"AIN'T YOUSE GOT NO LAKES?"

The summer vacation of 1956 brought some delightful camping for me in the Great Smokies, in the Pisgah National Forest, and at Mt. Mitchell and along the Blue Ridge Parkway. Everywhere I camped there were many other people, from just about everywhere in America. My next-door neighbor at one place was from Florida; at another, from Massachusetts; at another, from Ohio. All of us, regardless of our place of residence, were enjoying the coolness and scenery of high mountains. I told a Massachusetts family my experience in Michigan some twenty-five years ago, when our first-door neighbor woman at camp asked me: "Ain't youse got no lakes in Kentucky?" I mentioned how wonderful the mountains of New England are and how much I would like to share them again. I was talking to the right people for they knew their own scenic mountains and were eager to see others in other parts of America. Before there I got a glimpse of what travel is done for us Americans. Hosts of us are learning what is in the corner. I know of no group of people who are getting any nearer to reality, as it appears everywhere, than campers. Some of my camping friends had come well equipped with hundreds of dollars worth of equipment. They were in no wise unable to stay at other expensive places. They chose rather to see mountains and woods and other things up close, to live with them, in winter, if they wanted to travel, they would stay in hotels or motels and wear fashionable clothing, but for summer they loved to don rough clothing, cook on a fire, eat on a picnic table and sleep in a tent. The fine fellowship at the camping places is among the finest experiences I have ever had. I have camped, within recent years, in

Kentucky Called The Timber State In New Booklet

Frankfort, Dec. 3 (SP) — A new booklet, recently released and available to interested persons, describes in detail the opportunities for wood-using industries in southeast Kentucky.

The publication "Stream Gilding" was developed jointly by the Kentucky Department of Economic Development and Conservation, and the Kentucky Bankers' Association.

The book describes Kentucky as "the land of timber." More than 11 million acres or 48 per cent of the total land area of the state are occupied by commercial forests, it says.

"For some years certain types of timber in Kentucky have been growing more rapidly than they have been cut. As a result, there exists in the state today a large supply of wood that could serve as a dependable raw-material source for many additional manufacturing plants.

A sizeable portion of this surplus timber is found in the heavily-forested southern section of the Cumberland plateau, which lies in the southeastern part of the state. Here, in a 17-county area, foresters estimate 65 million board feet of soft timber and 500 million cords of pole timber are available annually for new and expanded industrial utilization.

"Timber supply according to foresters will be available indefinitely, taking into account various uses, forest practices and management.

The economic considerations and factors which pertain to processing the timber and shipping it to market include: water transportation; power; availability of industrial sales and community attitudes are generally described as more than adequate. The labor supply is considered large with an estimated 15,000 men and 13,000 women well distributed throughout the area and readily available for employment.

The 34 page booklet may be obtained free from the Department of Economic Development here or through the Kentucky Bankers' Association.

Fire Strikes R. I. Pison

Howard R. Pison today swept the maximum security area of the Rhode Island state prison with fire-fighters from three communities responding to the call to battle the blaze. Prison authorities said no panic or injuries were reported. Warden Thomas Gough said smoke swirled through the cell block areas, but that there was no disturbance. He said extra security precautions were taken. Thick smoke from the fire was visible for a half-mile. The blaze was centered in the second floor area of the combination kitchen-dining room. The fire was brought under control by men and equipment from Cranston, Warwick and Providence. 4-H Foods Workshop Held at Maytown High

A 4-H foods workshop was held Saturday in the Maytown high school home economics laboratory, for teachers and members of that area. Four leaders and 14 members attended. The members were those taking foods projects, and main emphasis was on how to carry the first unit. The group made cookies and a milk beverage, put these with care in the refrigerator, and returned for their lunch. Those who learned while doing were: Pamela Coombs, Robin Galloway, Ruby Galloway, Dana Hicks, Clara Eileen Hicks, Sandra Hicks, Claudia Lewis, Alma Lumpkins, Julia Lumpkins, Dana Martin, Joan Martin, Jane Martin, Wanda Martin, and Ernie Patton, and Kathy Patton. The leaders who aided by with answers to help if needed, were Mrs. Fritchie Galloway, Mrs. Anna Love, Mrs. Garland Martin, Mrs. Ralph Spawer, and Home Azzel Davis, Esq.

