THURSDAY

This Town That Waited

1937... 1937... 1937... Just plain.

WE'RE COMPLIMENTED

A subscriber—bleat her!—from Up Nawth writes to say she "thoroughly enjoys The Times, and is full of the soul and sentiment of the South."

This quality, I am frank to say, has escaped me and I strive to be unable to discover it in these pages. Yet it may be there, apparent only to an expatriated Kentuckian or to some soul sick of Yankee ways.

I hope that indeed we do cling fast to that spirit, and it strikes us that perhaps this section is overlooking a valuable asset when it forgets and neglects the old ways of those who came out of the South to settle here. And we do not refer to the great states, slave-holding and a Southern aristocracy, either.

WE'RE PLUMBS EVIOUS

The Kentucky Press Association's first Bulletin of the year informs you truly and all other newspaper people of the date of Joseph Hart, staff writer for the Courier-Journal, who is scheduled for retirement next week.

Old Circular Recalls Third Year Of Early Presbyterian School

By Henry P. Scalf

Sixty-five years ago Myrtle Barton Friend, afterwards wife of J. M. Wedding, Prestonsburg banker, was the lone Floyd county student in the freshman class of Pikeville Collegiate Institute, now Pikeville College.

Annie Sophia Layne, who married Jo M. Davidson, another Prestonsburg banker, John C. Hopkins and William May were the three students from this county in the first class of the preparatory department. These bits of information are gleaned from an 1891-92 circular of the school, now in the possession of Mrs. Davidson, who is the sole survivor of the early students of the class. Mrs. Davidson died in Dec. 1954, but two months before her death she and Mrs. Davidson jointly contributed to the Pikeville College endowment fund. The gift was promoted by the "ringing memories of happy days..."

There were three other Floyd county students in Pikeville Collegiate Institute in 1891, according to the circular, James D. Morrell, Samuel Roberts and Cordelia May. Students in the advanced class of the preparatory department. The school, then in its third year had an enrollment of 125 of which 21 were in the college department, 44 in the preparatory and 58 in the primary department.

Students from this county who attend Pikeville College now drive a car back and forth daily to attend school there. When the Floyd county students entered the school in 1891 it was necessary to travel by coach or "hack" over the rough, beaten predecessor of U. S. 25, horseback or steamboat. Once there they didn't hurry back to Prestonsburg after evening classes were dismissed. They went to private boarding houses where meals and room cost from $1 to $2.50 per week.

We are indebted to the 65-year-old circular, only one in existence in this county and one of the few still around anywhere, for information on life at Pikeville and of the struggling collegiate institution there.

"The little village is far up in the mountains and has no rival in all the region as a business center," the bulletin said. "It has a population of nearly 500 and is an exceptional town for its location and advantages. It has four church organizations, three Sabbath schools, one Y.P.S.C.E., one bank, fine public buildings, seven large stores, two groceries, and one drug store. It has not had a saloon in nearly ten years."

"Pikeville Collegiate Institute... was founded by the Presbytery of Boone, of the Synod of Kentucky of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A. at a cost of $7,000. The usefulness of the school, has already been greatly hindered by its having no boarding hall for the teachers and lady students. A handsome start towards the erection of such a building has already been collected and when the amount reaches $2,500 work will begin on the building."

One to their reward now are the 1891 trustees, officers and teachers of Pikeville Collegiate Institute but their names, listed in the college circulars, are also inscribed indelibly upon the records of educational advance in Eastern Kentucky. Three of the nine-man board of trustees were the ministers, J. P. Hendrick, of Flemingburg, W. C. Condit, of Ashland, and W. S. Fulton, Lexington.

It was Condit who came to Big Sandy in the early 80's and laid the foundation for Presbyterianism in the valley. His daily journal, now in the possession of his daughter at Ashland, titled "Prospecting for Presbyterians" is a vivid human interest account of his travels and his visits to Inez, Prestonsburg, and Pikeville.

Condit came to Prestonsburg, found no churches whatsoever. He then looked for a Christian, of any denomination, found Robert Strawn Friend, who asked him to preach in the schoolhouse. A Negro was given an odd dinner bell. He went up and down the lanes of the town that passed for streets and ringing the bell, called out, in the manner of a New England town-crier, that a Presbyterian minister was in town and would preach that night. Condit had a big laugh at the colored man's attempt to pronounce "Presbyterian." He had never heard the word before. Condit never heard that pronunciation again, either. Condit noted in his journal, though, that Pikeville should be the location of the school his Presbytery planned. He had to decline offers of brick, labor and money in Prestonsburg.

W. M. Connelly was president of the Institute in 1891, C. M. Parsons, secretary, and James Fletcher, treasurer. They were also trustees. The remaining trustees on the board were F. B. Russell, Toleborough, Ky., John A. Simpson, Covington, and W. H. Averill, M. D., of Frankfort. Rev. David Blyth, principal of the fledgling institution in the early 90's was assisted by two other faculty members—Mrs. Lucy Dods Blyth and Miss Ruth A. Goffield. The circular notes that one of the "advantages offered" at the school was a music course. "Miss Parlar Clark, an experienced and thorough teacher of music, teaches a class in the village and any student who desires to enter her class will have special attention given to her. Mrs. Dr. J. B. Wrightson is a fine artist and a very successful teacher and will give lessons to all students who may desire them."

Pikeville Collegiate Institute, 65 years ago, was wrestling mightily with the problems of finance and made an eloquent appeal for aid.

"It is customary for old and large schools, even with millions of property and endowment, to call loudly for more money to sustain them and great praise be to those who respond. This school is neither old nor large and has no endowment.

