Standardization of Plans Would Save Money

Kentucky educational leaders are concerned, as well they may be, about the need for more school buildings, the lack of money with which to do construction work and the high cost of construction.

But Kentucky can do one thing to reduce the cost of school-building, and that step would be no small item. It should eliminate the current practice of having an architect draft special plans for each school to be built.

Few schools at best are great architectural accomplishments. A standardization of plans would harm us none esthetically and would eliminate the cost of individual plans for each structure and the higher cost of materials cut or prepared especially for one building differing in size, design and appointments from all other buildings.

Why not the best set of plans possible for buildings of a given number of rooms and let it go at that? Then if Floyd county, for instance, needs 12-room or a 20-room school building, the State Department of Education would have the plans ready without undue delay and without the expense of having an architect start "from scratch" on design and planning?

Materials for several buildings of the same size and design also could be purchased more cheaply than materials cut or prepared for only one building of special design.

Architects employed by the state to do such planning could also serve as contractor-consultants and supervisors at fixed salaries, thus saving the costly commission earned by private architects.

Such a change may not be as simple as it sounds on paper, but it could be effected. And such a change would mean in the school building program that must one day be carried out an economy that would give the taxpayer and hard-pressed school districts more for their money.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D. Western Kentucky Teachers College Bowling Green, Ky.

"KEEPING UP WITH LIZZIE"

I am now in the first half of my fiftieth year as a teacher. Much water has flowed over and through the dam in that time. There were no county high schools when I began teaching; and there were very few of any kind, even though several academies proudly called themselves colleges. A very large number of the people in Kentucky were miserably educated in 1907, when I taught my first one-room school. There were literally thousands who could not even read and write their own names. An actual college graduate was about as likely to appear in any given community as a wild buffalo straight from the plains. All this is recorded history rather than an old man's fancy memories.

In spite of the wonder I have always felt for the strides by which our state has risen in education, especially in statistics, I still wonder more at the numerous facts we have lived through in our effort to make our schools everything but places of intellectual growth and development. In just about one of the fifty years of my professional life somebody has suggested something new to add to our curriculum as a life-saver for our democracy. Most of these things are good, especially if we had forty years to introduce them to our schools and could keep children until they were middle-aged. The continuous noise made in our magazines and newspapers about Johnny and his reading has considerable foundation in fact, though the man who did most of the howling probably knows less of actual conditions than any primary teacher in our state. After we discount all of the opinionated pronouncements about popular education, we must admit that we have not wrought as many wonders in our schools as the taxpayers would appreciate, and we have not taught as many Johnnyes to read and enjoy reading as we might have. In our fear that we would not get on the most recent bandwagon, we have often taught the trills of school and left off the fundamentals. Of course, there are many so-called educators who feel that we are doing well if we get our youngsters so they can be happy with one another, whether they can read or spell or count to a hundred. Social adjustment was and is a big part of life itself. I well know. Much good has been done to develop a new democracy among the generations that have gone to school since I opened my small one-room school in 1907. But are the fathers and mothers, the tax-payers themselves, satisfied with Johnny's social judgment when he does not have enough

Books and Such

By Laura Virginia Roberts

Two charming neighbors of yours and mine have promised to share their latest reading adventures with me in the next future, so you may count on the column's remaining Books and Such for a while longer at this rate.

Meanwhile, have you ever written a limerick? Lately, I've grown interested in collecting them, and since you read a few, they began coming through your head waiting to be written.

Poets and non-poets through the years have used the limerick to read and enjoy reading as we get our youngsters so they can be happy with one another, whether they can read or spell or count to a hundred.

We don't know why they are called limericks, although some have tried to link the verse form with a limerick County, Ireland. Anyway, 19th century artist-carpenter Edward Lear made them famous and fashionable, and everybody has been getting into the habit since.

If you're interested in reading large numbers of limericks, many of them spicy, there are two slender little volumes which you may buy at most bookstores, or order from the publisher. They are "THE WORLD'S BEST LIMERICKS" and "THE LITTLE LIMERICK BOOK." Peter Pauper Press, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

The following anonymous limericks from here and there have given my students and me a few laughs. There's the mercenary daughter, it is said. There was an old man of Nantucket Who kept his cash in a bucket. His daughter named Nan Ran away with a man And as for the money, Nan tuk it.

The over-confident girl: There was a young lady of Niger Who smiled as she rode on a tiger. They returned from the ride With the lady inside And the smile on the face of the tiger.