The Cecil family of Southwest Virginia contributed many of its members to Eastern Kentucky. Evidence of the family's prominence in Southwest Virginia are in the ruins or near ruins of stately old mansions built years ago.

A letter from Mrs. Taz Livingston, head of the home ec department of Union College, quotes a letter from Lexington relative to one of the Cecil houses.

In reading over some correspondence from Mrs. Mills in Lexington this morning I found this material on the Cecils who were her mother's folks. I do not know whether you are using anything about the Cecils or not, but knew there were several in that county. She says: At the Christiansburg (Va.) courthouse I copied many records of my mother's families and we went to the old home of my great-great-grandparents, Samuel Cecil and Rebecca White Cecil, Route 2, Dublin, Va., in Pulaski county, just over the line from Montgomery county. It was a 22-room brick of beautiful proportions — Green architecture built just after the Revolution. Beginning in 1785, it was a stage coach inn for the Williams Road. Samuel Cecil's father, John Cecil, born in England in 1616, came to Maryland with Lord Calvert, who named his son Cecil. Samuel and Rebecca were said to have been buried about fifty years from the Cecil mansion as my paper expressed it.

The house is truly a mansion to

"Where You Can Save With Safety"

HIGHWAY CARNAGE MOUNTING

America has the highest living standard in the world. The nation's standard of living—material, un-necessary dying—is also unequalled for last year 38,300 persons were killed in traffic accidents.

National Safety Council figures show that, in 1956, carnage on the highways hit a new high of 3,570 and highway fatalities for the first seven months of the year topped all previous marks with a total of 21,750.

To a great many people, statistics are boring—but these NSC figures concern every man, woman and child in the United States. No one can afford to be bored by figures that disclose the vital statistics of life and death on America's highways.

There is no single over-all reason for the highway slaughter recorded daily in the nation's press. Many human factors are involved—including drinking, carelessness, inattention, deliberate risk-taking, fatigue and faulty vision. But other reasons are also important.

Foremost among these non-human factors is the condition of most rural roads—the roads that carry most of America's automotive traffic. These roads, the majority of which were laid down just after World War One, were not designed for the traffic they bear today. They are for the most part, narrow, poorly surfaced and inadequately marked and signed for even annual driving safety.

NSC figures show that three-fourths—28,500—of the traffic deaths in 1956 occurred from accidents in rural areas and in towns under 2,500 population. The NSC makes the further point that "improving is considerably more hazardous than day driving, and the hazard is greater in rural areas than in urban areas."

One obvious means of reducing death and destruction on our rural roads is to work for the modernization of existing roads through local, state and national groups, and through representatives in state legislatures and in Congress. Such modernization is necessary, but it requires a great deal of time and money. A first step toward making these "everyday" roads safer for you and your family is proper traffic signing—and this is a step that can be taken immediately and at a very small fraction of the cost entailed in constructing new roads.

Marking of this sort, with reflective signs that do 24-hour, night and day duty in warning of danger, ahead, can cut down traffic deaths, reduce accidents and help make your daily driving the safe pleasure it should be.

An advisory council of students at the Clark school has been set up. Gayheart told the panel, and problems of discipline at the school are brought before the faculty with recommendations by the pupils themselves for solution.

Price called discipline "regulated behavior" and said that it had to be approached with tolerance and understanding.

Mr. Robert Martin, of Martin, contracts a letter she received from P. M. McConnell, Fayetteville, Ark., July 3. Mr. McConnell, who is in the real estate business, wrote Mrs. Martin:

"I have observed that the June, 1956, Communique issued by the Kentucky Historical Society, indicates that Floyd county historical society may be formed. I am quite certain that I would like to become a member of this historical society when it is formed."