"Its plea for money, when so many others are calling, that have larger and more cultivated voices, will never be heard by some but will speak a word which we hope may catch the eye, ear and heart of some of the children of the King."

Prophetic of the eminence to which Pikeville College was to attain in the field of Eastern Kentucky is this simple statement, in the bulletin, probably written by Principal Blyth:

"Its influence for good grows daily the prospects for the future grows brighter."

Hill, High Finalist In Aptitude Tests

One senior at Prestonsburg high school has been named finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition, according to Principal Otis D. Sparlock. The local student is among the 7,000 highest scorers in a nationwide college aptitude examination given to 162,000 seniors in 12,500 high schools on October 24.

The Prestonsburg high school finalist is Lon Clay Hill, Jr. The finalists now face a stiff three-hour college board examination on January 12, plus intensive screening of their leadership and extra-curricula records by a selection board.

At stake are more than 700 four-year scholarships, many of them sponsored by business and industrial corporations. Included are 100 Sears-Roebuck Foundation Merit Scholarships and nationwide program grants sponsored by such companies and foundations as Pittsburg Plate Glass, F. W. Woolworth, Standard Oil (Indiana), International Nickel, and many others.

The January 12 examination will be given in designated testing centers throughout the country, and at least 7,000 of the merit finalists are expected to survive this hurdle, according to John M. Stalnaker, president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

A GOOD MOTTO

A letter to the editor of a Kentucky daily newspaper suggests that two states—Kentucky and West Kentucky.

The reason given by the letter writer was that Kentucky gets scant attention by the press of the State should be given consideration at all times, the editor made an attempt on the writer's suggestion by inserting a replica of the Great Seal of Kentucky in the newspaper with the letter.

The seal, in case you forget, carries the motto, "United We Stand, Divided We Fall."

DIPLOMATIC REPLY

A visitor at the home of a State official asked a maid if he had any political views. "No," she replied. "But I have some lovely snapshots of the Kentucky Falls and Kentucky Lake State Park."

A QUERER

Who reads who signs himself "Hard-boiled" writes "where are the horses of Kentucky?" It develops that he wants to know where the living Kentucky Derby winners of past years are now stabled. We could have forwarded the inquiry to Bourne Leach at Churchill Downs, but thought our readers might want to know. Can anyone tell us where these horses are?

NEWS LINES

Economic Development Department reports that it foresees no weakening of Kentucky's industrial momentum during 1957. Approximately 10,000 hunters killed an estimated 700 deer during the recent deer season in 27 counties—Kentucky's first in 50 years. Commissioner James W. Martin reports that the Finance Department during 1956 initiated a "much needed" long range planning program for capital construction. State Water Pollution Commission says the survey reveals 7 percent of industrial sewage treatment in Commonwealth meets requirement of Kentucky law. State Tuberculosis Hospital Commission reports that backlog of patients awaiting surgery has been eliminated and surgery is available immediately upon transfer to the Louisville hospital.

RECOLLECTIONS

I recall the old expression, "He looks like the hind wheels of a bad horse." —A. T. Zivier.

I recall reading in Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi" that Hickman was one of the most beautiful towns along the Mississippi River. —J. C. Hickman, Ky.

I recall during feeding days when those who were killed were buried secretly so the enemy would not know his score. —"Hillbilly" Hindman, Ky.

I recall the expression "happy as a possum up a sassafras tree with a mile off." —John Blades, Ashland.

NEW KENTUCKY HISTORY

Kentucky State a wonderful State. As a matter of fact I think it's great.

The grass is blue, the trees are green.

The prettiest state you've ever seen.

So goes the poetical introduction of a new "History of Kentucky" written by third graders of a Louisville school.

The gigantic project was begun last year by 18 boys in the third grade of Country Day School. Each student was to write a chapter during his summer vacation. The volumes now is hot off the mimeograph machine and will be used as a supplementary text in the third grade at the school.

As an example of the literary quality of the work, here's a sample by Joseph Ardrey III:

"I do not report on Duncan Tavern (Paris, Ky.) because my grandmother, Mrs. William B. Ardrey, was the chairman of the committee chosen by the Daughters of the American Revolution to restore the historic inn. She went about through the countryside collecting authentic pieces to put in it. I think the tavern is very pretty both inside and out. Since my grandmother and her friends worked on the restoration, Duncan Tavern is more attractive than it was before."

POETRY NOOK

Felton Pines, our poetry editor, offers for your contemplation this verse contributed to the Hart County Herald, Horse Cave, by a "Native of Kentucky."

With Republican money raffling. And Democratic horse flowing. Many a good day has been had. More not a' knowin'.

Your worst enemy might be: Your own granddaddy, you see. On election day back in old Kentucky.

HAPPY HYPER-TENSION

The Kentucky Heart Ass'n. holds an apt time—following the holidays when hearts are put in the box—too many festivities to remind folks with high blood pressure of some good resolutions.

See the doctor regularly. Try not to worry. Get plenty of sleep. Rest before becoming tired. Engage in mild exercise. Keep weight normal.

We wouldn't have admonished you this way before the holidays. You would have headed for the doctor that the merriment is over—well, happy hypertension.

Old Floyd County And a New Year.

What does the new year 1957 hold for Floyd county and its citizens as individual citizens?

THE "TIMES" does not presume to know, nor has it the presumptuousness to hazard a guess. It would simply stand with its readers on what things might be.

At any rate, now is a time for nostalgia, even for repining. Let the traditional "Auld Lang Syne" be sung, but let our thinking be more of the future.