The unappreciative food expert: An epicure dining at Crewe Poured quite a large mouse in his stew. Said the waiter, "Don't shout, And wave it about, Or the rest will be wanting some too."

The fellow with nothing much to do: A silly young fellow named Hyde In a funeral procession was sped; When asked, "Who is dead?" He giggled and said, "I don't know, I just came for the ride."

A Southern girl about whom Ogdan Nash writes: There was a young lady from Natchez Whose clothes were always in patches. When told it was so She replied, "Yes, ah know, But wherever ah itches, ah scratches."

And finally the frightened relative in Edward Gorey's five liner: Each night Uncle fills me with dread As he sits at the foot of my bed; I'd not mind that he speaks In libbers and squeaks, But for seventeen years he's been dead.

RESTAURANT OPERATOR DIES Ashland, Ky., March 13 - Nicholas G. "Nick" Graves, 73 Ashland restaurant operator since 1922, died today at his home. He was born at Kanawa, Greece, and came to Ashland 33 years ago. The body is at John Stein Funeral Home.

Voters of the 96th Legislative District

I stated earlier in The Times that in later issues I would make my platform public and I wish to give you my viewpoint on some matters with which the heads are will be concerned in 1968. TAXATION: We all know that without taxes educational services would be nonexistent, but certainly tax money is the concern of each of us, none it is "our money." I am dead set against the practice of using money collected from the many to further the aims and political advantage of the few. I am also against the practice of granting special interests, such as race tracks, the privilege of being tax free while the taxpayer's pay is being used as a source of revenue to make up for the loss. Horse racing is a sport of kings and wealthy people and it is they who are in a position to pay without taking bread off their table. EDUCATION: I am on the way up the educational ladder and with proper action by the General Assembly we can continue to climb. The Minimum Foundation Law is a good law and if followed will make Kentucky an example of good education. I am sure that if we, the whole country, I shall strive for further educational progress especially for our neglected section of the state. I am not an "ex" teacher. I am, have always been, and shall continue in the teaching profession, so it will not be necessary to "pressure" me into voting for good school legislation. ROADS: I am not sure what yardstick is used to determine where roads are needed and where roads are to go in the state, but I shall find out for you and I wish to inform those who are in charge of highway planning that Eastern Kentucky is most certainly a part of the "blue-state." I am sure that an important factor in deciding where the road dollars are to be spent should be the needs of our section has plenty of NEED. A relative to one of the candidates for Representative called me some time ago and asked me to date and when I said that I was determined to stay in the race, he stated in so many words: "We will state you out on election day." To him and any others who feel that they can thwart the wish of the voting public by some "age-old" trick, I have this to say, THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY ARE IN-TELLECTUALLY AND FINANCIALLY WITH ALL THE MEANS AT THEIR DISPOSAL ANY EFFORT TO DEFEAT THE VOTER RESULTS NO MATTER WHO MAKES THE EFFORT. CHARLES CLARK (Pol. Adv.) Forest Fire Costs Yates 1-Year Term Malcolm Yates, of Williamson, W. Va., received a year in the State Reformatory in the Pike county circuit court March 11 for the offense of setting a forest fire. It was the stiffest sentence ever meted out for this offense in this section, it was said. It was alleged that Yates, while drunk in April of last year, set fire deliberately to the farm of Tom Burchett, at Gulnare. Three witnesses testified to the offense, it is said. Bill Music, of the State Division of Forestry here, pointed out the difference between offenses under the forestry laws. To deliberately set a woods fire is a felony but negligently starting a fire is only a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine or jail sentence, of both. The most severe sentence meted out in Floyd county to date was a recent one when the offender, charged with negligently setting a fire, was fined $10 and costs and given 10 days in jail.

HOSPITAL AID IS COMPLETED

Martin Hospital is One of Several to Receive Final Ford Payment The Ford Foundation announced Friday final payments totaling $98,315,200 to 2,300 private hospitals in its $600 million program to improve and extend community hospital services in the 48 states and Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. Order of the hospitals receiving funds from the Foundation is Our Lady of the Way at Martin. The program is one part of the appropriations of $200 million announced by the Foundation on December 12, 1965. This total also included $210 million to raise college faculty salaries and $90 million to strengthen medical school instruction. An additional $10 million has since been approved to match contributions to the National Fund for Medical Education by industry and individuals. Hospitals originally included in the program were those non-profit, non-governmental institutions listed by the American Hospital Association as of December 12, 1965, or hospitals which had applied for listing by this date and were approved before March 15, 1966. The program did not extend to hospitals under construction or not in actual operation at the time of the announcement. Our Lady of the Way Hospital received $6,850 for a total of $13,700. The Methodist hospital, Pikeville, received a final payment of $34,750 for a $89,500 total.