"I am interested in Kentucky history for the reason that my grandfather was born in Floyd county, and that many of the Danville Boone descendants or relatives reside in this locality some of my relatives being rather remotely related to some of the Boones."

"My wife's grandfather was George Washington Lewis, born May 20, 1821, in that part of Floyd county, which, as I understand later became a part of Johnson county. His father was Bracken Lewis, a North Carolina, about 1801. The wife of Bracken Lewis was Matilda Preston. They were married at Paintsville, Kentucky, about 1828."

"Water requirements in the region are varied," the report said. "The quantity needed depends upon the size of the town, industry or installation, and on the type of industry. The quality of water supplied by a city or institution must meet the standards for domestic use but the requirements of industry depend entirely on how the water is used."

"In coal washing for example quantity of water is the only consideration but in steam generation the water must meet certain definite standards of quality. Temperature also is important in some cases, when water is used for cooling a low temperature is desirable when it is used for generating steam. The temperature of the water pumped is important. Some industries, such as the chemical industries, require water with relatively constant temperatures."

"The Board digest of the water situation in the Eastern Coal Field takes a dim view of water here for industrial users. It says: "Hardness is a significant factor and hard waters may be unutilizable for many industrial users. Some industries require very soft water." Many of the ground waters in the area are very hard."

SPORTS AFIELD

This year saw an increase in the number of two-boats families, and it is expected that next year even more families will find that one boat is not enough. Willard Crandall, boating editor of Sports Afield magazine, has some fine ideas as to the ideal "second" boat.

"This second boat is most often used strictly for fishing. And 3 hp outboard motors provide all the power that can be used by most boats to handle well with oars."

"The first requirement for an angler's boat is stability. It used to be that fishermen had to put up with tippy boats, but today's fishermen do not have to have a craft that requires under him whenever he shifts a leg. Width, the chief ingredient in a steady boat, gives other advantages. It makes an all-peppy small motor of today. And a safer boat as waves roll up."

"The ideal boat of ours should handle well with oars. That's not exactly the same thing as ease in rowing—strawaway—but there is a considerable relationship. The boat must start well at the oars' touch, and turn and maneuver well, too."

"A wide boat, if short, swings too easily, but that can be offset, by a hull which in turn brings its own advantages as quicker, easier response in any forward direction."

"Our boat is taking shape. How. Sides should be just high enough for safety on sheltered waters. Say 15 to 17 inches above the waterline. Beams we can put from about 50 to 60 inches length to go with it should not be less than 15 feet. That's for one or two anglers."

"Bottom design is another important factor. Flat-bottom on round-bottom too much to choose in most cases. A round-bottom is less steady than a flat-bottom of the same width. But it's easier to push that narrow up the flat-bottom an appropriate amount, though, and will act as a cushion for the water. Found. A flat bottom will tip less readily, but may seem to do it with more surprising jerks. It can also act better with only the driver aboard and at the stern. Though any fore-and-aft, with low down-shield, rig up up a side steering wheel or extension steering handle "to avoid the loss of speed-stability and was- wastefulness that comes with a stern steering under way."

"Finally the angler wants a boat that won't blow around or be buffeted by waves too much. Lower sides, a keel, a boat not too small and ultralight, all prevent this."

Kentucky Lake while primarily noted for bass and crappie fishing, also produces tremendous catfish, which are caught below the dam.

Pollution Aid Asked by City

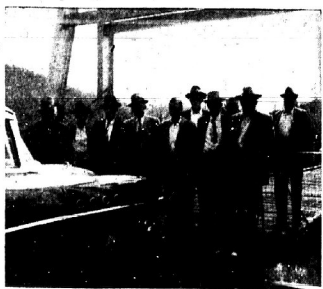

Frankfort, Dec. 3 (Sp.) — Emission was the first city to apply to the Kentucky Water Pollution Control Commission for aid under the new federal program for sewage treatment works.

Kentucky has been allocated $1,067,225 for grants to cities. It will allocate 30 percent of the expense of building sewage treatment works provided the total cost does not exceed $250,000.