This new year, fraught with opportunity and hazard alike, could be, and indeed may be, a great one for county. The industrial picture is bright. Coal mining has made a strong comeback from a season of depression which temporarily bred a pessimistic outlook concerning the very future of coal, its production and marketing at a reasonable profit.

Now, the coal business is not only resurgent, with a bright future, but also has in this county the possibility of new mines in new territory.

The demand for natural gas continues strong, and early this year the new hydrocarbon recovery plant near Maytown will begin the extraction of by-products from Eastern Kentucky gas fields to supply West Virginia chemical plants. This "Ford plant" may be only the first of such installations to be made by other gas companies.

Sheep-growing, strawberries and aromatic tobacco as cash crops, soil conservation and reforestation—these mark a keen upturn in farming interest. Kentucky's Department of Conservation has expressed a deep interest in the Dewey Lake area as a possible site for a good products plant, and this could mean cash from undesirable forest growth, plus its replacement through reforestation with valuable trees.

This is not an editorial "pep talk"; instead, it is merely to touch on things that, materially speaking, may mean much to the economy of Floyd county and its people. There are many other things to consider in this category—among them, better roads to homes and churches and schools, and that old dream of a navigable waterway for the Big Sandy by means of a system of locks and dams. Kentucky has voted bonds for better roads, and we know exactly where to look for them. Kentucky's two Senators and the district's Congressman have avowed their interest in canalization. We hope they will not fail us, but if this waterway is realized through their efforts they will have broken a disappointment that has begun more than half a century ago.

For better or worse, the year belongs to time ahead. And progress does not, of course, belong wholly within the field of material accomplishment. As in the development of its resources beneath or springing from the soil, Floyd county must work with its existing human resources for a higher standard of morals, better schools, a fuller church and community life. Home and church and school are the ingredients of good citizenship. We have more of all these than at any time in the history of the county but now closely they come to the mind's eye of each individual among us, young and old, poses the big question mark in this year 1957.

How much of our tangibles are we willing to sacrifice for these intangibles? This election year, how closely will we cling to the old truths even when the hurt political fortunes? Do we want the law enforced even when enforcement hits a relative or friend? These questions are only a few that we of Floyd county need to ask ourselves and to answer honestly at the outset of the new year.

This county has a great potential, a fraction of which has been realized only a fraction; so we take heart and look forward to the new year with all its uncertainties in the spirit of anticipation rather than of ruefulness for the failures of 1956 or even of contentment with the status quo.

Plans to organize a four-day music clinic in the county was unfolded to the principals by Jesse Elliott, music supervisor of Floyd county schools. Elliott's plans call for a mixed chorus of 50 voices and a limited band of 50 instruments made up from various schools, the instructors for the clinic to be furnished by Morehead State College. The two units that would evolve from the clinic slated for the week of January 14, would present evening concerts at the schools that are represented either in the band or chorus. The proceeds of the concerts would be used to buy music.

Top State Corn Yield Grown on Lincoln Farm; Elliott Boy Is Second

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 9 (Sp.) — A Lincoln county dairy farmer and an Elliott county 4-H youngster, 17 years old, have won the 1936 Corn Derby in Kentucky. Winners were announced today by the Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service Agronomy department. In both the one-acre and five-acre divisions, the top 10 places were from four counties of the state.

George Depp, Lincoln county dairyman, took the five-acre championship with a yield of 180.5 bushels an acre. Second place went to Lenza Reed, Johnson county, whose yield was 178.3 bushels an acre. Dale Porter, of Elliott, 17 years old, took the one-acre championship, with a yield of 187.7 bushels an acre. His brother, Jewell Porter, 11 years old, was second with a yield of 175.9 bushels an acre. The winners in each division were not new to the championship either in a personal or a family way. Depp won the Derby in 1933 with 143.6 bushels an acre, and the Porter family has been in the top 10 for years; brother Vauva'n won it in 1935, and brother Glennis was second and third, respectively, in 1933 and 1935. Johnson led the counties list with seven of the top 20 in both divisions farming here. Lincoln had five of the top 20: Fulton had 3; Elliott had 2; and McCreary, Pike and Clark, one each.

Advancing Education in Kentucky

By ROBERT E. MARTIN, Superintendent of Public Instruction

Two of the most massive problems that are facing public school education in Kentucky today are the shortage of qualified teachers and the shortage of adequate classroom facilities.

In this column, I shall deal with the latter of these problems, briefly outlining some of the things that have been done and planned to alleviate this basic need. Under the Foundation Law, school districts are allocated funds for building and construction purposes. These funds are classified as "capital outlay" and during the first part of the 1936-37 school year just ended, their use by local districts has made it possible for many systems to add new buildings or additions and alterations of existing buildings.

The Division of Buildings and Grounds in the Department of Education's Bureau of Administration and Finance in reviewing construction activity during the first half of the fiscal year advises us that 436 classrooms have been built as of December 1, 1936, at a cost of some $2,800,000 for 27 school districts. In addition to these classrooms (which represent new buildings) there have been 186 additional classrooms provided through alterations to existing facilities; 123 through remodeling; 114 through rentals; and 83 re-secured after minor modifications and refurbishing.

These figures represent only those classrooms that have already been provided. They do not include planned construction. For new building construction, the Department of Education has approved an estimated $11,000,000 in plans and $10,750,000 in revenue-bond issues for school construction purposes. These additional classroom facilities represent the greatest extension in schools construction that we have ever had in Kentucky during any year, however they fall far short of the estimated total need.

A recent survey financed by Congress and conducted by the U. S. Office of Education and the Kentucky State Department of Education indicates that we need a total of 18,661 additional classrooms in this state before we can provide adequate housing for the 560,129 pupils attending Kentucky's public schools. It is of paramount and unquestionable importance to education.