Dwarf fruit trees have restricted root systems, so a stake should be driven close to the tree and the latter tied to it. The trees require an annual light pruning. Solitaire, which is experiencing a revival of popularity in this country, is supposed to have been invented by a French political prisoner in the Bastille in 1650.

being paid this group is $3,134, the highest on record.

(No average-salary studies were made last year by the State Department of Education, but two years ago, the average of all personnel except superintendents was $2,900.)

This is the over-all picture presented by salary schedules that were approved last week by the State Board of Education.

The $116,242,886 being spent on public schools this year comes from two principal sources: 1. State-aid funds distributed under the school foundation program, amounting to $5,765,000.

The state-wide average being paid classroom teachers this year will be lower than the $3,134 average being paid all instructional personnel.

Superintendents, some principals, and directors of pupil personnel, and some vocational agricultural teachers earn higher salaries and are paid on 10-month, 11-month, and annual basis.

Fifty-seven of the 221 school districts pay their instructional personnel average salaries of $3,100 or higher.

Average annual salaries paid teachers in other counties of this area follow with the number of teachers for each county appearing in parentheses:

Pike, $2,543 (112); Morgan, $2,506-36 (120); Knott, $2,520-42 (201); Letcher, $2,447-58 (289); Martin, $2,219-85 (123); Johnson, $2,427-87 (150); Lawrence, $2,329-65 (125); Magoffin, $2,474-81 (118).

Most classroom teachers of this area pay these average salaries: Pikeville, $3,871.38 (46); Hazard, $3,066.34 (43); Lazard, $2,883.80 (80-5); Van Lear, $2,986-11 (113).

Capitol Notebook

Frankfort, March 18 (Sp.) — "You don't educate people and then just let them think."

So said Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield after recounting Kentucky's advance in education to an assembly of doctors from all over the United States.

He then told the recent National Conference on Rural Health at Louisville that Kentucky ranks "on top of the list in public health."

Waterfield added: "There's a fine public health department in every county in Kentucky. We've arranged under a foundation program for public health to do wonderful things."

The lieutenant governor said the program calls for construction of health centers in all counties lacking them.

He also cited the State's tuberculosis control program, "craps strikes in mental health" and steps to build a medical school at the University of Kentucky.

KENTUCKY FEATUETTE

Money for the settlement of Middleboro was supplied by British investors. A large tract was bought and settlers began to arrive in 1886. The wide streets of the new city bore the names of English kings. By 1880, Middleboro had 10,000 inhabitants, two railroads, hotels, stores, churches, an artificial lake and one of the first golf courses in the United States. But in 1892, with the fall of the great London banking house, Baring Bros. & Co., Middleboro was abandoned. The coal industry later brought back recovery and prosperity.

These included a multitude of honors in Masonry. The post will be filled at the Grand Lodge's 197th annual communication at Louisville in October.

WELLS FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Legislative District No. 96
Democratic Primary, May 28

During these times when our people of Kentucky need so much and with a feeling that I am in a better position to bring more of this much-needed help to the District, I am asking your support and help to enable me to be your Representative in the State Legislature during the next two years.

To all of you I will say I am not seeking this office for hope of any personal gain, nor do I aspire to anything political, but since I have been interested for years in civic affairs, the betterment of my community and locality, to which I have devoted much time, I feel that by representing this District in Frankfort I will be in position to do those things which will be helpful to us all.

I am in business at Estill and am in position to give necessary time to the office which I seek. In order that I may truly represent all the people of the District, after I am elected, I will hold open forum meetings, prior to sessions of the Legislature, to which you will be invited. At such meetings I will endeavor to learn those things which are needed throughout the District and which may be pushed into realization by my efforts in Frankfort.

I will work for my District and with the 97th District Representative of this county, by putting my best foot forward to achieve worthy while projects to bring help to the most people of the District. Of course, every straight-thinking citizen has a challenge to work for better roads and more modern and better schools, for our schools are largely responsible for what our children contribute in future years to their community and their country. I will strive to give them the best by working for more money which may be spent on the Education and Better Roads programs.