Officials of the KWPCC emphasized that cities in Kentucky must make application before next March 15 if they desire funds for the current fiscal year.

Emphasis is being placed on cities which have started sewage works and are eligible for assistance are Owensboro, Hopkinsville, Owensboro and Jeffersonville.

Work is now being treated to make it more resistant to shrinkage. Other new finishes make it math and mildew resistant.

The bridge was the culmination of years of planning and effort on the part of the community which raised a large part of the necessary construction funds to be matched by the Fiscal Court.

Safety Campaign Begins in State

Frankfort, Dec. 3 (Sp.) — "Our aim is to make every citizen of Kentucky safety conscious."

Charles R. Jones, director of the Division of Accident Control, made this statement while explaining that each county in the Commonwealth will be visited by a field representative from his agency, "to initiate the formation of such groups."

"Particular emphasis will be placed on school, farm, industrial and home safety, in addition to a step-by-step campaign for safety on the streets and highways," Jones said.

The Division of Accident Control, a division of the Department of Public Safety, will establish regularly scheduled programs of public safety education throughout the state, Jones said.

"In addition to these regularly scheduled programs, the division will be prepared to furnish speakers to any groups desiring them," Jones concluded.

Sister of Local Man Dies In Johnson-co.; Was Victim of Stroke

Mrs. Elsie Stapleton, 53, of Kerr Johnson county, died at her home Thanksgiving morning. She was a sister of Homer Crider of Prestonsburg.

Mrs. Stapleton, who suffered a stroke two weeks previous to her death, was a daughter of the late Alfred and Elizabeth Wells Crider. Her husband, Montraville Stapleton, preceded her in death. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Two daughters, Mrs. Parley Bentley and Mrs. Francis McKenzie, both of Kerr county, besides Mrs. Crider, also survive, as do the following sisters: Mrs. Julia Adkins and Joseph Hazzlett, both of Paintsville, and Mrs. Besie Hicks, of Detroit.

Funeral services were conducted at the Kerr Enterprise Baptist church, Nov. 24, the Rev. Bruce Daniel officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery.

BOOM IN COAL FOR '57 SEEN

Next Year To See Boost Of Over 22 Million Tons, Forecast Heard Recently

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production for 1957 at $22,000,000 tons—an increase of 22,250,000 tons over production for the current year.

The forecast was computed by NCA's committee on coal economics and statistics, of which R. A. Pittman of Island Creek Coal Co., Huntington, is a member.

The committee also said that 1956 production has been estimated at $20,000,000 tons.

The estimates were the first ever undertaken by the national trade association of coal producers.

Tom Pickett, executive NCA vice-president, commented:

"The bituminous coal industry is essential to our national security and prosperity. Its level of operation must be high enough to maintain a stockpile of capacity to meet current needs and any emergency created by the course of events."

An informed forecast for a year ahead, based on the best estimates available at the time computed, should be of service to producers in providing for equipment and in scheduling output to meet all demands, to railroads in furnishing an adequate coal car supply, and to Congress and public officials responsible for seeing that this country stays strong, economically and in national defense.

In view of the uniformly higher demands to be made upon this industry, this forecast should serve as a basic guide for the steps necessary to fulfill the energy demands of the American people."

In making public its figures, the committee said:

"Industrial production, holding at a high level, is estimated to continue to show growth in 1957—by a probable four or five points on the Federal Reserve Board Index. This will be backed by rising production in steel, a probable ten per cent rise in automobiles, continued growth in chemicals, a substantial increase in capital investment for plant and equipment, housing at no lower than 1956 levels, along with continued growth in electric utility generation.

The upsurge in overseas demand, perhaps strengthened by the Suez crisis, has made it clear that larger tonnage of American coal will be needed in 1957.

The 1956 figure of 20,000,000 tons is the committee's estimate of what final production may also be if the Bureau of Mines follows its usual practice of revising production estimates as the year draws to a close."