ASC Head Writes Farmers Of Plan Period Deadline; Many Practices Listed

"It is time to make your farm plan for the first period of this year," Elder Goble, office manager of the local Agricultural Stabilization Committee, this week wrote farmers who are participating in the program. The first period ends June 30, Goble noted. The ASC office manager requested the farmers to come to his office before the deadline of Feb. 15 to sign a practice declaration. "You must make your request in writing before the practice is to start if you expect to receive assistance," Goble wrote. "You are interested in the 'Soil Bank' program we can discuss it at the same time," he added.

Eighteen general practices were spelled out by Goble that farmers may perform the first quarter of this year. They are: Seeding permanent pastures and meadows, applying standard ground limestone to crop land, planting and interplanting forest tree seedlings, reseeded permanent pastures and meadows, constructing wells for livestock water, installing pipelines for livestock water, timber improvement and installing the drainage systems. "We believe that we have a practice or practices that will be of assistance to you on your farm," Goble wrote the farmers. "We will be able to help establish permanent pasture, in many cases, without the use of lime. This should be of interest to farmers with hillside farms."

Finally Believed His Eyes and Ears!

He has heard and read a great many wonderful things about this new 1937 Cadillac since it made its first appearance a few brief weeks ago—about its magnificent new luxury, for instance... its brilliant new power and responsiveness... its marvelous new handling ease... and its extraordinary new smoothness of ride. And so, quite frankly, he began to wonder if it weren't all too good to be true. Could any motor car be as wonderful as this latest "car of cars" was reputed to be? Well, he's decided to put his eyes and ears to the test today. And the verdict is unmistakable! It's a joy just to lean back into those deep, soft cushions and look out over that graceful hood into the beckoning highway. And what a revelation the car is to drive!

The Bookmobile service in Floyd county has been hailed as a model of efficiency, and its driver-librarian, Robert W. Wallace, was recently recognized by the Kentucky Library Association when it named him chairman of its Legislative committee.

Miss Willis also told Representative Hill it is almost certain that the regional headquarters for Eastern Kentucky Bookmobiles will be located in Floyd county. Certain local support is required, but it is believed that this may be met by supplying a building for the regional library. The old high school building here, now in disuse except by the Bookmobiles and the high school basketball team, has been suggested as a possible site for the area library headquarters.

"SILK STOCKINGS"

When I tried recently to talk to a freshman girl who is a good friend of the family about silk stockings as a badge of being dressed up, she naively asked, "What are silk stockings?" Imagine that! Why, those ladies of old were most pretty old, maybe, or lying in the old family cemetery, must have turned over in their graves as she turned rather painfully in her arm chairs. I am chairs still exist.

Now back in fidelity around the turn of the century and for some time afterwards, it was a mark of high distinction to be the owner of such a luxury as a pair of silk stockings. Somewhat later it was just the mark of being a well-dressed woman, neither less nor more. A famous school in the state used to rule out silk stockings, as it was a mark of having spent too much money for clothes, and it tried to cater to those who needed an education but had limited means to get it. Many former students of mine, who had spent some time in that college, used to tell me how they had managed to get by the authorities and wickedly wear the spring, expensive silk stockings and even (Horror!) silk dresses! May be that was why they were still in college but at Western instead of the other college.

This question of silk brings up another memory that many younger ones will not believe, but I can rely on those who are unashamedly old to stand by me. Preachers at Fidelity and elsewhere tore into the subject of silk garments with all the zeal of Oriental reprovers, declaring that any such extravagance was wicked, sure to lead down the primrose path. Young girls who sat through such tirades are now, like this chronicler, wearing furs both and bifurcated and are regarded as pretty safe, even as old fogies, that name that resurges in every generation to describe those a bit older than the ones who use the term. I wonder what the furies at Fidelity now talk about that could give such vim to his voice as did this symbol of extravagance or even wickedness. Of course, stockings

Rites for Sgt. Phillips Held at Betsy Layne; Was Shotgun Accident Victim

Funeral services for Sgt. James E. Phillips, 40, of Altus, Okla., but formerly of Betsy Layne, were held at the Betsy Layne high school auditorium, Wednesday, Jan. 2, Sgt. Phillips was accidentally killed by the discharge of a shotgun he was cleaning at his home, Dec. 27.

Reports say that at the time of the tragedy his wife and their two children were out of the house. Rushing in, when they heard the report of the gun, they found him dead.

Phillips, a 18-year veteran of the Air Force, was a son of James and Nellie Richey Phillips, natives of Wise county, Virginia.

Survivors, besides his parents, include his wife, Mrs. Ruby Payne Phillips, a son, Jimmy Phillips, and a daughter, Wilma Payne Phillips, both at home. Three brothers and sisters also survive. Lester Phillips, of Pikeville, Grand Phillips, of Collettsburg, Richard Phillips, of Mouthport, Pike county, Mrs. Clara Allen, of Betsy Layne, Mrs. Evelyn Fields, Kingsport, Tenn., Mrs. Zuelia Reding, Louisville, Mrs. Mildred Patterson, Pigeonville, Mrs. Vera Thompson, of Zebulon, and Mrs. Beattie Morrow, Arlington, Va.

Officiating at the last rites was the Rev. W. E. Davis. Burial was made in the Bush-Hagan cemetery at Harrod.

Not Too Late To Give to TB Drive; Support Needed

Tuberculosis control in Kentucky may suffer a serious set-back unless the 1956 Christmas Seal drive is given a shot in the arm by last minute contributors.