I married the former Avenale Cooley, daughter of Frank and Byrd Allen Cooley, of Estill, but presently in Wabasso, Fla. I am a charter member of the Wayland Lions Club, a member and on the official Board of the Wayland Methodist Church. I was graduated from the Paintsville High School, completed courses at Mayo College and attended Morris-Harvey College in Barboursville, W. Va. Avenale and I have many relatives and friends in this District and throughout Floyd county. I earnestly solicit the help of everyone in my bid for this Representative post.

Sincerely
J. C. "CREF" WELLS

FOOD NOTES

By DEXIE TRAPP
Home Demonstration Agent

Buy eggs by grade, size and to fit your needs. The new egg candling law effective January 1, 1957 makes egg buying more standardized. Each carton of eggs sold in a retail outlet must wear a label that states the eggs have been graded and sized according to State and Federal regulations.

Federal grades are a sign of interior quality. Grade A are top quality good for all purposes especially frying, poaching and boiling. Grade B have thinner whites and a flatter yolk that are fine where delicate flavor and appearance are not so important.

"Rule of Thumb" for prices of eggs is if the price of medium eggs is 7 cents below large eggs, medium eggs are the better buy on a per pound basis. When a dozen medium eggs costs less than a pound of lean meat, the eggs are more economical, protein wise.

In spite of their natural package, eggs are perishable. Observe four simple rules: (1) Store in refrigerator, (2) keep small end down, (3) keep them covered, to keep out strong odors, and (4) take out only the number needed.

Eggs are easy to cook. There's only one general rule to follow—always cook eggs at a very low temperature.

FRUIT SPRAYS

If you are interested in raising quality fruit it will be necessary to follow a spray program that will control insects and diseases. The first spraying, known as dormant spray should be applied as soon as possible before growth starts. This spray will help control scale insects, leaf curl, winter eggs, and rosy apple eggs on peaches and apples.

For peaches use 4-3-100 Bordeaux mixture, lime sulphur or ferbam. On apples use oil emulsion.

If you would like complete information, there is a bulletin available at the extension office, free for the asking.

The second spraying will be the Pre-bloom, applied when the first leaves are unfolding from around the blossom buds.

STRAWBERRIES

There have been orders placed for 20,000 strawberry plants for the people of Floyd county. The first order of 12,000 were ordered from the Mullins Plant Farm, in Tennessee. These should arrive this week. The East Kentucky Strawberry Growers Association has made a later order for the balance.

This year for the third straight year the Sears, Roebuck Foundation is sponsoring the 4-H Strawberry project.

Twenty 4-H Club members have been selected to receive 1,000 plants each. In addition to the plants they will receive enough fertilizer and chlordane for the one-fourth acre patches. Much of the credit of progress in strawberry production in Floyd county can be accredited to this project.

FOREST FIRES

The spring forest fire season is upon us. With the forest dry and absent of green vegetation this makes the fire hazard much more dangerous. The people of Floyd county should make an all out effort to protect our forest. An old practice of burning dead grass and stalks should be avoided. This causes damage two fold, first it is the starting point of most of the spring forest fires, and second burning destroys organic matter which should be returned to the land, to improve its productivity.

RIVER BANK

During the recent flood many of the river banks have caved in, and in some cases have cut back into the bottoms, destroying a lot of crop land. In every case of cave-ins that I have noticed the banks have been in crops. This has left the banks unprotected. The roots, needed to hold the soil, is not there. Bare banks have little chance of holding against the tons of moving water during high water. The yield of corn on these banks has not been large enough to be profitable in the last few years. Farmers have two opportunities to protect the river banks. They can put them in pasture with help from your A. S. C. Program, or through the soil bank. A farmer's own individual situation would determine which would be the best. If anyone is interested in either of these programs, contact the A. S. Office in Prestonsburg, and discuss your situation with them.

Trade names are curious words, often with no apparent derivation. "Kodak" for example, was the result of George Eastman's experiment with hundreds of combinations of letters in 1888 in an effort to coin a short, punchy and easily-remembered trademark for his camera.

GARDEN TIME

By ROBERT M. JONES
County Agent

PLOWING
Too often the gardens in Floyd County are not plowed deep enough. One inch has been plowed only four inches deep for several years have developed a hard pan which vegetable roots cannot penetrate. Your garden should be plowed eight to ten inches deep. This allows the roots to grow deep. Increases the soil's water-holding capacity, and improves drainage. After plowing the soil should be disked and dragged several times to break up the clods.

