me accounts for lumber. This is notice to them that their accounts are being marked paid in full.

COLTS HALVE FOUR GAMES

Dixon's Three Homers Help Team Gain Split With Wheelwright Club

Three homers off the bat of Wayne Dixon enabled the Prestonsburg Colts to split a doubleheader with the Wheelwright club in which the Colts won the first, 12-6, and facing a three-hit performance by Waddie, lost the second, 12-2.

Dixon, a center on the Prestonsburg football team, sent three balls for homers in the first game. The first homer, according to spectators traveled about 350 feet, and the other two, although smacked hard, disappeared out of the park over the near right-field fence. His homers accounted for four runs.

The McCoy and Hatfield were at it in the Wheelwright line-up in the second game when McCoy managed to walk every time and Hatfield, not to be outdone, gathered in three runs.

Two hits, No less effective in defeating Prestonsburg plans to score was the pitching of Waddie who was aided by Dixon. Waddie, in the five-inning fray, struck out 11 batters.

A seven-run inning, resulting from Waddie's single, Swartz's base-on-balls, Curry's single, Hatfield's ace, a pass to McCoy, Curry's hit to right, and Campbell's single put Wheelwright out of Prestonsburg's reach in the second game.

A fourth inning rally sparked by Dixon's homer and a double by centerfielder Julian Campbell in the first game added up to 10 runs for the Prestonsburg cause. Pitcher Mascoe of the Colts welcomed the extra runs as he allowed Wheelwright six runs.

In a doubleheader played earlier the two teams split, Wheelwright winning the first, 13 to 5, and the Colts taking the second, 6-4.

Don Sullivan, manager of the Prestonsburg team will play a return doubleheader at Wheelwright tonight (Wednesday).

TOLL PLAZA

The recent growth of highway traffic has created a situation which in many ways parallels that of 1923 and Kentucky has borrowed from the experience of the early settlers in turning again to the turnpike for a partial solution of the problem, but with a difference. Whereas the original turnpikes were built by private enterprise with the hope of earning profits, the new Kentucky Turnpike will be constructed by the state and will become a free public facility once the tolls collected from users have retired the bonded indebtedness.

SPORTS CHATTER
By Quentin Allen

OUR CHOICE

Now that "King" Kelly Coleman has been beset by difficulties it might be honestly said that the best basketball guard in Kentucky is playing football in this year's East-West gridiron contest.

Lowell Hughes, who has turned many a head with his feats on the hardwood and the football field, and who is the object of many major league baseball scouts' attention, is the lad. Hughes, for all his athletic ability, has not let his press notices go to his head and is this paper's choice as an outstanding example of sportsmanship in Kentucky.

TWICE TAGGED

Word comes along that Heber Burke has caught a fish without putting a hook into the frisky thing.

Best tale? No, it's a fish tale, but true, says Heber. He vows that the fish, instead of being hooked, was caught when the hook slipped inside a tag which had been placed on it. So Heber actually tagged a "tagged" fish.

BUT ANYBODY!

Editor Allen strolled nonchalantly into his house the other day just returning from an evening's tour of Dewey Lake. A Cincinnati Redlegs game was in progress which gave the editor little opportunity to catch anybody's attention. Then the great revelation came. He pulled a fish from behind his back, and to the surprise of all, it was a nice fish, weighing 15 pounds.

Which prompted the smallest of the Allen clan to remark, "Every body must have caught one." Yes, folks, it proves that anyone can catch a fish. Conclusively!

WHOOHIS!

Dave Marrs refuted the "idle" news of August 1, this week, when he hooked a 64-pound largemouth bass to the docks after deceiving the shopper in striking a Lazy Bee. While most are either complaining that the weather is too hot for fishing or that there aren't fish in the lake, Dave's fish, taken in the hottest month of the summer, might quite a bit of the month's who should take a hit and get out some Lazy Bees and a casting rod.

PREDICTION

This writer has a Drew Preston prediction. I predict that next spring, when the high school basketball tournament is held at the Fairgrounds in Louisville, there will not be half as many people attending the prep school class as did this year from Eastern Kentucky.

Strictly for Redleg fans: Little Leaguer Bobby May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob May, Prestonsburg, had on his return here from the South very pleasing news to report about an up-and-coming prospect of the Redlegs, Curtis Flood, a member of the Hi-Tom club to the Carolina League, smacked a grand-slam and made some Willie Mays-like plays in the no-field, according to young Bob. Bobby added that Flood, only 18, is presently leading the league in hitting and home-runs (241, 20 homers).

P'BURG TAKES DOUBLE BILL

Campbell, Burchett Harl Well in Defeating Martin Here Sunday Afternoon

The Prestonsburg semi-professionals swapped both ends of a doubleheader last Sunday from a Martin time, 12-4 in the first, and 8-1 in the nightcap.

The contests, held at the new field adjacent to the Prestonsburg high school, saw strong pitching exhibitions by the Prestonsburg right-handers, Julian Campbell and Curt Burchett.

Campbell kept the Martin hitters off balance during the entire contest as he limited the visitors to two hits and no runs. In abject

The Martin club out with ease. Campbell allowed only two runners, Robinson and Fannon, as far as second. Curt Burchett was almost equally effective in the second game when Martin scored only one run in making three hits off his pitching.

Prestonsburg enjoyed their biggest inning of the day on three errors by Martin infielders, a base-on-balls to Johnny Ellis, a single by Curt Burchett, and a lowering home-run by Adrian Blackburn which chalked up six runs in the first contest.

Tommy Westall and Cadillac put together a triple and a single to push over the only Martin marker at the doubleheader.

Indians' Chase Of Great Grandfather Of Ex-President Gave Church Its Name.
Truman Says In Letter To Ky. Senator

Allen tells an interesting story of how the Long Run church got its name in a letter to Senator Earle C. Clements.

Commenting on a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Clements requesting a study of making the Long Run area in Jefferson county a national monument, the former President said: "My two grandmothers and one of my grandfathers were members of that church, and I remember Grandmother Young telling me how the church got its name. It seems that her grandfather and some of his neighbors were being chased by Indians. When they scattered, her grandfather crawled