This alarming statement was made by John W. Woods, president of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association, in a final plea for contributions to the annual fund-raising drive that supports the voluntary TB association work throughout the state.

"It's not too late to mail in your contributions," Woods said, "although the campaign officially closed December 31, contributions are accepted through March 31."

"We are more than $9,000 behind last year's drive. Many people have put off answering their Christmas mail in the holiday rush so that it is too late for this year. There is still time to answer your Christmas Seal," he said.

"TB can strike in any home, rich or poor, and wherever it strikes it brings death and misery to the family. More than 11,000 Kentuckians are now ill with the disease. Ninety-four cents out of every dollar you give will remain in Kentucky to combat tuberculosis here. Only six cents goes for national research and health education."

"When you contribute to the Christmas Seal drive, you are helping to keep TB away from your home, your family."

Taxpayers Are Receiving Newly Simplified Forms

As a result of surveys and studies conducted by the Internal Revenue Service, several million taxpayers who last year filed their returns on Form 1040 are this year receiving in the mail the simplified punch-card Form 1040A, which makes possible easier preparation of a return and can be more readily processed by the Service.

The card form enables the taxpayer to provide all pertinent information on his income and expansion status. If his income was less than $5,000 during 1956, consisting of salary or wages from which taxes was withheld, and he had no more than $100 total of other wages, dividends and interest, and if his deductible expenses were less than the standard 10 percent calculated as part of the taxable for incomes up to that figure. For those taxpayers with less than $5,000 income but with allowable deductions exceeding 10 percent, the regular Form 1040 should be used to obtain a refund or reduce the balance of tax due.

Persons who qualify to use the card form but who did not receive it, may obtain a card from the local internal revenue office. An instruction sheet accompanies the card form. It contains a reproduction of the card, to serve as a sample to fill out before preparing the form itself, and to be retained by the taxpayer for his records.

A new feature of the card form this year is the addition of lines making it possible for the taxpayer to compute his own tax.

Commenting on the reduced crime in the county, Judge Hill, said he saw only one man during the hollidays who was obviously drinking. Hollidays are fewer, also, he added. "But," he warned, "that doesn't mean we can lay down on the job of trying to enforce the law."

Drunk driving, stealing and forest fires were some of the violations specifically called to the attention of the grand jury. The judge also told the jury it has the right, in addition to that of investigating criminal violations, to look into the conduct of the financial affairs of the county, schools and towns.

Near the end of his talk to the grand jury he recognized 1957 as a county election year. "There's politics in the air, I understand, but I hope each case will be tried on its merits and that politics will not enter into the work of the court. Let's all guard against that," he warned.

W. J. Reynolds, of Martin, was named foreman of the grand jury, but later reported ill. A bystander James Cruger, was added to the jury, and John Stratton, of David, was named foreman.

Final sessions of the court term started off on the dull side, with only one defendant being convicted. But this defendant, Jim Hunter, dressed in a blue suit, was charged with a deadly weapon and cutting and taking limb of another. He was not present for the hearing of either case. A charge against him of using abusive language to provoke assault was continued generally.

Twenty-one child desertion cases were continued, the first day of court, with alias process to issue. The same reason was given for the same charge against Jake Rabert was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness, and the child desertion case against Burlie Yates also was dismissed because he and his wife are now living together.

The same reason was given for the dismissal of the indictment alleging desertion of a pregnant wife against Bill Johnson.

Joe P. Tackett was named by the court to represent Ed Prater, accused of rape, and the trial was set April 1.

When the case of Norman Shepherd, charged with possessing alcoholic beverages, was called Tuesday and continued till the following day because the defense was not ready, an attachment was issued for Magistrate Graver Holbrook, a witness in the case, and a rule was made to require the official to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failure to appear.

Now, I have only one favor to ask of the aforesaid Mr. Hart, and that is a hint as to how a newspaper goes about saving enough money to buy almost 700 acres of land, not to mention building a home thereon.

I would say that should be "green pastures" for a guy grown old in the galley-slavehood of newspaper work, weary of it all and just wanting to rest and look out on something his very own, his solitary own.

ALL IS NOT LOST The Courier-Journal this morning has a story about the scarcity of doctors in Eastern Kentucky, and at first glance the reader from this section might feel some concern. But read on, dear reader; the story says rejections for military service are lower from this section than the state average and the death rate is lower, too.

Maybe it's the mountain air—certainly not the dew.

Daniel Boone Name Familiar; Few Can Recount Full Story Daniel Boone is a name recognized by all Kentuckians but it is a safe guess that few could recount much of the history of this man so important to the Commonwealth. Boone (minus a coonskin cap — historians agree he shunned it for a black felt top) personifies the frontiersman, the fearless hunter and explorer who created the mold into which Davy Crockett, Kit Carson, Paul Bunyan and many other real and imaginary heroes were poured.

The Boone saga as studied by every school child is basically true in its broad outline and even without embellishment. It has a story-book ring. Boone was one of 11 children born to Squire and Sarah Morgan Boone, English Quakers who lived in Pennsylvania. Daniel attended only briefly a school taught by his uncle where he acquired the bare fundamentals of an education.

From boyhood Boone acquired the ability to "think Indian," an asset he put to good use later. In 1760, the Boones moved to Virginia and then to North Carolina and in a short time Daniel was exploring the forests which spread across the mountains to the West.

As early as 1785, Boone had explored alone the line between Kentucky and Virginia and there are indications that in 1787, he entered Kentucky down the headwaters of the Letcher Fork of the Big Sandy River.