ADD ORGANIC MATTER
If you drive along the road any spring day, there will be one fire after another in each garden. This is the same as burning dollar bills. All crop residuals are available to the gardens. One of the biggest factors limiting their yields and quality vegetables in our gardens is lack of organic matter. There are several ways of adding organic matter. One is to turn under old stalks, weeds and leaves, don't burn them. Other methods the gardener can use are burning under barn yard manure, compost or cover crops.

FERTILIZING
Vegetables like any other plants need plenty plant food to grow properly. Healthy plants are much more resistant to insects and diseases and will outlive the weeds.

One of the best methods of fertilizing a garden is to apply a two-inch layer of barn yard manure and 500 pounds of 20% superphosphate per acre. The addition of phosphate to manure makes a well balanced fertilizer.

If manure is not available plant food will have to be applied through the use of commercial fertilizer. There is only one way you can be sure to apply the proper fertilizer to the garden. That is to have soil test made. The Floyd County Extension Service has a soil laboratory in operation for the benefit of the people in the county.

A general fertilizer recommendation is 1,000 pounds of 5-10-10, 6-12-12, or 3-12-12 fertilizer per acre of garden, or one pound to 40 square feet. Under normal conditions this will supply sufficient plant food.

Leafy vegetables, such as cabbage, lettuce, onions and greens, will need in addition to the above a side-dressing of nitrogen. This can be supplied by using either a bucket of chicken manure or one pound of ammonium nitrate per 100 feet of row. This should be applied along side the vegetable row and worked in the soil with cultivator.

Next week's article will include selecting seed, varieties, and planting.

AID GIVEN STUDENTS BY UNIVERSITY FUND

Kentucky is sustaining a great loss in potential leadership due to the fact that top-level high school graduates cannot afford to attend college.

Only last year, the Kentucky Association of Colleges, Secondary and Elementary Schools reported that more than 470 seniors in the top 10 per cent of their classes fell into this category.

Being particularly interested in this problem, the University of Kentucky has sought to aid those of high ability who, because of limited financial resources, find it difficult to finance a college education. This assistance may be in the form of a student loan, a scholarship or help in finding part-time employment.

The UK Student Loan Fund is managed by a committee of nine faculty members, headed by Dr. C. C. Carpenter, dean of the College of Commerce and committee chairman.

Students requesting funds must have satisfactorily completed at least one semester at the University; sign a promissory note with at least one co-signer, preferably a parent; be a resident of Kentucky; be seeking aid for educational expenses only; and provide at least three character references. Four per cent interest is charged all borrowers.

More than 3,500 scholars have used this fund in the last 10 years in order to remain in school. At the present time there are 224 loans outstanding to students, or $45,400. These amounts range from $20 to $1,000, and are for periods varying from 30 days to four years. Many students come to UK prepared financially, only to have some unexpected event all but wipe out their anticipated funds. This was the case with 12 from Eastern Kentucky, who were victims of the recent floods in that area. The Student Loan Fund came to their aid with loans totaling between $2,000 and $3,000.

The Student Loan Fund was established in 1929 by a $100 donation, and has grown through additional gifts, investment interests and other sources into a $109,000 concern. Approximately 200 freshmen scholarships are offered by the University, but a majority of these grants, by direction of the donors, are assigned to students interested in engineering and agricultural careers. High school seniors, when recommended by their principals, may compete for the available awards by taking the University's scholarship examination in March.

LANGLEY AND ROBINSON
 A letter from Emory L. Hamilton, Wise, Va., relative to the Langley and Robinson case, published in the March issue of the magazine, states that the early members of those marital-connected families of Southwest Virginia, and later East-Kentucky.
 "Many thanks for the information on Joseph Langley, also the sketch on Beriah Magoffin Spruick. I am interested in Joseph Langley, since he has ties with both the Robinson and Horne families, who were very early pioneer settlers of Wise County, Va."
 "Joseph Langley's father must have died when he was a young boy as his mother married James Horne as her second husband and had at least four children by him, these becoming the ancestors of the Horne family of Wise county."
 "Joseph Langley married in 1816 to Deliah Robinson. You mention that Congressman Langley states relatives, John Robinson, of Revolutionary fame, took part in the above attempt to found the state of Franklin. It is probably true, except that his name was most likely was William Robinson, instead of John."
 "William Robinson was a Revolutionary War soldier and fought in the war for more than six years. He enlisted from Virginia, and was a Sergeant in the army as shown by War Department records, after the Revolutionary War he settled in Tennessee, near Jonesboro, where he died at the age of 120 years."
 His son, William Robinson, II, was born in Tennessee, later settling in Scott county, Virginia, and in 1840 moved to what is now Wise county, settling about two miles from the present town of Wise, and on what is now the campus of Glenville College. Joseph Langley, of Ligon, probably came with him from Scott county, Virginia, for they were living at the same place about or before 1844. Deliah Langley was a sister of William Robinson, II and daughter of the Revolutionary William, I.
 "William Robinson, II, was the grandfather of the late Judge James Monroe Robinson, of Pikeville, who married James Monroe Robinson, of Pikeville, Ky."