After being turned back in his first effort to move his and five other families to Kentucky, Boone met with the Cherokee Indians in 1773, and bought land on the Kentucky River. He then undertook to carve a road from the settlements in the Yadkin River Valley, in North Carolina, through the wilderness to the Kentucky River, where he and his party erected Fort Boonesboro.

As a life became more settled along the frontier, Boone was elected to represent Kentucky's Fayette county in the Virginia legislature, in 1781. After his term expired, Boone moved to Missouri, where he died in 1820 at the age of 88. The explorer and his wife are buried in a single grave in Frankfort cemetery, on the banks of his beloved Kentucky River.

Department of Health Role in Civil Disaster To Be Studied Subject The roles to be played by the Kentucky State Department of Health and the 120 county health departments in case of civil disaster will be studied at state and district meetings of health workers throughout January and February.

The courses will be given first to health workers from the Louisville Jefferson County Health Department on January 3 and 4 at the State Department of Health auditorium, Harold McPheeters, M. D., Commissioner of the Department of Mental Health will speak on "The Mental Aspects of Civil Defense."

Problems of local health departments in disaster will be discussed by other State Health Department staff members. Emphasis will be placed on problems relating to water, milk and food supplies, waste disposal and the control of rodents and insects. In addition to the initial meeting in Louisville, meetings will be held at central points in nine districts throughout the state. The meeting for this area will be held at Harrod, Feb. 5-6.

Report of Finances Must Be Published, Filed with Auditor

All public officers who are required to publish financial statements annually must file a copy with the Auditor of Public Accounts, State Auditor Mary Louise Foust, said this week.

"The law requires all public officers entrusted with public funds to make financial statements, Miss Foust said, and to mail a copy of the published statement to be filed with the Auditor.

"Some of the public officials are not complying with this order," Miss Foust continued, "so we are setting up our files showing those who have complied with the law and those who have not."

Public officials making annual statements of collections and disbursements have within 90 days after the close of the fiscal year to publish in full their report in the county newspaper with the largest bona-fide circulation. A copy of the report must be filed with the auditor's office on or before Aug. 31.

Failure to comply with these laws can result in fines not less than $50 or more than $500 on each count, the Auditor said.

Prestonsburg's First Music Teacher

Prestonsburg's first music teacher was Miss Parlee Clark who taught here in the late 1800's and at other intervals a few years later. While here she stayed chiefly at the old Bonanza hotel, operated by John W. Layton, near where the residence of Attorney J. W. Howard now stands on First avenue.

"The first piano in Prestonsburg, an Everett, and an Estey organ, owned by Mrs. Davidson's parents, were used by Miss Clark. The piano is now owned by Mrs. Ruth Sowards.

"Miss Clark taught in Pikeville in 1891-92, according to a bulletin of Pikeville Collegiate Institute for that date.

"The above picture, found in the attic of an old home being dismantled here, has on the back the legend: "C. R. Gardner's Picture Palace, Big Sandy River, Ky." The photographic salons of the pre-railway steamboats did a lucrative business due to the almost total lack of good photographers in the Big Sandy towns.

During the War between the States, the Confederates used this huge anchor, together with a great chain, more than a mile long, stretched across the Mississippi river to blockade passage southward of the Union gunboats. The chains links weighed 15 pounds each; the chain was attached on the Kentucky shore to the six-ton anchor bedded deep in the side of the bluff.

Our Children Can Give Us Lessons In Optimism, Curiosity, Also Logic

Our children can give us valuable lessons in optimism and a great many other things, writes Joseph Wechsberg in the January issue of Reader's Digest. In an article titled "What We Can Learn From Children," he acknowledges his own debt to his little daughter, Poppy.

She has given him curiosity, imagination and indelible logic. On a family journey in France, Poppy wanted to know, "Does the dog bark in French?"

"I've been giving her question a lot of thought," writes Wechsberg. "I have come to the conclusion that dogs in France do indeed bark in French."

To the attentive adult, children contribute a lot in logic and judgment of expression. Poppy has made the Wechsbergs wary of clichés. They no longer say that their old neighbor has a foot in the grave because Poppy has just seen him with both feet in the garden. "Mon-sieur Daval didn't leave town under a cloud," she retorted, "he left in his car."

In the eyes of children everything is wondrous and Wechsberg reports he and his wife have learned a great many things from Poppy. "She gives us valuable lessons," he writes, "in such things as, for example, optimism. No hotel room? Wonderful! Let's camp under the trees and sleep in the drizzling rain. When a suitcase with my books and manuscripts was stolen from our car, Poppy consoled me: 'Be glad, Daddy, now you'll have to carry less.'"

"She doesn't accept unpleasant facts—ignores them. She is not poisoned by disappointment—forgets it. She is never discouraged by setbacks—tries again. She's completely unafraid of ghosts, mice, heavy traffic and getting old."

George and Margaret, who was called Peggy, were the parents of ten children. Alexander L. Henry later married Katherine Leake, April 19, 1953.

He was killed by Magistrate Robert Stone, his cousin, Feb. 11, 1931, on Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek. He had no children. Cynthia Stephens, born in May, 1894, married R. C. The Education Department approved $10,750,000 in revenue bond issues for school building purposes.

THE WEDDINGTON FAMILY

Jacob and Henry Weddington, of Virginia, brothers, came to the Big Sandy valley around the turn of the nineteenth century and settled in Pike county, then Floyd, William Ely, in his book, "The Big Sandy Valley," thinks they may have settled at first on Shely Creek. Later they made homes north of the present Pikeville and on John Creek.