HARGIS FAMILY
 No family of Eastern Kentucky has ever presented so many difficulties in establishing its origin as the Hargis family of Pike, Breathitt and Boone counties. This column has been in correspondence with many students of genealogical lore in regard to the family but little information has accrued.
 After research and correspondence certain definite outlines of the family tree began to form but most of it was knocked out or doubt cast by R. Lee Stewart, of Morehead, Mo. Stewart's boasts interested in the Hargis origins and went to work. For one thing he found two John Hargises when there was supposed to be only one.
 Stewart wrote Esah Williams, an attorney of Jackson. We quote the reply he received Jan. 29, almost in its entirety.
 "I happen to have a booklet called 'Recollections of Breathitt' which was written by J. O. (Green) Trimble at the age of 91 years and who came to what is now Breathitt county in 1851 and engaged in the mercantile business here for several years. In this booklet he comments from time to time on the families he got acquainted with during his stay. Concerning John Hargis he says:
 "John Hargis was the first man who moved into Jackson after the town was established in 1838. He purchased two lots on Main street, the lot upon which Floyd Day's wholesale storehouse now stands and upon these he erected four or five log cabins which he used temporarily for a hotel, which was the first and only hotel in the town for some time. He emigrated from Pikeville on the Big Sandy and reared ten children, six sons and four daughters. William, Joseph, Samuel, Keene, Henderson, and Thomas Fraser."

Special questions on consumer income, educational attainment, family characteristics and religious preference will be asked in the U. S. Census Bureau's Current Population Survey in March, according to Supervisor Robert A. Yerkey of the Bureau's field office in Cincinnati, Ohio, which will participate in the survey. The special questions will be in addition to the regular employment and unemployment inquiries asked each month in the Current Population Survey.

The special questions on income, family characteristics, etc., have been asked annually in the Current Population Survey for a number of years but the question on religious preference is a new one. It reads as follows: "What is your religion?" and then cites examples such as Baptist, Lutheran, Roman, Catholic, etc. The question will be asked of persons 14 years of age and over who are members of households covered in the Current Population Survey which is conducted monthly on a sample basis.

Big Sandy Homemakers To Meet at Paintsville

Homemakers of the Big Sandy District will hold their District Federation meeting in Paintsville, April 24. Members from Pike, Morgan, Johnson, and Lawrence counties will attend. Floyd county women are invited to attend.

"The homemakers organizations are a part of the Extension Service's educational program," says Dixie Trapp, Floyd County Home Demonstration Agent. "They are one of the ways the home agent can help families and about one and one-half million women are learning to improve their homemaking skills and abilities in over 66,000 such groups," she added.

"Any lady interested in organizing a homemakers group in her community, contact the home agent," Miss Trapp continued.

"She will come to your home and together you will choose time, place and lesson for the first meeting. The women of Floyd county interested in the Homemakers Program are urged to plan to attend the Big Sandy Federation meeting April 24."

ENDORSES ROBERTS

I take this method of asking my friends to support Dewey Roberts for county judge, as I am in the hospital and don't have a chance to see you. I have known him most of my life and I know him to be an honest and sober man. I believe he is well qualified for this office. He made us a good magistrate in our district. He was always ready and willing to help the people. When he built many roads in our district while he was magistrate. When you help him you are helping me also. I will certainly appreciate any thing you may do to help him.

Thanking you in advance.

THANK YOU!

Thank you! As one of the worst floods in history is passed, we would like to tell our customers how much we appreciate their fine cooperation and patience with us during this emergency.

We regret that we were not able to restore service to all of you as quickly as we would have liked. It has been a difficult time for us and without the help of our sister companies from West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio and Tennessee, who sent men and materials, we would have had much greater difficulty in restoring service. To them, we say thanks.

The great cooperation and spirit of helpfulness which everyone has shown in this disaster has been outstanding. From throughout the area, come many reports of heroic acts and evidence of the great community spirit which has prevailed. In this, all the people of this area can take justifiable pride.

Again, we say thank you to all of you, for your patience, kindness and cooperation.