Jacob (1778-1858) died in the present Elliott county, Kentucky. The stone marking his last resting place says he was born in Shenandoah county, Virginia. He was thrice married, the name of his first wife unknown to his descendants still living in Elliott and Floyd. There is a tradition that Jacob had lived near Honaker, Russell county, Virginia, before moving to the Big Sandy. His second wife was a widow, Parthenia Davis Hunt, of Tazewell county, Virginia, and they were the parents of two sons—William and Harvey B. Weddington. After the demise of his second wife, Jacob married Catherine Daley and they had no children.

Two known sons of his first marriage were John T. Elizabeth and James John T. Weddington, (1825-1850). If this column is right, married Hannah Mead and were the parents of William H. Weddington, born July 10, 1847. Jacob Weddington, who moved to Missouri; James Weddington who moved to Western Kentucky; about 1847, married John Meek and lived at Cullittsburg; and America Weddington who married William Ratliff.

Elizabeth Weddington married John Hargis at Pikeville, "about 1825" and they moved to Jackson, Breathitt county, when that town was laid out. They were the parents of 11 children, one son being, this column is informed, Appellate Judge Thos. F. Hargis.

James Weddington, Ely says in his book, started west in 1866 and was never heard of again. It was supposed he was killed in 1867. Ely asserted his widow was still living in Pike county with her "two sons, Jack and Marion, with an unmarried daughter in charge."

This family background should be sufficient for the publication of an unsigned contribution to this column on the Weddington family. It was received two weeks ago. The writer seems to know what he (or she) is talking about but since so much of it is at variance with what is accepted about the genealogy of the family it is quoted here and the reader himself may be able to unravel accurately the right answers to many questions about the Weddington line.

The writer asserts Jacob Weddington married, first, Jane Pessley, of Russell county, Virginia, and that their children were:

"Elizabeth (Betsy) married a Hargis. Jane married Thomas Hargis, June 27, 1833. These records are at Pikeville. Martha married Reuben Mead, Oct. 12, 1837. Abigail (Abby) married Joseph P. Meek, Sept. 28, 1837. Levey married Ratliff.

"James W. Sr. married Nancy Fletcher, of Tazewell county, Virginia. Nancy, born Dec. 8, 1809, died Mar. 22, 1881. They came to Kentucky about 1838. I believe their children were William, born Dec. 16, 1806, died June 18, 1873. Mary Jane, born Aug. 26, 1811, married Silas Westley Ratliff. John, born July 23, 1808, died June 22, 1912. Never married. James H. Jr., born Oct. 19, 1844, died June 16, 1913. Jacob, born May 8, 1829, died April 28, 1912.

"James Sr. had half-brothers in Elliott county named William and Harve.

"William Weddington, of Coal Run, and sister, America (Mrs. Harve) were raised by James Sr. I think their father was a brother of James Sr.

"James, Thos. Jacob and Henry Weddington, brothers, were supposed to have come from Ireland and settled near where Honaker, Va., is now. My grandfather told me this some 50 years ago.

"John Fletcher Weddington, son of James H., has his grandfather James Sr.'s Bible. There are many names in it. John, who married a daughter of Roscoe Vanover of Pikeville now lives in Tulsa, Okla.

"My grandfather Jacob called Thomas, John and Henry Hargis uncle."

Correspondence is invited on the Weddington and Hargis families and data will be exchanged.

To Change Name of Gold Coast
The Gold Coast will take the name of Ghana, an ancient West African Empire, when it becomes the first Negro nation in the British Commonwealth on March 6, reports the January Reader's Digest. Its prime minister, Dr. Kwame Nkrumah earned degrees at both Lincoln University and the University of Pennsylvania.

Big Water Supply Attracts Industry

Frankfort, Jan. 1 (Sp.) — Kentucky's great supply of stream water "rules out anything but optimism in making forecasts of the state's future industrial growth."

In making the prediction, Phil M. Miles, director of the mass and minerals division of the Department of Economic Development, said his basis for the outlook is expected expansion of the national economy and the recent spectacular growth of the chemical, metal and large water-using industries.

Miles said the volume of stream water in Kentucky varies greatly from a trickle in some parts of eastern Kentucky to 1400 billion gallons a day at some points on the Ohio river—but both distribution and quantity is considerably greater than found in many states.

Congressman Says Second Class Postage Important Help To Education In America

"Next to the public school system," writes Rep. Victor L. Burdick of North Dakota in the January Reader's Digest, "second-class postage is the finest thing Congress ever did for the education of the American public. As one who believes that democracy cannot work without knowledgeable citizens, I should like to express my hope that this service will long continue unimpaired."
Mr. Burdick recalls that he learned the ABC's in the Sioux country of North Dakota from a magazine called Farm, Home and Rapids. It carried exciting stories, described new farming methods and provided tantalizing glimpses of the world beyond the horizon.

"We could get a Farm, Home and Rapids subscription for 25 cents because in 1929, the year I was born, Congress cut down postage rates and newspapers so more people could afford to buy them."

ATTENTION, SHERIFFS!

Private Detectives are given no legal authority by the Commonwealth, says Asst. Atty. Gen. R. V. Powell. In reply to a letter that inquired about obtaining a private detective's license, Powell wrote: "Kentucky does not license or recognize private detectives as having legal rights or authority than any other private individual. We can split in a private eye's eye if he gets too nosy."

POUR THIS MAN A JULIF

Many sportswriters are great hunters and fishermen - with a typewriter. Others are just as skillful with rod and gun. But adept with both typewriter and sportsman's gear is Kennedy Lusk, who writes "Down the Stream" for the Washington, D. C., Daily News. So his recommendation of woodland and stream opportunities at Kentucky Dam Village should send many devotees of the national capital to the Kentucky outdoors - unless the voters dispatch them first. Lusk devoted several of his columns recently to his cherished experience at the Village. Said Lusk: "The Village, operated by the State, offers the sportsman, fisher and hunter beyond the dreams of avarice. And he brought back the fish and game to prove it. He described the Village as 'one of the most attractive family vacation spots I've seen.'"

KERNEL OFF THE COB

Shortly before he died, Irvin S. Cobb left some directions as to his funeral to be conducted. He said he'd be happy to have some members of the Pynchon Lodge of Elks attend the last rites. He explained, "Judging by my latest visits to the basement of the Elks Club, it wouldn't do them a bit of harm if some of the habitues there got out in the open air. It's only a trip to the cemetery."

BUT NO RUFFLES

A spokesman of the State Agriculture Department reports that a boy shared the spotlight with the girls in the dresser at the Kentucky 23rd annual 4-H West program. He's Bill Wade Slaughter, Bell County who modeled a matched coat and trousers of his own making.

NEWSLENS

Governor Chandler commissions Paul Hornung, Notre Dam football All-American from Louisville, a Kentucky Colonel. The Governor accepts invitations to preside at installation of first members of Kentucky Sports Hall of Fame at the State High School Basketball Tournament in March. Owensboro actor Tom Ewell has a new play on Broadway - "Tunnel of Love". Reorganization of State Highway Department will be effective Jan. 1. Highway Department announces that radio station WRTN, Huntington is carrying daily easement of the Kentucky road condition reports.

RECOLLECTIONS

I recall having to go to the smokehouse on cold mornings to draw some soggy molasses from a barrel. The cold molasses flowed so slowly that I would leave the jug under the tap several hours before it filled - Benjie Love, Ashland.
I recall hearing my grandfather tell of his grandfather working at the Red River Iron Works at Clay City where they made cannon balls used in the War of 1812 - A.S.K. Winchester.
I recall gathering elms roots in Breathitt County and trading it at the store for calico salt and coffee. The herb was dried and shipped to China, where it was used as medicine - Ben Roberts, Louisville.

Baker and Doyle Upped In Power Company Ranks, Board of Directors Says

P. M. Baker was elected a vice-president of Kentucky Power Company, and R. E. Doyle, Jr. was elected a vice-president of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company at last Thursday's board of directors meetings of the two companies. Both companies are operating utilities of the American Gas and Electric System.

Two weeks ago, announcement was made of Mr. Baker's appointment as general manager of Kentucky Power, succeeding Mr. Doyle, who had been promoted to the post of assistant general manager of the larger Indiana & Michigan firm with headquarters in Fort Wayne, Ind.

At last Thursday's board meeting Mr. Doyle resigned as vice-president, general manager and director of Kentucky Power, and Paul D. Brooks, commercial vice-president of the American Gas and Electric Service Corporation, New York City, was elected to the vacated directorship. Mr. Brooks is also a vice-president of Kentucky Power.

All actions became effective January 1.
Mount Washington was a flourishing community on the stage turnpike from Louisville to Nashville as early as 1800. The settlement was first known as The Crossroads, then as Mount Vernon; finally, by order of postal authorities, Mount Washington.

Hopkinville was incorporated in 1804 and named for Gen. Samuel Hopkins, a hero of the War 1812. Somerset was named for the Duke of Somerset and made the seat of Pulaski county by court order in 1801.

Floyd County Times, Jan. 10, 1957 - Sec. 2, Page 1
When the site was selected for the Bath County seat in 1811, the land was owned by Richard Mantle and Col. Thomas Dye Owsing, each of whom wanted to bestow his name on the new town. It was decided to name the village for the man who erected the first residence in the shortest time. The honor went to Owsing and the town became Owsingville.

'Earthy' Story About Hogs Wins Lie Champ

Burlington, Wis. — An 'earthy' story of hogs who were doomed to death by sticky soil today won Albert B. Hopkins, of Madison, Wis., the title of World Champion Lie of 1956.

The Burlington Lairs' Club selected Hopkins' tale of hogs' tails from a collection of varied fabrications in its annual contest.

Hopkins, a 49-year-old electrician, won the club's "gold plated diamond studded" medal for relating: "Out in South Dakota they have a clay-like soil they call gumbo. The gumbo roads are smooth and hard as glass when dry, but when wet the gumbo balls up under the fenders until it locks the wheels on a car."

"Last year, during a wet spell, a farmer's hogs got a little ball of gumbo on their tails. As they walked around it got bigger and bigger until the weight of it pulled their skin back so tight they could not get their eyes shut—and they died from lack of sleep."

Five milligrams of stillbistrol fed daily to steers wintering on roughage primarily was no particular help in gains, the USDA reports.

if your husband had to do this today...

If your husband had to take down the family wash every time it rains—and then put it all back up—he'd soon buy an electric clothes dryer!

Since things don't work that way, why not explain your problem to him? Maybe he hasn't even thought about it!

explain... how heavy wet clothes are, and how you have to wrestle them out to the clothesline, basketload after basketload... week after week... month after month.

explain... how your back aches after you hang out the wash... bend and straighten... bend and straighten... over and over and over again.

explain... the nuisance of keeping up with clothespins, wiping clotheslines clean and tightening them when they sag.

explain... how much smoother and fluffier each piece is when it comes from the dryer... that some pieces such as towels don't even have to be ironed, and all can be ironed without sprinkling.

If you do, chances are you'll soon own a bright new electric clothes dryer. And he'll be just as proud as you when that clothesline comes down, to tell the world that your family is modern—Living Better Electrically!
